SAW EARTH OPEN

Mr. Angier
Writes of His Experiences
At Jamaica

Mr. E. H. Angier has received the following very interesting letter from his father, who tells of the earthquake at Kingston:

Mandeville, Jamaica,
January 19, 1907.

I will not attempt to write a description of the earthquake and its consequences except what came under my own observation, everything is rumor and hearsay and you will get in the newspapers more reliable, readable and graphic information than I could possibly give you.

I will simply confine myself to my personal experience about which you may, perhaps, have some curiosity. We landed from the steamer at Kingston, Saturday morning the 12th, after a delightful passage. There were two hotels between which the passengers divided themselves, some going to the Myrtle-Bank in the heart of Kingston; others to the Constant Spring which is (or was) six miles out in the country.

My preference was for the Myrtle-Bank, because being in the city, and my stay in Kingston being short, I thought I could accomplish more than if I went into the suburbs. But as my steamer-made friends were going to the Constant Spring I happily, as it proved, went there also. Before going to the hotel I was measured for a suit of clothes and made an appointment to go in for a "try on" at 4 P. M. Monday, just the hour of the earthquake shock.

Sunday, Mr. G., a steamer acquaintance, and I were going to take an all-day excursion and drive to the Botanical Gardens, but when I ordered the carriage I was told it was too late in the day to start, so I took a shorter drive and I told Mr. G. that I would postpone going in to "try on" until Tuesday morning, and then we would take the Castleton Garden's drive Monday. This we did and consequently I never tried on that suit.

We reached the Gardens about eleven o'clock and spent a delightful hour in strolling around among the splendid collections of flowers, tropical trees and shrubs gathered from all parts of the tropical world. We had a leisurely luncheon, smoked a poor Jamaican cigar and started back for the hotel, a distance of nineteen miles, at 2 o'clock. We had driven about one hour and one half through most charming scenery of valley and mountain and I was in the midst of one of my chestnut yarns, when I was interrupted by a roar like a discharge of a field battery or a succession of blasts in the distance. I asked the driver, "What's that?" The answer came, but not from the driver. There was a quick rush of wind, (the air had been perfectly quiet), a rumble, and then things were doing, Hell broke loose! We were on the side of a ravine. Whether the depth was fifty feet or five hundred I don't know, and it was immaterial, results would have been the same. The earth, the mountain side and a high bank in front, which was covered with large trees, rocked and shook. I can see now that bank of earth shaking in its jaws mighty trees as a terrier shakes a rat. It was fierce, vicious, diabolic.

Then the ground in front began to open and looking down I saw the road within five inches of the wheels crack and yawn. The driver saw it at the same time and whipped up his horses. Glancing back I expected to see the whole side of the road tumble into the ravine, but instead it was closing up and left a mere crack in the road. Thirty seconds is said to have been the duration of the earthquake, but I think it worked overtime. If that road bank had fallen over or if the wheels of our carriage had been over the crack and fallen into it, we would have been surely buried into eternity and probably covered with debris and no one would have known who we were or where we hailed from, and may be we would never have been found.

"Why that must have been an earthquake, do you have them frequently?" I asked the driver. "Yes sir, but not so hard as that," he replied. We drove on noticing the tumbled down walls, small land slides, large boulders and trees thrown into the road, but even then did not realize that the shock was so terrible as it was. We lighted fresh cigars but I never finished that story I was telling Mr. G. and I don't believe, even now, that he knows how much he missed by the shock coming at just that time.

Soon we began to see native huts in ruins and shortly came to a small village where the church had fallen in and a boy had been killed, then from the top of a hill we looked down upon Kingston, several miles away and saw three extensive fires in the town. Then only did we begin to feel anxious. Driving on, a few miles further we saw "Constant Spring" with the British and America flags flying from the roof and congratulated ourselves that the hotel was all right, no danger of fire there. A few minutes later we drove into the yard and to the front of the house to find the stone part in ruins and the whole house uninhabitable. The guests and servants were congregated on the lawn, all quiet and orderly and no one hurt.

Taking two darkies with me, I climbed up the stairs and through the debris to my room. The door would not open and we had to break it in, another lucky escape for me, for, had I been in my room at the time of the shock I could not have forced my way out, unless through the opening in the outer wall and a jump of twenty feet to the ground. We managed to get my things together and remove them to a place of comparative safety where "papa" packed his trunk quicker than he ever did before. And here let me suggest that if you ever travel in search of earthquakes, don't carry a wardrobe trunk with you. They are inconvenient. All luggage was taken out on the lawn, out of danger from falling walls, and there we camped, some two or three hundred of us.

Food was distributed, blankets, etc. furnished us and we settled ourselves for the night, but not to sleep much. Tremors of the earth were almost constant, and during the night there were at least three severe shocks. Tuesday the problem with all was how to get away from Kingston. We were told that the roads were impassable, and trains not running, and telegraph not working.

Towards evening I heard the rumor that Mandeville had escaped serious injury and that a train might run on Wednesday. These rumors proved to be facts and here I landed Wednesday evening after much strenuous effort, it seemed that all of Kingston left alive wanted to take the same train. Thirty cars—passengers, freight, fruit were packed with humanity; whites, blacks and all intermediate shades scrambling and fighting to get aboard. From Monday morning until Wednesday night I did not take off my clothes.

I will desist; I might go on indefinitely but it would be tedious. It was a terrible nervous strain to anyone, expecting each moment that there might be another and greater shock that would land us all in Kingdom come. Now and then we would meet a familiar face, hands would be grasped, a smile forced and a hearty "I'm glad you're alive old boy" said, and then each head would be averted to hide the tear or the trembling chin.

I draw a veil over the sights, the horrors and the happenings in Kingston. They are not pleasant to recall. No one not on the ground can ever know or realize them, even remotely. Kingston is a complete ruin. The dead and wounded will mount into the thousands. The agonies endured were past belief. In proportion to population and size, the San Francisco disaster was child's play. Six days have passed and the earthquake shocks are still severe at intervals—we felt one here at 3 o'clock this morning.

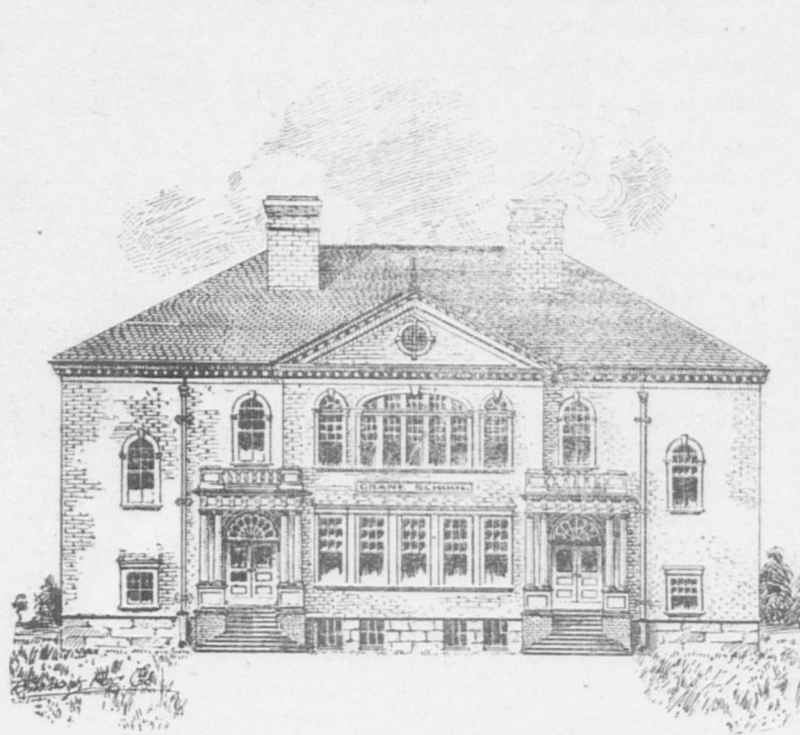

The store where I would have undoubtedly been, if I had not gone driving, was a total wreck and burned. No one in it escaped death or injury, no one, except one poor devil who was so buried that he was not hurt and who was not found and rescued until Thursday. Three days and three nights in a heated furnace, without food, hope or water. Can you imagine his sufferings?

Bad Fall

Louis Restelli, who carries on the granite business at South Quincy, received a frightful fall Thursday afternoon. He was at work on top of a derrick 75 feet from the ground when he lost his balance and fell to the ground. Fortunately he landed in the snow which broke his fall somewhat. He was, however, injured about the shoulders and back. He was attended by Dr. McLellan and removed to his home on Trafford street.

New Schoolhouse at Canton

THE CRANE SCHOOL BUILDING, CANTON.

Monday, Jan. 28, the Crane school building, Canton, was opened for Grammar school pupils and considerable credit is given the architects Hurd & Gore of Boston, for their fine work. Mr. H. W. Gore, Jr., of Braintree is one of the architects mentioned.

Hurd & Gore were the architects for the Noah Torrey school in South Braintree, and nearly captured the contract to remodel the Quincy High school building.

The above building was remodeled out of the fifty year old "Number 2" building and it is now thoroughly up-to-date. There are three class rooms on the first floor, two classrooms and assembly hall on the second.

Talk of Day About the City

February.

More snow.

The month of February promises to be wintry.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held Monday evening.

There are a number of events scheduled for next week and it promises to be a busy one.

George Ford was injured the first of the week by falling from the roof of a house where he was at work.

Quincy bay is frozen over for quite a distance out, and Boston papers report that the harbor is frozen from East Boston to Governors and Apple Islands and from Jeffries Point to Great Head, Wintthrop.

The funeral of James M. Cleverly was held this morning from St. John's church. The services were conducted by Rev. John J. Casey. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery. A delegation from Paul Revere Post, 83, G. A. R., was present.

A play entitled "Alabama" was given in the City Theatre, Brockton, on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week by the Players' Club, for the benefit of the hospital, and was a grand success the opening night. Everett Winslow formerly of this city plays the leading role.

A new electrical switch was installed at the central fire station Thursday to control the electric lights. With this switch all lights are turned off at night, when the men retire. At the first sound of the gong the switch operates and turns the lights on all over the house. It will be possible therefore to save in lighting expenses.

Best of All Good Things!

WANTED.
AN APPROPRIATION
in 1907 for a
NEW CODDINGTON

GOOD AFTERNOON.
Perhaps Messrs. Crane and Schenkel-berger are "Partners of the Tide."

Senator Bailey need only look at his two colleagues from New York to find a good precedent for not resigning no matter what happens.

It is remarkable the unanimity with which the Republicans in Congress get together just as the Democrats thought they had gotten into a big row, and visa versa.

Descriptive letters of the earthquake at Jamaica, especially when written by acquaintances, continue to be of interest, and the letter of Mr. Angier, father of Edward H. Angier of Goffe street, in today's paper, is particularly so.

The talks of Mr. Louis D. Brandeis on "Savings Bank Insurance" have proved popular and convincing where-ever delivered. He should have a large audience at Colonial hall next Monday evening under the auspices of the Citizens' Association.

Dorchester people must dream in their sleep, if we may judge from their latest kick against the contemplated improvement of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. If Dorchester is so sleepy that the railroad has no freight to deliver there the freight trains will pass them by without even a toot. No whistling is necessary unless there is switching. By the connection of the Shawmut and Granite branches the railroad would have another main line between Boston, Brain-tree and beyond. It would mean more trains and better passenger service for all stations on both branches.

Washington is watching with much interest the working out of a distinctly new idea in public affairs. This is the People's Lobby, a non-partisan organization designed to foster a wider knowledge of national legislation, and to indorse or oppose such bills as affect the general welfare of the people.

The basic idea is that, if the people know the facts on legislative matters, public opinion will find such wide expression that it cannot be disregarded.
Channels of publicity are not lacking.
The People's Lobby has the support of a large number of leading newspapers.

An important branch of the work of the organization is the careful compiling of the public record of every senator and representative. The people have a right to know from an unprejudiced source what their legislators are doing.
The influences brought to bear on members of Congress will also be examined.
This means a history of the "third House"—the secret lobbyists, who are so successful in influencing legislation for the benefit of the "special interests" which employ them.

THE ROGERS CLAIM

Sudden End of the Bay State Gas Litigation

AN OFFER OF $1,500,000

Receiver Willing to Accept It In Consideration of Abandonment of Suit Against Rogers For Recovery of Over $3,000,000

Boston, Feb. 1.—A compromise settlement of the famous suit of George W. Pepper, the receiver of the Bay
State Gas company of Delaware, against Henry H. Rogers of New York, to recover profits of between $3,000,000
and $4,000,000 on account of the sale of several Boston gas companies, has been practically reached in the United States circuit court.

Under the terms of the compromise agreement which was submitted to the court, Pepper accepts an offer from Randall Morgan, treasurer of the United Gas Improvement company of Philadelphia, of $1,500,000 in consideration of an abandonment of the claims of the Bay State company against Rogers and in consideration also of stock in the Buffalo Gas company now held by the Bay State Gas company. This stock amounts to about 30,000 shares and is stated to have a value of about $6 a share. Morgan acts for Rogers in settlement.

For several years the suit of Receiver Pepper against Rogers has been pending in the courts here, a subject of long and involved litigation. The aim of Pepper was to secure from Rogers profits alleged to have been secured by Rogers through the sale of stock in various Boston gas companies to interests representing the New England Gas and Coke company, while Rogers was serving as trustee of the Bay State company.

It was claimed that by virtue of this trusteeship he was enabled to make vast profits which Pepper contends rightfully belonged to the Bay State company. Some time ago Judge Putnam, who heard the case, ruled that the defendant, Rogers, was bound to make an equitable division with the Bay State Gas company of his profits in the transaction, and appointed John C. Gray as master to determine what these profits were and how they should be apportioned.

Meantime negotiations for a settlement were in progress and the result of these negotiations became public yesterday. Attorney Whipple represented Pepper and appeared before Judge Putnam and recommended the approval by the court of the settlement agreement reached outside of the court by representatives of both the Bay
State company and Rogers. Attorney Hemenway, for the respondent, expressed willingness to abide by the terms of the compromise, which was submitted to Judge Putnam.

Judge Putnam pointed out that the negotiations would need the approval of the circuit court of Delaware and also of the circuit court of the southern district of New York. He added:

"Now, there is no trouble about this so far as I am concerned. There is only this thing to be considered. I have held Mr. Rogers to a very rigid rule, a rule so rigid that ordinarily active business men do not understand that it applies to their transactions, and I should not like to make any order here which would further complicate the litigation by bringing in new parties. Therefore,
I need something on file to show that Mr. Rogers does not object."

Judge Putnam also observed that he desired the petition to state the facts with reference to the efforts of the receiver to dispose of the stock of the Buffalo Gas company, and that the order in the case should provide for the approval of the courts in Delaware and the southern district of New York. He added that he would hear the amended petition at once.

Judge, Jury and Lawyers Overcome
Tacoma, Wash., Feb. 1.—Attorney
Will H. Thompson, the poet, brother of Maurice Thompson, the novelist, yesterday began his address to the jury in behalf of his son, Chester, who for seven weeks has been on trial, charged with the murder of Judge Emery at Seattle. His address brought tears to the eyes of the judge and jury, and even the attorneys for the state were overcome. The aged attorney recited from his own poem, "The High Tide at Gettysburg."

Cubans Prefer Native Guards Washington, Feb. 1.—As a result of a conference at the White House an order has been issued directing an increase of the rural guard of Cuba from 6000 to 10,000 men. The purpose is to avoid increasing the number of American troops in the island as originally intended, the native guards being more acceptable to the people.

Blizzard Reappears in North Dakota
Minot, N. D., Feb. 1.—North Dakota is in the grasp of a fierce blizzard. A terrible windstorm, accompanied by a light fall of snow, bids fair to undo in a few hours what the railroad companies have spent days in trying to overcome. The blizzard is the worst which has struck the state this winter.

Bookkeeper's Accounts $4600 Short Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 1.—J. Albertson, a bookkeeper in the employ of the gas and water bureau, was arrested last night, charged with a shortage in his accounts of $4600.

CITES TUCKER CASE

Senator Rayner Says That President Is a Meddler

Washington, Feb. 1.—The case of Charles L. Tucker, who was executed at Boston last June for the murder of Mabel Page, was given national prominence again when Senator Rayner, in the course of a speech attacking the president for executive usurpation, referred to the dispatch sent to Governor Gould by the president regarding the execution of Tucker as an instance of unprecedented executive meddling with affairs of the states.

Senator Rayner also alluded to the recent speech of Secretary Root, in which was described the gradual enlargement of federal power at the expense of the state. "I regard this doctrine," said Rayner, "thus announced, adhered to and emphasized, as a most dangerous and insidious attack on the institutions of the country."

The first instance of "conflict" between the executive and legislative functions, Rayner said, was in the San Domingo affair, in which he said, "the president has evidently made his own treaty in violation of the constitution.
The treaty has been practically carried into effect without consulting the senate."

Mr. Rayner turned his attention to the judiciary, announcing his belief that this branch of the government ought to be entirely free from executive interference.

"It is therefore my judgment," he added, "that the criticism by the president of Judge Humphrey with reference to his decision in the case known as the 'meat packers' case' in the Illinois courts was uncalled for and an invasion of his judicial prerogatives."

The turbulent times in the senate attendant on the passage of the railroad rate bill were alluded to by Rayner.

For Propaganda to Settle

Rome, Feb. 1.—Bishop Boncompagni of Lincoln, Neb., has presented to the propaganda evidence in an effort to prove that Rev. William Murphy of Seward, Neb., must no longer be considered as belonging to the church of Rome. Ten years ago Boncompagni excommunicated Murphy and sought to eject him from the church. Murphy took the matter to the Nebraska supreme court and secured an injunction preventing the bishop from ejecting him from his church until the controversy should be settled by the higher church courts.

Reception to Congressmen

Washington, Feb. 1.—The president and Mrs. Roosevelt held the third state reception of the winter last night, with the members of congress as the guests of honor. The reception began promptly at 9 o'clock. All the members of the cabinet were present and mingled with the guests. It was nearly 11 o'clock before all the guests in line had been received by the president. Many army and navy officers and members of the diplomatic corps were present, wearing their brilliant uniforms.

Forty Lives May Be Lost

London, Feb. 1.—The British steamer
Clavering, outward bound for Japan, was blown ashore by a heavy gale at the mouth of the River Tees. Life-boats made efforts to rescue the crew of the Clavering, most of whom are Lascars. A number of them were landed, but 40 are still unaccounted for.
According to the latest reports, the vessel threatens to break up at any moment, and there are still some men clinging to the rigging, exhausted and terrified.

Believers in Army Canteen

Washington, Feb. 1.—President Roosevelt gave a hearty greeting to a committee of the Women's Army Canteen club No. 1 of Washington, which is working for the re-establishment of the canteen in the army. The committee told the president that they intended to organize branch clubs throughout the country which would take up the crusade. The president is understood to have expressed his approval of the work.

Irishmen Used Eggs on Actors

New York, Feb. 1.—Twenty-two arrests were made last night at the Orpheum theatre as the result of a riot which broke out during the performance by the Russell Brothers of "The Irish Servant Girl." A number of Irishmen who resented the alleged anti-Irish tone of the play began to pelt the performers with eggs, but were, with some difficulty, hustled out of the theatre by the police. No one was seriously injured.

Japanese Question Undetracked

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 1.—The governor sent to the senate the telegram received from the California delegation at Washington asking the senate to take no further action on the Japanese question for the present. The message will be accepted to.

WORMS

Unsuspected worms are the cause of numerous little things that go wrong with children. When a child is sick, it is caused by worms, not by indigestion, either directly or indirectly, are the cause of three quarters of all the ills of childhood. Children, and often-times adults feel out of sorts, are irritable, feel listless and unrefreshed in the morning, suffer with indigestion, have a variable appetite, foul tongue, offensive breath; hard and full belly, with occasional gripings and pains about the navel; eyes heavy, and dull; itching of the nose; short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth; slow fever; and often in children, convulsions—in the majority of cases the cause of all the trouble is worms though you may not suspect their presence.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

A pure vegetable compound, has been the standard household remedy since 1871; it never fails to expel not only worms but all waste matter, leaving the blood rich and pure, the stomach sweet, the bowels regular and the whole system strong and healthy.

The mother who gives her children Dr. True's Elixir regularly is wise, because it not only increases the appetite, acts as a preventive of coughs, cold, fever and worms but gives rugged, robust health.

CHILD LABOR EVILS

National Government May Yet
Have to Interfere

SLAVERY IN SWEATSHOPS

Children Get 10 to 12 Cents For 14 to 16 Hours' Work a Day—
Hundreds of Thousands of Children Under 14 Employed
In Mills and Factories

New York, Feb. 1.—A letter from President Roosevelt to Mrs. Maud Nathanson, president of the Consumers' League, was read at the annual meeting of the league in this city. In his letter the president said in part:

"There is much outcry, chiefly, I think, from the beneficiaries of abuses, against interference by the national government with work which should be done by the state governments. I would always rather have the local authorities themselves attend to any evil, and therefore, I would rather have the state authorities work out such reforms, when possible. But if the state authorities do not do so they should in matters of such vital importance to the whole nation as this child labor, then there will be no choice but for the national government to interfere. I am striving to secure either final action or else a full and thorough investigation of the matter by the authority of congress at the present time."

In her report President Nathan, speaking of the sweatshop evil in this city, said that there were many children employed in such establishments getting 10 to 12 cents for 14 to 16 hours' work a day. Continuing, Mrs. Nathan said in her report:

"There are now leagues doing active work in France, Switzerland, Holland and Italy. It is proposed to hold an international conference next August in Switzerland, with a view to exchange-ing ideas and reports regarding industrial conditions and standards in various countries."

Mrs. Florence Kelly, formerly chief factory inspector in Illinois, and now executive secretary for the National Consumers' League, lamented the attacks made in hundreds of newspapers on the Beveridge child labor bill, and particularly one attack in a paper in this city, which was based largely on a recent census bulletin. Among other things she said:

"It is stated in that editorial that there are only about 300,000 children employed in mills and factories, and that there are chiefly either immigrant children or negro children working in southern cotton mills. That is not correct in either respect. And the 579,000 children given in that bulletin as illierate are not foreign born. They are either colored children in the south, or white children in such districts as our own Adirondacks or Catskills. But think of it anyway—only 300,000 children under 14 employed in mines and factories. Is not that enough to impress any one?"

Mrs. Rose P. P. Stokes commended the league as at least a step in the right direction. She said, however: "It is estimated that a little more than one-half the wealth produced annually goes to nine-tenths of the people—which means that only about one-tenth of the people get almost half of the wealth produced—in unearned profits, such as rents and dividends. Justice requires that all of the wealth produced should go to the toilers who produce it."

"Some time ago Mrs. Nathan and I visited a mill in Philadelphia. I have no doubt the owner is a good man, and he spoke with grief of the numbers out of the 1200 girls employed there who died of tuberculosis. I asked him why he did not remove the cause, which was the dust in the air—why he did not put in exhaust fans or blowers, or at least open the windows. He said it could not be done—it would make the goods too expensive for the market, for a draft would cause a mingling of the colors and make separate compartments necessary."

"I think it is the system that is at fault, not the individual. Perhaps he could not have met competition. If he had saved the lives of his working girls, perhaps he could not have lived so well."

A circular is being sent among clergymen of all denominations by the league,
those who sign promising all reasonable co-operation with the league.

CHANGES IN JURY

Productive of Sensations In the Thaw Murder Trial

THREE MORE RELEASED

Friction Has Developed Between Attorneys For Prosecution and Defense—Eleven Men of Panel
Thus Far Secured

New York, Feb. 1.—Sensations were frequent in the Thaw murder trial yesterday and before the two sessions of court had ended three sworn jurors had been released from further service in the case, making five in all summarily excused from the trial panel in three days. In the case of two of the released jurors no explanation was made in court. The third was allowed to go upon a physician's certificate that his life would be imperiled by the close confinement of jury service. Three satisfactory talesmen were found to replace the excused jurors, so that when the rapidly shifting situation underwent a survey at the close of the day there were again 11 men in the jury box, the same number that had been seated at the close of Wednesday's session.

Rumors are current that the end of the jury changes is not yet in sight and that further chapters may be added to what already has become an unprecedented record in criminal procedure in New York city. There were several conferences of attorneys yesterday afternoon, at which District Attorney Jerome is said to have vigorously urged the release of still another juror now on the panel. Thaw's counsel, however, are said to have blocked every effort of the prosecuting officer in this direction.

The first of the day's sensations came immediately after a tardy opening of the morning session. The delay was due to a conference of the attorneys with the presiding judge. When court opened Jerome announced that it had been unanimously agreed to relieve Jurors Walker and Haas from further service. Walker was the occupant of seat No. 4 and Haas was No. 9 on the jury roll. Both are young men and unmarried. Neither could offer an explanation for the court's action in ordering their discharge and Walker especially appeared to be taken by surprise.

It was taken for granted that the release of these two jurors had ended the day's surprises, further discharges from the jury panel it was taken for granted that Thaw's counsel had won the battle with the district attorney. Mr. Garvan returned to court after an absence of 40 minutes and Jerome called another conference, which was held this time at the judge's desk. There was gestulation and an indication of a lively argument, but again to no avail and the regular proceedings were resumed.

Toward the end of the afternoon session a messenger came from the district attorney's office, there was a whispered consultation with Justice Fitzgerald and the attorneys and it was announced that because of ill-health Juror No. 11, Henry I. Kleinberger, a silk merchant, would be relieved from further service. This action was a complete surprise and evidently had no connection with the earlier conferences.

Two of the three new jurors added to the panel were secured at the morning session. They are Oscar A. Pink, a salesman, 46 years of age, who replaced Walker as No. 4, and Wilbur S. Steele, a manufacturer, 60 years old, who replaced Haas as No. 9. The juror secured during the afternoon to replace Kleinberger as No. 11 is Joseph B. Bolton, 57 years old, a clerk. All three are married men, and there is now but one bachelor on the jury, John S. Dennee, No. 10.

It is believed that the 12th juror will be secured today, but the uncertainty as to the term of service of a juror now sitting on the trial panel is so strong that predictions are all but worthless. The release of so many sworn jurors has resulted in an increase by 10 in the number of peremptory challenges allowed each side. The defense has used 29 of its original 30 and now has 11 left. The prosecution has 20 peremptory challenges still at its command.

A One-Day Murder Trial
Chicago, Feb. 1.—Joseph Stanski was found guilty of wife murder and sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary in record time yesterday. The trial began at 10 o'clock. An hour later a jury had been empaneled. At 4 o'clock testimony and arguments were completed and less than two hours a verdict. Jealousy was the motive of Stanski's crime.

IN EIGHT-HOUR SHIFTS

Employment For Operatives of the Coheco Corporation

Dover, N. H., Feb. 1.—A proposition to give all the employees of the Coheco Manufacturing company an eight-hour working day, pending the reconstruction of mill No. 1, which was recently burned, was favorably acted on at a meeting of the Weavers' union. Papers endorsing the plan are being circulated among other employees and it is expected that the greater number will approve the temporary agreement, so that the new schedule may be put in operation next week.

By this plan the mill will run 16 hours a day by two shifts of employees working eight hours each. This will provide work for the 500 operatives thrown out of employment by the fire and obviate the probability of the company's losing skilled help to mills in other cities.

Since the fire, representatives of mills in other cities have been here endeavoring to secure help, and a number of operatives of No. 1 mill have already accepted inducements offered and have left town.

Inequality In Freight Rates

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 1.—That shippers of grain over the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad since Jan. 1, 1905, are entitled to rebates amounting to thousands of dollars was the chief development during the hearing before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty. The railroad company made no defense against the petitions. It was brought out in the testimony that it is cheaper to ship grain 800 miles to Chicago than it is to Gainesville, Tex., a distance of 140 miles.

Cleveland With Insurance Reformers

New York, Feb. 1.—Grover Cleveland was elected chairman of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents at the meeting of the executive committee of that organization in this city and he has accepted the position. The association is composed of the executives of the principal life insurance companies of this country. The object of the organization is to co-operate for all kinds of reform which the members claim, will increase dividends to policyholders.

Alderman Suspected of Perjury

New York, Feb. 1.—It is said that as a result of the examination of several aldermen at the police court hearing of Alderman Clifford, who is charged with accepting a bribe of $5000 with which to try to influence aldermanic votes in favor of Judge Cowing for recorder, a warrant for the arrest of another alderman probably will be issued. The charge, it is said, will be perjury.

Unrest In China

Shanghai, Feb. 1.—The daily arrests throughout the lower Yangtze region of Chinese students who have returned from Japan, coupled with reactionary successes at Peking and the action of the Shanghai mixed court in handing over alleged revolutionaries to the Chinese authorities, are causing consternation among the members of the reform party.

Copley Not a Murderer

Washington, Feb. 1.—A coroner's jury in the case of William G. Copley, who was held by the police in connection with the death of his wife and infant child, which occurred from pistol wounds, rendered a verdict exonerating him from any blame. This leaves the official version of the affair to be that Mrs. Copley killed both herself and child.

Wendell Under $5000 Bail

New York, Feb. 1.—Captain Wendell of the First battery, N. Y. N. G., was in police court for arraignment on the specific criminal charge of unlawfully accepting money as a public official. The hearing was continued to Feb. 7. At the request of the prosecution bail was increased from $2500 to $5000, which was given.

Expensive War Item

Washington, Feb. 1.—The war department sent to the senate an estimate that $9,722,658 will be needed as an additional appropriation for the support of the army for the coming year by reason of the passage of the bill to reorganize and increase the efficiency of the artillery corps.

Alger's Fortune Goes to Family

Detroit, Feb. 1.—The will of the late Senator R. A. Alger leaves all of his estate excepting $20,000 to his widow and five children. Mrs. Alger is given one-third of all the real and personal property and the residue is equally divided among the five children.

Valuation of G-tham's Real Estate

New York, Feb. 1.—The total valuation of real estate in the five boroughs of Greater New York is stated by President Purdy of the tax department to be $5,800,632,132. This amount does not include the assessment on special franchises.

Won't "Tie Up" With Oliver

Columbus, Ga., Feb. 1.—Captain H. Hardaway, upon his return to this city, telegraphed W. J. Oliver, declining the offer to associate himself with Oliver in the Panama canal contract.

Seven Deaths From Plague

Brisbane, Aus., Feb. 1.—Sixteen cases of bubonic plague have appeared here in a new form and seven of them have resulted fatally.

ANOTHER QUEER STUNT

Marine Who Stole Captain's Clothes Slips From Battleship

Boston, Feb. 1.—The versatility of John Carson, a marine, in making his escape from custody on board the battleship New Jersey, now docked at the navy yard, was shown again when it was discovered that he had shaken off a pair of light handcuffs and slipped out of the ship's brig to liberty.

Carson left the ship last week by donning the captain's uniform. Officers and men on board the ship and in the yard saluted him as he walked down the gangplank and through the gate. He was captured within a few hours, still in the captain's uniform, and clapped into the brig. A pair of light handcuffs were placed on him and a couple of marines stationed outside the door.

Carson was again missing yesterday and one of the marines was put into the brig in his place to await further investigation by the officers of the ship. The elusive marine is still at liberty.

Guit's Fight For Tariff Revision

Boston, Feb. 1.—Governor Guild formally inaugurated his movement for a special session of congress to be called immediately after March 4 to take up the general subject of tariff revision by causing to be circulated in both branches of the legislature petitions addressed to the president and congress urging an extra session for the purpose stated. The governor expects the signatures of a very large majority of the 280 members of house and senate, irrespective of party.

Cannier Wrecks In Storm

Greenwich, Conn., Feb. 1.—Steam canal boat S. L. Clark ran on rocks off Little Captain's island during a blinding snowstorm and sank. With Captain Scouten on board were his wife and a crew of three men. They had about time to launch the small boat and leave the Clark before she sank. They are safe at a lighthouse, where they sought shelter.

Another Tunnel Not Needed

Boston, Feb. 1.—President Lucius Tuttle of the Boston and Maine railroad says that the Boston and Maine railroad has no intention of building another Hoosac tunnel. Such an undertaking would cost from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000, he said, and the expense would be unwarranted, as the company already has one good tunnel in operation.

Gas Proposition In Legislature

Hartford, Feb. 1.—A bill to make the uniform price of illuminating gas in cities of over 50,000 population 80 cents per 1000 cubic feet was introduced in the senate. The bill also regulates the quality and pressure of gas and provides for a penalty of $1000 for the violation of the requirements set forth.

Cut to Pieces by Train

Wickford Junction, R. I., Feb. 1.—While crossing the track on his way from the station to the cab of his engine, Ernest C. Bernard, fireman of a freight train, was struck by an express train running at the rate of 60 miles an hour and was instantly killed. The body was cut to pieces.

Killed Himself Accidentally

Wilson's Mills, Me., Feb. 1.—Arthur A. Flint, aged 36, manager of a lumber company at Parmachenee lake, was reloading a shotgun when he received the contents of a cartridge which was accidentally exploded, the shot passing through his body and causing death.

Excitement Over Glenn's Order

Columbus, O., Feb. 1.—Twenty-five Catholic soldiers at the United States army barracks here have appealed to the war department against Lieutenant Colonel Glenn's order directing them to attend church services on Sunday. There is considerable excitement at the barracks regarding the order.

Shea's Second Trial Begun

Chicago, Feb. 1.—The second trial of Cornelius P. Shea and his co-defendants on the charge of conspiracy connected with the teamsters' strike of 1905 commenced this morning before Judge Kavanaugh. Judge Ball, who presided at the first trial, refused to hear the case a second time.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The sum of $10,000 is left to be held in trust for the benefit of the First Universalist church of Melrose, Mass., by the will of the late Daniel Russell of that city. The Melrose hospital receives $5000. The remainder of the estate goes to relatives.

The National Red Cross society has called an additional $5000 for the famine sufferers in China, making a total of $25,000 in money and supplies sent by the society.

Secretary Taft has approved the recommendation of the general staff for the appointment as second lieutenants of 41 candidates from the ranks of the enlisted men of the army who have successfully passed the examinations at Fort Leavenworth.

The property of the James S. Brown Machine company at Pawtucket, R. I., was sold at public auction. The buildings and land, with the exception of one lot, were bid in by Brown's widow for $75,000.

Richard Poppe, aged 27, committed suicide at Pope's Mills, N. Y., by drinking poison in the presence of his wife and children.

Alexander R. Turkington, president of the First National bank of Stamford, Conn., is dead, aged 60. He entered the bank as a clerk in 1865.

The widow of former United States Senator Bowen of Pueblo, Cal., died from grief over her husband's death a month ago.

The Social Realm

"Better to weave in the web of life
A bright and golden filling,
And to do God's will with a ready heart,
And hands that are swift and willing,
Than to snap the slender delicate threads
Of our curious life asunder,
And then blame heaven for the tangled ends
And sit and grieve and wonder."

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Hatch of Wollaston are congratulating them upon the birth of a grandson, Philip Jacob Schwind, who was born to Frank G. and Eugenia M. (Hatch) Schwind on Wednesday. While the youngster will not bear the name of Hatch we trust it has inherited a goodly share of the Hatch characteristics.

Mr. Henry L. Kincaide has gone south for a month's rest from business cares.

Mrs. R. E. Park will have charge of the Wollaston Unity club on Feb. 3. There will be a paper on "Literature" by Mrs. Green; one on "Science" by Mr. Frank H. Bishop, and one on "Art" by Miss Elizabeth Thayer. There will also be music.

The last rehearsal for the musicale of the Quincy Historical society will be held at half past seven, Tuesday evening in the chapel of First church.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Wilde of Billings street are in Scholastic Landing, New York. Mrs. Wilde will remain three weeks as a guest of Miss Bruno. Mr. Wilde will make but a week's stay.

Mr. C. H. Hobart of Braintree returned Tuesday from a two weeks' vacation spent travelling to and from the South. While in Texas he attended the grocers' convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Lysander Richards of Marshfield, who have been spending a few weeks at The Greenleaf, are to pass the remainder of the winter at 15 St. James avenue, Boston.

Mrs. Joseph G. Jacobs of Elmwood avenue is at home after a visit in Nashua, N. H.

The Philergians will meet in Cochato hall, Tuesday, February fifth. Miss Emily C. Fisher will speak on "Village Improvement." Mrs. Reed is chairman for current events. There will be cakes, candies and fancy articles for sale by the exchange.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Faxon and children and Mrs. Faxon's sister, Mrs. Ellsworth of Savin Hill, are sailing about the middle of the month for Holland. They will return by way of Italy.

The marriage of Mr. Fred Hunt of Weymouth to Miss. Bessie French of East Weymouth will take place today, (Saturday) at 5 P. M., at the home of the bride in the presence of a company of relatives and friends. They will reside at East Weymouth.

The Bridge club of Atlantic met with Miss Lillian Waterhouse of Squantum street, Friday, Jan. 25.

Mrs. Esther Hunt of Quincy avenue observed the eighty-ninth anniversary of her birth, on January 25th, in an appropriate manner. Because of the inclement weather a smaller number of callers were able to be present but her friends all unite in good wishes for her health and happiness.

George Melvin Clark of Randolph, who for 15 to 20 years did business in this city, died on Thursday at the age of 66. His funeral will take place on Sunday at 2 o'clock.

Miss Gertrude L. Babcock entertained a few friends at tea last Monday afternoon in honor of Miss Jane Reed whose engagement to Dr. F. Ramon Burke has recently been announced. The guests were Miss Grace Burke, Miss Harriet Johnson, Miss Helen Clafin, Miss Grace Eaton, Miss Constance Herfeldt, Mrs. Warren Ogden, Mrs. Harold French, Miss Mary Gannett and Mrs. H. M. Faxon. Miss Reed was formally presented with some charming tin ware. Miss Corrine Babcock read a poem written for the occasion by Miss Alice Clafin.

The annual party given for the children of the Sunday school by First Church Social club, will be held next Friday afternoon from 4 to 6 at Faxon hall. It will be followed at 8 o'clock by a dance for club members and friends.

Mrs. E. C. Butler has returned from a visit to Beverly friends.

Next Thursday evening there will be a concert in the parish rooms of St. Chrysostom's church by the boys and young men of the church to raise money for the church mortgage. They are to be assisted by Prof. James B. Atwood, of Hyde Park, Mr. H. Y. Follett, Prof. Erastus Osgood and the Potter trio of Wollaston.

Miss Annie Peters of Simmons college, '09, is spending a week with Mrs. A. E. Linnell of Davis street.

The Kitoalta club was very pleasantly entertained by Miss Laura Hall at her home on Thursday evening. Prizes were won by Miss Katherine Pike, Miss Maud Gray, Miss Ethel Vogler and Miss Gertrude Warren. The next meeting will be with Miss Florence Gray on Thursday, Feb. 14.

The last of the series of three dancing parties being held at hotel Tuileries, Boston, in which several Quincy people are interested, will be held next Saturday evening, February ninth.

Mrs. Seth Ellis Pope (Florence Pelletier) of Newbury avenue has returned to Atlantic after a visit of several weeks in Connecticut and New York.

Mrs. William H. Hall of New Hampton, N. H., has been visiting Mrs. Herbert L. Packard of Standish avenue this week.

Prof. Blanchard of Chicago University is to give a recital of Hamlet on Monday evening in Livermore hall Quincy mansion school.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Wentworth of Bigelow street entertained at whist last evening, it being Mr. Wentworth's birthday anniversary. The souvenirs went to Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Bert Sargent, and Messrs. Frank and Bert Sargent.

The advance sale of tickets to the ball of Quincy lodge of Elks is such as to warrant its being a social success.

The Pioneer whist club met Thursday evening at Mrs. Charles Treadways, Billings road. Prizes were awarded Mrs. Fred Load, Mr. James, and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Linnell.

A very pretty dance was held last night at Colonial hall, by the Phi Sigma club, composed of the following young ladies of the Quincy High school: Misses Olive Allen, Marian Farwell, Persis Thompson, Ethel Humphrey, Susan C. James, Caro A. Sumner and Anna C. Gould. The matrons were Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Gould. The order was made up of twelve dances and six extras. The dance opened up with a march in which there were about twenty couples. During the evening punch was served. The music was furnished by Ernest and John Merrill on violin and piano.

Sergt. Mark E. Hanson is entertaining his brother, George Hanson, and his nephew, Arthur Hanson of Newport, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Emerson are leaving East Milton for a few weeks, hoping the change will benefit Mr. Emerson who is in great need of rest and recreation.

Monday evening, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Drake of Braintree, entertained the members of the Matrons' whist club and their husbands. Although many who were detained at home through illness, were greatly missed still owing to the hospitality of the genial host and his wife, the evening will be a memorable one in the history of the club. The souvenirs were secured by Mrs. M. C. Gillette, Mrs. E. E. Thayer, Mrs. A. A. Smith, Mr. A. N. White, Mr. E. E. Thayer and Mr. A. A. Smith.

VERY LOW DEATH RATE

Only Fourteen Per Thousand In the City In the Year 1906

One of the important things which the laws require is the keeping of what is known as vital statistics, relating to deaths, marriages and births. The death rate varies each year and that of Quincy of the year 1906 was a trifle higher than the previous year, being a fraction over 14 per 1000. As Quincy grows the number of deaths naturally increases so that it is not at all surprising that the records of City Clerk show an increase during the year 1906 over the year 1905.

The total number of deaths recorded in 1906 was 446, an increase of 13 over 1905 and an increase of 55 over the year 1904. These figures, however do not mean that all of these persons died in Quincy for the records show the number that were brought here for burial as well as those who passed away in this city.

During the year a large number of old people passed away, for the record shows us that of the total number 38 were over 80 years of age. The oldest person to pass away was Sally Harris who had reached the ripe old age of 92 years and 10 months. There were also four others who had passed the 90 year mark, viz: Eliza J. Dunn, 91 years, 10 months and 22 days; Obed Porter, 90 years, and 5 months; Sarah A. Smith 90 years, 2 months and 15 days, and John Bradley 90 years.

Those over 80 years were: Benjamin F. Miller, 89 y., 9 m., 26 d.; Rev. Robert H. Harlow, 89 y., 4 m., 27 d.

Anna Everson, 88 y., 2 m.; Edward G. Wadin, 88 y.; Rachel Dattelbaum, 88 y.; Sarah Nash, 87 y., 7 m., 2 d.; Justin Moller, 87 y., 5 m.; Watson H. Fifield, 86 y., 11 m., 29 d.; Abigail Bosworth, 86 y., 10 m., 14 d.; Charles L. Badger, 86 y., 2 m., 29 d.; Sarah L. Hill, 86 y., 22 d.; Adam A. French, 85 y., 9 m., 21 d.; Caroline F. Newcomb, 85 y., 8 m., 19 d.

Elizabeth Burke, 85 y., 8 m.; Martha Mears, 85 y., 6 m.; Bridget Larkin, 84 y., 10 m., 18 d.; Caroline M. Beale, 84 y., 10 m.; Matthew Henderson, 84 y.; Arthur Convey, 84 y.; Thomas D. Pierce, 83 y., 11 m., 24 d.; Martin Fallon, 83 y., 11 m., 23 d.; Mary J. Turner, 82 y., 7 m., 19 d.; John J. Kemp, 82 y., 2 m.; Andrew Young, 81 y., 8 m.; Henry O. Gifford, 81 y., 6 m., 17 d.; Rev. Victor Witting, 81 y., 3 m., 25 d.; Elizabeth Faxon, 81 y., 4 d.

Rebecca Andrews, 80 y., 8 m., 3 d.; Louise B. Hinkley, 80 y., 5 m., 13 d.; Stephen E. Driver, 80 y., 3 m.; Lucinda A. Curtis, 80 y., 2 m., 23 d.; Mary A. King, 80 y.; Michael Blake, 80 y.

Among the well known people to pass away during the year were: William H. Warner, who died Jan. 20; Ichabod W. Faunce, who died Jan. 29; John S. Gay, who died March 6; Edward L. Rollins, who died June 22; Rev. Victor Witting, who died July 2; Richard Prout, who died July 12; Daniel F. French, who died July 21; Martin H. Cook, who died Aug. 11; Albion W. Hicks, who died Aug. 17; Thomas D. Pierce, who died Aug. 18; Elizabeth Faxon, who died Aug. 20; Horace S. Taylor, who died Sept. 11; John Joss, who died Sept. 30; Martin Pfaffman, who died Oct. 3; Rev. Robert H. Harlow, who died Oct. 14; John D. Nutting, who died Nov. 14; Charles L. Badger, who died Nov. 16, and Jonas Shackley, who died Dec. 28.

The following table gives the number of males and females to die each month of the year with the total for the month compared with the corresponding month for the year 1905.

Month.	Males.	Females.	Total.	1905.
January,	16	19	35	33
February,	14	17	31	34
March,	19	18	37	43
April,	19	18	37	42
May,	9	16	25	26
June,	14	10	24	30
July,	20	16	36	39
August,	28	25	53	39
September,	29	21	50	39
October,	16	13	29	44
November,	23	26	49	23
December,	25	23	48	36
Totals,	224	222	446	435

It will be seen by this table that the months of August, November and December were the months in which the greatest number of deaths occurred, while there was no month when less than 24 passed away. The average number each month was a fraction over 37.

Estimating the population at 30,000 which is fully small enough, the death rate was a fraction over 14 per thousand. Few cities have such a low rate.

Gift of $1000 To City Hospital

The City Hospital of Quincy has just come into possession of a one thousand dollar legacy under will of Miss Anne E. Beale who died a few years ago. These substantial tokens of interest in the institution indicate wide spread thoughtfulness of our citizens for the future of the city.

Candlemas Day

Today is Candlemas, when the proverbial ground hog is supposed to emerge from his winter quarters in the ground, and look about him for his shadow. If the day is bright and clear the shadow appears, and Mr. Woodchuck in disgust goes back into his hole for a six weeks' more snooze. Some familiar sayings of the day are:

"If Candlemas Day be clear and bright, Winter will take another flight."
"So far on Candlemas Day as the sun shines in So far will the winter's snow blow in."

He learned why it was that the captain received so many presents and was considered such a "slick article." His acquaintance among seafaring men and shipowners was large, and he was always ready to do "little favors." Sometimes a captain just in from a foreign cruise had hidden away two or three pieces of silk or jewelry or even, in one case, a piano, that were intended for gifts to the folks at home and to the cost of which the custom house duty would be an uncomfortable addition. Then Captain Titcomb visited that ship, purely as a social function, and when he came away the jewelry or silk came with him. In the piano affair it was bribery pure and simple, with the addition of a little bullying of an inspector who had made a few slips before that the captain knew of. Petty smuggling like this Captain Titcomb did not consider a sin worth worrying about. There was a smack of adventure in it and the fun of "taking chances."

Then, as a bargainer and a driver of sharp trades with shipping merchants and others the captain was an expert. He liked, as he said, to "dicker," and besides, he was always on the lookout to further the interests of his owners. Looking out for the owners was his hobby and explained in a measure why Williams Bros. were willing to pay him more than they paid their other skippers.

He was a "driver" with his crews, and every particle that was in the rickety Thomas Doane he got out of her. He was easy so long as a man obeyed orders, but at the slightest hint of mutiny things happened.

The Thomas Doane passed and re-passed Cape Cod on her short voyages, and Bradley, with every trip, learned more of the sea and the seaman's life. At the end of his three months he went home for a week's stay, but he had already made up his mind to return to the schooner again. Captain Titcomb had said that he was pleased with him and hinted at a steady rise in wages and promotion later on. He was earning his living now—it cost little to live—and he sent home a few dollars to the old maids every now and then.

His first home coming was a great event. The supper that first night was almost equal in the amount of food on the table to his dinner with the captain at the New York restaurant. In fact, Bradley, released from salt junk and fo'castle grub, ate so much that he suffered with the nightmare and groaned so dismally that the alarmed sisters pounded on his chamber door, and Miss Tempy insisted that he needed was a dose of "Old Dr. Thomas' Discovery"—her newest patent medicine—and a "nice hot cup of pepper tea."

There was no music during the meal, but the old maids talked continuously. The hemming and the shawl industry were bringing in some money, though not yet what Miss Tempy anticipated, and they had had a windfall in the shape of a contribution from the Sampson fund!

"We're all the children father had," said the older sister. "The letter said that there was money due us from the fund and that we were entitled to so much every year, most a hundred dollars. Now, I knew about the Sampson thing, but I thought 'twas charity for poor people, and Tempy and me have got to livin' on charity—not yet, I hope. But it seems, 'ordin' to the letters I had from 'em, that the money b'longed to us, so—"

"So we get a check every once in awhile," cried Miss Tempy. "And how they knew and wrote just at this time! It's miraculous, that's what it is—miraculous!"

Bradley thought of his conversation with Captain Titcomb and the affair did not seem so miraculous, but he knew the captain would not wish him to explain and so said nothing.

CHAPTER VII.

THE Thomas Doane was at her dock in New York, and Bradley, now twenty years old and a "sure enough" second mate, was on her deck watching the foremast hands clearing up the coal dust that begrimed everything. The schooner had carried coal for over a year now, and her latest occupation had not improved her appearance. She was old enough before and patched and mended enough, and to turn her into a collier seemed a final humiliation. Captain Titcomb had felt it keenly, and his disgust was outspoken.

"Well, by crimestee!" he had ejaculated when his flatfooted rebellion had been smothered by another raise in salary. "I used to dream about commandin' a Australian clipper some day or 'nother, but I never dreamed that I'd come to be skipper of a coal bod, and a secondhand, rusted out coal bod at that. Blessed if it ain't enough to make the old man—dad, I mean—turn over in his grave! Come on, Brad. Let's go to the theater. I want to forget it!"

The captain had another project in his mind, a sort of secret hobby he hinted at every little while, but never told. These hints usually followed a particularly disagreeable trip or when the rickety Thomas Doane behaved even more like a cantankerous old maid than was her wont. Then, when he and Bradley were alone, the captain would wake from a day dream to say: "Brad, I got more and more sick of this bein' somebody else's errand boy every minute. Some of these days I'm goin' to take a whack at somethin' diff'rent, and I have a notion what 'twill be too. I guess likely I may ask you to come in with me. I b'lieve it's a good notion. Tell you 'bout it some day."

But he never did. Bradley had grown tall and broad during his term of cruising. He had learned self reliance, and his voice had a masterful ring. When he went back to Orham nowadays the old maids took special delight in having him escort them to church, and Miss Tempy's eyes during the sermon were oftener fixed upon him than upon the minister. The money that he sent the sisters amounted to something now, and he had an account in the savings bank.

Now, as he stood by the rail, with his hands in his pockets, he heard a step on the wharf behind him and turned to see Captain Titcomb jump from the stringpiece, catch the shroud and swing aboard. The captain's usually good natured face had a scowl on it, and he was plainly not happy.

Bradley touched his cap. "How are things going up at the office?" he asked.

"Plumb to the devil," was the short reply. Then, glancing up at the young man's face and looking hurriedly away again, he added: "Come aft. I want to talk to you."

Seated in the dingy cabin, the captain took a cigar from his pocket, bit off the end with a jerk and smoked in great puffs. Bradley waited for him to speak. The skipper's ill humor and obvious discontent had come upon him the afternoon of the day the Thomas Doane reached port and had grown steadily worse. Each morning Captain Titcomb had spent at the office of Williams Bros., and when he returned to the schooner he had done little but smoke, scowl and pace the deck. The second mate was worried, but he asked no questions.

"Brad," said the captain, looking at the shabby carpet on the cabin floor, "we're goin' to have a new mate."

Bradley was surprised. "Is Mr. Bailey going to leave?" he asked. The old first mate had been as much a part of the Thomas Doane as her mainmast.

"They've given him the Arrow, the new schooner. He's goin' to run her," Bradley insisted that he needed was a dose of "Old Dr. Thomas' Discovery"—her newest patent medicine—and a "nice hot cup of pepper tea."

"Why, why, Cap'n Ezra, I thought she was promised to you."

"I thought so, too, but I missed my reck'nin', it seems. Williams—he ain't half the man his brother was—he wants me to wait till the other one, the four master, is off the ways. Then I can have her if I want her."

"But she won't be ready for six months, though I guess from what I hear she'll be worth waiting for. 'a'll have the old Doane then?"

"Captain Titcomb crossed his legs, but didn't answer. Instead he asked: "Brad, how would you like to sail under Bailey? You and him got 'long first rate. I wouldn't wonder if I could git you the second mate's berth on the Arrow. She's bran new and clean, not like this hencoop." And he kicked a stateroom door with emphasis.

Bradley did not hesitate. "I guess if you can stand the hencoop I can," he said decisively. "I'd rather wait with you, thank you."

"I don't know's you'd better. Look here." And for the first time the captain raised his eyes. "You know I wouldn't try to influence you if 'twan't for your own good. I honestly think 'twould be better for you if you sailed on the Arrow."

"But why?"

"Oh, because! Bailey's a good man and an A1 sailor."

"He isn't half the sailor you are nor half the man either."

"Much obliged. I'll stand for the sailor part, but I ain't so sure about the rest." Brad, sometimes I wish I hadn't stuck so close to 'owners' orders and had took a few observations on my own hook. Maybe then— But it's hard for an old dog to learn new tricks. I s'pose I'm a fool to worry. Money's 'bout all there is in this world, ain't it?"

"A good many folks seems to think it is."

"And other folks don't think any the less of 'em for it. Well, I've laid my course, and I'll stick to it till all's blue. Brad, will you, as a favor to me, chuck up your berth here and ship 'board the Arrow?"

Vicious, because I am. I'm just as anxious to make something of myself as you can be to have me, but I've made up my mind, and, for the present, anyway, while you sail a vessel I sail with you—unless you really order me to quit."

The older man hesitated. "Well," he said after two or three puffs at the cigar, "I ought to order it p'raps, but I'll be hanged if I can. Brad Nickerson, I think as much of you as I would of a son, and your good opinion is wuth—I don't b'lieve you know how much it's wuth to me. But— Shake hands, will you?"

Puzzled and troubled, Bradley extended his hand, and the captain clasped it firmly in his own. For a moment it seemed that he was about to say something more, but he did not. Giving the second mate's hand a squeeze, he dropped it and settled back in his chair, smoking and apparently thinking hard. As he thought his lips tightened, and the scowl settled more firmly between his brows. Five minutes of silence, and then the skipper threw the half finished cigar into a corner and rose to his feet. His tone was sharp, and there was no trace of the feeling so recently manifested.

"We sail tomorrow mornin'," he said, stepping to the companion ladder. "The new first mate'll be here tonight. His name's Burke."

Bradley did not move. "Just a minute, Cap'n Ez," he faltered. "You—You—I know it's none of my business, but— Well, you understand, I guess. You're in trouble—anybody can see that. Won't you let me help you out?"

The captain paused with his foot on the ladder. "My troubles are my own," he answered, without looking back. "You be thankful you ain't got any. And here!" the tone was almost savage. "You take my advice and obey orders, and don't ask questions."

"Brad, we're goin' to have a new mate."

He went on deck immediately and, after a moment, Bradley followed him. The rebuff was so unexpected and so undeserved, the circumstances considered, that it hurt the young man keenly. His pride was touched, and he made up his mind that Captain Titcomb should have no further cause for complaint so far as interference by his second officer was concerned. As for the captain, he kept to himself and said little to any one during the afternoon.

The new first mate came on board that evening. He was a thick set, heavy man, who talked a great deal, swore profusely and laughed loudly at his own jokes. He seemed to know his business and, as the captain would have said, "caught hold" at once.

They sailed the next morning, and, by the time the tug left them, Bradley fancied that he noticed a difference in the state of affairs aboard the schooner. The usual rigid discipline seemed to be lacking. There was no rebellion or sign of mutiny, but merely a general shiftlessness that Mr. Burke did not seem to notice. Strange to say, Captain Titcomb did not notice it either, or, if he did, said nothing. Bradley did not interfere. He had not forgotten the advice to "obey orders and ask no questions."

The Farmer From the Richelieu River

(Original.)

A finely equipped billiard hall in Montreal was kept by an expert with the cue. Indeed, he held a champion's trophy. During the daytime there were few people to use his tables, and if any one desired a game the proprietor would accommodate him. One afternoon a farmer whose lineaments were French strolled into the place and seemed greatly pleased with it.

"Would you like to play a game?" asked the proprietor.

The farmer admitted that he had heard a great deal about billiards and had come to Montreal especially to play a game. The proprietor called for a set of balls, handed the farmer a cue and, unlocking a private rack, took down his own cue.

"How much you play for?" asked the farmer.

"I don't play for money."

"What! Nothing to make it interesting?"

"If you like we'll play for refreshments."

"Refreshments! What is that?"

"Drinks, cigars, anything you like."

"Ver' well. How much do game?"

"Oh, we'll play till you are satisfied that I can beat you."

Meanwhile several loiterers gathered around to see the expression that would come over the farmer's face when he saw the proprietor counting as much as he liked. The farmer was given the first shot. He took a long time to make up his mind what to do and when it was made up did a great deal of sawing with his cue. He missed the shot he tried for, but "scratched" one point. The proprietor then attempted to show the spectator a very difficult round table shot, but having no incentive, played carelessly and missed.

"Go ahead," he said to his opponent. "You say we play till I am satisfied?" he asked.

"That was the understanding."

"I am satisfied. I stop."

There was a burst of laughter from the onlookers, for the "hor" had lost the refreshments.

Now, it happened that an amateur player, an expert, was looking on who was not as averse to betting money as the proprietor. When the latter threw down his cue and ordered the refreshments the expert went up to the farmer with outstretched hand and told him he was the cleverest countryman that had ever honored Montreal with his presence. Then he offered to play him a friendly game for a nominal stake. The expert played as badly as he could, but not badly enough to let the farmer beat him, which he intended in order to draw his dupe into his net. But the more the farmer lost the more he insisted on playing further and, to regain his losses, continually suggested a raising of the stake till he had lost in round numbers $250. Then he got very much excited. Drawing a wallet from his pocket, he showed his enemy $250 in bills, which he agreed to put in case he could get odds of 4 to 1.

The expert won first shot and ran 63 points, the game being 100. Then the farmer chalked his cue, looked at the balls and began to play. His first shot was a difficult masse, with a draw nearly the full length of the table, and he made it beautifully. From that he proceeded to make one difficult shot after another, always leaving the balls in the position he desired. A crowd gathered around, and it was soon apparent to them that no such handling of billiard balls had ever been seen in Montreal. The game being a short one, it seemed that the player was ambitious to make nearly all the points by difficult shots. He missed no shot at all till he had counted 100 points and won $1,000.

From the moment the farmer made the first shot the expert, who was the best amateur player in the city, had made up his mind that he had fallen into his own trap. When the money was paid over to the farmer the loser said to him:

"Now that you've been paid the bet perhaps you won't mind telling us who you are?"

"I got leetle farm down on de Richelieu riviere," said the farmer.

"Rats!" said his questioner, and turning on his heel, left the place. Then the farmer called for refreshments and invited his admirers to partake of them.

Now, there was a billiard match to be played that night between the champion of the United States from New York and the champion of France from Paris. This was mentioned to the farmer, and he manifested a desire to see the match. Promising to meet his new made friends at the place appointed for the game, he left them to go to supper.

Meanwhile it was reported that Lanoroux, the French champion, who had been expected to arrive in the city during the day, had been detained. Those who had been amusing the farmer from the "Richelieu riviere" went to the hall, fearing that they might be deprived of the expected treat. But on reaching it they were informed that Lanoroux had arrived, though only in time for supper. When a side door opened and the contestants appeared those who had met the farmer were astonished to see him in the person of the French champion.

He won the match, and it was announced that he would give $1,000 to the Montreal poor.

Do Ostriches Ever Die?
Nothing is positively known as to how long an ostrich will live. Some writers claim that it will live 100 years. Ostriches which are known to have been in captivity for forty years are still breeding and producing hatchlings. It is the experience of Arizona farmers that among the birds having good nutritious green feed deaths seldom occur except as the result of accident. A dog or other small animal will sometimes frighten ostriches and cause them to run into the fence, which may result in a broken leg. When this happens the bird may well be killed, as few ever recover from such an injury.—National Geographic Magazine.

nent speakers for its mass meeting to be held at Hancock hall, Friday evening, Feb. 8. These include Richard Hazelton, M. P. for North Galway, who will speak on the "Home rule situation at the present time;" John O'Callahan, National secretary of the United Irish League, and Rev. John J. Coan, pastor of St. John's church. John Cavanagh will preside, and in addition to the speaking there will be vocal and instrumental music.

Royal Arcanum.

On Monday evening Deputy Gregg

France to Pay High Compliment

Agents Gathering Them For Exhibition at International Maritime Exposition in Bordeaux—United States to Have Place of Honor.

In the International Maritime exposition which is to be held in Bordeaux between May 1 and Nov. 1 of the present year France is planning to pay a high compliment to America's inventive genius, says the New York Sun.

Dispatches from Washington have told of the special message which President Roosevelt has sent to the senate recommending an appropriation to enable the United States to be represented at the exposition. Acting Secretary of State Bacon estimates the amount which will be necessary at $25,000.

Henry C. Bayer, one of the exposition commissioners, while in New York outlined the plans for the undertaking.
His object is to commemorate the centennial of steam navigation and to do special honor to Robert Fulton. Already six or seven nations besides France and the United States have signified their intention of participating officially in the celebration, and it is expected that others will join soon.
Among those that have already consented are Japan, Russia, Mexico, Italy, Servia and Belgium. Besides the nations mentioned, twelve others will be represented unofficially in the public exhibits.

The United States will have the place of honor at the exposition. It is planned now to erect a United States building of colonial type about thirty-three feet square in the center of the exposition grounds and overlooking the Garonne river. The central room is to be devoted exclusively to Robert Fulton relics, documents, drawings, paintings, models and personal mementoes of the inventor. Agents of the exposition management are now in the United States gathering up the relics.

The government at Washington has been asked to loan some of its army and navy flags, and efforts are being made to get a bust or a picture of every president of the United States.
These will be placed in the galleries around the Fulton relics in the central room of the United States building.
The French ambassador at Washington has asked also that the United States send warships to the exposition.
This will be done. It is uncertain at present how many of them will go, but France wants three.

The exposition is being held under the auspices of the French Maritime league, but is backed by the official patronage of the French government.
The general council of Gironde and the municipality of Bordeaux.

Outside of the United States France probably has the best claim to the right to celebrate Fulton's memory. The French ambassador in his note to the acting secretary of state at Washington points out that Fulton conducted his first experiments in steam navigation there. That was in 1803, and Napoleon, then first consul, having his attention attracted to Fulton's work, wrote to his minister, M. Champagny,
"Citizen Fulton's proposition may change the face of the earth." What Fulton was experimenting with chiefly at that time was a submarine plunging boat, which he called a torpedo.
Napoleon finally became so impressed with his efforts that he appointed a committee from the members of the Academy of Sciences and authorized them to examine the Fulton inventions.
Their reply to Napoleon was, "Sir, we have effectually found a motive power in steam, but of a nature so feeble that a child's toy could hardly be put in motion by it."

The English government apparently thought it safer to have Fulton out of France, so they invited him to come over to London to lay his torpedo project before a commission appointed by the British ministry. This commission also reported that the submarine was impracticable, and Robert Fulton returned to the land of his birth to build a few years later the successful Cler-mont. All told, Fulton lived in France seven or eight years.

The exposition's commissioner will get most of his Fulton relics from R.
Fulton Ludlow, a grandson, who lives in Claverack, N. Y. Mr. Ludlow has many original documents and plans, some pictures and parts of the old Clermont, including the compass which his grandfather used. It has not been decided definitely yet just what relics
he will loan to the exposition.

It is the purpose of the exposition management to illustrate in detail the development of the history of navigation from the earliest times. There are to be collected models of every kind of ship, ancient and modern, commercial and naval, together with an illustrated display of all that pertains to ocean geography and to river and sea navigation. It is understood that three or four of America's wealthy men have consented to send their steam yachts to be exhibited as the highest type in that line of boats.

In connection with the nautical exhibition will be an international exposition of all kinds of raw and manufactured goods, evidences of the extensive trade between nations that has grown out of Fulton's invention. Among other pavilions will be two devoted to "nautical automobilism" and aerial navigation. In the course of the exposition congresses will be held and lectures delivered on subjects relating to maritime affairs, science, art and commerce.

BURNS
CONCERTClan McGregor
And Loyal Ladies
Observe Poet's Anniversary

Clan McGregor and the Loyal Ladies held their annual celebration of the birth of Robert Burns the Scottish poet, in the Music hall last evening. The audience was a large and appreciative one, who did not seem to be daunted by the disagreeable weather.

The orchestra under the direction of Mr. Thomson opened the evening with an overture that was particularly attractive, the pieces were "Semper Fidelis," "Ladspiel Overture," and Scottish airs.

The first part of the program took the form of a concert which was opened by Mr. James Whyte, a clansman, with the song, "The Star of Bobbie Burns," and after several encores which he gracefully responded to, he sang "Scots wha hae," and in this song specially, is he with his accompanist Miss Drummond, to be complimented, the rendering was beautiful and the piano was particularly graceful in its following.

Mr. Whyte's voice has a richness and compass that has not yet been realized. Miss Annie Hannigan, a soprano vocalist of some note, was the other artist to contribute towards the entertaining of the audience. She sang many songs, cheerfully responding to recalls to numbers. A few of her songs were: "Braw, Braw Lads," "The Laird o' Cockpen," "Comin' Thro' the Rye," and "John Anderson, My Jo." This is the first time Miss Hannigan has been heard in Quincy, but it is not likely to be the last. She has a beautiful rich soprano voice, of considerable compass, and shows fine taste in the rendering of the national songs; unfortunately she was very much handicapped in the accompaniment.

Mr. Douglas M. Easton delivered an address of some length on the subject of the anniversary. The arrangements were excellently carried out by a committee under the direction of the chief, George Mavor.

Surprise Party
And Presentation

Miss Mary Crammond of Intervale street was pleasantly surprised last evening when a number of her friends came unannounced. Master Henry Leit in a few well chosen words, presented the astonished young lady with a beautiful locket and chain, for which she thanked all present.

The usual popular party games were enjoyed until midnight. Miss Christine Mavor, pianist, and Master William Pratt, violinist, furnished the music for dancing.

Alice Butler won the girls' first prize in the peanut race, Bert Williams, first boys' prize, while Miss Mary Dumbor and Mr. Ernest Warrington were the recipients of the booby prizes. A dainty collation was served.

Among those present were: Mary Crammond, Jean Crammond, Christine Mavor, Jennie Grassick, Anna Giles, Mary Dumbor, Bessie Miller, Elizabeth Dickie, May Veal, Alice Butler, Lillian Riddler, Mamie Warrington, Katherine Favero, and Belle Rennie.

Charles Danbar John Souter, George Moorehouse, Ernest Warrington, George Howie, Thomas Cole, Bert Williams, William Pratt, Arthur Wentworth, Hugh Opey, James Michael, Henry Leit, and Robert Miller.

"You haven't any confidence in either candidate?"
"On the contrary, I have confidence in both. I believe all the bad things they say about each other are absolutely true."

"UNIVERSAL PROVIDER."

How Whitley Found a Wife For an Anglo-Indian Official.

An Anglo-Indian resident of New York recently sent the following communication to the editor of the New York Sun:

With reference to the death of the great dry goods prince in London, Mr. William Whiteley, I should like to relate an incident which came under my observation when I was in India many years ago. It was Mr. Whiteley's boast that you could get anything in his store, from a pin to a plow, and he endeavored to live up to his position as a "universal provider." In the seventies there was a civil officer in the central provinces of India who occupied the position of a commissioner, or chief civil officer of a division, and consequently he was prominent socially.

During a lull in the office he had patiently looked for a wife, but had not succeeded. When he was about to return to India he went to Whiteley's store and made some large purchases, and as he was leaving the store Mr. Whiteley accosted him and asked if he had found everything he wanted. The commissioner replied, "Yes, Mr. Whiteley, you have thoroughly supplied me with everything I want but one article, which it will be impossible for you to find." "Don't be so sure of that, sir," replied the merchant. "State your wants, sir, and they shall be supplied." "Well, Mr. Whiteley, I am in search of a wife, and I scarcely think you can supply that article." Mr. Whiteley said: "Indeed I can. A young lady has just become a saleswoman in one of our departments, and she is altogether too highly educated and too refined for such a position. She is a clergyman's daughter and has been left an orphan. If you will allow me, I will introduce you to her, and I will take care that she does not know about the bargain."

The commissioner went to the department and was introduced to the young lady, of whom he made large purchases. The result was that he eventually asked her to become his wife. They were married in due time and went to India. During my residence in this lady was the leader of society in one of the divisions of the central provinces. It is said that after the marriage and before he left England the commissioner called on Mr. Whiteley and told him of his success. "Oh," he replied, "that is con amore. Simply a labor of love!"

JUDGE FORT'S WARNING.

We Are Going Too Fast, He Says. Stick to the Constitution.

"The constitution of the United States could not be written today," declared Judge J. Franklin Fort of the supreme court of New Jersey at a dinner of the Middlebury College Alumni association at the Cafe Martin, in New York, the other night, says the New York Sun. "It would be impossible to get together a body of men who would adopt it. Gladstone said nothing like it ever came from the human brain. Compared with it the constitution of the state of New York is a monstrosity. Yet the convention that prepared it was composed of such men as Root and Choate. The trouble is that today men would want to embody in a constitution what should be in the statutes."

"The constitution of the United States has stood through three foreign wars, through the greatest rebellion the world ever saw and through the questions of interstate commerce. It will stand through the Japanese question. It is good enough for all time to come."

"I believe the courts of the United States have power to reach any violation of law or breach of treaty in the United States. The constitution says that the decisions of the United States courts and the treaties with foreign nations shall be the supreme law of the land. Sooner or later the supreme court must pass upon this Japanese question. If they do so in the light of the constitution, they can come to but one decision."

"The American people demand that their judges be not allied with any corporations or business or client. I believe that the president and legislators should likewise be men who have no alliance with anything inimical to the public welfare. Hitherto we have made the mistake of allowing men to occupy great offices irrespective of their fitness. Too often they obtained those offices by the use of the pocketbook."

"We are going too fast in the United States. From this men think there is nothing higher than money. This is a mistake, and it will be a great danger to the republic for educated men to get this idea."

JOB FOR HIS SPIRIT.

Rich Man Leaves Church $50,000, but His Shade Must Be a Trustee.

George W. Deffenbaugh of Kokomo, Ind., an eccentric and wealthy man, who died recently, leaves the church of his faith $50,000 on condition that his spirit be elected a member of the board of trustees of the church and be permitted to attend its meetings, says a Kokomo dispatch.

Mr. Deffenbaugh was a believer in Swedenborg. While the church is the chief beneficiary under his will, he also provided liberally for his wife and children.

The will, of twenty typewritten pages, contains a plan for the government of the church and provides that the trustees are to meet often and consult with his spirit regarding details.

Deffenbaugh's children will contest the will on the ground that their father was insane.

An Ancient

Young Men's Christian Association

(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)
The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and requests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, of Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy) INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and requests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

Farmers' Ball
At Braintree

The fellers of the town that hang out and keep their nose warm with a cheroot at the Braintree club during the cold winter nights held their fourth annual farmer's ball in the Town Hall last Thursday evening.

The fillers of the soil from the wilds of Holbrook, woolly Randolph the county seat at Quincy and other surrounding towns blew into town early and there was a mad scramble when the doors were open for admittance at the town barn.

There was a large number of spectators present from over the crossroads and the hills and a number of the old inhabitants declared that they had time of their life watching the costumes and antics of the farmers with their wives and gals.

We saw a number of deals go through, such as swapping watches trading jackknives, etc., and some of the topics heard in the corners were the dangers of driving with these fast "mobiles" around, and the way some city fellers are getting rich by buying and selling Trinity stock.

At 9.15 o'clock the grand march was formed and the merry sons and daughters of the field formed and marched before the watchful eyes of four wise people of ye town who awarded the following prizes:

Gen't first prize $5 in gold, Wilfred Levangie.

Ladies' first prize, $5 in gold, Miss Jane Frazier.

Gen't second prize, Harry Keith of Brockton.

Ladies' second prize, Miss Ester L. Trufant.

Gen't third prize, A. J. Lynch of Brockton.

Ladies, third prize, Miss Bessie Devine.

The judges were Mrs. Horace L. French, Miss Gertrude Barnes, John Shay and Charles Orr.

After awarding the prizes dancing was enjoyed until a late hour when all dispersed to their homes wishing each and all big and early crops with an abundance of good cheer.

Mr. Guy B. Flitz took flashlight photos of the grand march and of the winners and these should prove novel souvenirs.

The success of the affair was due to the following:

Boss of the barn, Harry S. Snow.

Assistants, Ward C. Walker, James G. Cuff, Chas. W. Dickerman, Howard M. Saunders.

Farm hands, J. Edward Shay, F. W. Pevely, W. H. Howland, Frank C. Allen, C. H. Bailey, John Kelly, Geo. E. Stone, John C. Crowe, Chas. W. Dickerman, Chas. E. Greelish, William E. Waitt, H. Parker Hobart, Seth Catlin, Jr., Frank D. White, Chester Daley, Harold Jones and John B. Dyer.

Schools for Teaching Trades

Since 1900 the city of Munich has gradually been transforming its "Continuation schools" for elementary school graduates (corresponding to our grammar school graduates) into elementary technical schools for apprentices in the trades and in business. The city now maintains thirty-eight different kinds of these schools. Munich has half a million inhabitants and therefore approaches Boston in size. It is not, however, like Boston a city of great industries and immense business interests; nor is it surrounded by a suburban population like that of Boston. It is a great town, rather than a great city.

That, in spite of the absence of great industries and great business enterprise, it nevertheless maintains a unique and wholly admirable system of technical continuation schools, whereby those who must leave school at about thirteen or fourteen years of age are well trained for the several callings on which they enter, is due partly to the general principle universally recognized in Germany, that efficiency in any calling from chimney-sweeping to watchmaking, requires special training for that particular calling; but chiefly to the energetic and far-sighted city superintendents of schools (Stadt Schulrat). Dr. George Kerschensteiner, who saw that the ordinary continuation schools failed to supply a much-needed technical training for beginners in the trades and in business. He also saw that a large part of the education received by the children who had to go to work when only thirteen or fourteen years old was lost for want of further education between that time and early maturity.

He also recognized what we see very clearly, that the ordinary training of the usual continuation schools (corresponding to our evening schools) failed to hold the interest and attention as well as to meet the pressing needs of most of those for whom they were intended. He also recognized the enormous importance of keeping young people between the ages of thirteen or fourteen and seventeen or eighteen under systematic educational influence for the moral and social welfare of these young people, as well as for their technical efficiency. He saw that by combining good general education, good technical education, and good education in the rights and duties of citizenship, at an age when citizenship begins to have a real significance to the young, he might expect to exert on them a permanent influence for good, moral, intellectual and technical.

These schools are, in very many instances not evening schools. As continuation school education is compulsory for three (sometimes four) years in Bavaria for all elementary school graduates, the law requires employers to give their employees the necessary time—six to ten hours per week, depending on the school—to attend the continuation schools. Each pupil is required to attend the continuation school planned for the trade or business in which he has found employment.

The technical instruction in these schools is, at present, given in most instances by a member of the trade or business concerned. The remainder of the instruction is given by some of the day-school teachers.

As it happens that many good trade workers or business men cannot teach well, the city is encouraging trained teachers to learn the several trades; it grants them leave of absence for this purpose, and some progress in this direction is being made.

Each school is in charge of a committee responsible to the general school authorities, and special pains are taken to secure the best citizens for these committees, and especially to secure the best representatives from the trade or business for which a school stands, and there are always representatives from the teaching force on each committee. In this way each school tends to serve progressively the general and technical needs for which it exists and is, of course, in each case, kept in close touch with the particular needs of and the special progress in the particular trade or business which the school serves.

The following programmes give an outline of the work done in two of the schools:

(1) All the problems are taken from the actual business in which the pupils of a given group or class are engaged.
(2) Reading is general, but much of it pertains to business careers and to the particular business in which the pupils are engaged.
(3) The raw materials and also the manufactured products are studied. One group, instead of this, receives instruction in money, banking and finance.

(4) Personal and public hygiene; duties, rights and opportunities of the apprentice; decorum; development of trade, transportation and communication in Germany; trade organizations; capital and labor; chamber of commerce, and industrial exchange (Gewerbe Kammer); civics, made as concrete as possible.

(1) As before, the work in arithmetic consists of the actual problems of the trade concerned, here are the problems actually to be solved by carpenters and cabinet makers.

(2) Study of woods, tools, machines, and their care and uses. Shop work.

These programmes are given here in outline only. But they may serve to call attention to the important class of schools which they illustrate, and the study of further details cannot fail to be of use to those whose duty it may be to plan similar schools for our own city and state. The schools described are for boys, but a large technical continuation school for girls, with two divisions—one for household or domestic training, and one for business training—is already in existence. Certain conclusions have suggested themselves to me as the result of my study of these municipal continuation schools for apprentices in trade and business, namely:

1. They solve the problem of how to keep under appropriate educational influence during their period of adolescence that great body of youth who are obliged to leave school when only thirteen or fourteen years old.

2. There is in them complete utilization of educational opportunity by the pupils. There is no economic or educational waste. Attendance being compulsory, punctuality and regularity of attendance are assured.

3. The programme of studies for each kind of apprentice school is strictly limited in scope to an essential minimum of subject-matter, general and technical, and the nature of this subject-matter is well adapted to the end in view; namely, the extension of the youth's education as an individual and as a citizen, and the foundation of progressive interest and technical skill in his chosen calling.

4. All the teachers, except the shop-work or technical teachers, being trained teachers (elementary school teachers), the methods are generally excellent, and the results correspondingly good. This is, of course, another reason why there is so little economic and educational waste. Every hour of instruction counts.

5. Only youth already in service are members of these schools.

6. Since representatives of the several trades and business represented are on the governing boards of the several schools the technical work should be and probably is determined by the actual contemporary needs of the several vocations represented by the schools.

7. The schools embody a well-defined policy that underlies all forms of activity in Germany; namely, that every efficient worker, whether in trade, business or profession, requires general education and also technical preparation for the particular work he is to do.

JAPAN'S AMBITION

Colonize Overflow Population In Adjacent Countries

PERKINS SCENTS DANGER

Our Foundation For Commercial Supremacy on the Pacific May Be Wrested From Us In the Course of National Destiny

Washington, Feb. 2.—In an address delivered last night before the National Geographic society, Senator Perkins of California dwelt at length upon the probability of a conflict between the Americans and the Japanese, "two irreconcilable races," as he pronounced them. After speaking of the difficulties overcome in the past in dealing with the Chinese, Perkins said:

"Hawaii has been the Japanese on her hands, as we in California will soon have, and as this people is more aggressive, more tenacious, more cunning and more determined than the Chinese, it will never do to permit a long delay
before settling the question once for all.
For the people of Japan have started out on a course of commercial development which will soon bring the United States and Japan so close together that it will be difficult to settle the question at all. Japan is still in the flush of its great triumph over what was considered the strongest of European powers. It successfully interposed a barrier to Russian supremacy in eastern Asia.

"The primary ambition of Japan is to colonize the overflow population of the empire in adjacent countries under its own sovereignty. This is the true beginning of real national expansion, but in addition to this the inherent national traits of patriotic impulses of the Japanese will make them a foreign element in any country to which they migrate. Real expatriation is a condition practically impossible to the Japanese mind.

"In brief, the Japanese race, where-ever distributed, however numerically strong in any foreign country, will remain a consolidated unit in support of the aspirations of the Japanese race, and however distant their residence from the throne of the mikado, will still constitute an element of strength in the unity of the empire. Naturalization in any country in which they might migrate will not eliminate this racial instinct.

"Conflicts between nations are the result of antagonisms which lie at the very foundation of their purposes, their aspirations, their growth and expansions. The presence of Russia as a prime factor in the commerce of the Pacific coast was inimical to the aspirations of the Japanese empire. In the same line, the occupation of Manchuria and the fortification of Port Arthur was the immediate excuse, but not the real cause of the war. The real cause of the war was the inherent antagonism of interest and purpose which could find no other solution than the arbitrament of the sword.

"We have acquired territory in the Pacific ocean; we have laid the foundation for commercial primacy on that great sea. We have a position at the very doors of the Orient by the possession of the Philippines and a base of naval operations in the middle of the ocean by the incorporation of the Sandwich islands. We have a shore line under the jurisdiction of the American flag which, following its indentations on the Pacific ocean borders of the Pacific states and the territory of Alaska, comprises 25,000 miles.

"The countries under the jurisdiction of our flag, lying behind this line, possess resources equal to the ultimate support of empires of wealth and population. We have laid the foundation for commercial supremacy of the Pacific ocean, and at some point in the future course of national destiny the pathway of national progress on the part of Japan and the United States will converge to a point of inevitable conflict.

"It is useless to speculate as to what the occasion or excuse for this conflict may be. The small cloud of war which is now hanging on the horizon of the two nations appears to relate to the dissatisfaction of Japan with the domestic policy of the state of California relating to the educational interests. The admission of the educational affairs of California have not been fortunate in meeting with the approval of the emperor of Japan, but this educational policy is not the reason for disturbance of amicable relations between the two nations. This fundamental cause lies at the very foundation of the national character of the nations to the controversy."

Oliver Secures a Partner

Washington, Feb. 2.—Frederick C.
Stevens, state superintendent of public works of New York and president of the Commercial National bank of this city, has entered into partnership with W. J. Oliver, who submitted the lowest bid for the construction of the Panama canal. Stevens arrived in Washington last night and, with Oliver, will confer with Secretary Taft.

German Eulogized in Senate

Washington, Feb. 2.—The business of the senate was suspended at 2:30 o'clock yesterday as a mark of respect to the memory of the late Senator Gorman of Maryland, and senators spoke in eulogy of Gorman's public and private life. The speakers included Senators Rayner, Hale, Frye and Tillman.

KOCH THEORY REJECTED

Diseased Cows' Milk Responsible For Tuberculosis In Man

London, Feb. 2.—The royal commission on tuberculosis, which was appointed in August, 1901, has just issued a lengthy report on tubercular diseases.
This report sets forth that man is liable to infection by bovine tuberculosis, and that cow's milk containing tuberculosis bacilli is responsible for a majority of the cases of such infection. These findings are supported by a long series of exhaustive experiments and researches, which are described in the report.

The report is considered to be of the greatest importance, as demonstrating conclusively that the theory of Professor Koch of Berlin, announced in 1900, was based upon insufficient and misinterpreted observation. This commission was appointed as a result of Koch's assertion that bovine and human tuberculosis were quite distinct diseases.

Recd. Cox Resigns

Cincinnati, Feb. 2.—Rev. George C.
Cox, rector of Calvary church, last night tendered his resignation to his vestry, by whom it was unanimously accepted. The action on the part of Cox was due to the recent letter of Bishop Vincent, in which the latter condemned the utterance of Cox as heretical and strongly disapproved of the action of the standing committee in not holding the clergyman for trial. Cox had avowed his disbelief in the em-maculate conception, bodily resurrection and other doctrines of the church.

Costly Violation of Contract

New York, Feb. 2.—A verdict of $75-578 was directed by Judge Hough against John J. O'Brien of this city and Seth Perkins of Boston in favor of the government for damages sustained through defendants' failure to carry out the terms of a contract made with the war department. Hough also directed a verdict of $27,292 against the City Trust company of Philadelphia, for which Stephen Farrelly is now acting as receiver, and which went on the contractors' bond.

Venezuelan Official Assassinated

Caracas, Feb. 2.—General Luis Mata y Illas, the governor of Caracas, was assassinated by a crowd of intoxicated partisans of Vicente Gomez, the first vice president of the republic. The murderers were captured in the mountains without bloodshed and are now in prison. Domingo Carvajal was appointed to succeed Mata y Illas as governor of Caracas, but he died of heart failure a few hours after being told of his appointment.

Havana Strike May Be Renewed

Havana, Feb. 2.—There are fears of a renewal of the strike by the stevedors and longshoremen of Havana as a result of a decision made by Governor Mazon in which the legality of the military order issued by General Wood in 1901, fixing the wages and hours of labor of stevedores and longshoremen, is reaffirmed. This order was ignored under the administration of President Palma.

Meningitis Appears in Scotland

London, Feb. 2.—Cerebro-spinal meningitis, hitherto but slightly known in this country, has broken out in virulent form in Scotland and the north of Ireland. The disease has almost become epidemic in Glasgow, where 103 cases occurred in January, of which 47 were fatal.

Hanged For Killing Two Women

Kans City, Tenn., Feb. 2.—Ramon
Campie, a Mexican, was hanged here for the murder of two sisters named McInaney. One of the women had engaged to marry him and this so enraged the man that he killed both women and tried to kill their brothers.

Charged With Killing Babies

Des Moines, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Fred West, proprietor of a "baby farm," was arrested here on a charge of murder, it being alleged that bodies of a number of infants born at her home were burned in a furnace and the ashes dumped on a cinder pile.

Derailment in Dangerous Spot

Davenport, Ia., Feb. 2.—An express train jumped the track on the bridge over the Mississippi river here. The cause was a broken axle. Five coaches were derailed and damaged by bumping into the sides of the bridge.
There were no casualties.

Bremer Socialists Lose a Seat

Bremen, Feb. 2.—The first re-ballot in the reichstag elections took place yesterday, the Radical candidates defeating the Socialist by 1700 votes.
The Socialists consequently lose this seat.

MONUMENT TO A SONG

Fort McHenry to Be Preserved In Memory of National Anthem.

OLD RELICS WILL BE LEFT.

Historic Fort to Be Abandoned as a Coast Defense Is Scene of Incident Which Inspired Key to Write "The Star Spangled Banner."

Although Fort McHenry, one of the oldest and most historic forts in the United States, will be abandoned as a coast defense on March 31 next, says the Chicago Chronicle, the stars and stripes will continue to float from the old ramparts as they did that memorable August morning in 1814 when the rising sun, piercing the smoke of battle during the bombardment of the fort by the British, disclosed them to the delighted view of Francis Scott Key, imprisoned on one of the British warships, and inspired him to write the "Star Spangled Banner."

Through the patriotic efforts of the citizens of Baltimore and Adjutant General Clinton L. Riggs of the Maryland national guard the fort will be preserved in memory of Key and his past glories after its abandonment as a fort by the war department April 1, 1907. General Riggs has secured a five year lease on the fort and grounds from the national government for the use of the infantry division of the state militia. The Baltimore city regiments will drill and have camp practice on the old parade grounds.

The old guns and relics will remain, as will also all the buildings on the reservation. The government will maintain any of the buildings not used by the state troops. For the use of the fort and reservation Maryland will pay the United States $1 a year.

Strangely enough, the land of which Fort McHenry is a part was taken up in 1661 under the name Whetstone point under patent by Charles Gorsuch, a member of the Society of Friends. Its importance as a military post was early recognized, and in 1775
it had been strengthened by the construction of a water battery then impregnable, honeycombed by magazines and secret underground passageways.
This battery still stands intact, facing the water approaches of the city from the south.

The following year, in preparation of a visitation from the British, a boom was constructed between Whetstone point and the Lazaretto, and a great chain supported by twenty-one sunken bay vessels was stretched across the entrance to the harbor. The fort remained under the control of the state until 1793, when it was turned over to the national government and named in honor of Colonel James McHenry of Maryland, who was secretary of war in Washington's cabinet.

In 1794, with funds raised by public subscriptions, the great five star fort of brick, cement and earth was erected, whose dungeons were destined during the civil war to become the prison of some of the most prominent citizens of Baltimore whose loyalty to the Union cause was suspected and whose activities were feared.

For more than 130 years the stalwart ramparts of the fort have kept a tireless vigil. The old fort is now so close to the city that its guns might easily bombard the city at will. New forts more suitably located with modern equipments have been constructed to cope with the great warships of the day, and the usefulness of the old fort even as an inner defense has passed away absolutely. But it will live in history linked with the national song.

Aug. 14, 1814, after the sacking of Washington, the British fleet, under Admiral Cochrane, came up the bay, having on board the troops, 3,000 strong, under the veteran General Ross. It was the latter's boast that "he would eat his supper in Baltimore or in hades." He never got to Baltimore, having been killed at North point, where he landed during the early part of the battle.

Francis Scott Key, a distinguished son of Maryland, had on the evening before the bombardment gone on the cruel ship Minden, under a flag of truce, to effect the release of some captive friends. He was himself detained in order that he might not take back information of the lively preparations
he witnessed for the bombardment.
The Minden was anchored in sight of the fort.

While the bombardment raged during the night and early morning he began the inspiring lines:

Oh, say can you see by the dawn's early light

What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming,

Whose broad stripes and bright stars
through the perilous fight

O'er the ramparts we watch'd were so gallantly streaming?

And then as the sunlight pierced the clouds of smoke he triumphantly concluded:

'Tis the star spangled banner! Oh, long may it wave

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

Key wrote his song on the back of a letter he happened to have in his pocket. After his return he wrote it out in full and submitted it to his uncle, Judge Nicholson, who had it printed and distributed.

A few years ago the flagstaff on the highest parapet of the inner fort from which the flag floated was removed and the new pole planted on the northeast point of the five pointed star on the identical spot where it stood when Key watched for it.

ANCIENT FINANCE.

Leading in the Days Before Money
Was In Circulation.

Assyria, with her immense hosts and her spacious and magnificent cities, had no money; Egypt—opulent, populous and abundant Egypt—had no money; ancient Persia, before the age of the first Darius, had no money; the early Hebrews, and even during the most prosperous period of the age of Solomon and down to the time of Judas Maccabaeus, were without money; Etruria from first to last was without money; Rome was without money to the time of Servius Tullius, and the Greeks of the heroic ages were equally destitute of money. Among all those nations gold and silver, when used in barter, were weighed out by the scales,
as when Abraham purchased the cave of Macpelah "he weighed to Ephron the silver which he had named in the audience of the sons of Heth."

Anciently there was no money in Arabia, or the riches of the patriarch Job would not have been estimated by his camels, oxen and she asses.
India, Persia, Assyria, Judaea, Egypt, Greece, Etruria, Rome, the nations of Asia Minor, including Tyre and its dependencies, all arrived at civilization and comfort without the current use of cash and carried on their extensive mercantile and manufacturing transactions merely by bartering commodities in kind, bullion being reckoned among those commodities. These nations were popular almost beyond credibility and transported their produce, manufactures and other merchandise in ships of Tyre and Tarshish from Ophir and the utmost Indian isle (Ceylon) to Gani and the "tin islands" of Selly or Vigo.

A SEAT OF MANY ILLS.

Eye Strain Is Responsible For a Number of Ailments.

When the specialist to whom they had taken their sixteen-year-old daughter on account of what seemed to be a case of incipient melancholia diagnosed the case as one of eye strain and ordered prompt treatment from an oculist, the parents of a young New York girl were astonished. Eye strain seemed as remote from melancholia as would corns on the feet. Their astonishment was proportionately increased when after a few treatments and acquiring glasses the child showed noticeable improvement.

Later day medical science traces to eye strain many ills which seem so remote from the eyes that formerly physicians never thought of establishing a connection between them. Sick headache, nervousness, melancholia, insomnia, are but a few which have of late been laid to the door of weak eyes, the proper treatment having been neglected.

Nervous diseases of the nature of St.
Vitus' dance are now thought to originate frequently in eye trouble. The weak eyes blink incessantly, and this leads to a general contortion of the facial muscles, which grows on the subject through constant repetition.—

The Names of Tea.

We talk glibly about Pekoe, Bohea, etc., but few people have any idea of what these names signify. "Pekoe"
in the dialect of Canton means "white" hair, for the tea which bears this name is made from the youngest leaves, so young that the white down is still on them. "Soochong" in the same dialect is a quite unpoetic name.
It merely signifies "small kind."
"Flourishing spring" is the meaning of "Hyson." "Kongo" signifies "labor." Much trouble and toil are expended in its preparation at Amoy, and these are commemorated in its name.
"Bohea" is called after a range of hills.
—Portland (Ore.) Journal.

To Clean Bronzes.

It is not a good plan to clean bronzes, as the polish is very easily spoiled, but if necessary nothing is better than cleaning them with water and ammonia, using a stiff brush like a nailbrush.
Dry carefully after rinsing thoroughly.
They should be carefully dusted every day with a soft cloth and a feather brush, and a little sweet oil may be rubbed on occasionally. To remove stains from bronze make the article
very hot by dipping it in boiling water.
Then rub it with a piece of flannel dipped in suds made from yellow soap, rubbing clean with soft linen cloths.

Good For Evil.

There are some people who turn gray, but do not grow hoary; whose faces are furrowed, but not wrinkled;
whose hearts are sorely wounded in many places, but are not dead. There is a youth that bids defiance to old age,
and there is a kindness which laughs at the world's usage. These are they who have returned good for evil. Whom the gods love die young, and they die young because they never grow old.— Selected.

Awkwardly Put.

This is one of the things one would rather have put differently: Mr. Bumbleup (at fancy dress ball)—I must apologize for coming in ordinary evening dress. Hostess—Well, you really have the advantage of us. We're all looking more foolish than usual, and you're not.—Punch.

Little Thinking.

Mr. Borely (who has been criticising)
—Now, don't be offended. You know, I always say what I think. Miss Cutting—You don't talk much, do you, Mr.
Borely?—Illustrated Bits.

It is only reason that teaches silence.
The heart teaches us to speak.—Richter.

CONFLAGRATION THREATENED

General Alarm
For Midnight Fire
In Tirrell Block
On Hancock Street

Twelve blows on the fire alarm circuit at 120 Sunday morning, followed by four rounds from Box 23, was a signal to the general public that there was something unusual doing in the business section. It also sent the apparatus in the outside districts hurrying toward the box which is on Hancock street near Cottage avenue.

It was shortly before 1 o'clock that William Robb of Goddard street passing by the Tirrell block, saw smoke coming from the rear of the store occupied by the Norfolk Credit Company, owned by Hyman Sochat. He lost no time in ringing in an alarm from Box 23 which sounded at 12.58. This is considered an extremely dangerous locality on account of the many old buildings, which have the name of being fire traps, and a good sized crowd soon collected.

The fire was in the rear of the second floor and was working through toward Hall's stable. The fire was hard to get at, as it was working along under the roof.

Owing to the close proximity of Hall's stable and other buildings and to the fact that it was impossible to know the extent of the fire, Chief Litchfield deemed it wise to summon additional aid in order to be on the safe side, and ordered a general alarm which was sounded at 1.20.

Fortunately, the additional apparatus was not needed, but Chief Litchfield was commended for calling it out.

The steamer was located at the corner of Hancock and Granite streets, and several other lines of hose were laid from hydrants in the immediate vicinity. With these lines the building was surrounded and the firemen soon had the upper hands of the fire, so that at 1.45 the fire was under control and the recall sounded at 2 o'clock.

During the early part of the fire William A. Coffin and another member of Truck No. 1 were on the rear roof cutting a hole through to get at the fire. Ladderman Coffin was trying to loosen a board and got his hand in the way when the axe in the hand of the other ladderman descended accidentally cutting of two middle fingers of Coffin's right hand. He was hurried to the office of Dr. Jones where his injured hand was dressed, after which he was taken to his home.

The building is occupied on the southerly end by the Norfolk Credit Co., who carry a line of hardware, clothing and furniture, they also occupy the upper floors. The northerly end of the street floor is occupied by T. L. Williams, the jeweler.

An investigation of the premises after the fire was under control showed that it had evidently started near the elevator well in the rear of the store, and followed this well to the upper floors where it spread out. Just what caused the fire, however, is a mystery. The fire damage to the building will not be heavy, for as old fire fighters present remarked, it was a good stop.

Chief Litchfield estimates the loss on the building to be less than $500.

The stock of the Norfolk Credit Co. was not badly damaged by fire, but was thoroughly wet down, as the water, besides wetting the goods on the upper floor came through and soaked the goods on the street floor. The loss to the firm, however, should not exceed $1,000.

No fire reached the store of T. L. Williams, but the water and smoke came through the ceiling and damaged his stock more or less. Mr. Williams' rough estimate of his loss is $500.

During the early stages of the fire the thirty or more horses in Hall's stable were taken out into the field in the rear.

There are some suspicious circumstances connected with the fire which point to incendiarism as the cause. This prompted Chief Litchfield to notify the State Fire marshal, and this morning an inspector from that office came to Quincy and is making an investigation.

Mrs. H. J. Dahl and daughter of Billings street, have returned from an extended visit with relatives in New York city.

Other Side of Savings Bank Insurance

There are two sides to the savings bank insurance question and both were presented at the Massachusetts club on Saturday.

Ex-Governor John D. Long expressed the fear that the proposed system would tend to effect the confidence which the people now have in savings banks.

An epidemic which would test the resources of the insurance department of the bank might so work on the minds of depositors as to cause a run on the bank. Other objections set forth were that it would be difficult to carry on the two functions and keep them entirely separate.

As both branches were highly specialized it would require the services of specially trained men, and the workingmen, for whom the system is intended would not go to the bank and ask about insurance in numbers to insure the success of the undertaking.

Gov. Long further said that one thing that troubled him was how the scheme was to be grafted into the present system of saving banks. It is necessary to retain its present system of integrity. The expense of carrying it on is practically nothing.

Continuing Gov. Long said: "If you put in life insurance you have another kind of business. If one bank adopts it the others must follow, and you will have 180 savings banks doing an insurance business. The savings bank requires no guarantee capital, but the insurance department would require it. There will be two funds and two sets of officials competing with each other."

We had to separate savings banks and national banks because of their tendency to draw upon each other. For the same reason I think it would be advisable to keep the business of saving banks and insurance companies separate. There is a risk there, in my opinion, that should not be overlooked.

"Then there is the risk of expansion, of ambitious officials wanting to grow. Suppose there should be this epidemic of which Mr. White has spoken, with its attendant drain upon the funds of the insurance department of the banks. People's confidence in the integrity of the institution might be shaken and we might have another run such as occurred when I was in the Massachusetts Legislature."

At the meeting tonight under the auspices of the Citizens' Association Mr. L. D. Brandeis will probably answer these objections.

The battleship Vermont, built at the Fore River was not turned over to the government today as expected. The reason was that the government inspectors ordered some additional work put in. This will delay the delivery until next Monday. The ship remains at the dock at Quincy.

Epworth League.

A very sociable time was held Friday evening, Feb. 1, by the Epworth League of the Swedish M. E. church, Fort Square. The program was furnished by the young men, as follows: a speech and solo by Professor Bernard Kosing, music by the Four Friends Orchestra, singing by Shuman's quartet and the celebrated Glee club and a closing speech by the Swedish American, J. M. Wigren. After the very pleasing program, refreshments were served by the young men in the chapel which was beautifully decorated with flags and Japanese lanterns.

Took to the Railroad

Edward Murphy, a South Boston tea merchant, left his team standing on Independence avenue Saturday evening while he went into a house to deliver some goods. When he came out the team was missing. About 11 o'clock the turnout was found on the railroad tracks by a brakeman. The horse was walking leisurely along the tracks towards Braintree. How he got onto the tracks is not known.

DEPARTMENT OFFICIALS

Brief Sketches of Official Family of Mayor Thompson
In Office Today

Today is the day upon which the officials appointed last month by Mayor Thompson for the year 1907 assume office. There are but few changes in his official family from that of last year. The chief change is that of J. Winthrop Pratt who was appointed as a member of the board of Assessors to succeed the late Julius Johnson.

Mr. Pratt who was appointed for the term of three years, is regarded as an expert in real estate values having been actively engaged in real estate transactions and as a builder for a number of years. He was born in Weymouth and educated in the public schools of that town. Leaving school he was employed in the various branches of the shoe industry until 1887, when he took up the trade of carpentering which he has since followed.

He came to Quincy in 1890 and soon became one of the city's energetic and active builders. He also entered the real estate business for the disposal of houses that he had built in the developing of Quincy Adams and in other parts of the city. In new houses he has added largely to the taxable property, it being estimated to the amount of more than a quarter of a million dollars.

He has always taken an active interest in all public affairs of the city, tending to the upbuilding of Quincy, being an active member of the Board of Trade of which he was president in 1902 and 1903. He resides with his family in a pleasant home on Independence avenue surrounded by half a hundred houses that he has built.

Thomas F. Burke, who came in for a great deal of notoriety during the campaign of last December, assumes the office of Commissioner of Public Works for the third term. While there are many who desired that some one else should fill that office this fact that there are still others who consider him an efficient official. It must be admitted that he is a hard worker and that he tries to please. He is a native of Quincy having been born in West Quincy, May 16, 1852, and has always made Quincy his home.

Henry G. Fay assumes the office of City Treasurer for his fourth year. At the same time he retires from the office of Tax Collector which he has filled in a very acceptable manner since the resignation last year of Mr. Cunningham. His appointment of Tax Collector was very favorably received, and it was the wish of many citizens that he should continue in that office. Mr. Fay was an assessor under Mayor Keith and it was he who introduced the card system which later was enlarged upon and is still in use in that department.

Dr. Henry C. Hollowell commences his duties as City Physician for a third year. He retired this year as a member of the School Committee of which he has been a member for several years, and as chairman of the board for the past few years. Dr. Hollowell is too well known to need any extended introduction to the residents of the city.

Frederick F. Green will look after Poor department of the city for a third year. This is another office of which there was some criticism and where prominent citizens desired a change. In addition to this office Mr. Green has served the City as a member of the City Council in 1890 and as a member of the Managers of Public Burial Places for several years.

sary department with the same efficiency as in the past two years. He has the reputation of one who believes in a square deal for everybody, and he was one of the most efficient and popular men on the police force upon which he served two years before assuming the office of Chief.

Amos L. Litchfield, as chief engineer, has brought the Fire department to a state of high efficiency and created in this most important branch of the city a feeling of harmony and good will. His business is that of a builder. He is a Quincy born boy, and has always made his home here. He has filled many offices under the town and city form of government among which might be mentioned that of a call firemen, assistant engineer, constable and chief of police, which office he held under the administration of Mayor Sears. In all of these he has given a good account of himself and there is no

CATHOLIC SCHISM

Hostile Reception of the Movement in France

VILATTE IS NOT DAUNTED

Called an "American Monkey" and Says No Savage Tribe Ever Prevented Him Speaking --Tumult in a Monastery

Paris, Feb. 4.—Only the presence of the police prevented a riot at the old Barnabite monastery, which has been rechristened the Church of the Holy Apostles, where the French apostolic Catholic church was inaugurated yesterday.

The announcement of the attempt to organize a schism had stirred up the militant Catholics, who organized a hostile reception with the intention of breaking up the services. Handbills were distributed containing the words of a popular air, describing Archbishop Vilatte, head of the independent Catholic movement in America, as an "American monkey," whom M. Briand, minister of public instruction and worship, desired to make a French pope. Several thousand persons were outside the church and scores of others penetrated the already crowded church.

Interruptions commenced as soon as Father Roussin, the pastor of the church, began his sermon welcoming the approaching Catholic independence and the dawning of the day when "all the churches of Jesus Christ will unite in Christian charity." When he thanked Vilatte for aiding the French Catholics in establishing the first church, saying he was consecrated by the patriarch of Antioch, the successor of St. Peter, a shout in the rear of the edifice, "He is excommunicated!" was the signal for a general tumult and Roussin was finally compelled to ask that the police be summoned.

About 50 persons were expelled from the church and quiet was maintained until Vilatte appeared on the altar in the robe and mitre of an archbishop. Instantly the din began again with redoubled force, almost drowning his words. Nevertheless, he calmly continued, saying he had been a missionary for 36 years, but no savage tribe had ever prevented him speaking, and concluding: "Even to those who interrupt and revile me I say I will not excommunicate. I wish you no ill. God be with you. Amen."

A score or more of other persons were then ejected before Vilatte proceeded with the celebration of pontifical mass, in which he observed the Catholic rites. During the elevation of the host the militant Catholics, instead of kneeling, climbed into their chairs. In the meantime the police had cleared the streets outside the church and there was no demonstration as the congregation left.

Woman's Mysterious Death

Washington, Pa., Feb. 4.—The body of Miss Frances Martin, 18 years old, was found in a room in the Forest building. Whether she was murdered has not yet been determined. John Innes, with whom Miss Martin attended the Lyric theatre Saturday night, is being held to await the action of the coroner. The body was discovered by Stage Manager Cook of the Lyric theatre, which is across an alley from the Forest building, in which Cook lives. Cook and his wife say they cannot account for the presence of the body in their room, as they had never seen Miss Martin before.

Death of Father McAuley

Moncton, N. B., Feb. 4.—While preparing for the celebration of mass, Rev. E. J. McAuley, the Roman Catholic priest of the parish of New Ireland, who came into prominence recently when his relative and housekeeper, Miss Mary A. McAuley, was murdered by another servant, Thomas Collins, died suddenly of heart disease. McAuley had been in poor health and it is supposed that the end was hastened by the tragedy in his household. He was 65 years old.

Deaths Viewed With Suspicion

Newark, N. J., Feb. 4.—Jacob Kunz and his daughters, Caroline, aged 6, and Barbara, aged 20 months, are dead, and his daughter, Jennie, aged 9, is in a precarious condition, as the result of asphyxiation. Kunz and his three children were asleep in the same bed, while Mrs. Kunz, who was not affected, was asleep in an adjoining room. The police questioned her closely and will further examine her.

Bull Fight Falsely Come Off

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 4.—Forced to return the gate receipts, estimated at $8000, to pay a fine of $100 and to surrender his position, is the penalty Felix Robert, manager of the Juarez Plaza del Toros, paid for failure to carry out the bull fight he had advertised. Neither the bison, which was matched against a matador, nor the bulls would fight. More than 7000 persons had gathered to see the fight.

Policemen Thinned Out by Death

Odessa, Feb. 4.—There was serious street fighting here in which three policemen were killed and many pedestrians wounded. Earlier in the day, following the funeral of two murdered policemen, there was a conflict between Jews and members of the Black Hundreds and many persons on both sides were injured. Troops are patrolling the city.

OLIVER'S PARTNER'S

Talk Over Plans For Building Canal It Awarded Contract

New York, Feb. 4.—William J. Oliver, the lowest bidder for the construction work on the Panama canal, held a conference here last night with 10 other contractors who will, it is understood, be associated with Oliver in the event his bid is accepted. The purpose of the conference, it is said, was to discuss the formation of a corporation which would be prepared to undertake the work on the isthmus.

A representative of Oliver announced some plans that have been agreed upon. John B. McDonald, who built the subway and who was connected with large traction interests in this city, will, if the corporation to be formed is awarded the canal contract, have general supervision of the construction work.

George Pierce of Maine and John Pierce of New York, who have interests in the largest quarries in this country, will have charge of the masonry work, and P. T. Walsh of Davenport, Ia., will have supervision over the work of excavation. P. F. Brennan of Washington will also have portions of the construction work to do. Robert Russell of New York will be, it is said, in charge of this work.

Vice President Ackert of the Southern railroad will look after and have general charge of all transportation to the canal, not only of men employed, but of machinery used. R. A. C. Smith of New York and R. A. Chester of Washington will have charge of the financial end of the corporation.

Grafter Rules Sultan's Palace

Constantinople, Feb. 4.—The sultan has ordered a special commission to examine into the charges against Fehmi Pasha, chief of the secret police of the palace and a great confidant and favorite of the sultan, who, it is alleged by the German embassy, recently caused the seizure of a ship's cargo destined for Hamburg. Meanwhile the proprietor of a forest has taken refuge in the German embassy. Fehmi Pasha forced him by frequent beatings to sign a document agreeing to pay him 20 percent of the income of his forest industry. It is said that Fehmi Pasha in this way obtained the cargo of timber which is the subject of the dispute.

Woman and Children Perished

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 4.—A woman and two children were found frozen to death in a tenement here, with a third child in an adjoining room badly frozen but alive. The dead are Emma K. Livingston, single, aged 50; Alfred L. Livingston, aged 3, and Lincoln B. Livingston, aged 3. Helen Livingston, aged 10, was badly frozen, but may live. The children lived with Miss Livingston, who was their aunt. It is supposed that after their retired Thursday night they became partially asphyxiated by coal gas and, the fire dying out, they were frozen to death. The bodies not being discovered until yesterday afternoon.

Missing Man's Body Found

Philadelphia, Feb. 4.—The body of a man, who has been partially identified as Frank R. Morton of the Philadelphia orchestra, who disappeared in December last, was found floating in the Delaware river opposite this city yesterday. The body was in such a decomposed condition that the features were not recognizable, but the clothing was identified as that of the missing man. Morton was the son of John J. Morton of Boston. He was 23 years of age and played first violin in the orchestra.

As Viewed by Japan

Tokio, Feb. 4.—The report that a settlement of the California trouble is likely to be effected by the exclusion of labor immigration by the United States and Japan is not generally believed here, being considered unreasonable. According to the prevailing feeling any satisfactory solution of the controversy must be based upon Japan's treaty rights.

Boxing Bout May Have Fatal Result

New York, Feb. 4.—Thomas Shortell and Alfred G. Harvey, officials of St. Bartholomew's parish house, were held in $1500 bail each to await developments in the case of John Mason, who was injured in a boxing match at the parish house and who may die. They are charged with aiding and abetting a private boxing match.

Not Responsible For Crime

Tacoma, Wash., Feb. 4.—Chester Thompson, 18 years old, on trial for the murder of Judge George M. Emery in Seattle on July 7, 1906, was found "not guilty by reason of insanity." The defendant is a nephew of the late Maurice Thompson, a novelist, and son of Will H. Thompson, a poet.

An organization unique in the labor world was formed at Boston when 63 moving picture operators banded themselves into the pioneer union of their craft.

Fire, originating in a moving picture machine, drove a New York Bowery audience hurriedly into the street and caused damage to the building amounting to $25,000.

The "Old Grimes" house, one of the landmarks of Hubbardston, Mass., was destroyed by fire. Everett M. Felton and his family, who lived in the house, barely escaped death. The house was built in 1761 by Joseph Grimes, whose son, Ephraim, was made famous in the song "Old Grimes Is Dead." The loss is $2000.

The new Chinese ambassador to Berlin, Yang Tehong, has recommended that the Chinese government send a large number of officers to Germany to study the German arsenal service.

COLLIDED IN A FOG

Bank Is Almost Cut In Two by a Steamer

CREW HAD CLOSE CALL

Cargo of Lumber Prevented Craft From Sinking to Bottom at Once—Captains Inclined to Blame One Another

Norfolk, Feb. 4.—After battling with head winds and heavy seas for 17 days, and when within a few hours of her destination, bark Charles Loring, carrying 350,000 feet of lumber from Savannah to New York, was run into and sent to the bottom by the Old Dominion steamer Seneca four miles off Sea Girt, N. J. The collision occurred in a dense fog. No one was injured and no lives were lost.

It was with great difficulty that the crew of the steamer, who put out in lifeboats, succeeded in rescuing. Captain De Buhr and his crew of nine men from the sinking bark. At one time a boat from the Seneca, containing six men, became lost in the haze and was not picked up again until after two hours of persistent search.

There was a stiff wind blowing and a heavy sea on, but the fog was so thick that the two vessels were not seen by each other until too late to avert the collision. Captain De Buhr blames the Seneca for the sinking of his craft, while the master of the Seneca puts the responsibility upon the shoulders of the Loring's skipper.

The crash occurred at the supper hour and the dining saloon of the Seneca was crowded. When through the fog the Seneca was seen heading down on the bark there was no time for putting about. The collision was almost immediate. The bark was cut almost in two and the glass in the Seneca's dining room was shattered. A panic among the passengers of the Seneca was stopped by the officers and crew.

Lifeboats were immediately put off by the steamer. Calls for help could be heard through the fog and the rescuers hurried to the side of the Loring. The bark was making water rapidly. Her cargo of lumber probably prevented her going down with all hands before help reached her. Wreckage had made it impossible to get away her lifeboat.

Within an hour after the collision the Loring was not quite submerged and the only sign of life on her then was the ship's cat, which had sought a place of safety in the rigging and could not be persuaded to come down. A dog was saved with the crew.

Before leaving the wreck the Seneca placed a warning light on her, but she is directly in the path of coastwise navigation and a dangerous derelict.

The Loring sailed from Savannah Jan. 17 with a cargo of yellow pine, valued at $18,000 and insured. She was built 25 years ago and was valued at $10,000. She was not insured. Captain De Buhr was a part owner.

The bow plates of the Seneca were badly stove in above the water line and much glass was broken, but otherwise the vessel was uninjured.

Had a Romantic Career

London, Feb. 4.—Florence C. Paget, marchioness of Hastings, died yesterday at Windsor. She was the greatest beauty in the mid-Victorian period. While she was engaged to Henry Chaplin in 1864 she made a runaway marriage with the Marquis of Hastings. Three years later Chaplin won the derby and $755,000 with an outsider, while the Marquis of Hastings lost heavily on the same race, beginning a series of losses which led him, the following year, to commit suicide. The marchioness in 1870 married Sir George Chetwynd. She was born in 1842.

Dryden Out of the Race

Washington, Feb. 4.—United States Senator Dryden of New Jersey last night authorized the announcement that he had withdrawn his name as a candidate for re-election to the senate. This action was taken on the advice of Dryden's physicians, who warned him of the danger to his health if he persisted in attending the public meetings arranged at his request to be held in Trenton today.

Extensive Smuggling of Chinese

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 4.—Returning from a trip of investigation at Mexican ports and along the border between the United States and Mexico, Marcus Braun states that he has found extensive, organized schemes for smuggling Chinese into this country. The investigation was undertaken for the personal information of President Roosevelt.

Mrs. Longworth Sick

Washington, Feb. 4.—Mrs. Alice Longworth, daughter of the president, is ill at her home in this city with what is stated at her home to be a slight attack of grip. Mrs. Longworth contracted a severe cold while attending the White House reception last Thursday night and has been confined to her bed ever since.

MAY NOT GO ON STAND

Prosecution Will Let Defense Bring Up Causes Alleged to Have Led to Killing of White
--May MacKenzie to Testify

New York, Feb. 4.—Harry K. Thaw who is on trial for the murder of Stanford White on the roof of Madison Square Garden eight months ago, was allowed to see three of his counsel for a half hour's conference yesterday. Sunday visitors are not as a rule admitted to the Tombs, but exception has been made in a capital case. When Attorneys Delmas, McPike and O'Reilly left the Tombs they said that Thaw was in better spirits than at any time since the trial began. Thaw's keeper, too, said that he appeared less nervous than before. He attended service in the chapel and later spent some time reading the newspapers.

As the trial has progressed Thaw has grown more and more confident. The long delay in securing a jury enabled him to become accustomed to his surroundings in court and he now appears anxious for the real work to begin.

Thaw's attorneys are rounding out the mass of testimony which the defense will put before the jury. None of them will venture a prediction as to how much time will be required to present the evidence for the defendant. While Assistant District Attorney Garvan, who is to deliver the opening address for the prosecution, expects to make his narrative of the crime as brief as possible, the cross-examination of eye-witnesses to the tragedy will be of a searching character, and it is this fact which leads to the conclusion that the state may not be able to open and close in the one session of court.

It is reported that young Mrs. Thaw's constant companion, May MacKenzie, the former chorus girl, will be one of the first witnesses for the prosecution, which hopes to prove by her that Thaw made threats against the life of White. Miss MacKenzie was subpoenaed immediately after the Madison Square roof garden tragedy and her daily attendance at court has been in obedience to that summons as well as in the capacity of the close friend of the prisoner's wife.

Mr. Peabody of Thaw's counsel has taken occasion to deny the report that Thaw had decided to take the stand in his own behalf. While such an action might be possible, he said, no decision to that end has been reached. Peabody declared that the defense to be interposed for Thaw will be a lengthy one.

The fact that the state may not require more than one session of the court in which to introduce its direct testimony means that District Attorney Jerome intends to carry out the plan he conceived months ago of letting the defense bring up the causes which are alleged to have led to the tragedy. The prosecution will then attempt to refute, in detail, every contention of the defense, and the state's case in rebuttal may require even more time than that consumed by the introduction of the testimony for the defendant.

rumors of a possible change in at least one juror continue to circulate. Thaw is immensely pleased with the jury as it is now constituted, however, and his lawyers are equally well satisfied. Unless some extraordinary pressure is brought to bear upon them it is not likely they will consent to any further changes. In that event today will witness the taking of testimony in the famous case.

Fire Tied Up Telephone Service
Chicago, Feb. 4.—A six-story building on Franklin street, occupied by several manufacturing concerns, was partly destroyed by fire last night. The burned building was close to the main exchange of the Chicago Telephone company, where 100 girls were on duty. For nearly an hour they remained while the fire raged, but, on receiving a warning from the fire chief, left their posts, tying up the telephone service throughout the business quarter for a time.

Coal Car Famine Causes Trouble
Knoxville, Feb. 4.—The coal industry of east Tennessee and southeastern Kentucky has been paralyzed the past week on account of a coal car famine. Hundreds of small industries have closed down on account of lack of coal. Not only is the supply of steam coal exhausted in many towns and cities, but the supply of commercial or domestic coal is running dangerously low.

Suicide of Hotel Man
New York, Feb. 4.—G. S. Monlton, a well known hotel man, committed suicide by shooting in the Grand Union hotel. Recently he bought control of the Manhattan Square hotel. He had been suffering severely from stomach trouble for some time and it is believed that his illness was the cause of the deed.

Finally Met Death in Wreck
Woodland, Cal., Feb. 4.—A train was partly wrecked north of Dunnington, probably by a broken rail. Express Messenger Farley was killed and several passengers were bruised. Farley was the hero of two holdups and three wrecks in the past few years.

WEDDING INTERRUPTED

Guests Are Startled by Suicide
of Stranger Among Them

New York, Feb. 4.—Standing in the doorway of an apartment where guests had assembled to witness a wedding, Elderly Hugron of Waterbury, Conn., blew out his brains. The bride and many women guests became hysterical following the tragedy and the marriage ceremony was delayed while the coroner held an impromptu inquiry. An hour later the wedding was solemnized. The guests had gathered at the apartment of James Feeney, on Amsterdam avenue, for the marriage of Bessie Feeney and Michael Leyton. The presence of the stranger was not noticed until the shot was fired.

Waterbury, Conn., Feb. 4.—Elderly Hugron, who committed suicide in New York city, was a Frenchman, living with his wife in this city, where the couple conducted a small hotel. A few days ago he began to act strangely. His family prevailed upon him to go to New York for a few days for rest and recreation as the guest of friends. His daughter, Margaret, 14 years old, accompanied him. Hugron is said by his friends here to have been a chef in well known New York hosteleries.

Woman Show Presence of Mind
Jersey City, Feb. 4.—Two women rescued four persons from the building that contained the office of the Holy Name cemetery and which was destroyed by fire late last night. When the building burst into flames Mrs. Matthew Donohue and Mrs. Margaret Hayden, who lived nearby, were awakened by the glare and, securing a ladder, placed it against a second-story window and forced an entrance. Within they found the wife, the mother and two daughters of William O'Keefe, a cemetery employee. Mrs. Hayden handed out the children and later brought down the older women, who had been overcome by smoke.

Proposed Metropolitan Council
Boston, Feb. 4.—The mayors of eight cities and the selectmen of seven towns in the so-called metropolitan district, at a meeting in this city, unanimously endorsed the bill now before the legislature for the creation of a metropolitan council for the consideration of all matters affecting the district. The meeting recorded itself as against further public improvements for the district without submitting the projects to the consideration of the representatives of the cities and towns.

Man and Wife Killed by Gas
New York, Feb. 4.—John Liveroni and his wife, Mathias, were found asphyxiated in their home. The bodies were discovered by their young children. Mrs. Liveroni's body was in the bed, while that of her husband sat fully dressed in a chair by the bedside. The police believe the couple formed a suicide pact, or that Liveroni, despondent because of lack of work, deliberately turned on the gas after his wife went to sleep.

"Millionaire" Story Exploded
New Orleans Feb. 4.—The identity of "George N. Meyers," supposed millionaire, who died at Yankton, S. D., was established here as George Meyer, aged 50, who had been secretary of the Teutonia Insurance company. Meyer's two brothers are prominent business men here. They say that Meyer owned stock in an oil company, but it would probably aggregate only a few thousand instead of a million dollars.

Couple Agreed to Suicide
Auburn, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Asa Kenyon and Mrs. Marie Dedrick, in compliance, according to the police, with a suicide pact, each drank the contents of an ounce vial of laudanum in a room at the Exchange hotel. Mrs. Dedrick is dead, but Kenyon may recover. He is under arrest. He told the police that he and Mrs. Dedrick agreed to die because they were tired of living.

Small Fire With Serious Results
New York, Feb. 4.—A little ragshop on the first floor of a house on Cherry street was burned out early today and in the fire half a dozen persons were badly scorched, some perhaps fatally, while others were hurt by jumping from windows. All the injured were asleep in the house when the fire was discovered by a patrolman. The monetary loss was small.

Sudden Death of Senator's Wife
Washington, Feb. 4.—Mrs. Jacob H. Gallinger, wife of Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, was stricken in the lobby of Belasco's theatre Saturday night and died while being conveyed to a hospital. Death was due to angina pectoris. The body left yesterday afternoon for Concord, N. H., where the burial will take place.

Two Men Eady Scalded
New York, Feb. 4.—John Waddington and Patrick Manning fell into a tank of boiling water in the compressed air plant at the entrance to the Pennsylvania tunnel shaft in Long Island City. Other laborers on the spot who heard their cries fished them out with poles. Neither is expected to recover.

Actor Dropped Dead on Street
New York, Feb. 4.—George W. Denham, 61 years of age, an old-time actor, dropped dead of apoplexy on the street while on his way to see a physician. Denham for many years supported Joseph Jefferson. He was prominent in Masonic circles.

LIQUOR AND EXPOSURE

Responsible For Death of an Aged New Hampshire Woman

Newfield, N. H., Feb. 4.—The county authorities spent considerable time in investigating the death of Mrs. Henry Spencer, 60 years old, whose bruised body was found outside of her house.

Mrs. Spencer visited her son's house Saturday night in company with her husband. The son lives about 100 yards away, and Henry Spencer told the authorities that he left for home about midnight, believing that his wife had either preceded him or was about to follow. He admitted that liquor was served at his son's house during the evening and that nearly all had a drink.

The body was found to have sustained many bruises about the head and shoulders, and the clothing was wet. The latter fact still further mystified the officials, as no rain fell here since Saturday evening, and before the time the woman is said to have left for her home.

No one at the house of Leander Spencer, the son, could give the authorities any information regarding their mother, except that she left their house about midnight, shortly after her husband, and that there had been no quarrel during the evening.

It was announced by the officials last night that there would be no further investigation, inasmuch as it was evident that the woman's death was due to alcoholism and exposure.

Tragedy Due to Drink
Boston, Feb. 4.—John Remish, 40 years old, mechanic, of 203 Blue Hill avenue, is locked up on the charge of causing the death of Michael McCarthy, who lived nearby. McCarthy was found unconscious in the hallway at the Remish home and died of a fractured skull at the City hospital. The police say Remish came home and found McCarthy and his wife drinking and the woman intoxicated. They also say a 14-year-old son of Remish had ordered McCarthy out of the house, but he did not go. The state is said to have taken Mrs. Remish's three children from her because of her habits.

Unhappy Woman Kills Herself
Brookline, Mass., Feb. 4.—Borrowing a bottle of carbolic acid from her landlady, Mrs. Nora D. Leach, 28 years of age, drank the contents of the bottle. She was removed to a hospital, where she died last night. Despondency is supposed to have been the cause of her suicide. In the summer of 1902 Mrs. Leach was shot three times by her husband, with whom she had quarreled, but recovered from her injuries. Her husband was sentenced to a term of four years in prison. He was released last summer.

Settled Out of Court
Hartford, Feb. 4.—The suit brought by the Connecticut Loan and Realty company against George E. Keeney, president of the Hartford Life Insurance company, and Edgar C. Linn, for $250,000 damages, for alleged breach of trust, has been settled and withdrawn from the superior court, where it has been pending since December, 1905. It is known that a sum of money has been paid to the Connecticut Loan and Realty company, but what amount could not be learned.

Steamer Hard and Fast on Rocks
Newport, R. I., Feb. 4.—Steamer General Warren of the Enterprise Transportation company ran aground early Sunday on "The Dumping," in Narragansett bay. She remains hard and fast on the rocks, despite the efforts of several tugs to release her. The steamer carried 100 passengers, as she lies in a partly sheltered position well within the bay, Captain Brown and his crew of 20 men who remain on board are in no immediate danger.

Teamsters Warmly Greet Shea
Boston, Feb. 4.—Cornelius P. Shea, international president of the Teamsters' union, was given an ovation when he appeared at the meeting of General Teamsters' union 191, his own local, last night. Nearly 900 members were jammed into the hall to greet him. Shea, whose second trial for the charge of conspiracy is now proceeding in Chicago, said that he was absolutely confident of his complete acquittal as the result of the trial.

The World Grows Better
Boston, Feb. 4.—Bishop Lawrence, preaching at St. Paul's church, said that he believed more money had been given away within the past 60 days for charitable objects than ever before in the same period, and that the world was in the throes of one of the greatest spiritual and material revolutions in its history.

Aged Woman Fatally Burned
Canaan, N. H., Feb. 4.—Mrs. Mary Warren, aged 80, who lived alone in a small house in Lyme Center, is supposed to have set fire to her clothing while kindling a fire with kerosene. Neighbors who discovered the house on fire found the woman terribly burned, but still living. She died later from burns.

Gas Leaked into Tenement
Boston, Feb. 4.—More than a score of people were overcome by gas in South Boston, due to gas escaping into a tenement through a sewer connection. Five are in a serious condition at a hospital, but it is believed that they will recover.

Violent Deaths at Boston
Boston, Feb. 4.—Within six hours yesterday four violent deaths were reported to the police, one from suicide, another from strangulation, a third from morphine and a fourth from some unknown cause.

Mayor and School Committee
Ask for More Money

A regular meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening. Councilmen Hayward and Hobbs were absent.

JURORS.

The Mayor, assisted by the City Clerk and Councilman Gelotte drew the following jurors: Andrew Stewart, Timothy J. Carey, James Thomas, Warren T. Arnold, Murdoch A. Campbell and John Pierson.

CITY ESTIMATES.

A communication was received from the Mayor and Treasurer enclosing estimates for 1907. To Finance Committee.

The estimates will be printed in detail in the Daily Ledger tomorrow, in comparison with the appropriation of 1906. There are increases for the Assessors, Board of Health, city salaries, City Clerk's office, Department of Public Works, Police department, Miscellaneous city expenses, and Fire department.

And smaller appropriations for printing, and for the Tax Collector's office.

The total of the Mayor's estimates for current expenses is $217,312.00 against appropriations of $211,064.14 in 1906.

Outside of this the maturing debt and interest is about the same as in 1906, also the expenses of the Water and Sewer departments.

APPOINTMENTS.

The Mayor forwarded the following appointments:

George Prout as registrar of voters to fill the unexpired term of Frank Tinney deceased. Confirmed.

Walter L. Jackson as a public weigher. Confirmed.

Warren S. Parker as Inspector of Buildings. Placed on file.

INCORPORATION.

The Mayor forwarded a communication relative to a certificate of incorporation of the Finnish Workingmen's Association "Veli." Referred to Committee on Legislative Matters.

SCHOOL BUDGET.

A communication was received from the School Committee enclosing its budget for the year 1907. The total amount asked is $133,565, which the committee say is an increase of $11,000 over the expenditures of last year. The increase being due almost entirely to the increases in salaries of teachers and janitors voted last year. The total amounts for all other purposes is nearly $800 less than the corresponding amounts asked for last year. The budget is as follows, compared with 1906:

	1906.	1907.
Salaries	$103,405.00	$85,700.44
Janitors	8,875.00	7,484.93
Books, supplies and sundries	10,500.00	12,925.38
Fuel	7,500.00	6,621.05
Transportation	1,100.00	1,097.29
Rents	985.00
Evening schools	1,500.00	1,500.00
Total	$133,565.00	$122,429.00

The communication was referred to the Finance Committee.

PETITIONS.

The Telephone Co. petitioned for permission to attach its fixtures and wires to poles on Summer street and West Elm avenue. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received, including applications for licenses to transport liquor from John T. Fitzsimmons and Antonio Petta.

Councilman Pinkham presented a petition for the acceptance of Wayland and Cushing streets. Referred to the Committee on Streets.

Councilman Stone presented a petition of the Electric Light Co., for a location for poles on South Central avenue. To Committee on Streets.

NEW ORDERS.

Councilman Stone offered an order granting the Electric Light Co. permission to lay underground wires across Merrymount road. To Committee on Street.

Upon motion of Councilman Gelotte, the application of Andrew Isaacson, for license to transport liquor was taken from the table. He then offered an order granting the license. Upon motion of Councilman Ferguson the order was referred to the Committee on Licenses.

Councilman Teasdale offered an order petitioning the Commonwealth to take Willard street as a State highway. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Upon motion of Councilman Hull, the petition of the Citizens Gas Co was taken from the committee. He then offered an order for a public hearing Monday, Feb. 18, at 7.45 o'clock. Adopted.

Councilman Teasdale offered an order appropriating $4,500 for a main sewer on Smith street, between Arthur and Dean streets. To Committee on Sewers and Drains.

Councilman Polk offered an order refunding W. W. Smith $2.80 for poll tax paid twice. Adopted.

Councilman Sawyer moved and it was voted that the clerk express to Councilman Hobbs the sympathy of the Council in his illness and to further express the hope for his speedy recovery.

President Piper referred the matters sent over from the Council of 1906 to their several committee.

Adjourned at 8 o'clock until Feb. 18.

This week the manager offers a rare treat to his patrons. Prof. Clark and his troop of trained dogs and ponies will be seen three nights and Saturday matinee—Thursday, Friday and Saturday. This exhibition must be seen to believe that dogs and ponies can do all the tricks imaginable without a word of command. Read the comment of The Philadelphia Inquirer of Philadelphia, Pa.—"The feature of attraction with (The Runaway Boy Co.) at Blaney's Theatre here this week is Prof. Clark's dog and pony show, given in the third act, the circus scene. This is undoubtedly the best exhibition of trained animals seen in Philadelphia, by theatre goers. This act alone is a strong drawing feature and worth the admission paid."

Universal Call

Now that modern ideas and appliances are being adopted by Chief Litchfield for the fire department it would not be a bad idea to install what is known as a universal call box at the Central Fire station. By the use of this box it would be possible for anyone at the Central station to ring in an alarm from any box in the city.

If, therefore, a telephone call should be received at the Central station it would be but the work of a minute, if it was deemed advisable to send out an alarm from the box located nearest the fire.

SAVINGS BANKS NOT IMPERILED

Life Insurance
Rests Upon Substantial Certainty

A large number of representative citizens assembled at Colonial hall, Monday evening, on invitation of the Citizens' Association, to hear the talk on Savings Bank insurance by L. D. Brandeis and Representative White. All parts of the city and some of the neighboring towns were represented.

George B. Brown presided, in the absence of the president and vice president, and introduced the speakers.

Mr. Brandeis spoke for about an hour, and so many questions were asked at the close that he took nearly another hour to answer them, so there were only a few minutes for Mr. White.

Mr. Brandeis first read a letter from the trustees of the Bridgewater Savings Bank endorsing the movement, and stating that a guarantee fund of $25,000 had been pledged to back the bank in that town.

The speaker then set forth at length the prohibitive cost of industrial life insurance of today and the causes. How in 15 years the workmen of Massachusetts had paid $61,294,887 for industrial insurance and received back in death benefits, endowments, or surrender values an aggregate of but $21,819,006.

How the Prudential company pays annual dividends to its stockholders equivalent to more than 210 per cent. upon the capital actually paid in, etc., etc. He told also of the great cost of soliciting and collecting insurance, and of the enormous number of lapses in policies.

The only question in the minds of most of those present concerned the wisdom of allowing Savings Banks to enter upon the insurance business, so the Daily Ledger reports this part of the address more fully:

The savings banks established on the plan prevailing in Massachusetts, and generally through the New England States, are managed upon principles and under conditions upon which alone a satisfactory system of life insurance for workingmen can be established.

These savings banks have no stockholders, being operated solely for the benefit of the depositors. They are managed by trustees, usually men of large business experience and high character, who serve without pay, recognizing that the business of collecting and investing the savings of persons of small means is a quasi-public trust, which should be conducted as a beneficent, and not as a money-making institution.

The trustees, the officers and the employees of the savings bank have been trained in the administration of these savings in the practice of the strictest economy. While the expense of managing the industrial departments of the Metropolitan, the Prudential and the John Hancock companies have, excluding taxes, exceeded 40 per cent. of the year's premiums. The $662,000,000 held in 1905 in the 183 Massachusetts Savings Banks were managed at an expense of 23-100 of one per cent. of the average assets, or 1.36 per cent of the year's deposits.

Savings institutions as managed offer adequate means of providing insurance to the workingman. With a slight enlargement of their powers, these savings banks can, at a minimum of expense, fill the great need of cheaper life insurance in small amounts. The only proper elements of the industrial insurance business not common to the savings bank business are simple, and are supplied at a minimum of expense in connection with such existing savings banks. They are:—

First:—Fixing the terms on which insurance shall be given,

Second:—The initial medical examination.

Third:—Verifying the proof of death.

The first is the work of an insurance actuary; and the present cost of actuarial service can be greatly reduced both by limiting the forms of insurance policies to two or three standard forms of policy, to be uniform throughout the state, and by providing for the appointment of a state actuary, who, in connection with the insurance commissioner shall serve all the savings insurance banks.

The initial medical examination and the verification of proof of death are services that may be readily performed for the savings banks at no greater pro rata expense than for the existing insurance companies.

The insurance department of the savings banks would, of course, be kept entirely distinct, as a matter of accounting, from the savings department; but it would be conducted with the same plant and the same officials, without any large increase of clerical force or incidental expense, except such as would be required if the deposits of the bank were increased.

On the other hand, the insurance department of savings banks would open with an extensive and potent good will, and under the most favorable conditions for teaching the value of life insurance,—a lesson easily learned when insurance is offered at about half the premium now exacted by the industrial companies. With an insurance clientele composed largely of thrifty savings banks depositors, the expensive house to house collection of premiums could be dispensed with, and more economical payments of premiums could probably be substituted for weekly payments.

Indeed, it is probable that the following simple, convenient and inexpensive method of paying premiums would, to a large extent, be adopted of making deposits in the savings department from time to time, and giving when the policy is issued a standing order to draw on the savings fund in favor of the insurance fund to meet the premium payments as they accrue. Premium payments would thus become automatic, unless the savings fund was exhausted or the policyholders countermanded the order.

The safety of savings banks would, of course, be in no way imperiled by extending their functions to life insurance. Life insurance rests upon substantial certainty, differing in this respect radically from fire, accident and other kinds of insurance. Since practical experience has given to the world the mortality tables upon which life insurance premiums rest and the reserves for future needs are calculated, no life insurance company has ever failed which complied with the law

THREE IN HEAP

Locomotives
Wrecked
At Braintree
Early This Morning

There was quite a serious railroad accident this morning between the Braintree and South Braintree stations. Three locomotives were wrecked, two conductors injured, and several passengers shaken up.

It appears that the Fall River freight, known as the "double iron" was going onto a siding when two engines acting as a snow plow came along and banged into the caboose of the freight. The roof of the caboose was torn off and the tenders of the two locomotives thrown into the air.

Conductor Hunt of the freight train was in the caboose and was quite severely injured. He was later put aboard a train and taken to Boston.

Before the railroad men could recover from the shock of the first collision, the 5.50 outward train for Campello came along and banged into the two smashed locomotives.

The result was that there were three locomotives piled up in a heap. Conductor "Tim" Harrington of the passenger train had his face cut and was shaken up and bruised. He was taken to the South Braintree depot.

The accident which happened about 7.35 is said to be due to the failure of the rear brakeman of the freight to protect his train.

A wrecker was sent from Boston but only got as far as North Braintree when it got stuck.

After some delay it was able to get through to the wreck. All four tracks are badly blocked and it will take all day to clear them. Trains are able to pass the wreck by a side track.

Shipyard Has Another Contract

The Fore River Shipbuilding Company has been awarded the contract for the fifth steel freight steamer for the Atlantic & Birmingham Construction Company to be delivered within eleven months. This freighter is one of five, two of which have already been delivered by the Fore River Shipbuilding company, which will run between New York and Brunswick, Georgia.

Her Brilliant
Failure

By Katherine Lewis
Copyright, 1906, by M. M. Cunningham

With chin uplifted and lips firmly compressed, Margaret advanced to meet fate.

Fate in this particular instance was represented by Margaret's father, a self-opinionated, self-made man with a grievance. Margaret realized fully that she was a factor in the grievance.

Her three sisters constituted the remaining factors.
John Leckie felt that he had been played a scurvy trick when, having proved that he could surmount obstacles before which the average man fell back dismayed and could rise from nameless, penniless obscurity to a position of power if not popularity among men and affairs, nature had sent him daughters instead of sons. His wife had died of very shame for having failed so signally to fulfill her duty in this respect.

The eldest daughter had tried to explore her mother's offenses by entering her father's office as bookkeeper.
Today she ranked as his right hand
man. She wore mannish clothes, too, and talked shop with her father from soup to coffee and was tremendously bored when her sisters proposed entertaining a few friends at dinner.

The second daughter had chosen art and had opened a small studio in a western city. Anything, in her estimation, was preferable to being told whenever she met her father that if she had been a man she might have built iron bridges instead of air castles in art.

One thing John Leckie had done—he had given them the best educational advantages money could buy, and then he had said, "Now go out and do things."

Margaret, fresh from the trip abroad which Leckie considered the essential finishing touch of a girl's education, knew that she would be expected to "do things." Her father had given her time to unpack her trunks, to call on her few relatives and the intimate family friends and to recover her equilibrium, so to speak. Now, when he sent for her to join him in the library, she knew what his question would be. Nor was her surmise incorrect.

John Leckie leaned back in his unfurnished leather chair and stared frankly at the tall, slender girl, who from some unknown and far distant ancestor had inherited a grace almost patrician.

"Sit down, Margaret. I've spent a good many thousand dollars on your education. What do you expect to do with it?"

"I think I shall take charge of the house," she said, calm, without quavering within.

"Take charge of the house?" echoed her father harshly. "I pay Mrs. Jenkins to do that."

"And the whole house looks as if it were handled by a hireling," replied Margaret, meeting his angry gaze without flinching. "Bought! Hired!
The words are stamped all over the place. We have no home life, no home atmosphere, and I want to make things more pleasant, more like some of the homes in which I have visited. I think that is my forte."

A deep purple flush mounted to Lee-kie's forehead, and his fist came down on the table with a ringing thump.

"So, after all the money I've spent on you, after all the plans I've made for my girls to take a place in the world as good as their father made for himself, you have no bigger ambition
than to mend socks and bake pies.
That will add to the luster of our family name, won't it?"

Margaret bit her lip. Leckie had spoken as if the name had been handed down through ten generations instead of one.

"Now, see here! That gag doesn't go.
You're going to do something! Think of your sister Harriet!"

Margaret did think, and then she almost shuddered. She remembered Harriet's untidy room, some cigarette stems she had seen lying on the unpolished brass tray. Harriet had said that after the long day in the office she simply had to smoke to quiet her nerves.

"Harriet is a credit to her father.
Men down street call her a wonder.
And you want to mend socks! Good heavens! Say, do you think you could sell goods? I'll start you in a millinery shop—a lot of society women are going in for that sort of thing—or a tea room, if you like. But you've got to do something."

Margaret rose and half timidly laid her arm around her father's thick neck.
"Father, dear, I'd so much rather just make tea for you and your few friends. Perhaps we might have more friends if—"

He flung aside the encircling arm.
"Now, see here, you're not going to sit back on your haunches and do nothing just because I have money. You've got to make a name for yourself at something." He was brutal now in his disappointment. "If you can't do anything else, you can teach. I know a man; helped him out of a tight place about three months ago; name is Graydon. He lives somewhere out in Westchester county and is on the school board. He has pull enough to get you a job teaching out there, and you can try your hand at that. If you can't earn five hundred a year giving out some of the education that I paid about five thousand a year for, you-you're a disgrace to the family. I'll see Graydon in the morning. School must open out there in a week or so."
He bent over his desk as if the subject were closed. Margaret paused in the doorway. Her face was very white. Her eyes burned like red stars in the gloom of the curtained doorway.

"I'll do what you say, of course, father, but I warn you in advance that I will be a failure. I was not meant for that sort of thing."

Her father flung back his big head and stared at her.
"Perhaps you think you were born to play a lady, but I will fool you. You don't come from that sort of stock."

And so it happened that Margaret Leckie was placed in charge of district school No. 16. The one redeeming feature of her new position was the long walk to and from the depot, for she commuted daily rather than take board in the small village around which homes of millionaires were clustered. These long walks steadied her nerves for the labor of teaching the unkempt and insolent children of gardeners, coachmen and truck raisers who fell to the lot of school No. 16. She had spoken the truth when she said that she would fail. The power to organize and discipline children in numbers is not given to all, not even to the woman who by the magic talisman of maternal love may develop into a model mother in her own household. To the problems of undisciplined youth and unclean persons and untutored minds she gave the best energies at her command, but she worked with the sense of failure forever dogging her footsteps.

She was not surprised, therefore,
when one particularly dull and lowering afternoon Mr. Graydon's motor car drew up at the schoolhouse. It was to be an investigation by a committee of one. She had felt it coming—ever since Billy Dobson had put red pepper on the stove and school had been dismissed for the afternoon. She rose, very straight and girlish and big eyed,
as Homer Graydon entered the door.
It was his first visit to the school, and she was surprised to find a clean cut, youngish looking man instead of the side whiskered, portly personage she had somehow pictured this arbiter of her money earning fate to be.

Quite some time passed before he referred to the Billy Dobson incident, and Homer Graydon had taken measure of the woman before the matter came up for discussion. By this time Margaret was herself once more, and she did not strive to dodge the issue.

"There is no use talking about the matter, Mr. Graydon. I was not out for a schoolteacher. I know my limitations, but my father refuses to recognize them. There is only one thing I want to do, and he will not permit that."

She never knew how it happened,
but before Homer Graydon left that schoolroom he knew what her simple ambitions encompassed, and he knew just how she would attain them.

The lowering clouds had lifted suddenly, the autumnal colorings on the trees alone in the sunlight, and his own heart sang in measure to the onward plunge of his car. He was taking the unsuccessful schoolteacher to the depot in the village, and it was all he could do to refrain from telling her then and there what she had brought into his money grubbing life.

The world says that love at first sight lives only in novels and magazines. Homer Graydon says he knows better. John Leckie first said it was sheer laziness on Margaret's part, but sometimes when he goes to the cozy Graydon home and looks from the contented face of his mistress to the proud face of its master he wonders if it pays only "to do" things—when you're a woman.

Death Through a Tarantula.
One of the quickest and most complete and justifiable killings that ever
I saw came about through a tarantula.
It was at a mine camp, and the camp bully had a tarantula impaled on a stick. A man newly arrived from the east stood gazing, fascinated with horror, at the squirming reptile, working its black fangs in the effort to reach something that it could fasten them into. Suddenly, without warning, the bully thrust the tarantula straight into the tenderfoot's face. His whiskers saved him from the fangs, but he let out a yell as if he had actually been bitten and jumped back. I fully believe, ten feet. Then, as the fellow came poking the tarantula toward him again, the tenderfoot drew his revolver and turned loose on his tormentor. His first shot would have been enough, as it went straight through the fellow's body, but the tenderfoot had his excitement to work off, and he never stopped shooting until his revolver had been emptied and the man with the tarantula was a sieve. "Served him right," was the verdict of the coroner's jury, and the case never went to court for trial.—San Francisco Examiner.

In London Clubland.
In some of the ultra exclusive clubs,
says the London Chronicle, it is a serious breach of etiquette for one member to speak to another without obtaining a ceremonious introduction beforehand. A painful case has just occurred in a certain old established and extremely respectable Pall Mall carnarsarie. It appears that a newly joining member in callous defiance of custom ventured the other afternoon to make a remark about the weather to a gentleman with whom he was not personally acquainted. The recipient of this outrage glared stonily at its perpetrator.

"Did you presume to address me, sir?" he demanded, with an awful frown.

"Yes, I did," was the defiant reply.
"I said it was a fine day." The other digested the observation thoughtfully.

Then, after an impressive pause, he turned to its bold exponent. "Well, pry don't let it occur again," he remarked as he buried himself once more in his paper.

MANY SUDDEN DEATHS

From Poisonous Rheumatism.

The Disease Has Its Dangers—Should Be Taken in Time.
Rheumatism has long been regarded as a trouble which, while it might be painful, was not necessarily dangerous. Very few persons, it was thought, ever died from Rheumatism.
Recent investigation among scientists has proved, however, the utter fallacy of such a belief. Three-fourths to seven-eighths of the sudden deaths, heart failures, etc., are due primarily to neglected rheumatism. The Rheumatic Acid Poison is allowed to stay in the system until suddenly one day it grips the muscles of the heart and all is over.

Rheumatism is curable if the proper treatment is used. Liniments, plasters and all local applications only relieve the pain for a short time, but no one ever heard of their permanently curing a case of rheumatism.
The only way to cure Rheumatism is the "Urie-O" way. Neutralize the Rheumatic acid and drive it from the system. That is what "Urie-O" does. No matter what is the kind or character of the Rheumatism, it is all caused by the same Rheumatic poison. Lumbago, Muscular or Articular Rheumatism yields at once to "Urie-O." The store of E. J. Murphy is the largest in the city, and he can tell you all about its wonderful virtues and the many cures it has made right here in your city. It is set for sale at $1.00 a bottle. If you wish to test "Urie-O" before purchasing, a letter to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., will bring you a trial bottle free of all charge.

Mortgagee's Sale.

BY Virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Irene E.
McClulloch of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to Edward Billings of Weymouth, in said County and Commonwealth, dated Jan. 6, 1903, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 938 Page 287, for the breach of the conditions thereof and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction upon the premises on THURSDAY, Feb. 21, 1907, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the property described in said mortgage deed and conveyed thereby, viz:

A certain parcel of land with the building thereon, situated on a private way known as said Claremont avenue, being lot marked B, on plan made by H. T. Whitman, C. E., dated Aug. 16, 1902, and recorded in Norfolk Deeds, said lot being bounded as follows, viz: Beginning at a point where the line which divides the herein granted premises from lot No. 18 on said plan intersects the northeasterly line of said Claremont avenue; thence running in a northeasterly direction along the line of said lot No. 18 and lot No. 14, one hundred feet to land of W. G. A. Patten; thence turning and running in a southeasterly direction along the line of said Patten, being lot No. 15 on said plan (45) feet to other land of said Patten, being lot No. 16 on said plan; thence turning and running in a southeasterly direction along the line of said lot No. 16 and lot No. 17, one hundred feet to the northeasterly line of Claremont avenue; thence turning and running in a northwesterly direction along the northeasterly line of said Claremont avenue, (45) feet to lot No. 18, being the point of beginning, and containing 4,500 square feet of land. Said premises are sold subject to a prior mortgage for fifteen hundred dollars, also all unpaid taxes, tax titles and assessments if any there may be.

EASTON'S PLANT WORN OUT.

Roundown Machinery and Dark Streets.
Appeal to Corporations.

Easton, Pa., is one of the cities that, having tried municipal ownership of lighting plants, have found it wanting.
In a recent message to the city council Mayor March said that, although he is a believer in the theory of city ownership, nevertheless he would "prefer to hand over the city lighting to private corporations rather than see large districts in darkness, as has often been the case in the last six months."

Continuing, he characterized this as "dangerous from the police point of view" and unbearable from the citizen's, adding that if the city continues to operate the plant it "must be run as a private corporation would run it." There should not only be economy, but the machinery should be constantly repaired and renewed, both for efficiency and "to keep up with modern progress in electric lighting."

Much of the machinery being almost worn out, he advises that arrangements be made to borrow current from a local company in case of breakdown that the city streets may not be kept in darkness while repairs are going on.
He does not say what he would advise were municipal ownership complete and there were no private companies.

Built in 1886, the construction cost of Easton's electric light plant to date has been about $70,000. In a summary of the situation the Sunday Call, which appears originally to have favored the enterprise, says the plant isn't satisfactory and the city hasn't the money to renew it. The companies must now be asked to put in bids for city lighting. The Call thinks they can furnish it cheaper than the city can itself.

Easton's lighting experiment, the paper adds, "has been costly and unsatisfactory." The city was bonded to establish the plant, and now that it is worn out and almost useless the debt remains.

Nothing has ever been charged up for depreciation, but the people were told that this was unnecessary, as the plant was being kept in good repair.
Fifty thousand dollars was spent in "patching up" the plant, but the statement that it was kept in good order is now proved untrue, and so is the statement that the cost was less than a private corporation would have charged for the same service, though many people believed both statements for a time.

According to a special to the New York Times, women and children are not considered safe on Easton's streets at night, and sixty firms and business men have petitioned that the street lighting be turned over to a private corporation at once.

THE FUNNY SIDE OF M. O.

Politics in City Departments—A Queer Veto—City Poles Downed.

Public Service is not a humorous publication, but there were some funny items in its December issue. Commenting on the proposition of the Business Men's club of Cincinnati that civil service rules should be introduced into the municipal department, Mr.
Miller, a member of the board of public service, is quoted as saying, "I think the first requisite for a good official is that he should be a good Democrat."

The mayor of Bluffton, Ind., is more subtly humorous. He advocates municipal ownership as an antidote for monopoly and then vetoes a franchise for a gas plant because it would compete with the municipal electric light works and "probably would reduce the city's $40,000 plant to a mass of junk." This is rather more than a facet admission that the consumers are paying through the nose.

But the funniest thing of all is that some of the citizens of Chicago had to go to law to compel the city electrical department to obey its own laws. Because such construction is much cheaper this department undertook to erect poles in a district where the ordinances require wires to be placed underground. The citizens appealed to the department to protect them from what they assumed to be the intrusion of a private company. Instead of being allured their indignation was rather increased when they learned their mistake, and they did not stop until the city council passed an ordinance requiring the removal of the poles.

Municipal Wages in England.

As the result of an application from employees for an increase of wages,
the Salford (England) tramways committee has recommended to the municipality, which owns and operates the line, that the wages of conductors be raised to 11 cents per hour on appointment, 12 cents per hour after one year of service and 13 cents per hour after three years of service. Another municipality advises for a car shed night foreman at $9 per week.—Electrical World.

Ashtabula's Disastrous Experience.

The city council of Ashtabula, O., recently passed an ordinance directing that the municipal electric light plant be sold to the highest bidder. The plant began operations in 1892. The construction cost exceeding $88,000, of which $50,000 is regarded as a total loss owing to the plant having been allowed to run down. Although operated on moonlight schedule, the average cost of arc lights has been in excess of $100 a year.

When to Knock the M. O. Idea.

A good time to knock the foolishness of municipal ownership out of a man is when he is about to step into the tax collector's office. He can then see what would happen to him if he became a joint owner in the whole thing.—Exchange.

TROPICAL TITBITS.

Some of the Native Dishes That Are Served in Jamaica.

In Jamaica, as everywhere else, there are two ways to do things. There is the beaten track of the tourist to follow, with its hotels of varying excellence, conventional drives and all that sort of thing. To know the island and the allurements of its ingratiating tropical beauty, however, to appreciate the double interest of British resident customs, together with the quaint oddities of the negro native life "next to the earth," one must travel a different course. Courtesy to visitors to the island is everywhere manifest. There are native dishes that no hotel on the island can make to taste so good. There I learned the indescribable deliciousness of a properly deviled Jamaica black crab. There were served curries that would make a habitué of Delmonico's sit up and take notice—turtle, real turtle, prepared with a delicacy to delight an epicure, and native oysters that Jamaicans facetiously say "grow on trees." Tropical fruits in all their fragrance and juicy prime gave an intimation of the productive possibilities of the island. The green tinted Jamaica orange, thin of skin and richly juicy, grape fruit of superior quality, the avocado pear, oily in composition and nutty in flavor; pineapples—in Jamaica they cut them in half horizontally and eat them with a spoon—mangoes, akee, breadfruit, okra, choco, yams, and more yams, were there to tempt the inexperienced palate.—Travel Magazine.

THE ARKANSAS HOG.

It Can Outrun a Greyhound and Whip a Wolf or a Bear.

An esteemed contemporary gave space to the following communication from a subscriber on "The American Hog":

"Arkansas has a greater variety of hogs and less pork and lard than any state in the Union. An average hog in Arkansas weighs about fourteen pounds dressed with its head on and about six pounds and a half with its head off. It can outrun a greyhound, jump a rail fence, climb like a parrot and live on grass roots and rabbit tracks. It hasn't much tail or bristle, but plenty of gall. It will lick a wolf or a bear in a fair fight. It is called razorback because it is shaped like a sunfish. In hunting a razorback it is always shot at sideways, for there is not a ghost of a show to hit it otherwise, any more than to shoot at a split shingle. It can drink milk out of a quart jar on account of its long, thin head. This type of razorback is known as the stone hog because its head is so heavy and its nose so long that it balances up behind. The owner of this type of hogs usually ties a stone to its tail to keep it from overbalancing and breaking its neck while running. If the stone is too heavy, it will pull the skin over its eyes, and it will go blind."

Switzerland a Modern Babel.

Switzerland, with its mixture of races and tongues, is a sort of modern Babel, a fact which causes much trouble in particular to the military authorities. At Wallenstein the other day at the recruiting station there was a guard composed of five men. The chief was a lieutenant who spoke German only, the second a sergeant who spoke Italian only, the third a corporal who could speak French and Spanish, the fourth a private who could speak French and German, and the fifth a private who could speak French and Italian. When the lieutenant had to transmit an order to the sergeant he had to get the last named man to interpret for him. When he wanted to communicate with the corporal he had to requisition the fourth man, and so on, great delay and confusion being thus occasioned.—London News.

Shelley as a Boy.

Here is a glimpse of Shelley offered by Andrew Lang: "It seems almost incredible, but it is true, that I once knew a man who was at Eton with Shelley, who left in 1810. This was Mr. Hammond, a senior fellow of Merton college when I was an inquiring junior. About 1870 he told me all that I could extract from him about the poet. Shelley was not a clever boy; he never was sent up for good, which means, I conceive, that he never did a remarkable exercise in Latin verse. Mr. Hammond added that Shelley had a habit when he was walking alone of suddenly breaking into a sprint at a hundred yards pace. That was all."

She Didn't Do It.

The family jar waxed fiercer. "You talk about my being to blame for our marrying!" shrilly exclaimed Mrs. Vick-Senn. "John Henry, did I hunt you out and make love to you?" "No!" he snorted. "But you could have given me the glassy eye and sent me about my business, and you didn't do it, madam—you didn't do it!"—Chicago Tribune.

The Gentleman.

"Supposing I decide to let you have the money, how do I know that I shall get it back at the time you mention?" asked Brown.

"I promise it, my boy, on the word of a gentleman," replied Moore.

"Ah! In that case I may think better of it. Come around this evening and bring him with you."

"A college education," declared the enthusiastic mother, "brings out all that is good in a boy."

"Yes," retorted William's father, "and in Bill's case I wish a little of it could have stayed in."—Cleveland Press.

IF MOTHERS ONLY KNEW

When children are cross, irritable and peevish it does not signify that they have bad tempers; it shows that there is something wrong with the child which it is not able to explain, and which the mother—if she only knew—could easily and quickly cure. Mothers, study your child's symptoms; if cross, peevish, nervous, grits the teeth, wets the bed, picks the nose, has variable appetite or bowels, suffers with wind-colic or headache, is irritable and restless, has furred tongue or offensive breath, you may be sure that child is troubled with worms, which cause nearly all the ills of childhood.

Don't delay—disease comes suddenly—a few doses of the wonderful old-time remedy—

will give your children that vigorous health which is so important to their future happiness. Dr. True's Elixir expels the worms, if there are any—if not it acts as a gentle laxative and tonic. It cleans out all waste matter from the stomach and bowels, tones and strengthens. It is a safe, pure, vegetable tonic and has been the standard household remedy for fifty-five long years. Sold by all druggists, 35c., 50c., $1.00. Write for free book, "Children and their Diseases."

LOOK TO THE FUTURE.

And Do Not Let the Past Spoil the Days That Are to Come.

There is nothing more depressing than dwelling upon lost opportunities or a misspent life. Whatever your past has been, forget it. If it throws a shadow upon the present or causes melancholy or despondency, there is nothing in it which helps you, there is not a single reason why you should retain it in your memory, and there are a thousand reasons why you should bury it.

The future's your uncut block of marble. Beware how you sunder it. Don't touch it without a programme. Don't strike a blow with your chisel without a model, lest you ruin and mar forever the angel which lives within the block. But the past marble, which you have carved into hideous images which have warped and twisted the ideals of your youth and caused you infinite pain, need not ruin or mar the uncut block before you. This is one of the merciful provisions that every day present to every human being, no matter how unfortunate his past, a new uncut block of pure marble so that every day every human being has a new chance to retrieve the past, to improve upon it if he will.

Nothing is more foolish, more positively wicked, than to drag the skeletons of the past, the hideous images, the foolish deeds, the unfortunate experiences of the past into today's work to mar and spoil it. There are plenty of people who have been failures up to the present moment who could do wonders in the future if they could only forget the past and start anew.—Success.

A SOCIABLE COMPANION.

The Chatty Traveler Who Charmed Ralph Waldo Emerson.

It is related that Ralph Waldo Emerson was once on his way to California when he was joined by a man who was altogether so sociable and chatty that an otherwise tedious journey was rendered quite cheerful. This man's name was Sackett, and he told Mr. Emerson that he resided in San Francisco. Mr. Sackett indicated all the points of interest along the way, related a lot of amusing anecdotes and, best of all, was also an attentive listener. The consequence was that Mr. Emerson came to the conclusion that Mr. Sackett was as charming a man as he had ever met, and it was in this positive conviction that he accepted Mr. Sackett's invitation to dine with him immediately upon their arrival in San Francisco. The next morning Mr. Emerson was astonished and amused to find in all the local papers this startling personal notice: "Professor Ralph Waldo Emerson, the eminent philosopher, scholar and poet, is in our city as the guest of J. Sackett, the well known proprietor of the Bush Street Dime museum. Mathees every half hour. Admission only 10 cents. The double headed calf and the dog faced boy this week!"

Helping an Invalid.

A trained nurse mentions as among the little things that help make an invalid feel comfortable and rested the frequent brushing of the hair and bathing of the hands and face. "I don't know what it is, whether these actions just divert the invalid's mind or really do effect some physical change for the better, but they certainly help the sick one to get through the day. Eau de Cologne and the various toilet waters are very refreshing when added to the water or used independently. I once heard a man say that if he couldn't both wash his hands and face and comb his hair in the morning when he got up he would choose to comb his hair. It would wake him up better. He felt something of the same sense of physical comfort as the average convalescent or invalid."

Carlyle.

Thomas Carlyle, "the sage of Chelsea," died without winning much personal popularity, a fact, however, which is forgotten in admiration of his genius. Carlyle exerted a greater influence on British literature during the middle of the nineteenth century and on the religious and political beliefs of his time than possibly any other British writer. He never wrote a line that he did not believe, and in regard to style he certainly had no superior. From the position of schoolmaster in an obscure village this great Scotsman rose to be a leader in the world of letters.—London Standard.

Disillusioned.

"She had played in amateur theatricals, you know, and threatened to go on the stage if her parents wouldn't let her marry the duke."

"And what did her parents do?"

"They let her go on the stage, gave the duke a check for a front seat and were not at all surprised when he sailed back to France the next morning."

—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Favorite.

"What is your favorite recitation?" asked the hostess.

"Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight," answered Mr. Blykins, with a promptness which was almost defiant.

"Why, nobody recites that now."

"That's why I like it."

His Rebuke.

Small Johnny (after the slipper exercise)—"I'm glad I ain't a girl, Mamma—Why? Small Johnny—'Cause I'd be ashamed to grow up into a woman and punish little boys like me."

A married man thinks he could have saved a lot of money had he remained a bachelor, but he couldn't.—Chicago News.

Alligator's Skin.
The outer layers of the alligator's skin are said to contain a large percentage of silica; hence the hardness of the animal's hide.

Pittsburg was originally Fort du Quesne, then became Fort Pitt, in honor of the great British premier. The Delaware Indians called the place Menackink, the walled place. The Senecas called it Deundaga, the forks of the stream.

Yiddish.
Yiddish is derived from the German world Judisch, meaning Jewish. It means a dialect spoken by the Jews in various localities.

Preserving Wood.
It is said that wood may be thoroughly preserved by being impregnated with a strong solution of calcium bisulphate and afterward with caustic lime. The pores are thus filled with the two solutions, which are oxidized by exposure to the air and become practically a part of the wood itself.

Land Tortoises.
The land tortoises of many countries bury themselves in the mud at the bottoms of streams and marshes on the approach of winter and also, it is said, at the coming of a protracted drought.

Minneapolis.
The word Minneapolis is a compound of an Indian word meaning curling water and a Greek word meaning city.

Dante and Beatrice.
Dante in his mauldin love of Beatrice says: "So powerful was the spell of her presence that I had to avoid her. From thinking of this most gracious creature I became so weak and lean that it was irksome for my friends to look at me."

Disraeli and Biggar.
When Disraeli first set eyes on Mr. Biggar in the house of commons he said to his fidus Achates, "What is that?" "That, sir, is the honorable member for So-and-so." "Really?" replied the other. "I thought it was a leprechaun," which is a small but malignant species of Irish fairy.

Armenian Butter.
Butter in Armenia is made in churns suspended by ropes from the rafters and shaken from side to side by the women.

Smoking Forbidden.
In Abyssinia it is considered a crime to smoke. The law forbidding tobacco was at first intended to prevent priests from smoking in church, but it was taken too literally, and nowadays even foreigners have to be careful not to be seen smoking.

Women in High Hats.
In Freyburg, Switzerland, the women wear stovepipe hats on festive days.

Albuquerque.
Albuquerque, N. M., was named by the Spanish from a town of the same name in Spain, which took its title from Alphonso d'Albuquerque, a famous Portuguese soldier.

A Dog Habit.

The habit of turning around three or four times before lying down has survived in the domestic dog from his savage ancestry. It then served to break down the tall grass and make a bed.

Fashions in Brides.
The natives of the Sandwich Islands estimate women by their weight. The Chinese require them to have deformed feet and black teeth. A girl must be tattooed sky blue and wear a nose ring to satisfy a south sea islander. Certain African princes require their brides to have their teeth filed into the semblance of a saw.

Norway Rats.
In the mountains of Sweden, Norway and Lapland all vegetation would be utterly destroyed by the Norway rats were it not for the white foxes that make special game of the rodents.

Lake Ontario.
The name of Lake Ontario was first noted as Skanodiro (beautiful lake). It was also, at various times and by different men, denominated Lac de Frontenac, Lac de Iroquois and Lac de St. Louis. The Mohawks called it Caundracqui.

Moscow's Great Bell.
The "great bell" at Moscow weighs 443,732 pounds, is nineteen feet three inches high and measures sixty feet nine inches around the lower rim. The bell metal in it is worth $300,000.

Salmasius.
Salmasius, Milton's antagonist, was a man of mild manners and quiet in speech, but his wife imagined he did not do himself justice in controversy unless he called his antagonist vile names. Some of his manuscripts are extant, containing abusive words interlined in her own handwriting.

Hadrian.
Hadrian, one of the best Roman emperors, was married to Julia Sabina, Trajan's niece, but neglected her to such an extent that she went mad and killed herself.

Cause of Split Nails.
Split finger nails are invariably a sign that sufficient salt is not taken with the food, this causing a softness and brittleness of the nails. Those who are troubled in this way, therefore, should eat more salt than they have been accustomed to do. In addition they must see that they do not wash their hands in water that is too warm.

New Rules for The Quincy Cup

"Old Grad" of the Herald says: "I met Mr. William Carlton of the regatta committee of the Corinthian Yacht club the other day, and in talking about yachting matters, he said that he hoped that an agreement could be reached between the Corinthian and the Quincy Yacht clubs, whereby boats of the Q class could race for the Quincy challenge cup. The cup is now held by the Corinthian Yacht club, having been won last season by the Windrim Kid, and is subject at present to challenge with boats of the Sonder class type. As the Q class promises to be a popular class for some years the regatta committee of the Corinthian Yacht club is making an effort to have the Quincy club agree to the change from the Sonder class type to the Q class."

Sports and Other Y. M. C. A. Events

An exciting, if not scientific game of basketball was played at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening. The third floor dormitory men played a team from the fourth floor, and the former were victorious by the score of 10 to 8.

The Bible Study Club will meet tonight for the regular weekly session.

In the Home League the Bulls bowl the Bears tonight.

Don't fail to attend the boys athletic meet on Saturday evening. It will be the event of the season in athletic lines.

Friday night the Association bowling team rolls a match with the Norfolk Downs team on the Association alleys.

Whipple President Brockton Canal

The shareholders of the New York, Brockton & Boston canal and Transportation Company was held in Brockton on Tuesday, at the rooms of the Board of Trade.

Col. Whipple presided and the following directors were elected: John J. Whipple, Bradford E. Jones, Maynard A. Davis, M. A. Packard, Kenneth McLeod, the Hon. E. M. Low, Thomas A. Norris, Jabez Frederick of Boston, George B. French of Holbrook, Robert Cook, Herbert E. Guy, the Hon. Portus B. Hancock, Elmer C. Packard, Wallace C. Flagg and Edward B. Mellen.

Herbert E. Guy was chosen treasurer, and Thomas A. Norris clerk. At a meeting of the directors, Col. Whipple was elected president.

The New Inspector Of Buildings

Warren S. Parker, whom Mayor Thompson has appointed as the first Inspector of Buildings under the new ordinance passed late in 1906, is a man well qualified for the position. He is a son of the late William Parker who was one of Quincy's prominent carpenters and builders, and the son followed the same business.

The new inspector was born in Quincy and has always made his home here. He received his education in the public schools of the city and then served an apprenticeship as a carpenter with his father. Upon the latter's death he continued the business which he has followed ever since.

He has never been a seeker after public office, and the only position he has held has been that of carpenter expert on the board of examiners of plumbers. He is married and resides with his family on Hancock court.

Fund Grows.

The fund for nurses' Home, at the City Hospital, has received a very substantial increase by the contribution of $830.49 by the Hospital Aid Association. The Association's name is evidently no misnomer. All who have aided in the aid, and all who have aided in the aid, are "aiders" in a worthy sense.

Odd Fellows Attend Funeral

The funeral of Mr. Charles Staples, who died in Westboro on Feb. 1, was held at his late residence at Norfolk Downs on Monday afternoon. The services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Megathlin, pastor of the church of which Mr. Staples was a member. He was the first male member to die since its organization ten years ago. The funeral was in charge of the John Hancock lodge of Odd Fellows. The deceased was also a member of the Knights of Honor, many members being present. Mr. Staples' favorite hymn "Sometime we'll understand" and "No Sorrow there" were touchingly and beautifully rendered by Mrs. Justin Hill and Mrs. Alden.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Woodman, Sanford, Foster, and Gearwar. The remains were temporarily placed in a tomb at Mt. Wollaston.

Mr. Staples was a man well beloved by neighbor and friend, and one whose loss will be keenly felt by the community. He had been employed for years as pattern maker by the Wollaston Foundry Co. A workman of rare skill and a temperament which endeared him to all his associates. He leaves a wife, one son, two step sons and a step daughter, a brother (Alexander) in Stockton Springs, Maine, and another (Frank) in Seattle, Washington; a sister, Mrs. Nina Parsons, in North Haven, Maine.

Among the floral offerings were: Pillow, from John Hancock Lodge. Wreath, Knight of Honor. Spray of calla lilies, Mr. and Mrs. Sanford.

Spray of pinks, Mr. and Mrs. Woodman. Spray of pinks, Mr. and Mrs. Frost.

Spray of pinks, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Fletcher. Spray of pinks, Ladies Missionary Society.

Stand, friends of Wollaston Foundry Wreath, Mr. W. A. Crump. Wreath, "At Rest," Mrs. Lucy Flett.

Pillow, "Husband" and "Father" from the family. Spray of calla lilies, Mrs. P. P. Glass.

Set bouquet, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Robinson. Spray of pink, Uncle and Cousins.

Spray of pinks, Mrs. A. Morrill.

New Hours At the Shipyard

A new schedule of hours goes into effect at the shipyard commencing Monday February 11, when the hours of labor in the ship and engine works will be as follows until further notice:

Monday to Friday, inclusive, -7.00 A. M. to 12.00 noon; 12.30 P. M. to 5.15 P. M.

Saturdays, -7.00 A. M. to 12.15 P. M. The hours of labor for clerks and others in main office will be as follows:

Monday to Friday, inclusive, -8.15 A. M. to 12.00 noon; 12.30 P. M. to 5.15 P. M.

Saturdays, -8.15 A. M. to 12.45 P. M. The hours of labor in the drafting rooms and forge will remain as at present.

Almost a Fire.

There came near being a fire this morning in the Boston Market adjoining the Durgin-Merrill block on Hancock street. It was about 1.30 when Officer Matthews discovered smoke coming from the store. Investigation showed that an oil stove and lamp that had been left burning had begun to smoke and the store was filled with lamp smoke. The officer broke in the door and threw the lamp and stove into the street. The stock in the store was ruined by smoke.

WANTED. AN APPROPRIATION in 1907 for a NEW CODDINGTON

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Emperor William ought to be thankful that he does not have to stand for the German Reichstag in the present election.

Senator Bailey's explanation might carry more weight if it were not for the class of people that he has to explain his connection with.

It is a little hard that the President can't even say what he thinks at a newspaper-man's dinner without getting misquoted in full.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that the Czar spends most of his time in his library, and leaves it to be inferred that it is properly bomb-proofed.

If Brownsville had known it was going to call down a Congressional Committee on itself, it probably would have been chary of engaging in the luxury of a race riot.

When Willie Hearst casts an eye in the direction of Gov. Hughes, he probably sympathizes with that philosopher who said, "I don't care what happens, just so it don't happen to me."

Regular readers of the Daily Ledger who received their papers yesterday were fortunate indeed, but the plucky newsboys overcame the obstacles, and served most of their customers. Such work should be appreciated.

Some trustees of Savings Banks seem to be a little shy of the movement in favor of cheaper industrial insurance. It would seem, however, that the plans had been perfected to a remarkable degree, and that by hearty cooperation legislation could be secured which would give the families of workingmen protection, and at a cost greatly reduced.

Aside from the Water and Sewer departments and the debt and interest account, the estimates by Mayor and School Committee for 1907 are over $17,000 in excess of 1906. The increases where made seem to be necessary, but are there not chances for reductions in some other items, notably in the Department of Public Works. The Street department in 1906 had an excess tax of $5,412.90 added to the regular appropriation. Already $13,750.00 have been appropriated for special street work in 1907, loans having been issued for the same.

—Despite the belief to the contrary the Indians are a poetical people. One evidence of this is the fanciful names they give their rivers. For instance, Mississippi means father of waters; Minnehaha, laughing water; Housatonic, winding waters; Horicon, (the Indian name for Lake George) means silver water, and Ohio means fair to look upon.

NEAR TO BREAKERS

Disabled Steamers Anchored Off Unhospitable Coast

DISASTER IS THREATENED

Attempts to Rescue Lives in Peril Meet With Defeat on Account of Gale and Snowstorm—Sailors Made Miscalculation

Halifax, Feb. 6.—Two ocean steamships, one of which is known to be, and the other believed to be, disabled, are anchored in a dangerous position at Ketch Harbor, a few miles west of this city, and the lives of those on board are in peril. The ships are less than a quarter of a mile off shore, and within 100 yards of the breakers. A tremendous sea is running and the spray from the surf has been dashing over the vessels, freezing as it falls. The steamers have been flying signals of distress, but on account of the terrific sea no aid can be given the steamers.

One of the Ketch Harbor pilots says that one of the steamers is the Mystic, engaged in the Louisburg-Boston trade. The two steamers arrived at Ketch Harbor during a thick snowstorm. One steamer was towing the other. Before dark they displayed signals of distress and guns were discharged at intervals.

Two tugboats were sent to the scene from this city before dark, but they could render no assistance and were obliged to return. Later the Canadian government steamer Aberdeen was sent to the aid of the steamers. Although the ships are near shore, the noise of the breakers drowned the sounds of the trumpets and the snow was so thick as to make the reading of their names impossible.

During the height of the gale and blinding snowstorm yesterday afternoon an attempt was made to reach the steamers in a lifeboat manned by Ketch Harbor fishermen. The attempt was a failure, and the would-be rescuers nearly paid for their daring with their lives. The small boat was almost capsized in the breakers and reached shore with difficulty.

The wind has moderated considerably and it is thought that if the wind holds to the north the steamers may be saved, provided that their anchor chains are able to stand the strain. Should the wind shift to the south or southeast, it is felt that nothing short of a miracle can avert an appalling marine disaster, as the coast at this point is of a most inhospitable and forbidding nature.

The Ketch Harbor people think that the steering gear of the larger steamer became disabled while the smaller steamer was in tow and that the smaller craft has probably sustained a broken tail shaft.

The wireless station at Cape Sable reported Monday that a small steamer was disabled off the cape and had been taken in tow by a larger east-bound steamer, probably heading for Halifax. Good progress must have been made during Monday night, as, according to the report of the Ketch Harbor pilots, the steamers were sighted entering the outer bay of Halifax harbor at daylight yesterday.

One of the worst snow blizzards of the winter prevailed at the time, and the master of the towing steamer evidently feared to attempt to force an entrance to port during such thick weather. The steamers then put out to sea again and apparently made a second attempt to make port about noon. Some miscalculation was made, apparently as the vessels hove in sight a few miles to the westward of Ketch Harbor.

Last night the fisherfolk of Ketch Harbor gathered on the shore and fed fuel to huge bonfires to cheer those on board the imperiled steamers. The larger of the ships kept replying to the fires with rockets, which were sent up at regular intervals.

Kaiser Got Snowball In Face
Berlin, Feb. 6.—Emperor William was accidentally hit in the face by a snowball while driving through the Brandenburg Tor gate. The missile was aimed at a citizen who was passing in an automobile. The emperor shook his finger at a group of boys from which the snowball came and they thereupon scampered away.

Arbitrators' Decision Ignored
San Salvador, Feb. 6.—Although the court of arbitration now in session here has agreed upon the disbanding of the Honduran and the Nicaraguan armies on the frontiers of those countries, the governments of Honduras and Nicaragua have not yet accepted the finding of the court to this end.

Locomotive Exploded
Hosick Falls, N. Y., Feb. 6.—The locomotive of a freight train exploded at Johnsonville, seriously injuring three men. J. L. Moore, the fireman, was terribly scalded and will probably die. Engineer Evans and brakeman Daley were hurled a distance of 40 feet. They will recover.

Killed by Fall From Bridge
Constantine, Algeria, Feb. 6.—Antoine F. Garbo, the consular agent of the United States at Bona, met his death here last night upon his arrival from his post. Garbo was crossing the bridge which spans the River Rhummel when he fell into the water, 300 feet below.

BAILEY GETS EXCITED

Almost Comes to Blows With Witness in Texas Investigation
Austin, Feb. 6.—A dramatic scene was enacted in the Bailey investigation, almost resulting in a personal encounter between Senator Bailey and E. N. Mentz of Houston.

The clash occurred shortly after the legislative committee resumed consideration of the charges pending against Bailey. Mentz was on the stand when Representative Coke, who is prosecuting the charges against Bailey, asked Mentz if Colonel Cowart of Dallas had gone to New York to see Bailey. Coke asked if Cowart's visit, though ostensibly to have his throat treated, was not really made for the purpose of attending to some business for the Kirby Lumber company.

Sensor Bailey arose and said that any one who said that Cowart went to New York to see him was a liar. The witness understood that Bailey meant him and he arose in his seat and declared emphatically that he would allow no man to call him a liar. He asserted that he was not a willing witness, "but, so help me God, I will allow no man to call me a liar," he shouted.

Bailey started for the witness, who seemed ready to meet him. Deputy Sheriff White stopped Bailey and trouble was averted.

The senator then apologized to the committee, declaring that he had been irritated so much that he could hardly help his action. Representative Coke retorted that Bailey had legal advisers who were able to take care of his interests.

The afternoon was given over to the examination of witnesses without any very material points being brought out. None of the witnesses testified to anything damaging to Bailey.

After the Northern Pacific

Washington, Feb. 6.—Senator Heyburn presented a resolution in the senate providing for a special committee of five senators to "investigate the reorganization of the Northern Pacific property, to ascertain what title and estates are owned by the corporation which was created by act of congress of July 2, 1864, and if said federal corporation has no title or estates in any property, then what reason there is why said charter act should not be fully repealed by congress. The resolution was referred to the committee on Pacific railroads.

Alleged Illegal Issue of Stock

New York, Feb. 6.—Charles W. White, secretary of the Imperial Osage Development company of Arizona, was arrested at his office here, charged with having over-issued, without authority, shares in a stock company. Assistant District Attorney Krotel alleges that White illegally sold on behalf of the company over 11,000 shares of stock, representing over $1,000,000. The company owns oil lands in Arizona. White was held in $1000 bail for the grand jury. He was unable to secure bail and was locked up.

Arctic Blasts In the Northwest

St. Paul, Feb. 6.—With few exceptions, there has been below zero weather in this section for 17 days, and for three days the thermometers have registered 22 degrees below. In North Dakota 30 degrees below was common and this was coupled with blizzards. For days the main railroad lines have been blocked and many of the branch lines have been at a standstill for weeks. It is admitted that the spring thaws will reveal some gruesome tales of suffering, starvation and death.

Ryan and Roosevelt Confer

Washington, Feb. 6.—Thomas F. Ryan, the New York financier, had a long interview with President Roosevelt yesterday afternoon. He would say nothing about the object of his call further than it was to pay his respects to the president. At the White House it was said the president would not have anything to communicate to the press about Ryan's visit.

Illinois Senate Backs Governor

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 6.—Funds for the use of Governor Deneen and Attorney General Stead in furthering the Illinois Central tax investigation and beginning suit against the road were voted by the state senate in the shape of two bills appropriating $150,000. Not a vote was recorded against the bill.

Goes to Senate Ahead of Time

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 6.—Congressman William A. Smith was elected by the legislature to fill out the unexpired term of Senator Alger, who died suddenly at his home in Washington. Smith had already been elected as Alger's successor at the expiration of his term on March 4.

Head-On Collision Kills Three

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 6.—In a wreck of freight trains near Colby, three trainmen were instantly killed. Several other trainmen were injured. One of the engines exploded, killing the men instantly. The trains met in a head-on collision.

Tidbits from All Wards of City

More snow.
Most of the events scheduled for last evening were postponed.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trade will be held tonight.
Mr. and Mrs. Herman F. McIntire leave Thursday for Florida for the balance of the month.

Most people found the street railway tracks the best place to walk both yesterday and this morning.

The Pine Tree club gives and old fashioned New England supper at Faxon hall tonight to be followed by a dance.

More trouble is anticipated from snow on the roofs of houses. The snow-fall was heavy and the temperature is low.

Owing to the good work on Tuesday by the street railway men, all lines were open this morning and cars running on the regular schedule.

The local W. C. T. U. is holding a cake, candy and coffee sale this afternoon and evening in Bethany chapel for the benefit of the Frances Willard settlement.

The annual meeting of the Wollaston Yacht club to have been held Tuesday evening was postponed on account of the storm. The date of the adjourned meeting will be announced later.

The names Everett, Malden and Melrose have been assigned to the three colliers building at the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company for the New England Coal and Coke Company.

The 21st annual concert and ball of Granite lodge, Order Sons of St. George will be held Thursday evening, Feb. 21, the night before Washington's Birthday. Some popular artist have been secured for the concert.

Some of the pupils at the High School, who have four studies, have within a month had changes in teachers of three studies. The High school pupils are hard hit this year, and larger salaries attracting the teachers away.

Rust on Nickel.

Rust may be removed from nickel plating by covering the spots with mutton tallow and letting it stand for several days. If this treatment is followed by rubbing with a good metal polish and then by a thorough washing with strong ammonia, succeeded by clear water and a final polishing with dry whiting, stubborn cases will yield.

A Mixed Family.

A resident of England, who has been three times married, wedded a woman who had been three times a widow. Children were born in all cases, so that children of seven different parentages live under the same roof.

Protect the Teeth.

Every slightest disorder of the teeth or mouth has its inception in the micro organisms carried to the mouth by the air we breathe or in our food and drink. Cracking nuts with the teeth and biting thread are very bad habits and are always likely to mar or destroy the enamel of the teeth. Use a firm toothbrush.

The Pipe Organ.

An organ with ten pipes in Solomon's temple is the first mention of the pipe organ made in history.

An Old Copper Mine.

If not absolutely the oldest, the Stora Kopparberget in Sweden is the oldest copper mine of which we have any official figures. It has been worked continuously for nearly 800 years.

A Parisian Thief.

Probably the meanest thief ever caught was Louis Bourgaard of Paris, who while riding in a cab ripped open the cushions, tied the horsehair into a parcel, sold it while the cab waited for him and with the money procured from selling his "plunder" paid the cabman his fare.

The Aleutian Islands.

The Aleutian islands were so called from the river Ouloria in Kamchatka. The people living at the mouth of this stream were called Alutorians, and a modification of the name was given to the islands.

DEFENSE OF THAW

Delmas Expected to Conduct the Examination

RUMORS OF WITHDRAWAL

Dissatisfaction With Gleason's Assuming Position of Senior Counsel, Which Is Said to Be at Instance of the Defendant

New York, Feb. 6.—Scarcely had the court before whom Harry K. Thaw is being tried adjourned late yesterday when there was a conference of the defendant's counsel and it became known that certain of the attorneys were not well pleased with the day's developments. Delphin M. Delmas, upon leaving the courtroom, had declared flatly that he was dissatisfied with the proceedings and that the conduct of the defense for the day had been entrusted to John B. Gleason rather than to himself.

"Dr. Wiley, who testified for the defense and was so sharply cross-examined by District Attorney Jerome, should not have been put on the stand at all," Delmas said. "I expected to go on and conduct the case," Delmas added; "I was surprised that Mr. Gleason should have done it."

It had been rumored in the courtroom that Thaw was pleased with Gleason's address to the jury on Monday and that he directed that Gleason should take charge of the case yesterday.

Thaw's attorneys were closeted at Attorney McPike's office well into last evening and when the conference broke up nothing definite as to what transpired was made public. When Delmas was asked what had been done at the conference he replied: "I can say nothing at the present time." O'Reilly's reply was: "There was a conference, that's all. Nothing of importance happened." Harridge and Gleason refused to discuss the matter.

After the lawyers had left, McPike remained for some time in his office. He said: "The lawyers for the defense held a conference at which the plans were gone over. There was really nothing of importance done."

McPike was then asked as to the rumor that unless Mr. Delmas was given entire charge of the defense he would withdraw was correct. "As to that rumor, I can only say that you will have to await developments."

After the trial had adjourned McPike visited Thaw in the Tombs. He talked with the prisoner for about 15 minutes and when he left he refused to make any statement.

It was said late last night that at the conference five of the defendant's counsel informed Gleason that unless he desisted from conducting Thaw's case, individually and irrespective of their wishes, they should withdraw from the courtroom today. Gleason insisted, according to the author of the report, that he had not usurped the position of senior counsel, but had taken the initiative in the proceedings at the request of Thaw himself, under whose guidance he understood all the counsel were acting.

When Gleason heard the ultimatum of his fellow counsellors repeated he declared again, it was stated, that the wishes of their client were paramount to his and, he supposed, to the wishes of the others. Under these conditions the council broke up.

Japan Not Thinking of War

Tokio, Feb. 6.—The view taken here of the American-Japanese situation, arising from the San Francisco school incident, is illustrated by the following official statement: "The talk of war is completely ignored here and implicit confidence is reposed in President Roosevelt and his government. The ebullitions of the anti-Japanese press of America are powerless to shake Japan's cordiality toward the United States."

De Larmar Gets Valuable Mines

San Francisco, Feb. 6.—Title 40 mines in Nevada was won by Joseph De Larmar through a decision rendered by Superior Judge Seawell. The Utah-Nevada Mining company sought to dispossess De Larmar from the Monitor and Jim Crow group of mines. The company alleged that since De Larmar has been in possession $13,000,000 worth of ore has been taken from these mines.

Religious Peace in France

Paris, Feb. 6.—The Clerical newspapers have now joined the lay press in voicing the belief that a modus vivendi between church and state is imminent. They regard religious peace as assured, unless some untoward incident occurs. The bishops have already begun to recede from the so-called "all or nothing" position.

Death From Boxing Bout

New York, Feb. 6.—John Mason, who, it is alleged, received a knockout blow in a friendly boxing bout in the parish house of St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church on Jan. 23, died last night. Mason and a young man named Brown were boxing when Mason received the blow which is said to have caused his death.

WILEY TESTIFIES

Alleged Endeavors to Prove That Thaw Was Insane

HAS BUT POOR SUCCESS

Severely Grilled by District Attorney, Whose Questions at Times Completely Baffle the First Witness For the Defense

New York, Feb. 6.—The task of proving to a jury that Harry Thaw was insane—through heredity and mental stress—when he shot and killed Stanford White was taken up yesterday by the defense in this famous case, but when adjournment was announced it was the general opinion that but little progress had been made.

Thaw's attorneys endeavored in vain to place before the jury evidence tend- ing, it was said, to prove a strain of insanity in the collateral branches of the defendant's family, but they were blocked at every point by District At- torney Jerome, whose objections were upheld by the rulings of Justice Fitz- gerald. The defense did, however, get before the jury the testimony of an ex- pert that in his opinion Harry Thaw was "suffering from insanity" on the night of the tragedy. Jerome under- took to break down the evidence of the alienist, Dr. Wiley of Pittsburgh, and for three hours put him through a cross- examination as severe as was ever heard in a New York court.

The district attorney astonished everyone by his intimate knowledge of medicine and its technical phrases, dem- onstrating the care with which he had prepared himself to meet the very de- fense Thaw's counsel have entered in his behalf. Jerome searchingly in- quired into Wiley's record as a physi- cian and as an expert on insanity. He hurled whole volleys of technical ques- tions at the witness, who at times sat mute and at other times declared he could not answer, or gave evasive re- plies. Often he brought upon himself sharp warning from Jerome to make a reply and not an argument.

The district attorney drew from the alienist the opinion that Thaw's acts on the Madison Square roof garden when he killed Stanford White, were not acts of insanity when taken singly, but constituted evidence of insanity when considered collectively. At times Wiley seemed entirely baffled by the questions. He hesitated at each and before he could answer Jerome had framed another query replete with im- pressive sounding technical terms of medicine and apparently offering a prob- lem no less difficult than its predeces- sor. The witness admitted that many of the tests to which the district attor- ney referred in discussing insanity were unknown to him, and when he was asked to quote from any accepted work on insanity, declared he could not give the exact language from any book.

Mr. Jerome's well of knowledge, however, seemed never to run dry. He carried his cross-examination through practically the entire morning session and for an hour and 20 minutes after luncheon continued to ply the alienist with all manner of questions.

Thaw's counsel sat silent and with- out protest as Jerome grilled the first witness for the defense. Thaw himself seemed to take but little interest in the cross-examination at the outset, but before the close of the day he seemed to worry. His attorneys appeared a bit puzzled at first, but evidently deter- mined to give the district attorney the widest liberty.

It was at the close of Jerome's cross- examination of Wiley that the attempt to introduce testimony tending to show the strain of insanity said to have ex- isted in certain branches of the Thaw family was made. Among the wit- nesses called was Albert L. Thaw of Richmond, who said that his father and Harry Thaw's father were first cousins. The defense stated its purpose to draw from the witness the fact that his father died in an asylum for the insane, when Jerome objected. He declared the relationship of both the witness and his father too far removed from the defendant to be competent.

Justice Fitzgerald upheld the ob- jection, saying, however, that his ruling was subject to revision if the attorneys for the defense would cite authorities on the subject.

The defense next introduced as a witness Benjamin Roman, who testi- fied that in January, 1904, he had a con- versation with the defendant. He was about to tell what the conversa- tion was when Jerome interrupted, de- claring a conversation so far back was not relevant or material. Justice Fitz- gerald again called upon Thaw's attor- nies for citations of authorities cover- ing the introduction of testimony of the character proposed.

Dr. C. H. Bingham of Pittsburgh, who has been a family physician of the Thaws for 30 years, testified that he had known Harry Thaw ever since his infancy. He had treated him once for St. Vitus' dance when he was 7 years old. He seemed to be a lad of highly nervous temperament and slept badly at night, said the witness.

Dr. J. F. Deemar of Kittanning, Pa., was called to testify as to the mental condition of John Rose, a cousin of Harry Thaw, when Jerome objected. Justice Fitzgerald held that until the defense's authorities on the introduc- tion of testimony as to collateral insan- ity were presented he thought it best to rule out all such testimony. Gleas- on again protested in vain.

Cost of Paint

The difference between the cost of good paint and inferior paint is very little in comparison with the total outlay for painting a house.

The time and labor is the big item. Seems very foolish to spend a great deal of time and money putting on paint which will not last. It is much wiser to use old-fashioned "white lead and linseed oil."

Salem

is the standard white lead; is perfectly pure, and is made by the best method—the Old Dutch Process.

Paint pointers of value to the house owner are found in our booklet. Send for it.

Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title: Incorporated 1892)
The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for dona- tions and requests toward paying the mortgage in- debtedness on the new Association building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as a dormitory, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educa- tional class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CROMBIE, a Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, EDWARD G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earn salary for donations and requests for the En- dowment fund. This now amounts to over $20,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the donor may desire, but any sum for this purpose, institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Quincy Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiry.

OLD-FASHIONED STORM

Responsible For Much Inconvenience on Land and Sea

Boston, Feb. 6.—New England spent most of yesterday in shaking herself free from an unusually heavy fall of snow which a storm from the south left between midnight and noon. Although of the lightest consistency the snow so hampered traffic both on steam and electric roads that thousands of people suffered much inconvenience.

As usual in storms from the south, the disturbance was more severe on the coast, and shipping, except for full powered vessels, was obliged to remain in safe harbors. What vessels that were caught off shore managed to weather the blow and blinding snow with the exception of three barges which were blown ashore, fortunately without loss of life. The barge Woodbury was thrown onto Cape Cod beach and her crew of four men taken off by the lifesavers. Two other barges grounded on Hedge Fence shoal in Nantucket sound, but not being an ex- posed position their crews remained on board.

New steamers were ashore on the New England coast when the storm broke Monday night. One of them, the General Warren, was nailed off the rocks of Connetquot Island in Narragansett bay during the height of the gale yesterday and safely anchored in New- port harbor. Steamer Onondaga, which went ashore on Cape Cod nearly a month ago, was driven nearly 50 feet further up the beach until she now rests some distance above high water mark. She seems likely to become a fixture on that portion of the cape.

Trains on all the roads in New Eng- land were far behind their schedule practically all day and it is expected that it will be some days before normal conditions obtain.

Lifesavers to the Rescue

Highland Light, Mass., Feb. 6.—The crew of four men of the barge Woodbury, which broke away from the tug Puller, were rescued in the breeches buoy just before dark last night by the Panet river life saving crew, near whose station on the back shore of Cape Cod the barge had stranded an hour or two be- fore. The four seamen were hauled ashore through the surf half dead from cold, breaking seas and anxiety, as their barge had dragged her anchors for six hours along the cape shore before she finally struck the outer bar.

Not a Case of Murder

Taunton, Mass., Feb. 6.—The case of Howard M. Poole, 17 years old, who was held on the charge of murder of his father, George Poole, who it is claimed, was mentally deranged and was chok- ing his wife when the son, to save his mother, shot and fatally wounded the father, was presented to the grand jury yesterday and a "no bill" was re- turned almost as soon as the evidence had been submitted. Young Poole was immediately discharged from custody.

Disease Spread by Kissing

Providence, Feb. 6.—According to Deputy Superintendent of Health King, mutual affection of Providence people must cease if the spread of scarlet fever is to be stopped in the city. King says that the authorities are taking every precaution, but kissing is one of the surest ways of spreading scarlet fever and in order that the disease may be stopped he suggests that this means of salutation be refrained from as much as possible.

Alleged Murderer in Custody

Boston, Feb. 6.—Michele Porcaro, 32 years old, is under arrest for the murder of Juan Ollano, in Everett, on Nov. 2 last. Porcaro and Ollano had a dis- pute over cards and the latter was badly slashed. Porcaro escaped, but was taken into custody last night by the state police as he stepped from a train from New York.

Boy Carried Out Suicide Threat

Brookton, Mass., Feb. 6.—Discour- aged because he could get no perma- nent relief from a severe attack of asthma, Joseph Holstein, 15 years old, ended his life by drinking carbolic acid. The boy lived with his mother and had recently made many threats to commit suicide, but no attention was paid to them.

Hermit's Body Frozen Stiff

Winsted, Conn., Feb. 6.—The body of Charles Church, an aged hermit, was found frozen stiff in his hut in Bland- ford, Mass., just over the state line. Church, according to the medical ex- aminer, had been dead for two or three days. Money amounting to several hundred dollars was found in his home.

Stranger Killed by Trolley Car

Waterbury, Conn., Feb. 6.—An un- identified man with a card bearing the name "Harry Morrow" died here as the result of being struck by a trolley car near Chesire. He never recovered consciousness and it is not certain that the card in his pocket is his own.

Bank to Resume Business

Boston, Feb. 6.—State Savings Bank Commissioner Jay states that he ex- pects that the Marblehead Savings bank, which was closed about a year and a half ago as the result of its being enjoined, will open again for business during the present year.

Four Persons Killed in Fire

Pelham, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Fire swept through the lively stables and living apartments above of Richard L. Vaughn and burned to death four occu- pants of the home. Mrs. Vaughn, her 2-year-old son and a negro living with the Vaughns were burned to death. Thomas Micky, a stableman, escaped from the home only to lose his life in an effort to save the horses. The monetary loss was $10,000.

FIRE AND EXPLOSION

One Man Killed, Five Firemen
and Four Civilians Injured

Boston, Feb. 6.—One man was killed and five firemen and six civilians in- jured in a fire early today that com- pletely gutted Hunt Bros.' department store at 1275 Tremont street. The fire- men and civilians were injured through a hot air explosion which blew out all the windows on one side of the store. The tenements adjoining the store were filled with smoke and it was in one of these that the body of Morris Gold, aged 45, was discovered, death being due to suffocation. The loss is $60,000.

Attorney General in Divorce Suit

Buffalo, Feb. 6.—Former District Attorney Coatsworth has been retained by Charlotte S. Jackson, wife of At- torney General Jackson, to bring suit against her husband for divorce on statutory grounds.

Albany, Feb. 6.—Attorney General Jackson was asked by newspaper men about the report that his wife was about to begin absolute divorce pro- ceedings against him. His only answer was: "If you gentlemen have any ques- tions to ask as to the business of the state I will be pleased to answer them."

Baby Survived Great Snowslide

Soldado, Col., Feb. 6.—The bodies of seven victims of a snowslide that came down Monarch mountain were recovered from beneath great masses of snow and broken timbers. The dead are Fred Mason and wife, Joseph Boyle, John Emerson, John Gillett, Stephen Skinner and George Griffith. The Mason baby was buried under many feet of snow and broken house timbers for 14 hours, but when found was lying in his bed unharmed.

Race Results in Explosion

Chattanooga, Feb. 6.—By an explo- sion of the boilers on the steamer Park- er, George Kelley, fireman, was killed, and Will D. Sibley and Bob Bass, deck hands, were blown into the water and are supposed to have drowned. Cap- tain Thompson was severely injured, as was also Engineer Allison. The ex- plosion, it is said, was caused by over- pressure on the boilers, due to a race between the Parker and another boat.

Canal Constructors Organize

New York, Feb. 6.—John B. McDon- ald of this city, who constructed the subway, was elected president of the Panama Construction company. This company was formally organized yester- day under the laws of the state of New York for the purpose of building the Panama canal in the event that the contract is awarded by the government to William J. Oliver, one of the con- tractors, and his associates.

Thirty-Eight Dead Miners

Elkins, W. Va., Feb. 6.—It is now definitely known that the total number of men in the Thomas mine at the time of the explosion Monday was 37. Mine Boss Daniel Jones, 60 years old, was suffocated. He was one of the first rescuers to enter the mine Monday and was brought out in a serious condition. After recovering he went in a second time and was brought out dead, making a total death list of 38.

To Look After Brother's Estate

New York, Feb. 6.—Admiral Lord Charles Beresford arrived here from England on the Kaiser Wilhelm II and is staying at the home of Robert Thomp- son in this city. He has come to this country to settle the estate of his brother, Lord Delaval, who was killed recently in a railway accident in North Dakota. The latter was engaged in the cattle business in the west and left a considerable estate.

A Standard Oil Denial

New York, Feb. 6.—Assistant Secre- tary Howe of the Standard Oil com- pany has issued a statement in which he declares that "no such imposition upon the newspapers" as the report of the interstate commerce commission in- fers was practiced by the Standard Oil company. The statement deals mainly with the evidence given to the commission by Malcolm Jennings.

Disappearance of a Clergyman

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 6.—Consider- able apprehension is felt here over the disappearance of Rev. W. T. Twamley, assistant minister of St. Anne's Episco- pal church, who has not been seen or heard of since last Sunday morning, when he left his hotel for St. Luke's mission chapel at Eastport, a suburb of Annapolis.

Strike of Railroad Men

New York, Feb. 6.—Three hundred deckhands, firemen and oilers employed in the ferry service of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and Balti- more and Ohio Railroad companies, went on strike last night for an average increase in wages of $10 a month.

No Signs of Life on Barge

New York, Feb. 6.—An unknown barge went ashore between Harvey Cedars and Ship Bottom during the storm and was rapidly going to pieces when the crew of the Barnegat lifesav- ing station reached her. The lifesavers found no signs of life aboard.

Orders Were Misunderstood

Newcastle, N. B., Feb. 6.—A special freight train collided with a pulp train near Beaver Brook and one man was killed and 24 injured, four of them se- riously. A misunderstanding of or- ders is supposed to have caused the collision.

A GRAND GOOD TIME

Pine Tree Club
Have Old Fashioned
Supper and Dance
At Faxon Hall

State of Maine people and their friends were out in large numbers Wednesday night at the old-fashioned New England supper and dance held at Faxon hall under the auspices of the Pine Tree club.

The affair was under the direct supervision of J. F. Gleason, the president of the club, who was assisted by a large corps of ladies and gentlemen, all of whom contributed to make the affair the success that it was.

The supper was served in the lower hall from 6 to 8 o'clock, and during those hours over 350 partook of the supper, and there was not one but pronounced it excellent.

First on the menu was that old staple New England dish, baked beans. There were beans of all sizes, from the small California kind, to the large yellow eyes. Some were flavored with "lisses" and others were not, so that all tastes were suited. Then there were hot biscuits, such as mother used to make; and butter made from cream, cold ham, tongue, macaroni and coffee.

There were pies, another New England standby, these were of various kinds, such as apple, mince, pumpkin, lemon and chocolate and doughnuts were not overlooked. All of these were home made, no bakers' stuff allowed. Then to top off with there were oranges, bananas and large red apples.

Everything tasted good and was pronounced so by all. Jed was on hand early with his better half looking after the preliminaries, and there was no waiting. They kept things moving, and as fast as one table had been cleaned out by the diners, another supply was forth coming. There seemed to be no end to the supply.

As soon as dinner was over, everybody adjourned to the upper hall where at 8 o'clock a dance was inaugurated. It was none of the "high toned" kind of a program but one that contained a plentiful supply of the good old fashioned quadrilles, Portland Fancy, Lanciers and Virginia Reels.

Of course there were some waltzes, the two step, and Dances just to show that they knew what they were.

Thompson's orchestra furnished music and the dance started off with a march led by President and Mrs. Gleason, who were followed by upwards of fifty couples.

Once the dance was started it continued without interruptions until midnight.

The floor manager was Elmer E. Munroe, and F. W. Russell was assistant. The aids were E. Frank Mitchell, V. C. Richardson, F. C. Chaplin and H. H. Grindell.

Grand Plans For Elks Ball

The coming social event of the season promises to be the first annual ball of Quincy Lodge of Elks, to be held at Music hall next Monday evening. In all other cities where Elks hold a ball it is considered the event par excellence and the committee in charge of the affair for the local lodge have spared neither pains nor expense to make it the finest ball ever held in Quincy.

Cuff's orchestra will furnish music which in itself is a guarantee of a good time.

The hall and stage are to be prettily decorated; the contract for the hall decorations having been awarded to the New England Decorating Company while the floral decorations will be looked after by Derringer. Henry J. Sailer of Boston is to furnish the lunch. Calcium light effects are to be thrown upon the march and dances.

Altogether everything points to a grand good time for all those who are fortunate enough to attend the first ball of this progressive lodge.

For Clean Sport Not to Make Money

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

There seems to be a doubt in the minds of some people that a baseball league in this city and surrounding towns representing different churches would not be a success.

In the first place, this league is not to be formed to make money, but for the purpose of promoting a closer union and extend the influence of Bible classes among young men, also for the sport of the game.

As a rule, church teams usually have the support of the congregation behind them. If every team would play clean ball there is no reason why they wouldn't attend the games.

Arrangements have been made to have meetings at the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Long is at the head of this movement and we all know what he has done for sport in Quincy. The teams will have the privilege of changing clothes and use of the shower baths.

There will not be a Y. M. C. A. team in this league, because that would take the best players from most of the teams, which would give the advantage, whereas, if the league is split between the churches or clubs connected with the churches, thereby making it more even and in one way arousing more interest.

There have been two meetings held to discuss this question. A constitution and by-laws have been partly drawn up, and will be published in the near future.

Quincy need not grow in population, but start now. Success is gained by failures. What was the Granite City League's loss should be the South Shore Church baseball league's gain.

Everyone Welcome At Public Library

The Public Library was open as usual on Tuesday in spite of the severe storm, receiving at least fifty visitors. Between seventy-five and one hundred books were given out as the expressman was on hand with the Wollaston basket. The librarian was there all day and Mr. Schumacher appeared promptly at the opening hour, one o'clock.

Every one is welcome on any day, and there is always room for the children who know how and are willing to behave properly, in spite of the rather small space for delivery and reading room.

The hours at this season are from one until eight o'clock, except on Saturday when the library is open from ten until 12 in the morning, and from 1 P. M. until 9.

HISTORICAL MUSICALE

Illustrated Paper
On the Songs of America by
Mrs. Morton

The musicale of the Quincy Historical Society on Wednesday evening met all expectations, and was greatly enjoyed by a large audience which taxed the seating capacity of the Unitarian chapel. Upon the platform were seated about fifty well known ladies and gentlemen who constituted the chorus.

The program opened with two piano solos by Mrs. Otto Hayward, finely executed. President Brooks Adams welcomed the large assemblage. He said it had been found that papers were often uninteresting, but the one tonight would be illustrated, and accounted probably for the interest manifested. He commended the new venture, and introduced Mrs. George W. Morton.

The credit for the delightful program was due in a great measure to Mrs. Morton, not only for the historical paper on music and songs, but for getting together such an aggregation of well known local singers, and the excellence of the singing. Mr. J. D. Buckingham was secured as director, and Mrs. Charles Sampson as accompanist.

In the chorus were:
Sopranos.—Mrs. J. D. Buckingham, Miss Grace Isaac, Mrs. Harry Slade, Mrs. Laura Tirrell, Mrs. George Nichols, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Isabelle Davis, Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Mrs. George Pfaffmann, Mrs. Frank Moore, Mrs. George Taylor and Miss Edith Randall.

Altos.—Miss Lela Smith, Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Miss Mary Gardner, Mrs. Ernest Fitts, Miss Lizzie Newcomb, Mrs. Francis Able, Miss Madeleine Fish, Miss Marcella Souther, and Mrs. Fred Leonard.

Tenors.—Messrs. A. L. Hayden, T. B. Pollard, Charles A. Howard, Walter E. Burke, Carl R. Hayward, George Tupper, Lawrence Loring, Brooks Keyes, and John Greene.

Bass.—Messrs. Arthur Peverly, Fred Wigmore, George Pfaffmann, W. H. Packard, George Nichols, W. T. Isaac, and George H. Field.

These songs were sung to illustrate the paper by Mrs. Morton:
Earliest songs, "Strike the Cymbal," solo by Mrs. Laura F. Tirrell.

Massachusetts song, "The Commonwealth of Massachusetts," written by Mr. John J. Loud, who was present, sung by chorus.

President Adams personally complimented Mrs. Morton at the close of her paper, and addressing the audience said he never had a better lesson in history. All in all it was a grand success.

Annual Meeting Board of Trade

The annual meeting of the Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening at its rooms in the Adams building. President T. L. Williams presided, and there was a large attendance of members.

Several were admitted to membership and there was a discussion on matters pertaining to the good of the city.

Resolutions on the death of Julius Johnson were adopted.

The matter of sending a delegate to the State Board of Trade was taken up, but laid over until the next meeting.

Among matter discussed was the stopping of traffic along Crescent street by the Metropolitan Park Commission. This matter was referred to Representative Sandberg, who will take it up in the Legislature.

It was voted to hold a banquet at a later date.

These officers were elected:

President.—T. L. Williams.

Vice President.—Walter E. Piper.

Secretary.—Arthur W. Stetson.

Treasurer.—Charles H. Johnson.

Directors.—The above with John R. Richards, Charles C. Foster and John R. Nelson.

Refreshments were served.

Entertained and Supper.

In spite of the inclement weather Tuesday evening twenty-four responded to invitations sent out by the Social Committee of the First Presbyterian Church choir to attend a social held in the vestry of said church, where a dainty supper, prepared by the gentlemen on the committee awaited them.

After supper a good musical program was rendered and a social hour was spent. Those present were: Margaret A. Craig, Margaret Esson, Ruth Kemp, Anna Giles, Susan Tylter, Lillian McIntosh, Katherine McCormack, Glennie Jenkins, Jennie Cummings, Helen Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. McKeller, Rev. N. J. Sproul, Alexander Clark, Dougald Robertson, Jack Sinclair, Ernest J. Collins, James Stewart, George Shirley, John Tylter, Wendell Clark, Everett Clark, William Cummings and Alex Kemp.

Wright-French.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles French was the scene of a pretty wedding Wednesday evening, when their daughter, Josephine Adams was united in marriage to Edward Wright of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Atwood of the Washington street Congregational church and the wedding march was played by Miss Ethel V. Merritt.

The bride was dressed in white silk with lace trimmings, and carried bride roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Etta French who wore white with lace trimmings and carried roses.

George A. Lakin of Charlestown was best man. The ushers were the four brothers of the bride. Refreshments were served during the evening and many beautiful presents were displayed. Mr. and Mrs. Wright left amid a shower of rice and confetti on their wedding trip.

The Big Terminal.

The erection of the South terminal has been an exceedingly expensive project for the city of Boston says the Tribune, having costs the municipality to date approximately $2,000,000. The city had paid out to Jan 1 of this year, on account of the South station act, $2,420,000.77, and it has received in return but $601,44.38. In addition, the city has spent on account of the Cove street extension, which was made necessary by the construction of the station, $497,744.66.

COFFEE PARTY.

Annual Reunion of Sacred Heart Church, Atlantic Largely Attended

The fourth annual coffee party and reunion of the Sacred Heart church was held Wednesday evening at Music hall, Atlantic, and was attended by an audience that more than filled the hall.

In was an occasion where all of the parishioners of the church both old and young gathered for a good time. Rev. John P. Cuffe, the pastor, was present, and also several visiting priests, among whom were Rev. P. A. Hayes of Ellsworth, Maine, Rev. Matthew McDonnell of Braintree, Rev. A. F. Roche of West Quincy, and Rev. John J. Casey of Quincy.

From 8 until 9 o'clock there was a promenade concert by Cuff's orchestra. This was followed by dancing which continued until 12 o'clock this morning.

From 10 until 12 o'clock supper was served.

The committee in charge of the supper were John J. Hearne, chairman, assisted by James Costello, John Cunningham, Cornelius Duggan, Patrick Dolan, Myles Creamer and William Coughlin.

The matrons were Mrs. John Granahan, Mrs. Martin Burns, Mrs. Myles Dolan, Mrs. Patrick Dolan, Mrs. R. J. Cole, Mrs. James Duggan, Mrs. Abraham LeVangie, Mrs. A. Murphy, Mrs. Patrick Golden, Mrs. Richard Barry, Mrs. J. Holleran, Mrs. J. McGowan, Mrs. Charles Duggan, Mrs. John Derringer, Mrs. J. H. Cunningham, Mrs. James Donovan, Mrs. Charles Duggan, Mrs. John Stewart, Mrs. John Golden, Mrs. Patrick Barry, Mrs. Charles McClare, Mrs. Daniel Golden, Mrs. Robert Barry, Mrs. J. Dineen and Miss Winifred Moran.

Daniel J. Nyhan was floor director and John P. Granahan and R. A. Cole assistants. They were assisted by a large corps of aids.

Fire at Clubhouse Of Women's Club

But for the prompt action of Mr. Anderson, caretaker at the clubhouse of the Quincy Women's club, there might have been a serious fire there this morning. A fire had been lighted in the open fire place in the committee room ready for the executive board meeting of the club. Soon after smoke began to penetrate the house, and Mr. Anderson found the woodwork about the chimney on fire. The fire company were summoned by telephone.

In the meantime Mr. Anderson worked hard to extinguish the flames. Chief Litchfield and the firemen soon had it under control.

If it had worked up into the second floor it would have caused considerable damage and trouble.

THREAT BY WHITE

Accompanied by the Display of a Revolver

INTENDED TO KILL THAW

Testimony to That Effect by a Witness Who Relates Incident Occurring in 1903--Jerome
Has Worthy Foe In Delmas

New York, Feb. 7.—The defense of Harry K. Thaw, under the direction of Attorney Delmas of California, began to assume definite shape yesterday and when an adjournment was taken testimony had been placed before the jury to the effect that Stanford White had been heard to make a threat to kill the defendant—coupling the threat with the display of a revolver; that Thaw's actions following the killing of White on the roof of Madison Square Garden were considered by several eye-witnesses to have been "irrational," that an uncle of the defendant was insane;
that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw passed a note to her husband during a dinner at the Cafe Martin the evening of the tragedy, and that District Attorney Jerome has this note, and refused, on the demand of the defense, to introduce it in evidence.

JUSTICE JAMES FITZGERALD.

The threat against Thaw's life was made two years and a half before the tragedy occurred. District Attorney Jerome objected to the introduction of the evidence, declaring the defense was not understood by him to be one of self-defense. Mr. Delmas replied that the defense intended to take advantage of every legal defense allowed in the state of New York, be it insanity, self-defense or any other legitimate justification of the taking of a human life. This was but the first of a series of interesting tilts between Jerome and Delmas during the day and it was agreed that Jerome had found Thaw's new leading counsel a foe man worthy of his best efforts.

The two men are of widely different types—Jerome quick, passionate, forceful, sarcastic and brilliant at ridicule;
Delmas calm, courteous, resourceful, witty, crafty and ethical, to whom Jerome was always "the learned district attorney." There was never a deviation from this method of address.
Benjamin Roman, formerly a stage doorkeeper at the Madison Square theatre, was the witness who told of White's threat. He declared that on Christmas eve, 1903, Stanford White came to the stage door about 11:15 p.
m. and asked for Miss Nesbit. The doorkeeper told him the actress had gone home. White at first accused him of a falsehood and then asked who had been her escort.

"Mr. Thaw," the witness said he replied, "Oh, that Pittsburger," commented the architect, who, to make sure the actress had gone, went to her dressing room on the stage. Not finding her there, White, according to Roman, walked rapidly out of the theatre, with a revolver in his hand, and muttering:
"I'll find and kill that — before daylight."

The witness said he believed the threat to be directed against Harry Thaw and told him of it several days later when they chanced to meet on Fifth avenue. He also told a detective sergeant about the incident.

Mr. Jerome cross-examined the witness for more than an hour, but Roman adhered closely to his story in every detail. Once or twice the witness became a trifle confused as to dates and as to his movements during the past five years and said he had not been regularly employed during that period.

Thomas McCaleb, who was with Thaw's party on the night of the tragedy, testified that at dinner that evening Mrs. Thaw had suddenly asked her husband for a pencil, scribbled a few words and passed a folded piece of paper to him. What was in this note the witness did not know and he was not allowed, because of an objection by the district attorney, to testify as to what change of manner, if any, it produced in Thaw. It has been reported from time to time that it was in this note that young Mrs. Thaw, referring to White, wrote to her husband: "That (blackguard) is here."

"We understand," said Delmas, "that this note is now in the possession of the learned district attorney. We want to get at the contents of that slip of paper, believing it to be material evidence. We demand that the learned district attorney produce it." Mr. Jerome sat silent. He tugged at his short, stubby moustache. There was absolute and dramatic stillness in the courtroom as Delmas stood waiting and all eyes were turned on Jerome. He continued to look at the floor. After waiting some time, Delmas resumed:

"I take it that the silence of the learned district attorney is not intended as a discourtesy, but a conception of what he feels to be his duties in the matter. We will attempt later to prove the contents of the note."

McCaleb detailed, so far as he could,
the incidents of the night of the tragedy. He was leaving the roof garden with Mrs. Thaw and thought Harry was not following when the three pistol shots were heard. Mrs. Thaw exclaimed: "My God, he's shot," and then "Oh, Harry, what have you done and why did you do it?" Thaw replied: "I have saved your life," and bent and kissed her.

It came out during the redirect examination that McCaleb had met Jerome some months ago at the Union club and discussed the case with him.
The witness answered a question to which the district attorney had taken exception and in which he had been upheld by the court.

Mr. Jerome flared up in a rage. "Why did you do that?" he demanded. "I call the court's attention to this man—this literary person—who says he has written two books—coming here and answering questions to which there is objection. It is indecent."

Mr. Delmas pleaded that while the witness may have been in error, the question was not important. He said it was a misfortune to a man to have to testify in such a case, but he thought that nevertheless the witness was entitled to courtesy.

Justice Fitzgerald agreed to this, but admonished the witness to be more careful in the future.

The Countess of Yarmouth and Mrs.
George Carnegie, Thaw's sisters, were in court and took a keen interest in all the proceedings. When Roman testified as to the epithet Stanford White used in speaking of the man he intended to "kill before daylight" Justice Fitzgerald said he would give all those in the courtroom whose sense of proprieties might be offended the opportunity to withdraw. The countess and Mrs. Carnegie went out, but returned in less than five minutes.

Thaw seemed in excellent spirits throughout the day. He appeared to enjoy the wily conflicts between Delmas and the district attorney and smiled broadly several times.

A Fishing Law Investigation

St. John, Feb. 7.—Attorneys Kent and Howley have left for Boston to conduct an inquiry regarding the shipping of Newfoundland fishermen on American schooners outside of the three-mile limit. The supreme court has designated Charles H. Adams of Boston
as commissioner to conduct the inquiry, which will be held in Boston and Gloucester. Kent will represent the government and Howley will look after the interests of the fishermen.

Mississippi Channel Knocked Out

Washington, Feb. 7.—The advocates of a 14-foot channel for the Mississippi river, Chicago to St. Louis and to the gulf, met defeat when the house, having under consideration the river and harbor appropriation bill, voted to stand by the recommendations of the committee in opposition to the project.
Friends of the measure secured only 43 votes for the amendment as against 145 against it.

Labor Scarce In Kingston

Kingston, Jan. 7.—Steamer
Flandria arrived here from Santa Marta, Colombia, for coal. Stevedores were procured, but the laborers refused to work except for double pay—60 cents a ton. This attitude on the part of the laborers arises from the fact that the demand for labor is greater than the supply.

Bell Held For Townsend's Death

New York, Feb. 7.—The inquest into the death of Dr. Charles W. Townsend, who was shot while in bed at his home in New Brighton, S. I., and later died from his wounds, resulted in John Bell, a street car conductor of Brooklyn, being formally declared the man who fired the shot. Bell took the verdict calmly.

Incompetency to Follow Success

Pekin, Feb. 7.—Four divisions of the Chinese army have been removed from the control of Yuan Shi Kai and placed under the command of Feng Shan, a Manchu general, who is notoriously incompetent. Yuan Shi Kai had succeeded in placing the army in Chi Li province on an excellent footing.

Got Ninety-Nine-Year Sentence

St. Louis, Feb. 7.—On the advice of his father, William Weissmiller, 19 years of age, pleaded guilty to second degree murder and was sentenced to 99 years in the penitentiary. He was charged with having shot and killed Charles Brasses, a saloon porter.

Death at Age of 116

Hamilton, O., Feb. 7.—"Aunt" Jane

THE "BLUE LAWS"

Radical Changes Suggested by a Legislative Committee

A FREER USE OF SUNDAY

Permissive Power Allowing Certain Works or Acts Should Be Placed In Hands of Local Authorities--Sunday Pastimes

Boston, Feb. 7.—Radical changes in the statutory laws relating to the observance of the Sabbath are recommended by the special committee appointed by the last legislature to revise the Sunday statutes, which submitted its report at the state house late yesterday.

The Sunday laws recently formed the subject of a bitter controversy between District Attorney Moran and Police Commissioner O'Meara of the city of Boston, a controversy which resulted in wholesale arrests and many convictions because of violations of the existing statutes, commonly known as the "blue laws."

In a general way the report favors a freer use of Sunday by the people, with more liberties with reference to outdoor games and pastimes, but upon the important question of Sunday amusements the committee is divided and has submitted two opposing reports. The committee is unanimous, however, that the law permitting religious and charitable associations to present amusements on Sunday for religious and charitable purposes, and under which 75 percent of the proceeds passes to the charity, is inoperative and inefficient and often leads to hypocrisy and fraud. The committee recommends that this part of the statutes be repealed on this account.

It is on the substitute for this section of the law that the committee is divided. Three of them, believing in "a mental recreation" for the people, declare that the question of permitting Sunday amusements can be best regulated by the local authorities in city or town by issuing licenses after passing upon each case and deciding it in accordance with the local public opinion.
The four other members of the committee hold that Sunday should be a day of rest primarily, but, responding to a demand for some rational form of entertainment, recommend that the Sunday amusements be limited definitely to lectures, concerts, or classical music, and concerts or entertainments given by public authorities.

The supporters of the local option plan of permitting amusements take occasion to criticize their fellow committee members on the committee for legalizing sacred or classical music as against other forms of entertainment.
"Shall the one be given the right to enjoy these highest forms of music to the exclusion of the other, who does not and cannot comprehend, and who yet finds amusement and refreshment in some different manner?"

The present statutes permit work on Sunday which may be for "necessity and charity." The committee manifestly suggests that the conjunction "or" be substituted for the word "and,"
this changing the law to the letter in the way that it had in fact been interpreted by the courts in recent decisions.

On the broad question of what works
may be legal on Sunday, the committee agrees that the law should be changed so that permissive power be placed in the hands of local authorities to allow certain works or acts about which there may be a doubt as to their being works of necessity and charity. Police commissioners, city marshals or selectmen should be authorized to issue certificates that, in their opinion, the work is necessary. If, after that, complaint is made, the supreme court is to decide whether the specific act complained of is illegal, and this must follow even if a certificate has been granted.

The committee amplifies the meaning of the word "necessity," defining it as works or acts needful during Sunday for the good order, health, safety or comfort of the community.

On the subject of Sunday games and other pastimes, the committee's conclusion is that the present forms of Sunday recreation which are permitted are not within reach of all, and it recommends, therefore, legalizing of games and other forms of pastimes. "Innocent pastime on field or lawn is no more dangerous to public morals," the committee finds, "than boating, sailing, driving or automobile, to which no objection is now raised. The engagement in a healthful exercise, even if in a game, is much more to be desired than lounging or loitering during the leisure hours of the day."

Sunday fishing should be removed from the criminal category, the committee believes. In connection with Sunday work, the committee recommends that the manufacture and sale of bread and other foods dealt in by bakers, the manufacture and sale of ice cream, the delivery of perishable food products, the sale and delivery of flowers up to 11 a. m. and the handling and removing of theatrical scenery up to 11 a. m., all should be permitted on Sunday. Recently in Boston convictions were obtained for practically all these Sunday acts.

Representative Mellen offered a supplementary report expressing the opinion that the whole question of Sunday laws should be submitted to the people.

Tidbits from
All Wards of City

Annual meeting of the Quincy Yacht club in the Council chamber, City Hall, tonight.

Mark L. Reed of Woodward avenue left Wednesday night for New York on a business trip.

H. Denison Cole, a graduate optician, has entered the employ of C. F. Pettengill the optician and jeweler, 1391 Hancock street, Quincy.

The Sunday evening meetings of Memorial church will be discontinued for the present owing to the length of the Christian Endeavor services which are largely attended.

The Gleaners circle, King's Daughters, will hold its regular meeting, next Monday, with Mrs. Herbert Hicks, of 141 Warren avenue.

The annual meeting of Unity circle,
King's Daughters, will be held next Tuesday evening. A supper will be served at 6.30 when each member may invite one guest, lady or gentleman.

An adjourned hearing on the petition of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., for authority to connect the Granite and Shawmut branches will be held at the State House next Wednesday at 11
A. M.

Pig's Eye.

A chapel in honor of St. Paul gave a new name to the Minnesota city. It was originally called Pig's Eye, from a nickname given to a one eyed Frenchman who kept a drinking shanty at the place.

Louis Napoleon.

Louis Napoleon was taken prisoner
by the Prussians Sept. 2, 1870, and imprisoned in a German castle until the close of the war. He was then allowed to depart, and, going to England, took up his residence in Chislehurst, where he lived quietly until his death, Jan. 9, 1873.

St. Louis.

St. Louis was named from Louis IX. of France. The name was originally given to his depot and trading station by Pierre LaCade Liguest.

Wheat From Grass.

Fabre in 1855 ended a series of experiments by which he concluded that by careful cultivation for twelve years he had produced a species of perfect wheat from a common grass growing in southern Europe.

The Serpent.

The serpent moves by elevating the scales on its abdomen and using them to push the body forward. The windings are always horizontal. The artists who represent the sinuities as vertical have never observed the animal in motion. It is impossible for it to move in that way.

Typewriter Ink.

Stenographers should remember that the ink on their typewriter ribbons is poisonous and that getting in a cut or scratch it might do great harm.

New York's Stock Exchange.

New York's Stock Exchange in Broad and Wall streets is the outcome of a meeting of a group of traders who sat under the shade of a butternut tree opposite its Wall street entrance on May 17, 1792, and adopted rules to govern their trading transactions.

Manayunk.

The Indian name of the Schuylkill river was Manayunk; hence the name of a Pennsylvania town.

Black For Mourning.

Black was first used for mourning in 1498, when Charles VIII. of France died. His widow, it is said, objected to the white mourning customary at that time as not sufficiently suggestive of the depth of her grief. So she dressed herself all in black and draped her coat of arms in the same somber color, thus setting the fashion, which has been followed ever since.

A Cat's Whiskers.

The whiskers of a cat are supposed by some naturalists to be provided with nerves down to the tips, while others believe that the base of the hair is better fitted out with nerves than most other parts of the skin.

GUILD'S PLAN CRITICISED

Men Representing Capital of Peace Rather Than Agitation

--Industrial System Should Not Be a Political Plaything

Boston, Feb. 7.—One hundred members of the National Association of Woolen Manufacturers, employing nearly 100,000 persons and representing invested capital of nearly $100,000,000, applauded the annual address of President Whitman of this city when he sounded the policy of the association for the coming year and at the same time criticised Governor Guild severely for his action in petitioning the president and congress to hasten revision of the tariff.

President Whitman, in his remarks regarding Guild, spoke deliberately, but with much feeling. He said that recently the governor of Massachusetts, without consulting the managers of the great industries of the state, except one that is seeking special benefits, has undertaken to hasten tariff action and to create a conviction that his is the wish of the business men and the voice of Massachusetts.

"We who are responsible for the employment of thousands of people and for the continued prosperity of many communities should rise up in our wrath and openly repudiate the governor's assumed authority and oppose his tariff policy. What we desire is not agitation, but peace. It is the greatest need of business generally. The business interests of today ought not to be imperilled for conjectural and illusive political advantages. We ought not to allow our industrial system to be made a political plaything."

Mr. Whitman said that the year had been the most prosperous in the industrial history of the country and the coming years are full of promise. "The future will devolve on us the study of the adjustment of labor and we must see that labor receives a fair share of the general wages as in other industries, and in this adjustment we must have a common interest and we need co-operation."

He repeated the attitude of the association on the tariff question by reading the clause in the constitution by which the other speakers were Congressman Bennett of New York, who spoke on selected immigration as opposed to restricted immigration advocated by Congressman Gardner of this state, and Professor Hanns of Harvard university, who described the work of the new industrial training in the schools.

Disastrous Explosion of Metal Chicago, Feb. 7.—An explosion of molten metal which was accidentally overturned into a pool of cold water at the plant of the Illinois Steel company injured five workmen, two of them fatally, and caused a loss of $100,000.
The metal was in a huge ladle which is operated on a pivot. Exact blame for the accident has not been established.

Car Plunged Into Ditch
Pittsburg, Feb. 7.—Twenty persons were injured, five seriously, when an electric car jumped the track and plunged over a 15-foot embankment near Wilmerding, a suburb of this city.
Without warning, the car plunged down the embankment, where it struck a ditch and stood on end, throwing the passengers in a heap at the front end.

End of Tugmen's Strike
New York, Feb. 7.—The strike of tug deckhands, firemen, oilers and cooks on the freight tugs of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad companies, which began last Monday, has been declared off. The companies affected have promised the men that they will make a reasonable settlement.

Workmen Crushed by Ore
Steuensville, O., Feb. 7.—Four workmen engaged in dynamiting frozen ore 100 feet high at the docks of an iron manufacture here were caught in a cave-in last night. Nicholas Dragovitch was suffocated and Michael Oswan, John Ewan and Michael Dragovitch were probably fatally crushed.

Roosevelt Going to Alaska
Washington, Feb. 7.—President Roosevelt hopes to visit Alaska on a hunting trip after his presidential term expires. He expressed this desire to Robert W. Wiley, who has spent 17 years in that country and has traveled in remote sections where big game is still abundant.

Trouble Brewing in Central America
San Francisco, Feb. 7.—The Pacific squadron has arrived from Magdalena bay. When the fleet was about 150 miles south of here the Chicago received orders to turn back to Central America, where threatened trouble between republics may endanger American interests.

Negro Killed by Posse
Gordon, Ga., Feb. 7.—Peter Arline, a Negro, was shot and killed here by a posse which was formed to arrest him.
Arline was creating disorder. He resisted arrest and when a posse was formed fired upon it. The posse returned the fire, killing him.

MAY STILL BE AFLOAT

Steamer Captain's Opinion of Vessel Reported About to Sink

Boston, Feb. 7.—Fifteen fishermen, constituting the crew of the Gloucester schooner Ellen F. Gleason, walked ashore from steamer Winifredian, thanking their lucky stars and Captain Shepard for their quick escape from their sinking vessel after she had rammed the big liner on the middle bank Wednesday morning, 300 miles northeast of this port.

The collision took place during a northeast snowstorm. The Gleason suddenly appeared on the steamer's port quarter and striking her a glancing blow, which, according to the fishermen, stove in the schooner's bow. The Winifredian was not damaged by the collision. Although the smaller vessel disappeared almost immediately after,
the big liner was swung around the disabled schooner, and then, with the Winifredian acting as a shield to the stern, the 15 men were hauled to safety by a life line.

On reaching the deck of the steamer
Captain Noland of the Gleason reported that his vessel was rapidly filling with water and would have gone to the bottom within an hour after the collision.
Captain Shepard of the liner held a somewhat different opinion, stating that he thought that the Gleason suddenly lost the loss of her head gear. In fact it is his idea that the Gleason is still afloat and a dangerous obstruction to trans-Atlantic liners.

Mystery Partially Solved

Washington, Pa., Feb. 7.—The mystery surrounding the death of Frances Martin, 18 years old, found dead in the Forest building, but who died in the Lyric theatre across the street, was cleared up at the conclusion of the coroner's inquest. Evidence was adduced to show the girl had taken a large quantity of strychnine. John Innes was held by the coroner's jury on serious charges. D. B. Forrest, manager of the Lyric theatre, was also arrested.
The girl died in Forrest's room in the theatre.

Cubans Misconstrue New Decree

Havana, Feb. 7.—The Cuban people are manifesting opposition to the project to increase the armed force of the republic, as set forth in the decree issued by Governor Magoon. They are of the impression that the plan involves compulsory military service, whereas the decree merely declares the liability of all able-bodied citizens for military service in emergencies in the same manner that the Constitution of the United States refers to military service.

Engineer Dead at Throttle

Philadelphia, Feb. 7.—The Congressional Limited train on the Pennsylvania railroad ran through this city last night at terrific speed, with Engineer Toms dead at the throttle. Toms head was hanging out of the cab window and had been crushed by striking some obstacle along the road. Fireman Michener brought the train to a stop at North Philadelphia, where a new engineer was secured and the train proceeded to New York.

Wanted to Crawl to Gallows

Newark, N. J., Feb. 7.—Frank Banu-sik, who murdered Thomas Hoff at Montclair in January, 1905, was hanged
in the county jail here this morning.
The condemned man was resigned to his fate. In order to exhibit contri-tion, he asked that he be permitted to crawl to the gallows on his knees. The request was denied.

Strife in Central America

San Salvador, Feb. 7.—Diplomatic relations between Nicaragua and Honduras have been broken off as a result of the trouble which has arisen between the two countries owing to the recent invasion of Nicaraguan territory by Honduran soldiers. The relations between them are growing more strained
every day.

King's Carriage in Collision

Brussels, Feb. 7.—A carriage in which King Leopold was riding had a collision with an electric street car and the king was thrown violently to the floor of his vehicle. He sustained no injury, but the shock was severe. The accident has resulted in Leopold postponing his departure for the south of France.

A VICTORY FOR BRAYTON

Effort to Exclude "Boss" From Jamestown Building Fails,

Providence, Feb. 7.—General Charles H. Brayton, who Governor Higgins is trying to exclude from the state house, was again the subject of discussion in the house of representatives yesterday and the introduction of an amendment to a bill relating to the Jamestown exposition, providing for the exclusion of Brayton from the Rhode Island building at Jamestown, was defeated.

Brayton's name was brought into the proceedings of the house when a resolution was introduced providing for an appropriation of $30,000 for the representation of the state at the Jamestown exposition. Representative Green of this city attacked Brayton and offered an amendment to the bill practically barring him from the state building at Jamestown. In offering his amendment Green said:

"If anybody outside of the assembly goes on that trip it is probable that the gentleman who uses the high sheriff's office as his winter residence (Brayton) will use the Rhode Island building at Jamestown as his summer residence."
Mr. Green quoted a passage from Governor Higgins' message attacking
Brayton and he mentioned the state house commissioners' refusal to oust him, declaring that it was not too soon to take precautions against a "repetition of the disgraceful occurrences which take place at the state house."

Dead and Buried in Snowbank

New Milford, Conn., Feb. 7.—William H. Cook, aged about 50, was found dead in a snowbank in Falls Village yesterday afternoon. It is believed that he had been drinking and that he had lain down to sleep Monday night, before the heavy snowstorm set in, after having removed his overcoats and overcoat. He was found by laborers who were shovelling snow.

New Haven Road's Electric Plans

New Haven, Feb. 7.—Beginning next June, the whole passenger service between Stamford and New York will be equipped electrically. During the present year the important bridges on the main stem of the N. Y. N. H. & H. between New York and Boston will have been rebuilt for the heavier train-loads on the system.

May Improve Train Service

Boston, Feb. 7.—The legislature decided to hold in abeyance the question of the cancellation of the lease of the Boston and Albany railroad to the New York Central railroad pending the action of the leasing railroad in following the suggestions of the railroad commissioners as to the improvement of the train service.

Three Indicted For Murder

New Haven, Feb. 7.—The grand jury brought in a true bill of murder in the first degree against Custode di Lucia,
his father, Angelo, and his brother, Luciano. The latter is still at large. They are charged with shooting and killing Raffaele Petrone on Jan. 19.

Smoke Law Violated by Railroad

Boston, Feb. 7.—The New York Central railroad, the lessees of the Boston and Albany railroad, was fined $75 in the superior criminal court for three violations of the smoke law. It is understood that the company will pay the fine.

Crime of Drunken Sailor

Philadelphia, Feb. 7.—Chief Master of Arms Douglas of the cruiser Tennessee, now at the League Island navy yard, was shot and fatally wounded yesterday by James Burke, an intoxicated sailor. Burke and another seaman returned to the ship in a drunken condition and were ordered under arrest. While his companion was being searched Burke drew a revolver and shot Douglas. Douglas died last night.

Kingston Food Supply Ample

New York, Feb. 7.—Funds for the relief of the sufferers from the Kingston, Jam., earthquake and fire which were contributed in answer to an appeal made by the New York-Kingston relief committee will be returned to the donors, in view of the official advices from Jamaica that the food supplies on hand are ample and that funds are only required for rebuilding.

Ferryboat Passengers Got a Scare

New York, Feb. 7.—Fire was discovered on the ferryboat Wilkesbarre as it was nearing its slip in the Central Railroad of New Jersey ferryhouse. The crew confined the flames to the rear pilothouse, where they originated.
There were 200 passengers aboard, but no one was injured. The fire is believed to have been started by defective electric insulation.

Simpson Case Goes to Jury

River Head, L. I., Feb. 7.—The defense and the prosecution have finished summing up in the trial of Dr. James W. Simpson, who is accused of having killed his father-in-law, Bartley T.
Horne. The court charged the jury this morning and a verdict is expected during the day.

Japanese Rioters Use Dynamite

Tokio, Feb. 7.—A riot on the part of miners employed in one of the copper mines in the Asio district is assuming grave proportions. Dissatisfied with their treatment, the miners started out to damage property and are using dynamite freely with this end in view.

Cabinet Crisis Imminent

Paris, Feb. 7.—President Fallieres gave a luncheon at the Elysee palace yesterday in honor of King Edward.
Premier Clemenceau was not present, and his absence, in view of reports of a cabinet crisis, was considered significant.

COMMODORE REELECTED

Also the Vice Commodore But New Secretary And Treasurer

The annual meeting of the Quincy Yacht club was held in the Council chamber City Hall on Thursday evening. The meeting was very largely attended, owing to the contest for the office of vice commodore. This was the only contest in the list of officers. Both candidates had a large following and the contest was a keen one.

Commodore Crane presided and in opening the meeting spoke of the large increase in membership last year, and the bright outlook for the future.

The first business in the call was reports of Committee. These were all of a very encouraging nature, particularly that of the treasurer.

This report showed that 52 were admitted to membership last year, swelling the total to over 300.

The total receipts of the year including a balance on hand of $25.74 at the beginning of the year were $2813.49.

The expenditures including a note of $150 and $50 applied to the sinking fund, amounted to $2666.10, leaving a cash balance on hand of $147.39.

The club voted to authorize the treasurer to pay $100 on the mortgage.

After the other reports, Paul R. Blackmur offered a set of resolutions thanking ex-Commodore Charles F. Adams for building a Sonder class boat and sailing her in the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup races last season.

Election of officers was the next on the call, and Messrs E. W. Newcomb, James B. Walker and Robert Emery were appointed to receive, sort and count ballots.

The check list was used in voting. The two candidates for vice commodore were Joseph W. Johnson, and Herbert W. Robbins, the latter having held the office for the past two years. Mr. Robbins won out, the vote being: Robbins, 80; Johnson, 46.

Although there was no contest over the other officers there were some changes. The most important of these being the offices of secretary and treasurer. John H. Wyeth declined to be a candidate and ex-Mayor John O. Hall was elected secretary without opposition. Ira M. Whittemore retired from the treasurership and George S. Morse was elected.

The officers elected were as follows: Commodore, Frank Fessenden Crane; Vice-Commodore, Herbert W. Robbins; Rear Commodore, Eben W. Sheppard; Secretary, John O. Hall; Treasurer, George S. Morse; Measurer, Ralph E. Winslow; Executive Committee, Charles W. Hall, Morton Smith, J. L. Whiton, Jr. and Ira M. Whittemore.

House Committee, Ernest L. Adams, Herbert A. Billings, Charles H. Burgess, W. Henry Dean, Arthur A. Hibbard, Harry E. Winslow and F. Everett Winslow.

Commodore Crane thanked the members for the confidence imposed in him, and bespoke a successful season for the club. He then appointed Dr. F. E. Jones as fleet surgeon.

Commodore Crane awarded the Commodore's cup and pennant offered by him for the club run to Marblehead on July 29, 1906. The silver cup and blue pennant in Class D went to the yacht Melwood; a red pennant to the yacht Arawak, and a white pennant to the yacht Moondyne.

Pennants in the second class on the same run were awarded as follows: Blue pennant to the yacht Atlanta; red pennant to the yacht Carita, and a white pennant to the yacht Wawonok.

Article three on the call was to see if the club will vote to withdraw from the Boston Bay Association.

Arthur Cavanagh moved the club withdraw and the motion was carried without opposition.

Mr. Cavanagh then sprung a surprise by moving that the club withdraw from the Yacht Racing Association of Massachusetts.

This promoted a lively discussion during which Commodore Crane took the floor and spoke against the motion, claiming it to be for the best interest of the club to remain affiliated with the association. The motion was lost.

The resolutions offered by Mr. Blackmur were as follows:

Whereas, the members of the Quincy Yacht club, at its annual meeting assembled, desire to record their appreciation of generous and sportsmanlike action of their fellow member, Charles Francis Adams, 24, who in behalf of this club, built and raced last season a boat for our challenge cup, then held by the Manchester Yacht club.

Therefore be it resolved: That there be spread upon the records of our club a vote of thanks to Mr. Adams for his splendid efforts to bring back the cup, and that a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to him by the secretary in the name of the Quincy Yacht club.

Lynn Inspector Is Kept Busy

Building is active in Lynn, but does not equal the demand of this growing city. In 1906 the inspector of buildings issued 716 permits, and there were 412 new buildings. There have been built 246 new dwellings, and 11 other buildings have been remodeled into dwellings making a total of 257, of which three are four stories high; 137 three-story flats; 24 two and one-half stories high; 44 two stories high; and 49 one and one-half stories high. The estimated cost of the new buildings was $2,400,300, and alterations added $330,500. The inspector condemned 36 buildings, and 30 were torn down, while 6 were made safe.

Building in Malden.

Malden is a city a little larger than Quincy and the report of the inspector of buildings for 1906 will be of interest. There were 72 violations of ordinances reported to the building department; alterations to wooden buildings, 128; new wooden buildings, 125; brick alterations, 1; new brick buildings, 10; iron structures, 1; gasometer, brick building, damaged by fire, 1; wooden building damaged by fire, 1. During the year a new set of building laws was adopted, and the ordinances in that department are of the latest. The recommendations of the inspector will be made at a later date.

Plans for Big Battleship

Detailed plans for the big battleship which it is proposed shall be the equal of any fighting vessel now afloat or planned were presented to the Senate this week by Senator Hale. The plans call for a battleship 518 feet long, with a beam of 85 feet and 2 inches, and draft of 29 feet 5 inches with everything on board.

The armament will consist of a main battery of ten 12-inch breech-loading rifles, mounted on five electrically controlled turrets on the centre line, two forward above the forecastle deck, the second firing over the first, two aft on the main deck on the same level, and one amidships firing over the two after turrets. There are to be two submerged torpedo tubes.

The secondary battery will consist of fourteen 5-inch rapid-firing guns, four 3-pounder saluting guns, four 1-pounder semi-automatic, two 3-inch field pieces and two machine guns of thirty calibre. The five-inch guns will be located on the gun deck, forming two broadside batteries of seven guns each; the corner guns will be equipped for head and stern firing, respectively. Smaller guns will be located in commanding positions so as to give a large, unobstructed range of fire.

A Washington dispatch of Thursday to the Herald says, Francis T. Bowles, president of the Fore River Ship Company, came to Washington today on business relating to a contract for the building of a battleship by his company.

He was at the Capitol this morning, and talked with members of the naval affairs committee, but the nature of his conference was not disclosed. It is understood, however, that Mr. Bowles desires that one of the two battleships soon to be built shall be constructed at his yard. One battleship has already been authorized and another will be provided for in the forthcoming naval bill.

Comments on Base Ball League

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Referring to the letter of B. C. Miller on the formation of the new baseball league, viz: "The South Shore Church Baseball League," which appeared in yesterday's edition of the Quincy Daily Ledger, I wish to say that I am very much pleased that another effort has been made to give Quincy a clean game of baseball, without any compensation save that of expenses, which we think should be allowed.

Your correspondent seems to have considerable faith in the membership of the churches, from which the teams will be drawn, to give the support necessary to ensure the success needed.

We sincerely hope too that the old adage—"upon failures are successes built," will prove true on this occasion. Wishing the enterprise all success, I am, very truly yours,

A. J. M. Cowe, Jr.

Concert at St. Chrysostom's

The boys and young men of St. Chrysostom's church, Wollaston, gave a concert in the parish rooms on Friday evening, Feb. 1.

The program said that Mr. H. Y. Follett was to sing, but a severe illness prevented his doing so. Mrs. Follett kindly took his place and although she was suffering from a cold her singing was very pleasing and much appreciated.

Prof. James B. Atwood of Hyde Park played his number in a way that showed many years of work put into his profession. He responded to an encore and further delighted his audience.

Prof. Osgood felt in condition to render acceptable service and the number of encores he received testified to his good judgment of his own condition. "Miss Callahan's pink tea," was rendered deceptively well.

The Potter trio has not been heard much here in concert work but was pleasing to all present. The success of the concert was due as much to their efforts as to any who took part.

Mr. Myron Stebbins accompanied the Male chorus and although this was his first appearance he acquitted himself nobly. The male chorus lacked expression but otherwise did very well.

As the concert was for the benefit of the church mortgage, every one gave their services.

MILTON.

J. A. Mandeville the contractor, filed a petition in bankruptcy this week. He placed his liabilities at $1,395, and has no assets.

Several cases of typhoid fever are reported at East Milton.

The fire department was called out on a still alarm Monday for a chimney fire on Central avenue.

The parishioners of St. Michael and the Mission of Our Saviour churches are arranging to give Rev. T. I. Reese a reception before he leaves for his new charge the first of March.

A citizens' caucus for the nomination of town officers will be held Feb. 15 at the Town Hall.

John Emerson, tax collector, is ill with nervous prostration, and has gone away where he can get a complete rest.

—The elective system in the Medford High school extended a year ago, to include music, declamation, girls' gymnastics and military drill, has shown decidedly satisfactory results, especially in the gymnastics and military drill. Never since its introduction into the school has military drill been in so satisfactory a condition. Out of a total of 108 boys only twenty-four do not elect it.

—The Committee on Judiciary reported to the Maine Legislature Wednesday that the petitioners be given leave to withdraw the petitions from citizens of Lisbon and Durham asking for an investigation of affairs at the institution of the Holy Ghost and U's Society at Shiloh. The petitions were referred from the last Legislature.

Minstrels of Copeland Club

The third annual minstrel show of the Copeland club was held Thursday evening at St. Mary's hall, and they were greeted by an audience that was limited only by the capacity of the hall.

Miss Emma E. Ecker was the musical director, Russell W. Badger the pianist and John D. Smith the stage manager.

George A. Berry was interlocutor. Joe Daley, Frank Ogle and Ed. Desmond rattled the bones and Andy Dinegan, Fred McDonald and Dick Henry shook the tambos. The soloists were Luther W. Nason and George B. Daley.

During the first part there were choruses by the circle and solos by the end men and the trio of soloists. The grand finale by the company introduced Maurice F. Cohen, who impersonated Gen. Grant; Frank Egan, who impersonated Gen. Lee, and Elizabeth Lyons, who represented Columbia.

Part two included Westley A. Beallien in singing and dancing specialty, Joseph Morrisette as soloist, and Gerald Sullivan as xylophone soloist.

Many Entries

Y. M. C. A. Meet

The Boys Athletic Meet of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. will be held on Saturday at 8 P. M. Exactly 167 entries have been received, and Boston, Everett, Cambridge, and Middleboro all intend to make a strong bid for championship honors, while our own Quincy boys will do their best to retain the large loving cup which will be awarded to the winning association.

Contributors Banquet.

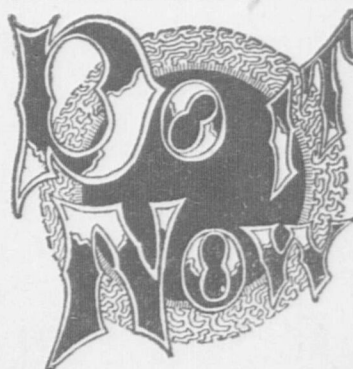

The second annual contributors banquet of the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association will be held in the Association hall on the evening of Monday, Feb. 18, at 6:30 P. M. There will be a reception in the parlors from 6 to 6:30. Invitations have already been accepted by ex-Gov. John D. Long, State Secretary R. M. Armstrong, Ralph Goodwin, chairman of the State educational work, Deleware King, and others.

Death of Ex-Congressman.

Hon. Benjamin W. Harris, aged 83, ex-congressman and ex-probate judge and father of Judge Robert O. Harris of the superior court, died at his home in Bridgewater on Thursday. Death was due to a shock. He leaves also a wife and two daughters.

—Mrs. Lizzie Whitney, her four children and her brother, E. F. Carroll, narrowly escaped death Wednesday at Lewiston, Me., by coal gas asphyxiation. Mrs. Whitney was awakened by the strangling of a child who slept with her. She cried for help, which arrived to open doors and windows in time to save the family.

The bill embodying the Brandeis plan of Savings Bank insurance is being prepared and will soon be introduced in far the sentiment among the legislators is decidedly in favor of the idea, which has the approval not only of savings

Naturally the talk of war with Japan is all jingoism, and a very poor quality of jingoism at that. Japan does not want any war with the United States for a great many years at least, and in fact does not want any war with anybody until she somewhat reduces her enormous national debt and gets industri-ally reorganized. At the same time,
"the Yellow Peril" as regards Japan is a very real menace. This is made plain by the report of the commissioner-general of immigration who has recently returned to Washington from the Hawaiian Islands and who made a special study of the Japanese situation in California.

He says that the menace of the Japanese invasion is not military, but industrial. The Japanese is not like the Chinaman. He does not take a laundry on the corner and stay there until he accumulates enough money to return to Japan, but he comes with a readiness to take any position however menial that will give him a start in life, and this once obtained, there is nothing in the way of trade, business or profession that he considers beyond his reach.

The situation on the Pacific coast, where, in spite of their protests against social equality, they are continually inviting the coming of Japanese laborers, is simply this. The Jap comes to this country and takes a position as a laborer, a household servant, or a farm hand, and by industry and frugality, for the nation possesses both in a high degree, he soon obtains enough money to buy the farm on which he is working, or another in the immediate neighborhood, to start an opposition business as a blacksmith, a contractor, or a mechanic of some sort, or possibly to attend a professional school and branch out as a dentist, a doctor or a lawyer.
There is no denying that the Japanese are a thrifty and capable people and the experience of California and the whole Pacific coast has been that where they once get a foothold they stick and are soon the equals, if not the superiors of the natives in any business or profession they adopt.

France Adopts Income Tax
Paris, Feb. 8.—The government's new scheme for taxation, created a great stir when it was made public yesterday afternoon. If enacted into law it will constitute a complete readjustment of France's fiscal system. The old door, window, poll and other direct taxes are to be replaced by a system based upon incomes. Day laborers are practically exempted. The tax on incomes above $1000 a year is made progressive up to 4 percent of the total.

Cold Weather and No Gas
Pittsburg, Feb. 8.—The coldest weather of the present winter is being experienced in western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and West Virginia, and has resulted in the usual gas shortage.
In several districts people are obliged to seek their beds to keep warm.
Hotels and restaurants are doing a rushing business, as there is insufficient gas for cooking purposes in many homes.

Rioters Met Death in Fire Tokio, Feb. 8.—Fifteen rioters were burned to death in a storehouse in the Ashio district, which they had plundered for provisions and liquor, and which they set fire to while in a drunken condition. The disturbances were insisted by Socialists, whose leader has been arrested.

TESTIFY AT WASHINGTON

Bullets From Army Ammunition
Not Found in Brownsville Until After Arrival of Blockson —Alleged Plot of White People

Washington, Feb. 8.—Five witnesses were examined yesterday in the Brownsville inquiry before the senate committee on military affairs. All were members of company D of the discharged battalion of negro soldiers except the last on the stand, former Sergeant Thornton of company B.

He testified that when aroused by the firing on the night of Aug. 13 he was under the impression that the barracks were being fired upon by people of the town, and that a similar opinion was expressed by some other members of his company. He said the reports of firearms sounded to him like revolvers and shotguns.

He told of the call to arms, of the inspections, of hearing that company C's gun-racks had been broken and of his understanding that these had been broken open upon orders of Lieutenant Greer of company C, because the commissioned officer having the keys could not be found. He was cross-examined sharply about the possibility of a soldier getting out of the reservation in the night without being detected and said this could be done, but he did not think the man could get his arms and get out.

It was pointed out that the man already had ammunition, and the witness replied that this ammunition had to be accounted for at inspections and if any were used the loss would be discovered. He said he had not heard that bullets from army ammunition had been found in the town until after the arrival of Major Blockson to make an inspection for the war department.

Sergeant Fraser was recalled and he corrected his testimony of Wednesday by saying that he had surrendered his ammunition at Fort Reno instead of at Fort Brown. He said he had noticed his error in a newspaper report of the proceedings. Senator Warner pressed the witness closely as to the paper which carried the report and Senator Scott, acting chairman, declared that Warner was unfair.

Sensor Warner replied that he was not prepared to take a lecture, especially an unjust lecture, and there followed a general discussion as to the manner of examining witnesses. It was generally agreed that the senators should proceed as they pleased.

The next witness called for by Senator Foraker was Winter Washington, and Senator Overman asked if he had said Booker Washington. "No," said Foraker, "Booker Washington is too busy attending to his senatorial duties to come here."

He referred to the interest of Booker
T. Washington in the question of having a negro appointed to a federal position in Ohio, patronage which had been regarded as belonging to the senators from Ohio.

Winter Washington testified that he was a member of company D and his story was not unlike those told by his former comrades. His idea of the Brownsville affair, however, was that "Mexican greasers" and "Texas cowboys" had done the shooting in order to make trouble for the negro soldiers.

JURY FREES SIMPSON

Counsel Accused Dentist's Wife of Instigating Prosecution

River Head, L. I., Feb. 8.—Dr. James W. Simpson, a New York dentist, was acquitted of a charge of having murdered his father-in-law, Bartley Horner,
a wealthy Northport contractor.

Horner was shot and mortally wounded in the kitchen of his Northport home. The gun from which the fatal shot was fired was held in Simpson's hands, but the defendant always has maintained that the killing was the result of an accident. This view was accepted by the jury, which returned the verdict of not guilty after deliberating less than an hour.

The trial furnished many sensations, one of which was the appearance of the prisoner's wife as one of the principal witnesses for the prosecution. In the closing argument for the defense Simpson's counsel characterized the prosecution of Simpson as a conspiracy instigated by the prisoner's wife to get him out of the way so that she would be free to accept the attentions of another man.

High Prices For Votes
Indianapolis, Feb. 8.—Evidence tending to show that President Sweeney and Vice President Quinn of the State Life Insurance company received $25,000 each for voting for the purchase of a 13-story office building in this city was brought out in the investigation being conducted by the state auditor into the affairs of that insurance company. W. R. Mick, a real estate agent who consummated the deal, gave the alleged details in his testimony.

Central America May Have a War
Washington, Feb. 8.—There is danger of an outbreak of war in Central America, although efforts at arbitration are being made in the city of San Salvador in the hope of preventing hostilities. To guard against any danger to American interests the warship Chicago has been sent southward from San Francisco and the Yorktown will follow the Chicago, stopping at either one of the Salvadorean ports on the Pacific or a convenient Nicaraguan port.

Sweatshop Run by the Government
Washington, Feb. 8.—In a letter to Speaker Cannon, Secretary Shaw says of the building in Washington occupied by the bureau of engraving and printing: "I doubt if a worse sweatshop exists on the earth than the factory in which the government manufactures its money, its bonds, its internal revenue and postoffice stamps. The condition of the employees is well nigh unbearable and every consideration pleads for improvement."

Disaster Reduces Railroad Dividend
London, Feb. 8.—The railway disaster at Salisbury last summer, in which many Americans lost their lives, has necessitated a reduction of the London and Southwestern Railroad company's dividend by 12 percent. Chairman Scott has laid by $250,000 to meet the claims and has already settled some cases. Some of the outstanding claims the directors consider to be unreasonable and will not pay unless compelled to do so by the courts.

Five Tons of Oleomargarine Seized Pittsburg, Feb. 8.—John Vohr was arrested here on a charge of manufacturing oleomargarine without paying the government tax. He was held in $500 for appearance in the federal court. Vohr's home was raided by internal revenue officers. It is claimed they found a cleverly concealed room in which the goods were manufactured and confiscated 10,000 pounds of oleomargarine.

Deaths May Result From Factory Fire
New York, Feb. 8.—Seven persons were badly injured, several more were slightly hurt and the lives of many others were endangered by a fire in a factory building in Wooster street. All the seriously injured sustained their injuries by jumping from windows after their escape by the stairways had been cut off by the flames. Five of the injured are in a critical condition.

Car Went Over Embankment
Stenberville, O., Feb. 8.—A work train engine running at high speed separated from a car containing 20 laborers at Mingo Junction. The engine stopped short and the car, crashing into it, was thrown over an embankment. The car stove overturned and set fire to the wreckage, most of the men sustaining severe burns and other injuries.

Desperado at Large
Trinidad, Col., Feb. 8.—Robert Mc-Manus, said to be the last survivor of the notorious "Blackjack" band of train robbers, escaped from Sheriff Bride, jumping from a train while it was running at the rate of 40 miles an hour.
McManus had been arrested at Pueblo on a charge of horse stealing.

Ban Placed on Tips
Washington, Feb. 8.—The house committee on the District of Columbia made a favorable report on the bill which makes it unlawful to either give or receive tips in any hotel or eating house in the District of Columbia.

NEWS IN BRIEF
Walter Allen, an editorial writer on the Boston Herald for a number of years and an author of various historical and biographical books, died at his home at Newton, Mass., of heart disease. He was born in Boston in 1843.
Despondent through loneliness following the recent death of his wife, John Leavitt of Guilford, Me., a retired shoemaker, aged 72, committed suicide with a shotgun.

A CHILD WITH CRAMPS

should have immediate attention, as cramps are positive proof that there is some foreign substance in the stomach or bowels that nature cannot get rid of unassisted, and in most cases the trouble proves to be worms.
Worms are the cause, either directly or indirectly, of the majority of childhood ills, and in a great many cases adults are also sufferers.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

the only safe, sure, entirely vegetable worm remedy ever compounded, has been working wonderful cures for over half a century, and stands without a peer in all complaints of the stomach, liver or bowels—especially constipation and worms. The familiar symptoms of worms are disturbed health, deranged stomach, furred tongue, variable appetite and bowels, increased thirst, itching of the nostrils, bed-wetting,
wind colic, irritability, restlessness, grinding of teeth,
slow fever and often in children, convulsions.
When any of these symptoms are noticed, do not delay, but give Dr. True's Elixir at once and restore the patient to perfect, robust health. A few drops of the Elixir taken occasionally will guard against worms,
and if present will expel them.

HELD IN $4000 BONDS

Hold Up Man Pleads Guilty to Assault and Robbery Charge

Lawrence, Mass., Feb. 8.—Edward Gosse, aged 23, who claims to have been employed in the diplomatic service in an old world country, was brought into the police court in this city and held for the grand jury in bonds of $4000 on the charge of assault and robbery and also a charge of attempted robbery.
Gosse pleaded guilty to the assault and robbery charge, but pleaded not guilty to the charge of attempted robbery.

According to the police, Gosse entered the store of George G. Frederick at Methuen Wednesday night and held Frederick at bay at the point of a revolver while he rifled the cash drawer of its contents. Later, it is asserted, Gosse met Carroll Frisbee in a street in Methuen and attempted to rob him, but did not succeed.

To Improve Railroad Service
Boston, Feb. 8.—Recommendations that immediate steps be taken to improve the passenger and freight facilities of the Boston and Albany division of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad will be made to the board of directors of the New York Central, according to a statement made at the conclusion of a conference between Mayor Fitzgerald, merchants of this city and Vice Presidents Brown and Van Etten of the railroad company.

Robbed by One He Befriended Williamstown, Vt., Feb. 8.—While driving to his home in this village from Barre, Herbert C. Young, a lively stable keeper, was assaulted and robbed of $400 by a stranger whom he had overtaken on the road and invited him to ride. Young received a blow on the head, probably from a sandbag. His condition is regarded as somewhat serious.

A "New Home Week" Idea
Boston, Feb. 8.—The Candia club, composed of former residents of Candia,
N. H., inaugurated the "New Home Week" idea at a meeting here last night. The "New Home Week" plan is to show the same hospitality to country visitors in this city as has been extended to returning natives during
"Old Home Week."

Clubmen Going Before Grand Jury
Boston, Feb. 8.—Joseph H. O'Neil, Frank W. Wells and several other persons have been summoned to appear before the grand jury as witnesses against the officials of the Exchange club upon a charge of alleged violations of the excise law. Lieutenant Governor Draper is president of the Exchange club.

Verdict In Railroad Fatality
Winsted, Conn., Feb. 8.—Coroner
Higgins has made his finding in connection with the investigation into the rear-end collision on the Central New England railway at Canton, which resulted in the death of Conductor O'Neil.
No one is found to have been criminally negligent.

France and Russia Are Friends
Paris, Feb. 8.—There was a notable demonstration in the chamber of deputies in favor of the Franco-Russian alliance. M. Tichon, the foreign minister, declared that France and Russia are mutually supporting each other every day, thus contributing to the peace of the world, and that the attachment of France to her ally is stronger than ever. His remarks were greeted with repeated rounds of applause.

Hits Theatre Ticket Agents
New York, Feb. 8.—Asserting that speculation in theatre tickets had brought much criticism upon the managers of theatres in New York city, the managers of many of the theatres in the city have decided to end the unpleasantness by allowing no speculation and discontinuing the sale of tickets to agents and managers of news stands in the more important hotels.

Relief For Famine Sufferers
Washington, Feb. 8.—The state department has cabled Minister Rockhill at Peking that the American National Red Cross has sent $40,000, of which $35,000 was contributed by the Christian Herald, for the famine sufferers, as well as 300 tons of flour. The Red Cross will, in the near future, ship contributions of 7000 bushels of seed wheat.

Death of Actress Urquhart
Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Isabella Urquhart, the actress, who had been ill for two weeks, died suddenly last night of internal hemorrhages. Miss Urquhart was to have appeared here at the Cook Opera house, but when she opened the city her condition was so serious that she was taken to a hospital, where she was operated on for appendicitis.

The Thomas Mine Disaster
Elkins, W. Va., Feb. 8.—After having explored the Thomas mine where an explosion occurred last Monday, 22 bodies have been found. Including the death of Mine Boss Jones, who was overcome while trying to rescue bodies, this brings the complete list of fatalities up to 23.

Defective Switch Causes Wreck
Freeport, Ill., Feb. 8.—A defective switch caused the wreck of a passenger train at German Valley. The engine dashed into a grain elevator. Engineer Cline and two railway mail clerks were killed.

Queen Teie's Tomb Found London, Feb. 8.—The Times announces the sensational discovery by Theodore Davis at Thebes, or Luxor, in Egypt, of the tomb and mummy of the famous Egyptian queen Teie.

Theodore Lindquist and Gustaf B. Gustafson were unsuccessful in their cases against J. O. A. Field in the Norfolk Superior Civil court on Thursday, verdicts being given the defendant.

It would be well for a policeman to be stationed at the Atlantic beach to warn boys to keep off the bay for accidents must follow if the young people will insist on walking out over the crust. The recent fall of snow has hidden many large holes in the ice.

The funeral of Miss Annie C. Larson was held this morning from the residence of Thomas P. Healy at 346 Adams street, and was followed by a requiem mass at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock, which was celebrated by Rev. George W. Healy of Newburyport. The burial was at St. Mary cemetery.

Dennis O'Neil has kept men at work on all the sidewalks in Atlantic since Tuesday's storm and the walking is excellent. Faxon road was so completely submerged in snow that the path is like entering a canyon, for the snow is on a level with the eyes on each side and piled up across the plains as far as the ocean.

NEW YEAR'S IN THE ORIENT

The Greetings and the Presents in China and Japan.

The most wonderful ceremonies connected with the new year occur in China and Japan. A Chinese city presents a busy and attractive spectacle on New Year's day. The streets are thronged with people dressed in gala attire. The mandarins are known by the red, blue, white and gilt balls on their caps. Gentlemen of rank and wealth are carried in palanquins. When friends meet they greet each other with "Kung-hi! Kung-hi!" which means, "I respectfully wish you joy." But instead of shaking hands in the American fashion each grasps his own hands, lifts them as high as his chin and with a sweeping motion throws them down as low as possible, bending the body at the same time. This is the mode of salutation among the Chinese. At the dawn of New Year's day the visits of congratulation begin, and New Year's gifts are sent to particular friends, always accompanied by a visiting ticket of red paper, on which are written the name of the donor and a list of the presents sent. These consist usually of silks, fine tea, sweetmeats, ornaments of personal wear, toys and souvenirs of various kinds. In Japan the custom is to send letters on rice paper to those in distant places, conveying the formal expression of the New Year's greetings. Presents of cooked rice, roasted peas, oranges and figs are offered to every one.—Leslie's Weekly.

ABUSE OF INDOORS.

We Rely Too Much on the Protection of Our Houses.

Houses were made for shelter, not for confinement; for freedom, not restraint. They were intended to enlarge our sphere of activities, not to diminish them.

They foster the family and make progress possible, but we should not abuse their protection. We have crawled away into their still and comfortable recesses, slept in their dry, clean chambers, toasted ourselves over their sheltered fires, read by their flickering lights and eaten from their bountiful boards so long that we are grown pale, timid, peevish and thankless within.

We have kept ourselves away from the wind and the sun and the lashing rain, from the feel of the earth underfoot and the sense of the leaves and stars overhead until we no longer know the keen and simple joys of being alive. We have set up barriers against the inclemency of nature and covered before her severe austerity until now we have forgotten how indispensable is all her kindly nurture, how tonic her rugged ways, how full of solace her assuaging calm.

Houses were only made to live in when it is too cold or too hot or too wet to live out of doors. Any other time out of doors is best. To sleep out of doors for a month is better than a trip to Europe.—Bliss Carman in Craftsman.

Facts About Building Stone.

Almost everybody knows the rule of the masons that stone used in building should be so placed that it will lie as it lay in its natural bed when quarried. But Francis W. Hoyt in the Engineering News says that this familiar rule is not always to be depended upon and needs in many cases to be supplemented with other precautions. There are three planes of fracture known to quarrymen. The rift is the direction in which the stone splits most easily, the grain that which is next easiest, the head that which offers the greatest resistance. In a paving block the two sides represent the rift fracture, the top and bottom the grain and the ends the head. But in a quarry the natural bed is sometimes considerably inclined to the plane of the rift; hence the imperfection of the ordinary rule for placing the stone in building.

Ysleta.

St. Augustine, Fla., founded by the Spaniards in 1564, is generally said to be the oldest European settlement within the present limits of the United States, but some twenty or thirty years earlier Coronado, the Spanish conqueror and explorer, leading an expedition from the City of Mexico northward, had founded some sort of a Spanish colony at the ancient Indian village of Ysleta, in El Paso county, Tex. In the southwest it is therefore claimed that Ysleta is the oldest European settlement in the United States.—St. Louis Republic.

Good Answer.

A theological student supposed to be deficient in judgment was asked by a professor in the course of a class examination:

"Pray, Mr. E., how would you discover a fool?"

"By the questions he would ask," was the rather stunning reply.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

 "Forty. There's ten years' difference between us."

Rheumatism Badly Cripples
A Baldwinsville Farmer
URIC-O Quickly Cured Him.

Treated 2 Years With a High-Priced Physician With No Success.

Mr. Frank Howe, a prominent farmer in the town of Van Buren, says: "I visited the best physician in Syracuse, who treated me for about two years for rheumatism. I spent in that time several hundred dollars and seemed to grow worse instead of better each day. Being on crutches and forced to drive to the train and hobbling to the doctor's office became very discouraging, let alone the sleepless nights and fearful hours of pain. I was advised to quit doctoring and try Smith's Specific URIC-O. I purchased a seventy-five cent bottle, took it home and used it that day as directed.

"Those fearful searing pains left me, my blood seemed to let loose and flow freely. I felt different and knew the next morning I had found a cure, as I slept and rested well that night, something I had not done before in two years. I used in all six bottles of URIC-O and have never felt a return of the disease, had no use of crutches or cane since the first day's treatment. I know that URIC-O does not contain Alcohol or opiates and that it works in a wonderful way on the blood, bladder, muscles and kidneys and is the only way on earth to cure rheumatism."

Baldwinsville, N. Y., R. F. D.
 URIC-O is sold at seventy-five cents per bottle, is a liquid internal treatment good for rheumatism only, and will cure each and every case of rheumatism if properly used. Samples and circulars will be cheerfully sent free by addressing The Smith Drug Company, Syracuse, N. Y.

URIC-O is sold in Quincy by E. J. Murphy, who highly recommends the remedy.

Chapter I—Bradley Nickerson, an orphan, twelve years of age, arrives at Orahm, Mass., to live with his cousins, Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy Allen, old maids. In the Orahm stage he meets Captain Ezra Titcomb, master of a coasting schooner, home for a brief vacation. Captain Titcomb visits the Allen old maids, to each of whom he presents a fan, one the exact counterpart of the other. III—Bradley becomes acquainted with Augusta ("Gusty") Baker a girl of about his age, who lives next door. She owns several dogs. Bradley is sent to the village school and gets a whipping for fighting with Sam Hammond, a fellow pupil. IV—Captain Titcomb on his periodical visits to Orahm is very kind to Bradley. Bradley delivers an "address" at the "last day" exercises at the Orahm school. Prissy informs Tempy that evening that their resources are practically exhausted. V—Bradley overhears the conversation and consults Captain Titcomb, who agrees to take him on his ship as a sort of cabin boy.

VI—Bradley's first trip as a sailor. He goes to New York and the captain takes him to the theatre. Bradley visits Orahm at the end of three months and learns that through the instrumentality of Captain Titcomb Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy are receiving regular contributions from the Sampson fund for the children of shipmasters. The "old maids" have no knowledge of Titcomb's connection with the matter.

VII—Bradley is now twenty years old and is second mate of Titcomb's vessel, the Thomas Doane. Titcomb, the Thomas Doane, is injured on the trip and is laid up in his cabin, when Bradley, in an effort to prevent the first mate from running the schooner on a shoal, overpowers that officer and locks him up. When Titcomb is well enough, Bradley learns that the schooner was to have been wrecked with Titcomb's consent, by the owner's orders. Bradley is horrified, and Titcomb, agreeing with him that "honesty is the best policy," they both leave.

"Wreck a vessel for her insurance!" groaned Bradley. "I didn't think you'd do it, Cap'n Ez. I didn't think you'd do it."

The dismay, the griefed disappointment and horror in his friend's tone, seemed to hurt Captain Titcomb sorely. He glanced at Bradley and then looked away again.

"I've heard all sorts of yarns about you in Orahm," went on Bradley. "They say you're too smart and that you'll bear watching and all that. I've called those that said it liars, and I've stood by you through thick and thin. But now—What do you think they'd say if they knew of this? What do you think Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy would say? Why, they'd believe you're the best!"

The captain broke in testily. "Never mind all that," he said. "As for 'Squealer' Wilson and Jabe Bailey's, I don't care a snap. And the old maids ain't exactly up to date in this world's way of lookin' at things. S'pose the old Doane was booked for thunder by the shoal route—what of it? Mind, I only say s'pose. Better to go that way on a smooth night, with all hands saved, than to bust up in a squall and drown us all, as was likely to happen any minute. Nobody loses but the insurance folks, and they'd lose quick enough anyhow. Why, it's done a hundred times a year all along this coast. 'Member when the Bay Queen piled up on the beach off Setucket last summer? Everybody was as sartin as could be that 'twas done a purpose, but you couldn't prove nothin'. So with the Rhoda Horton and the Banner and any quinnar more. S'pose—mind, I'm only s'posin'—that you'd got orders from your owners—orders, you understand—to do something you didn't like? S'pose you'd always stuck to owners' orders a good deal closer'n you had to the Bible? What would you have done?"

"I'd have been honest and said 'No.'"
 "Hump! Well, I guess you would. You're the nearest thing to an honest man that I've run across yet. Honesty is the best policy, they say. But was it honesty that made half the millionaires? Are Williams Bros. rich because they're always been honest? Josh Bangs is in the poorhouse, and he's the most honest critter in Orahm, while his brother Sol is chairman of school committee, deacon in the church, has money in the bank and would skin the eye-teeth out of a down east horse jockey. Why?"

"Cap'n Ez," interrupted Bradley, "stop talkin' that way. You don't believe a word of it. I know you too well. The trouble with you is that everlasting 'owners' orders.' I almost think that that accident last night was, as Miss Tempy would say, 'sent' to keep you from doing something you'd be sorry for all the rest of your days." The captain looked at the speaker oddly. "Then you call 'late,' he said, "that I ought to thank God 'Amighty and a tipsy fo'mast hand for savin' what the book folks would call my honor? That's all right; only wait till Williams Bros. send me their thanks on a clean plate with gilt doodads round the edges. Williams Bros. and your particular friend, Mr. Burke, ain't been heard from yet. My son, Well, Brad, I s'pose you'll be packin' up tonight anyway. An honest man, 'cordin' to your log, ain't needed on the Thomas Doane. I told you you ought to ship 'board the Arrow."

"I didn't ship on the Arrow because I'd rather be with you than anybody else on earth. I wouldn't sail with a rascal that would wreck a schooner, and I don't believe I know you're not a rascal. Oh, can't you see? It isn't my fault I'm thinking about—it's you—you!"

The captain took his knife from his pocket and whittled a corner off the cabin table before replying. Then he said slowly:

"Much obliged, Brad. But what do you s'pose Williams Bros. will want me to do when they give me orders for this liner's next trip?"

"I don't know."

"S'pose those orders are the same as the last, what then?"

"Then say 'No,' like an honest man." Captain Ezra gave a short laugh.

"Honesty, my son, is like d'monds sometimes—it's pretty, but it comes high. You turn in. I'm goin' to set up awhile and smoke."

Bradley reluctantly went to bed, but when he awoke, several hours later, he heard the captain stirring in his stateroom.

Next morning the skipper received a telegram.

"Williams Bros., havin' heard from friend Burke, want to have a little chat with the commander of the clipper Thomas Doane," he remarked to Bradley. "That doctor squiggle" my mainpaw with his physic stuff has made me feel A1 again. I'm goin' to New York tonight on the Fall River line."

And he went, leaving Mr. Burke in command of the schooner, a state of affairs not too delightful to Bradley. But the captain's stay was a short one. He was back on board early the second morning and called the second mate into the cabin.

The Scrap Book

Elsewhere in this issue we present the first installment of a new feature, the "Scrap Book," which we commend to the attention of our readers. To neglect to read it would be as if one were to fail to pick up a dollar bill which was honestly one's own for the taking. He who reads will get at least five or six laughs which will stir his liver, kill the microbes in his system, and strengthen his whole organism against disease, dejection, cowardice and all other insidious enemies of our kind. He will also be inspired by a noble little poem, by pathetic and heroic passages, and by the wisdom of the wisest. He who reads will be a better and happier soul for the reading.

Good as a dollar? By Jupiter, we wrong ourselves by the comparison! It is good as health, good as wisdom, good as laughter, good as sympathy and heroic example—good as the most precious things known to us poor mortals struggling through the mystery, toil and trouble of life!

Miss Addie J. Park and Mr. B. E. Guy, who have been in Cuba since the earthquake at Kingston, left Havana on Saturday in company of Mrs. James A. Knowlton and Miss Harriet F. Knowlton of Swampscott for New Orleans, for a stay during the Mardi Gras.

Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Cushing Lane, nee Morse, who were married the middle of December in Boston will be at home the last three Wednesdays in February at 12 Marion road, Watertown. Quincy friends are planning to call.

Friends of Mrs. Wilson Tisdale were surprised to learn that she had sailed last week for a five months' trip abroad. It was also somewhat of a surprise to Mrs. Tisdale as she had not planned to go. She was calling on friends who were about sailing and was urged to join them, which she did at a few hours notice. The trip will doubtless be all the more enjoyable for its unexpectedness.

The many friends of Mrs. Florence Peltier Pope of Billings street will be interested in her article which appeared in the February Good Housekeeping, taken from Chinese Folk Lore.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Fernald Brewer of Summer street announce the marriage of their niece Mary Dole Brewer and Mr. Charles Henry Wilson, on Tuesday, the fifth day of February. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will be at home Monday afternoons in April at 257 Granite street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hillman Eggleston of Cleveland, Ohio, celebrated the first anniversary of their wedding, Feb. 2d with a dinner at the Colonial hotel. Covers were laid for six.

On Thursday, Feb. 14th, the literature class will meet as usual at half past ten at the club house with Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney in charge. Among the books to be discussed will be those of Gissing and Stevenson.

F. Hopkinson Smith is having an exhibition of views in water color at the Doll & Richards gallery, Park street, Boston, consisting of scenes in Italy, Normandy, Sweden and England.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman F. McIntire of Presidents hill left town this week for the south, where they will enjoy balmy breezes for a few weeks.

The Shakespeare club met with Mrs. Lyndon Gurney of Walker street Thursday afternoon and continued the reading of Hamlet. The parts have been very well assigned in this play and the reading is made doubly interesting. The club has adopted a new set of by-laws.

The Current Events club have decided to change their meetings to Friday afternoons instead of Friday evenings.

Mrs. George B. Rice, (Jennette Noyes) as usual is to keep open house on February twelfth, Lincoln's birthday, and her friends are cordially invited to call during the day. Dr. and Mrs. Rice are now living at 74 Pleasant street, Brookline.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Adams, who are in Boston for the winter, are contemplating going south for a few weeks, enjoying their usual stay at Washington.

Miss Helen Claffin and Miss Georgiana C. Lane have issued invitations for a subscription dancing party to be held at Colonial hall on Tuesday evening, February twelfth, from eight until eleven.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Edwards, who have been spending several weeks at The Greenleaf, enjoying the midwinter season in Quincy, have returned to Orleans on the Cape.

Mr. and Mrs. James Henry Stetson of School street are leaving the first of the week for the south where they will make their annual visit to various resorts. As usual they will be accompanied by friends whom they will join en route.

The Theta Sigma club met Friday evening at the home of Miss Smith of Franklin street. Bridge whist was enjoyed.

Another pleasant evening was passed on Monday in Livermore hall, at the Quincy Mansion school, when pupils and several friends enjoyed listening to the recital of Hamlet by Prof. Blanchard of Chicago university. All were pleased with his interpretation.

At the meeting of the Ladies Benevolent Society at the Atlantic Memorial church next Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Mrs. W. H. Doble of Quincy will speak on the "Discipline of children during the formative period." Refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Ella C. Richards a well known club woman of Weymouth is leaving next Tuesday for Southern California on a pleasure trip.

HEAVY TAXPAYERS

Many Assessed
On Valuation
Of Over $5,377
Some On Million

Not for several years has a list of the heavy taxpayers of the city been published and there have been so many changes in valuation and ownership that the list below of those whose assessments are over $200.00 will be of interest.

The tax rate of the city in 1906 was $18.00, so that every assessment of $100 represents a valuation of $5,377.00. The Daily Ledger has therefore prepared the following summary which will be found handy when the assessment is known:

	Represents Valuation of
Tax of $100.....	$5,377
Tax of $200.....	$10,754
Tax of $300.....	$16,131
Tax of $400.....	$21,508
Tax of $500.....	$26,885
Tax of $1,000.....	$53,770
Tax of $2,000.....	$107,540
Tax of $5,000.....	$268,850
Tax of $10,000.....	$537,700
Tax of $20,000.....	$1,075,400
Tax of $30,000.....	$1,613,100
Tax of $40,000.....	$2,150,800

It will be seen that Quincy has many heavy taxpayers, some assessed upon a valuation in excess of a million dollars. The list will be continued from day to day:

CRESCENT STREET

Representative
E. J. Sandberg
Successful
In His Interview

The following letter from Representative Sandberg to President Williams of the Board of Trade shows that he lost no time in taking up the matter of traffic on Crescent street, which was referred to him at the annual meeting of the board this week, with the Metropolitan Park Commission.

President Williams is highly elated at the success of Representative Sandberg and has called a special meeting of the directors for tonight, when the report will be discussed and action will probably be taken to bring the matter before the City Council at its meeting Feb. 18.

Quincy, February 8, 1907.

Mr. T. L. Williams, President Quincy Board of Trade:

Dear Sir—Pursuant to the resolution that the Board of Trade adopted at its meeting on the evening of the 6th inst., that steps be taken to secure a right of way for general travel across the Metropolitan Park Reservation from Crescent street to Copeland street, I took the matter up today with the Park Commissioners as requested by your Board and they will make formal answer to my requests in a communication to the City Government.

I may inform your Board at this time however, that the Commissioners at first met my requests by informing me that seven years ago the City Council voted to have the portion in question of Crescent street discontinued and have the boulevard laid out as at present. But after a thorough discussion of the present inconvenient and unsatisfactory conditions, in which I urged upon them the rights of the citizens of Quincy, as their representative, they made the following propositions:

1. Access will be allowed over the portion of the boulevard in question in the City will pave or macadamize that part, a distance of about three hundred feet. As at present constructed, the roadbed will sustain only light vehicles having been built for pleasure driving only, and cannot be used in its present condition for heavy touring.

2. Or, if the City can obtain control of the land bordering on the boulevard at the point in question, the Commissioners will give more than ordinary consideration to a proposal that they cause to be built a road for the general public connecting Crescent and Copeland streets at the points desired.

I take this opportunity of assuring you that the Commissioners are by no means indifferent to the desires and rights of the people of Quincy. My conference with them satisfied me that they stand ready and willing to do anything within their proper authority to serve our interests, and on the whole I am well pleased with the prospect of having the Crescent street difficulty overcome as a result of their considerate co-operation with us.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD J. SANDBERG.

Pi Delta Alpha.

A very pleasing entertainment was given Friday evening by the Pi Delta Alpha at Wollaston. The entertainer was Mr. Maynard who was assisted by Miss Ruth Ackerman, Miss Ida Bland and George Beechey. Mr. Maynard was down on the program for seven monologues and imitations, each of which was rendered in a pleasing manner. Miss Bland and Mr. Beechey were heard in monologues and songs, and Miss Ackerman, who is but 7 years of age, in songs.

Galahad Club

The boys of the Galahad club of Christ church will give a patriotic entertainment at the parish house on Tuesday evening. The program includes papers by Albert Jones, James King, Forrest Royal, Ellis Young and Hammond Pride. Russell Westland will recite the "Speech at Gettysburg" and George Q. Reynolds will read Whittier's "Slave Girl." There will also be a series of living pictures of patriotic scenes interspersed with patriotic songs by William Warrington and Ambrose Newcomb, illustrated by the stereopticon.

TALE IS UNFINISHED

Evelyn Thaw Is to Give Further Direct Testimony

PROTEST FROM JEROME

Objects to "Detachment of Dead Man"—White Had Begged to See Mrs Thaw Alone After Experiencing In Mirrored Room—Proposal From Barrow and Plot to Down Thaw

New York, Feb. 9.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw again yesterday was the central figure at her husband's trial. She was still on the stand—her direct examination unfinished—when the usual week-end adjournment until Monday morning was taken.

Picking up the threads of her life's story where she had dropped them the evening before, she brought the narrative down to her wedding in Pittsburg, on April 4, 1905, and their return to New York following a honeymoon trip in the west. She declared she had heard White call to her on the street once after this and that on another occasion when she passed him in a cab she noticed his cab turn around and follow her in the direction of a doctor's office, where she was going to have her throat treated.

Mrs. Thaw had taken up the story at the time of her trip from Europe in October, 1903, following her refusal of Thaw's offer of marriage on the grounds previously related. On Monday she may be called upon to finish the relation of the events which, it is claimed, brought on the explosive impulse in the diseased brain of the defendant and caused the killing of Stanford White.

White yesterday's testimony was lacking in the vital personal quality which made Thursday's recital so dramatic and pathetic, it served to clear away some of the doubts and inferences which remained from the incomplete details as to the full extent of the revelations she claims to have made to her husband.

District Attorney Jerome, who had throughout silently listened to the wife's statements, sent a thrill of excitement through the courtroom during the day by jumping to his feet and vigorously protesting against "this defamation of the dead." In tones bitterly sarcastic, he spoke of "this tattle of the Tenderloin" and declared that the court had the right to limit such testimony "until competent evidence has been adduced here to show that this man is, or was, of unsound mind. We don't know whether this defendant even was insane," he concluded.

The question which called out the vehement protest from the district attorney was addressed to Mrs. Thaw by Delmas, and its purport was whether or not Harry Thaw had at any time told her about "other girls who had met a fate similar to your's at the hands of this man."

"What man?" snapped Jerome. "Stanford White," replied Delmas, with the calmness of voice and manner characteristic of him; and then he added still in the same low tone, "who else?"

Justice Fitzgerald held that the district attorney's suggestion was a good one and he thought the defense should lay broader foundation to show insanity before proceeding along the lines suggested by Delmas' question.

"We will proceed to do so as soon as possible," announced the attorney.

Mrs. Thaw declared that White, during the year which followed her experience in the room of the mirrored walls, repeatedly sought to have her visit him alone.

"I told Harry," she said, "that Mr. White had begged me, had pleaded and cried and scolded, and done everything he could to make me come to see him alone. I refused and he told me I was as cold as a fish and not a human being. I told Mr. White I didn't care to trust him."

After her return from Europe and during the months she would not see Harry Thaw "because of the dreadful things Mr. White and his friends told me about him," she declared Thaw accused her of improper relations with the architect. "I told him it was a lie and that I had not," she testified.

The defense had Mrs. Thaw tell of another incident which has been cited in her life—her acquaintance with "Jack" Barrymore, the actor. Delmas asked Mrs. Thaw to tell what she had told Thaw of her acquaintance with the actor.

She said she had first met Barrymore at a party, given by White, the year following her introduction to the architect. "I thought him very nice," she said. "and one day at Mr. White's studio he said 'Evelyn, will you marry me?' I said, 'I don't know.' He asked me a second time and I again said 'I don't know' and everybody laughed."

"Mr. White told me I would be very foolish to marry Mr. Barrymore and my mother said so too, and we all quarreled and the upshot of the whole thing was that Mr. White said I ought to be sent away to school, and I was, to New Jersey."

There was another great crowd in the courtroom yesterday, every available bit of space being occupied by persons sitting in the regular court benches and others who were fortunate enough to have chairs fetched for their use. The dramatic thrills of the day before were not there, however, and the crowd did not seem loath to leave when adjournment was taken more than an hour earlier than usual.

The day began with a continuance of the reading of the letters from Harry Thaw to Mr. Longfellow, his counsel, written after Evelyn Nesbit's relations to her suitor in Paris. There were others, too, which Thaw had sent the attorney to deliver to Miss Nesbit, who at the time would not see him. Mrs. Thaw followed these with a relation of her experiences with Stanford White and Abraham Hummel concerning the alleged affidavit which she made charging Harry Thaw with having taken her from her mother against her will, and with gross cruelty.

Mrs. Thaw told how she had been induced to answer some questions about herself and Thaw at the time and had been told the stories about his "crucifixes to girls." White had told her, she declared, that it was necessary to take drastic measures to protect her from such a person and that Thaw must be kept out of New York. She denied that she had ever signed any papers in Hummel's office, but said she remembered having signed some papers for White in "his offices," the contents of which she did not know. When she got frightened about the papers and demanded to see them, she said White took her to Hummel's office and there they burned a paper which had her name at the bottom of it. She was not allowed to see what the paper contained before it was destroyed.

This feature of Mrs. Thaw's story was made amusing at times by her interjections of the names which Harry Thaw had applied to the lawyer and White's agitated questioning as to what she had told Hummel about him. She declared she had told the lawyer nothing.

"Well," Mr. White said to me, she went on, "there is something wrong somewhere. He has just squeezed a thousand dollars out of me and the Lord only knows how soon he will squeeze another." I then remembered having told Mr. Hummel when he threatened things about Mr. Thaw that he had better be careful, for Mr. Thaw knew a lot of terrible things about Stanford White."

The defense endeavored to get into evidence the wills of Harry Thaw and Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, executed the night of their wedding in Pittsburg. There were so many interjections, additions and erasures, that Justice Fitzgerald held the documents were not admissible until the changes were proved. Delmas said he would later endeavor to do this, as the wills and the interjections and a codicil by Thaw had to do with the proof tending to show the insanity of the defendant. It came out in a discussion of the wills that the name of Stanford White occurred in Thaw's testament.

Paris Feels Stories About Thaw
Paris, Feb. 9.—The newspapers of Paris are devoting much space to the proceedings of the Thaw trial in New York and as a result a number of persons are coming forward anxious to testify to Thaw's alleged escapades in Paris, which they declare can only be explained on the ground that he was insane. A woman from whom Thaw rented an apartment in this city has recounted numerous episodes of Thaw's stay. Another woman says that she figured in the "bathtub incident" and makes further allegations of maltreatment at the hands of Thaw, declaring that he gave her $2000 to compensate her for the injuries she sustained.

Jesse James a Full Fledged Lawyer
Kansas City, Feb. 9.—Jesse James, Jr., son of the bandit, and who was himself tried and acquitted on a charge of train robbery several years ago, appeared last night as counsel for the defense in the trial of Albert H. Crane, charged with the murder of his former sweetheart, Bertha Bowin. It was James' maiden speech. His plea was argumentative and he made no effort to be oratorical. The case was given to the jury last night.

Count Boni Misses Funds
Paris, Feb. 9.—It is currently reported that Count Boni de Castellane, from whom his wife, who was Miss Anna Gould of New York, secured a divorce in the French courts last November, is about to appeal against the decision of the court.

General Trade Interrupted
New York, Feb. 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that severe storms restricted new business in many sections of the country during the week and increased the delay in making deliveries on old orders. Low temperature and snow stimulated activity in seasonable lines of merchandise at retail, but the interruption to general trade was sufficient to retard distribution considerably.

Engineer and Fireman Killed
Ossining, N. Y., Feb. 9.—The engineer and fireman of an express train were killed and five other persons, four of them passengers, injured when the express "side-swiped" a freight engine at a switch near this village. Snow and consequent slippery condition of the rails is supposed to have been responsible for the accident.

Record in Pension Legislation
Washington, Feb. 9.—The house, in an hour and a half, passed 725 private pension bills, the highest record attained by the house in pension legislation, the next largest number of bills passed in a day being 620.

Chapter 1—Bradley Nickerson, an orphan, twelve years of age, arrives at Orham, Mass., to live with his cousins, Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy Allen, old maids. In the Orham stage he meets Captain Ezra Titcomb, master of a coasting schooner, home for a brief vacation. II—Captain Titcomb visits the Allen old maids, to each of whom he presents a fan, one the exact counterpart of the other. III—Bradley becomes acquainted with Augusta ("Gussy") Baker a girl of about his age, who lives next door. She owns several dogs. Bradley is sent to the village school and gets a whipping for fighting with Sam Hammond, a fellow pupil. IV—Captain Titcomb on his periodical visits to Orham is very kind to Bradley. Bradley delivers an "address" at the "last day" exercises at the Orham school. Prissy informs Tempy that evening that their resources are practically exhausted. V—Bradley overhears the conversation and consults Captain Titcomb, who agrees to take him on his ship as a sort of cabin boy.

VI—Bradley's first trip as a sailor. He goes to New York, and the captain takes him to the theatre. Bradley visits Orham at the end of three months and learns that through the instrumentality of Captain Titcomb Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy are receiving regular contributions from the Samspon fund for the children of shipmasters. The "old maids" have no knowledge of Titcomb's connection with the matter.

VII—Bradley is now twenty years old and is second mate of Titcomb's vessel, the Thomas Doane. Titcomb is injured on the trip and is laid up in his cabin. When Bradley, in an effort to prevent the first mate from running the schooner on a shoal, overpowers that officer and locks him up. When Titcomb is well enough Bradley learns that the schooner was to have been wrecked with Titcomb's consent, by the owner's orders. Bradley is horrified, and Titcomb, agreeing with him that "honesty is the best policy," they both leave.

CHAPTER VIII.
Bradley, asked Captain Titcomb, creasing the morning paper into folds and tossing it on the bed, "what are you plannin' to do now that our late lamented owners have committed financial suicide by cuttin' you off in the flower of your youth, so to speak?" It was late the morning of the third day after the captain's return from his flying visit to New York. They had said goodbye to the Thomas Doane the previous forenoon and were now occupying a room in the United States hotel.

Bradley, who was sitting by the window, looking down upon the hats of the people in the narrow street, answered slowly: "I don't know. I've been waiting to find out what you intended doing."

The captain crossed his legs and tilted back in his chair. "I callate," he observed, "that I could walk out of this gilded palace of luxury and run afoul of an hour skipper's berth inside of an hour. Not at my old wages, of course, but a pretty fair berth, all the same. But, fact is, Brad, I've had a kink in my main sheet for a considerable spell. I've had a notion that some day I was going to cut loose and cruise on my own hook. You know I've looked at it for over a year. Now, it hints as if this was my chance or never. Brad, how'd you like to be a wrecker?"

"A wrecker?" Bradley's face showed his absolute astonishment. "Oh, I don't mean the line of wreckin' that is makin' your eyes stick out at this minute. Do you know Caleb Burgess, Cap'n Jerry's cousin?"

Yes, Bradley knew him. He owned a little schooner that flitted along the Cape Cod coast, picking up floating wreckage when it was of value, dragging for anchors, dredging for chains and ironwork lost by vessels in trouble and doing a sort of nautical old junk business.

"Well," went on the captain, "Caleb's gittin' old, and he'd like to sell out. Most folks think he's scratched a bare livin' from the shoals, but I happen to know that he's done a good deal better than that. The old man told me how much he had in the bank, and it wasn't to be sneezed at. Now, I could buy that schooner of his cheap. She isn't much, and money would have to be spent on her, but she'd do for a start. You understand, the wreckin' business I'd do wouldn't be anchor draggin' alone. There's money in a first class wreckin' plant on Cape Cod. Wreckin'! Why, they pile up there three deep every winter. Now, listen a minute, while I rise to blow."

Bradley listened, and the captain talked. He had evidently given much thought to this proposition, and his plans were ambitious. He believed that if a capable man bought the Lizzie—that was the name of the Burgess schooner—added to her equipment and sailed her himself he could build up a profitable business. The salvage of cargoes of stranded schooners and of the schooners themselves played a large part in his plans. One or two good sized jobs of this kind taken on a commission basis would bring in capital enough to warrant the purchase of a bigger vessel, fitted with auxiliary power, fitted with a diving equipment, derricks and the like.

"But wouldn't that take capital?" "Sartin sure. But let me—us—prove that the profit's there and the capital 'll be donated, like frozen potatoes at a minister's surprise party. Oh, I've thought it out! Now, here!"

The captain's plan for Bradley's co-operation was, briefly stated, just this: He (Captain Titcomb) would provide the money for buying the Lizzie and whatever else was immediately necessary. Bradley would contribute his savings to the pile. They were to be partners on equal shares, but Bradley was to pay from his share of whatever profits might come from time to time the amount necessary to make his investment the equal of the captain's. No new move was to be made without the consent of both partners. It was a very generous offer, and Bradley said so.

"No generosity about it," protested Captain Ezra. "I'm lookin' out for myself, and need you, as the tipsy man said to the lamp post. I tell you, honest, I shan't go into this thing unless you go in with me. Maybe it's a fool notion anyway. Well, there," he concluded, "now that I've unloaded my mind, we'll go down to the Cape this afternoon. I'll look round, and you take a week to think things over in. At the end of the week you can say 'Yes' or 'No.'"

They caught the 4 o'clock train for Orham.

The "old maids" were washing the supper dishes when Bradley surprised them by walking into the dining room. When the first shock was over the sisters were the most delighted pair in Orham. They insisted on preparing a brand new meal for their "boy," and no amount of protestation on his part could change their minds.

They were very curious to know why Bradley had come home so unexpectedly, and when they learned that he had left the Thomas Doane and not only that, but that the captain also had left, they asked one question after another. Bradley simply said that the captain had other plans and that he couldn't tell what they were yet.

After supper they adjourned to the sitting room. Bradley was uneasy and several times glanced at the clock. After awhile he said that, if they didn't mind, he should like to go out for an hour or so. Of course, the sisters said, they "didn't mind," and he put on his hat and went.

Miss Prissy's shrewd guess wasn't far wrong. Bradley passed out of the Allen gate only to open the one of the yard adjoining. His knock at the side door apparently started a canine insurrection, for there was a tremendous barking and growling inside, and when old Mrs. Baker answered the knock the heads of Tuesday and Windfield, the only survivors of Gus' troop of pets, protruded from either side of her skirt. Both dogs and old lady were surprised and glad to see the visitor.

"Why, Bradley Nickerson!" exclaimed Mrs. Baker. "How do you do? Come right in, won't you? No, Gussy ain't in just now. It's prayer meetin' 'n' night, and she thought she'd go. Well, I'm sorry you won't step in and wait."

The Bakers attended the Baptist church, and thither walked Bradley, his hands in his pockets and his head full of the wrecking scheme.

It was nearly 9 o'clock, and the fence in front of the little church was ornamented by a row of Orham young men who were waiting for the meeting to come to an end.

Bradley joined the fence brigade and was hostily by half a dozen acquaintances, mostly old schoolfellows. He heard all the news and a lot more that might become news if it ever happened.

"Sam Hammond was down last month," so Hart Sears informed him. "Talk about duds! Say, Snuppy, wa'n't he a lulla-cooler?"

"I should smile if he wa'n't," replied "Snuppy" Black. "Gold watch—and clothes! You never saw such clothes! Sam's working for the Metropolitan Wrecking company, and he must be getting rich. And he has a good time in New York. 'Member those yarns about the girls, Hart?"

Sears laughed and winked knowingly. "Sam's a great feller for girls," he observed. "He was chasin' 'em down here, I tell you. Gus Baker was the one he chased most, but Gus can keep him guessin'. He ain't the only one that's been runnin' after her—hey, Snup?" Then the whole row laughed uproariously.

WARSHIPS HANDY

Are Preparing For Emergencies
In Central America

WAR CLOUDS GATHERING

America and Mexico Will Combine In Effort to Prevent a Clash of Arms Between Honduras and Nicaragua

Washington, Feb. 9.—Carrying out the wishes of the state department that a couple of American war vessels be kept in Central American waters, the navy department has dispatched the gunboat Marietta from Guantanamo to Greytown, on the gulf coast of Nicaragua, in addition to the cruiser Chicago, which has been sent down the west coast to Acapulco, Honduras, so that within a day or two there will be an American warship on each side of the scene of threatened trouble.

It is stated that the purpose of sending these ships to Central America is similar to that which inspired the order to the Marblehead last year, namely, to have a ship at the disposal of the American ministers if they should find it necessary to travel up and down the coasts in these countries, where communication by regular channels is so limited. Also they will of course protect any American property that may be endangered if disorders break out.

Consul Alger, at Tegucigalpa, Honduras, communicated with the American minister in Guatemala City (he being also accredited to Honduras) that the opinion at Tegucigalpa was that war between Honduras and Nicaragua was almost inevitable. The officials here, however, do not take any such pessimistic view, and believe that the combined efforts of Mexico and America will, without offending the pride of the Central American republics, result in convincing them that their differences can be settled without recourse to arms.

Without admitting the accuracy of the statement from the city of Mexico that, at the instance of the Washington government, the Mexican diplomatic representatives in Central America had been instructed to bring pressure to bear upon the governments to which they were accredited to prevent hostilities, it is said at the state department that correspondence has been exchanged between the department and the Mexican government to this end.

The Washington government regards itself as bound under the treaty of San Jose and the Marblehead pact to offer good offices to prevent warfare between the Central American republics, and as the republic of Mexico is under similar obligations, the two are trying to arrange a program whereby Mexico will represent the wishes of the United States as well as her own people in the case.

Attention is called to the fact that Nicaragua was not a party to the San Jose treaty, taking the ground that the settlement of disputes between the Central American republics by a reference to arbitration was already sufficiently provided for in the treaty of Corinto, concluded several years before.

This fact, however, does not, in the opinion of the officials here, relieve Honduras and Salvador from responsibility to abide by the provisions of the San Jose treaty, and if Nicaragua prefers to retain her position, and regards the treaty of Corinto as operative, then, according to the view here, she cannot resist an appeal by Mexico, supported by the United States, to adjust this present trouble by reference to arbitration.

Meanwhile, and as the first step toward the settlement, it is probable that both sides, and particularly Nicaragua, will be requested to desist from any increase of armament or concentration of forces on the borders pending the conclusion of an agreement for a final settlement of the present difficulty.

Two Presidents For Peace

Mexico City, Feb. 9.—At the instance of President Roosevelt, President Diaz has sent to the presidents of Guatemala, Salvador and Costa Rica a request that they use their united influence with the governments of Honduras and Nicaragua to induce them to suspend all preparations for war and give full freedom to the board of arbitration, which is now in session at Salvador, with the object of deciding the difficulties between Honduras and Nicaragua.

Two Schooners Missing

Norfolk Va., Feb. 9.—No word has been heard here either from the schooners M. V. B. or William H. Bailey and it is feared that one of them was the vessel which stranded on Diamond shoals and went to pieces there with all hands on board. It is believed the crew of the wrecked craft were lost.

Hatters to Return to Work

Orange, N. J., Feb. 9.—President Moffitt of the United Hatters of North America says that the striking hatters here will return to work on Monday and that there will be a peaceful solution of the strike problem. About 4700 hatters have been out for a week, having struck for higher wages.

Killed Brother in Self-Defense

St. Louis, Feb. 9.—Vernor Townley, who shot and killed his brother, Alfred N. Townley on Aug. 4, 1906, was acquitted of murder last evening. His defense was that he shot in self-defense, as his brother had drawn a knife.

JUDGE BLOWN TO PIECES

Recipient of an Internal Machine From Unknown Source

Patterson, N. J., Feb. 9.—Justice of the Peace Robert Cortese was almost literally blown to pieces last night in his office by the explosion of an infernal machine sent to him by express. He died at midnight.

The office was wrecked and the detonation was heard for blocks. Revenge for aid given the police in capturing foreign lawbreakers is assigned as the cause of the outrage.

Justice Cortese was 40 years old and of Italian descent. He had been home to supper last evening. While he was at home his son, Robert, was in charge of the office, and he received the infernal machine. It came from Newark and was delivered by an American Express wagon. It had been prepaid and the boy accepted it and signed the receipt book.

When Cortese reached the office, the boy handed the package to him. The outside wrapper was of paper tied around with strong twine. This Cortese cut or untied and took off the paper. Inside was another wrapping of paper, made fast with a small strap. The boy says he was watching curiously to see what the little box contained. His father rested the package on the desk and pulled the end of the strap toward him, so as to loosen the tongue of the buckle. To the moment he did so the explosion occurred.

Justice Cortese had been a justice for 12 years. He was shortly to be specially appointed a sergeant of detectives in recognition of the splendid work as a detective in aiding the police.

Wanamaker Mansion Destroyed

Philadelphia, Feb. 9.—Lyndhurst, the handsome country home of John Wanamaker at Cheltenham Hills, was destroyed by fire last night, entailing a loss of $1,500,000. The house cost $1,000,000 and it contained a collection of furniture, bric-a-brac, tapestry and paintings which Wanamaker had been 40 years in collecting. Mrs. Wanamaker had been collecting Venetian glass for many years and her collection was regarded as one of the finest extant. There were 50 rooms in the house and each room was furnished in distinctive style of some period in the world's history. Many of the furnishings were collected from the homes of royalty and cannot be replaced at any price. The paintings were of rare value.

Drink Led to Downfall

Newark, N. J., Feb. 9.—Eugene P. Pinchback, son of former Governor Pinchback of Louisiana, was arraigned here on a charge of forgery. He was remanded to await the action of federal authorities in Brooklyn, who want him on another serious charge. Pinchback was arrested last November for improper use of the mails in uttering a series of forgeries. He is a graduate of Harvard college and in 1902 he was admitted to the bar of Mississippi and in 1903 to the bar of Illinois. He was forced to leave Chicago late in 1903 because of irregularities in his practice. He says that his downfall was due to drink.

May Have to Leave Army

Washington, Feb. 9.—Secretary Taft has concluded his consideration of the record of proceedings of the court martial in the case of Captain Koehler, Fourth cavalry, who was tried in the Philippines on charges of making disrespectful remarks about Major General Wood. The understanding is that the court martial has sentenced Koehler to dismissal, and that Taft has decided to approve the findings.

Child Killed His Brother

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 9.—Edward King, aged 10, accidentally shot and killed his brother, Frank, aged 20, at their home last night. Edward saw his brother's revolver on a table. Seizing it, he pointed the pistol at Frank, saying: "Hello, Frank, how are you?" With this he pulled the trigger and Frank dropped dead, with a bullet in his brain.

War on Castro's Hands

New York, Feb. 9.—The Tribune says: The long planned insurrection of General Parades against President Castro of Venezuela has begun. Nicaragua Bolet, the local representative of Parades, received a cable dispatch yesterday from the revolutionary agent at Port of Spain, Trinidad, to that effect.

Seven Miners Probably Killed

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 9.—Seven miners are entombed in a colliery at Wanamie and miners acquainted with the workings of the colliery say there is little hope of rescuing any of them. Fire broke out in the shaft and the entombed men cannot be reached until the flames are extinguished.

Won't Double Guard at Present

Washington, Feb. 9.—President Taft, after a consultation with the president, has cabled Governor Magoon authority to suspend for the time being the execution of the decree recently prepared providing for an increase from 6000 to 12,000 of the rural guard of Cuba.

MISS IDA RIDDLE.

A Practical Philanthropist and a Student of Sociology.

Miss Ida Riddle of Omaha is a capable and energetic worker along philanthropic lines, is an earnest student of sociology and is anxious to help the unfortunate solve their own problems for themselves.

Miss Riddle is mother by proxy of twenty-three children, all of whom she has legally adopted according to the laws of Nebraska.

Miss Riddle is a charity worker and was at one time secretary of the Associated Charities of Omaha. This work carried her among the poorest class of people and has made her heart very warm toward the little children who need her help. She came across many cases in which the little ones were getting the worst of it either through indifference and neglect, and she tried in many ways to assist them.

One time when a drunken father and mother were in court for abusing their little girl the judge decided to take the child from the parents. Miss Riddle offered to legally adopt the child and to care for it until she could secure it a good home. The parents did not object, and soon Miss Riddle had a "family of one." The family was a success, and shortly afterward a second child was added thereto. For her two children Miss Riddle in time secured good homes, but she continued as their guardian and to watch out for their welfare.

But it remained for a Lincoln judge to appoint her guardian of a whole family. She had succeeded in rescuing a family of five children from a vagrant mother and had them taken into court for further disposal. There was neither juvenile court nor detention home for the strays. After a moment's consideration the judge settled matters by appointing Miss Riddle mother in chief to the entire bunch.

One at a time was not formidable, but five in a heap was a trifling over-whelming even to a benevolent worker like Miss Riddle. While she gasped just a little at the idea, she accepted the responsibility and busied herself in finding homes for the children.

Later Judge Sutton in Omaha repeated the incident and gave Miss Riddle another block of five, but she never flinched when she became the legal mother of so many.

"I try to visit all my wards once each week," says the much-mooted Miss Riddle. "I see that they are taken care of properly and are given good training. Occasionally I have to remove one from the home to which I first sent it, but in the main my children are all doing well, and I am proud of them. I love them all, and I believe they all love me. And I am going to adopt some more of them too. Twenty-three may seem like a great many for one 'mother' to watch over, but it's easy when you once get used to it."—Omaha World-Herald.

Do Not Neglect Your Sleep.

The inability to rest either at night or by means of short respites from activity during the day, says the Delinquent, is the beginning, with many women, of a nervous breakdown and should be heeded as nature's warning that all is not well and that the routine of life, whether of work or pleasure, must be closely scanned and so changed as to lessen the strain.

The amount of regular sleep required varies with the constitution, age and habits of life, the brain worker, whose drafts on vitality are the largest, needing the most. At least seven to nine hours' sleep are needed by all who lead active lives and would keep themselves physically and mentally at the summit of their powers. Physicians agree that woman commonly requires at least an hour's more sleep than man, but also that she bears deprivation of rest better. This is due, however, to the fact that in crises which demand wakefulness her sympathies and emotions are commonly involved, and the intensity of her interests keeps her alert. Not till the excitement, which in her is an exaltation of spirit holding her to her duty, is passed will she feel the loss of rest, but then she should yield herself to an increased amount of sleep, as should the brain worker after every unusual and prolonged effort.

About Electrolysis.

Although not a seriously painful operation, electrolysis causes sufficient smarting to make it dreaded by nervous individuals, and when such is the case it is generally worth while to deaden the skin by a preliminary application of cocaine. If the operation has been done completely and successfully, in a few days perhaps a little flake of skin falls off, and a minute scar is temporarily left which disappears in the course of a week or so. Those who object to the attendant discomforts of this simple operation can resort if they like to the less alarming procedure of applying a little lactic acid to the skin immediately over the blister. The lactic acid causes a little blister which, if it is sufficiently deep, will eventually cause an obliteration of the capillary vein. If this method be adopted it is essential, if no scar is to be left, that the blister when it forms should be protected from every possible damage. If the top of the blister be torn off and any bleeding granulations develop, if these are damaged in any way, a scar of some kind is very likely to take the place of the previous blemish, and the advantages of the operation are thus completely counteracted.

A Drawer For Scraps.

Every woman knows the value of a scrap bag to hold bits of silks, ribbons, lace and other "leftovers" from dress-making, which may be useful for patching or for some other purpose. But where a bag is used the coveted piece is sure to be down at the bottom, so that it is necessary to dump out the entire contents of the bag every time something is wanted out of it. Therefore it is better to devote a spare drawer in a bureau to scraps. Here the various rolls of laces and ribbons, each wrapped and pinned into tight bundles, may be spread out so that each one may be easily recognized. A box for buttons, old fringes and the like may be included among the contents of the drawer, which proves a boon to all who have tried it.

Monograms on Linen.

The custom of marking linen with indelible ink, practiced not many years ago by fashionables, has completely passed. Down to glass and pantry towels, household linen must now have an embroidered monogram," said a linen expert. "Tablecloths at present are marked with two monograms, one at either end of the cloth or diagonally at opposite corners. Sheets and pillowcases have a large embroidered monogram placed back of the hem-stitching, drawn work, embroidery or lace insertion which decorates the edge."

To Make a Pretty Collar Case.

A pretty collar case is made by taking four pieces of cardboard a little longer and wider than the collars. Cover two pieces with figured silk and two with plain. Put a piece of perforated wadding between each plain and figured piece and overseam. Take the two pieces after they are overseamed together and tie at the back with narrow ribbon and at each end. These cases are nice to keep the collars smooth and in order.

Care of the Bathroom.

The care of the bathroom is simplified wonderfully if each person leaves it as clean as it was found. In one house where there is a single maid to do all the work the bathroom shelf holds a small bottle of kerosene oil and a soft linen cloth, and the merest rub leaves the tub immaculate, the smell of the oil being quite gone after opening the window for a moment.

Colored Embroideries.

Teplid water with a good soap and a pinch of salt in it is a good way to clean colored embroideries. Care must be taken not to rub the soap into the embroidery, and when it has been gently pressed rinse it out in a basin of clean tepid water. It must be wrung out carefully and then placed right side down between two clean cloths and ironed while still wet.

White China Silk Blouses.

Never wash white china silk blouses in hot water. It will turn them yellow after they have been laundered a few times. A lather should be made from white laundry soap, and in this rub the waist lightly. Then rinse in warm water to which a little ammonia has been added. A last rinsing in bluing water will help to keep the silk white.

For the Kitchen.

Very useful in the kitchen is a table or wide shelf covered with zinc where hot cooking utensils may be placed when taken from the fire. It will be a great saving to your enameled sink. Zinc is easily kept clean by daily washing with soap and hot water.

Smelling Salts.

Do not throw away your smelling salts when the liquid has evaporated, leaving them dry, and you think you have had them so long a time that they are no longer of any use. Renew them. That is, pour over any used smelling ammonia—violet, lavender or whatever the salts may have been originally.

Flush goods and all articles dyed with aniline dyes which have faded from exposure to the light will look as bright as new after sponging with chloroform.

A bedspread with the worn portions cut out and the good trimmed into shape and hemmed makes excellent towels for the children's use in the bathroom.

It is important to call in medical help if the child appears stunned for a few minutes after a fall.

If women would take more milk and less meat, their milk would grow velvety.

CAUSE OF IRELANDEspoused by Member of Parliament
And Others

The interest of the Irish-Americans of Quincy and vicinity in the freedom of Ireland was shown last evening at a well attended mass meeting under the auspices of Quincy branch, Irish National League.

The speakers were Richard Hazelton,
M. P., from North Galway, Ireland; John O'Callahan, national secretary of the United Irish League; Dr. Dillon, Dr. J. P. Timmins, president of the Boston Central Council, and Rev. John J. Coan, pastor of St. John's church.

On the platform beside the speakers were Peter McConarty, William T.
Shea, Dr. John H. Ash, John H. Dine-gan, C. E. Matheus, E. L. Rean, Daniel Desmond, W. J. Parker, M. H.
Crehan of Boston, the city editor of the Daily Ledger and others.

President John Cavanagh presided and reviewed the condition of Ireland since 1879, and the continuous work of the Quincy branch for these 27 years.

About 1879, famine and emigration reduced the population of Ireland from 9,000,000 to 4,500,000. Ireland found it could do nothing to advance the cause of freedom without the help of America.
The Quincy branch was organized in 1879 and had held together ever since,
and had rendered considerable aid and encouragement.

Fr. Coan was introduced but spoke briefly because of a cold. He expressed sympathy with the movement, and welcomed the speakers.

Hon. Mr. Hazelton is a gifted young man and his address was frequently applauded. His first complimented the Quincy branch for its support. It had a record of which no other city in America could boast; and something to be proud of. He appealed to all present to join the branch.

The speaker had been in America only four months, but said he was surprised at the sacrifices of American people for Ireland. He admitted that the movement could not have been carried on but for the people of America. They have maintained in parliament pledge bound members.

This cause is the old cause of Parnell, Dillon and others. We are still fighting for home rule; a separate Parliament without interference of England;
control of education; the expenditure
in Ireland of taxes collected, etc.

We have won many and important reforms in Ireland but will not be satisfied until we have home rule. English rule is a curse. He gave examples of misrule and the ignorance and prejudice of English officials. The oppression of landlords has mostly disappeared, and the conditions of laborers have been improved.

At this point Mr. James Lee contributed a solo so acceptably that he was recalled. He was accompanied by Miss McConarty.

John J. Callahan, the next speaker, is attached to the Boston Globe. He was proud that he was an Irish-American, not an Anglo-American. There was no better type of Americans than those of Irish blood. He complimented Mr. Cavanagh on his long service, and was pleased to see Fr. Coan on the platform. There was a duty beyond this meeting, and that was to help along financially. There is today a majority of 150 on the Liberal side in Parliament, and they will be watched to see that promises are redeemed.

It is expected a measure favorable to Ireland will be reported in Parliament, and it should be adopted. Money is needed to sustain Ireland members in London. Let all rally around such men as Mr. Cavanagh.

Dr. Dillon was surprised there was so greater interest manifested in Ireland by the Hibernians, and queried why.
Must all expect to get something for their dollar. Every dollar contributed for Ireland is well spent for the cause.

Dr. J. P. Timmins said he had proof of the progress in Ireland at his last visit, and felt that he had sufficient return for every dollar contributed. He also was surprised at the attitude of Hibernians. By helping, we lift ourselves as well as Ireland. Today there were but few evictions. Ireland, however, needs financial assistance.

Mr. McConarty contributed piano solos while papers were passed for subscriptions. About $100 was raised.

Will Quincy Y. M. C. A. win the Boys' Athletic Meet in the local gymnasium tonight? Is the burning question in the minds of our young men athletes today. Go to the meet this evening, and see for yourself. The contest is decided.

In Memoriam.

Former pupils of the Quincy High school fifty years ago, will remember with pleasure the first assistant teacher there, Miss Caroline Rowena Burgess. After faithful service for three or four years, she became one of several assistants in Mr. Lincoln
F. Emerson's young ladies' school, 6 Allston street, Boston, to which school several of her pupils followed her for a finishing course. She married Mr. Isaac Nelson Beals, and after his death went to California, where, after a very honorable career as instructor in the Girls' High school of San Francisco, she died at her home in Berkeley, California, Nov.
11th, 1906, at the age of eighty. She left the memory of a noble woman, tender, strong and true.

Cochato Club

The senior middle class gave a dance on the evening of Saturday February second. The dance was in charge of a committee consisting of Joseph A. Carson, Blakeslee Estabrooks, Eunice Lothrop and Louise Emerson.

In the receiving line were Dr. William Gallagher, Miss Sears and Prof. and Mrs.
Oakman. Cuff's orchestra furnished the music.

The boys' basketball team defeated
Melrose High Friday, February 1, by a score of 26 to 17. The Melrose team is one of the strongest in the vicinity of Boston having been defeated only once this season.

Last week's Observer the writer of Thayer Academy Notes claimed that the girls' basketball team were defeated by Randolph, Saturday, Jan. 26. The facts are that Thayer won by a score of 18 to 0.

Thayer Academy

Last Saturday evening there were one hundred club members and friends present. Bowling, whist and pool were enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Eben Prescott, Harry W. Gore, Jr., Dr.
F. H. Gile and George A. Arnold.

Many men have signed in the Boston pin tournament and soon the schedule will be printed.

The matinee bridge party Monday was quite successful, there being about fifty ladies present. Souvenirs were taken by Mrs. George O. Wales, Miss Bertha Arnold, and Mrs. G. W. Caldwell.

This evening refreshments will be served by Misses Grace Wheeler, Louise Emerson, Fanstine Brackett and May Turner.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of John Topliff, for violation of the liquor law at Quincy, was called. He retracted his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty. He was then fined $50, and the costs amounting to $4.95.

Fred P. Cronin, who was arrested at Weymouth in January for drunkenness and admitted to bail, was brought in on a default warrant. The default was removed and he was fined $10 for drunkenness.

Cuno Razane and Lillian Fair were arraigned for lewdness at Braintree. Cases continued until Feb. 16.

Arthur Caddy was arraigned for larceny from Rose Murphy at Quincy. He was sentenced to three months in the house of correction. Sentence was suspended for two months.

The liquors seized from Dennis Galvin at Weymouth were forfeited.

Mrs. R. F. B. Rounds State superintendent of scientific temperance instruction in schools, will speak on that subject at the M. E. church, Wollaston, next Tuesday at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of Wollaston W. C. T. U.

Tidbits from
All Wards of City

City teams are carting off the snow banks in the main thoroughfares of the city.

Walter J. Sudgen of Melrose has taken a position at the works of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co.]

A special meeting of the Ward 3 Democratic club will be held at Cahill's Hall, Monday evening.

One hundred and sixty seven entered are in for the boys' athletic meet tonight. Will you be there?

The following article from the Oakland, Cal., Tribune will be read with interest by all who knew and loved her:

Miss Mabel Burr of Atlantic will be the soloist on Sunday afternoon at the men's meeting of the Y. M. C. A.

Miss Ethel P. Parker graduated this week from the Boston Millinery college. She intends opening a millinery parlor at 25 Winter street, Boston.

The annual ball of Mt. Wollaston Lodge, I. O. O. F., will be held next Thursday evening at Quincy Music hall.
Plans have been made on the usual grand scale.

Rev. A. R. Atwood of the Washington street Congregational church, addressed the Boys' club, the Junior Baracas, at South Weymouth, Friday evening, Feb. 1.

Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, is again called to mourn the loss of a loved member, Mrs. Elsie Thayer of South Braintree, passing away Friday morning.

Mr. Newell O. Parker was elected treasurer of the Brimmer School Association of Boston, at their annual banquet at the New American House, Tuesday evening.

One of Fergusons baker wagons was capsized at Atlantic Thursday afternoon. Besides mixing up a lot of pastry there was no damage and the driver escaped uninjured.

Thursday night thieves entered the Hibernian hall building which is being erected on Franklin street, and breaking open the tool box of the contractor,
W. R. Lofgren, carried away carpen-ter's tools to the value of $5.

Rev. H. W. Kimball of South Weymouth speaks at the Young Men's Christian Association Sunday afternoon. The subject will be "The drama of the spiritual life." The men of Quincy should plan to hear this address.

Mrs. B. H. Bain of Prospect avenue
Wollaston received the sad news Thursday that her brother Mr. Ward Crosby of Topeka, Kansas, who was en route with his wife for New York and Woll-aston, had died on the way. Mrs.
Bain left immediately for New York.
She has the sincerest sympathy of many friends.

Mr. Joseph and Miss Annie E. Curney of North street, Quincy Point, left Monday for a two months' vacation in Canada where Miss Curney hopes to regain her health. Miss Curney has been in a very weak condition since the death of her mother which occurred in November.

The big indoor athletic meet at the Y. M. C. A. is held tonight. Members of the boys departments from Boston, Cambridge, Middleboro, Everett, and Quincy will compete. Five events will be contested:—15 yard dash, shot put, potato race, high jump, and broad jump.

A dancing party is being planned by the Quincy Tennis club for Friday evening, March 8th at Quincy Music hall, with music by Daggett.
Tickets are to be issued in a few days and a list of patronesses announced. It will be a large social

DON'T BAKE POOR BREAD.

The man who kicks at the bread you bake is a brute, we know. Still you are a little disappointed yourself, sometimes, aren't you? But don't be discouraged. It isn't your fault if the flour isn't suitable for making good bread, or if the dough gets in a draught, or it is an off day with the range,—no one can make perfect bread each time. But suppose you try a better plan.

Letter Carriers
Ladies' Night

A very enjoyable ladies' night was held by the Quincy Letter Carriers Association last evening. The affair was held at Colonial hall and was attended by most of the carriers and clerks at the Quincy office. Postmaster Hammond assistant postmaster John H. McDougal and superintendent of mails Peter Talbot were guests of the evening.

There was a pleasing entertainment which included banjo and guitar selections by Munroe brothers, vocal selections by Miss Hazel Mowry, banjo and harmonica by Charles Barron, and vocal duets by Miss Mary Gardner and Fred Wigmore, and xylophone solos by Geo. W. Munroe.

Dancing was enjoyed at the conclusion of the entertainment. Refreshments were served.

SOCIAL

A meeting of the Unity club was held Friday evening. It was in charge of Mrs. Park. The subjects dealt with were Literature, Science and Art, as developed in America and were most interestingly discussed by Mrs. Green, Mr. Frank Bishop and Miss Elizabeth Thayer. Mrs. Page had charge of the musical program which insured its goodness.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cuff of Braintree were the guests of Rev. T. J. Danahy, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church at Newton Upper Falls, on Sunday last.

Mrs. George G. Saville of Saville avenue is to open her house on Friday, afternoon, the fifteenth, at three o'clock for a talk by Miss Ellen Thompson, who takes for her subject "The Open Road in Ireland and the Hebrides." Much pleasure is anticipated by subscribers to the talk as Miss Thompson is a most cultivated woman and a great traveler. It is some time since she has been in Quincy, so she is sure of a most cordial reception.

Several Atlantic people attended the wedding of Miss Florence Ireland of Ashmont, Monday evening. Miss Ireland was pianist at the popular dancing classes of Miss Lena Crane which were held in Music hall last year.

Mrs. Fred A. Gross of West Elm avenue is visiting her sister, Mrs. Robert Cobb of Providence, Rhode Island.

The next meeting of the Social Science and Literary club of Atlantic will be held at the home of Mrs. Eastman, 357 Hancock street Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 19. The regular order of exercises will be varied by an informal talk given by Miss H. E. Turner about her recent trip abroad, after which a social hour will follow. The program assigned for Feb. 5 will be deferred to March 5 because last Tuesday's storm prevented the attendance of so many members.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Jenkins, nee Annie Mary Brooks, are at home to their friends after February the fifteenth, 124 Franklin street, Braintree.

Mrs. E. C. Richards of Washington street, Weymouth, has planned to start for California on Tuesday next for a six weeks' stay on the Pacific coast. Miss Ella Foster of Riverside Court, Cambridge, is the friend with whom she travels. They will stop at various places, as it is a Raymond excursion.

The Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern leaves this afternoon on a snow shoeing expedition with the Appalachian Mountain club.

Mrs. Charles Bryant has returned to her home on Beach street from Providence, R. I., where she was the guest of Mrs. Frederick Talcott whose husband is owner and manager of the Rhode Island Label works.

Mrs. George W. Morton has been the recipient of many compliments, all of which were merited, for the fine entertainment which she arranged for the Quincy Historical society on Wednesday evening in the chapel of First church. Her paper on songs was not only interesting but she read it with much feeling and expression and brought in the songs at just the right moment. The solo work was good and the chorus under Mr. Buckingham fine.

Mrs. W. H. Davenport of Braintree, who is accompanying Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Mills of Boston, abroad, sailed last Saturday on the Republic for Naples. They will be away two or three months.

The annual dance of the Harvard Juniors is to be held at the Harvard Union on Monday evening February eleventh. It will be the usual brilliant affair and matronized by some fifty prominent society women.

Miss Violet McConnell of Bromfield street has returned to Dean academy after a very pleasant vacation at home.

Thomas Slavin one of the most efficient and faithful employees of the Old Colony St. R. R. with his estimable wife, Mrs. Mary F. Slavin celebrated their silver wedding quietly at their home at Braintree on Wednesday. The weather was almost an exact duplicate of that of twenty-five years ago; but their lives have been free from other storms or squalls of any kind and a host of friends wish for them a continuation of the blessing, that have graced their homes, until their golden wedding crowns their happiness.

Miss Maud Elizabeth Read entertained ten of her Woodward friends at her home on Squantum street, Atlantic, Friday afternoon. Dinner was served at 1.30, after which games were enjoyed until 5.30. Prizes were awarded to Misses Mabel E. Lovejoy, Annie Harding and Miriam A. Rhodes. Those present were: Miss Helen M. Lincoln, Esther Sidelinger, Helen Sherburne, Gladys Pinel, Mabel E. Lovejoy, Helen Baker, Miriam Rhodes, Anastasia Lavelle, Annie Harding and Maud Read.

The Washington Whist club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McGill of Washington street, Braintree, Thursday evening.

A delightful birthday party was given in honor of Miss Margaret C. Taylor's tenth birthday on Tuesday from 4 to 7 at her home 357 Hancock street. Twenty-six of her little friends enjoyed the occasion by playing games, dancing and music. At 6 o'clock all were invited to the dining room to a bountiful collation.

Mrs. Alden A. Thorndike is giving a dinner on Monday at her Commonwealth avenue home, Boston, in honor of Madam Samarooff.

A most enjoyable party was given the children by the First Church Social club last evening at Faxon hall from four until six. Miss Burgess, Miss Lane and Miss Tisdale of the club and Mrs. Lawton, Miss Wood and Miss Turner of the Sunday school received and saw that every one had a good time. Mrs. Rideout played for dancing. It was the largest and best children party ever given by the club.

The purports at the Unitarian tea on Monday afternoon from four until five at the rooms of the American Unitarian association, Beacon street, Boston, are Mrs. George P. Baker and Mrs. Allen W. Jackson.

Mrs. C. H. Morse of Braintree entertained a number of ladies with whist on Thursday of last week in honor of her friends Mrs. Lucy Drew of Lynn and Mrs. Lawrence of Brockton. It was a pink and white party and all the decorations were in these colors as well as the counters, souvenirs, cakes, candies and ices, the china was also ornamented in pink and white.

The B. T. club of the Park and Downs met at Mrs. Frank Flanders, Rawson road, Friday afternoon.

The Ladies Social Union of the West Quincy M. E. church met at the home of Mrs. J. Francis Merrill Wednesday evening. After the business was transacted, music was enjoyed, and a dainty lunch served.

Miss Margaret McKillop of West Newton is visiting her nephew, Mr. Edgar James of Rawson road.

Feb. 5th the regular meeting of the Philergians was omitted on account of the severe storm. A special meeting of the club will be held in Cochoato hall, the evening of April 10th. The postponed lecture of Miss Emily C. Fisher, on Village Improvement, will be given on this occasion. This will be a public meeting of the club, and those interested in this subject are invited to attend.

Mr. A. A. Smith of Hancock street, left Thursday for Rhode Island, where he will remain for the coming two weeks in the interests of the Murphy Varnish company. He will make his headquarters at Providence, R. I.

Mrs. Nora Leach the young woman who committed suicide by drinking 5 ounces of carbolic acid at Brockton last Sunday, was formerly employed in the stitching department of the Slater & Morrill shoe factory. No reason was given for her act and while in the employ of the above firm was well liked by all.

The Matrons' whist club was entertained Monday evening by Mrs. G. R. Dobson of Hayward street. The souvenirs were secured by Mrs. E. Thayer, Mrs. A. A. Smith and Mrs. H. W. Bosworth.

Miss E. C. Clapp of Hancock street, who for the past three weeks has been receiving treatment at the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, has been removed to her brother's home at Rockland, where she will remain until strong enough to resume her duties here.

Conductor W. W. Bailey of Franklin street, is seriously ill at his home with rheumatic fever. With Dr. Mock of Hanover and Dr. H. L. Dearing in attendance it is hoped he may soon be pronounced convalescent.

Carl H. Bangs recently received official word that he had passed his examinations at M. I. T. and his many friends are congratulating him.

The Rev. Peter MacQueen is to preach and lecture in the South church on Sunday at 10.30 A. M. and 7 P. M. You will want to hear him.

Reports from Mrs. Charles Bangs who is at the Massachusetts General hospital are most encouraging.

An alarm from box 47 about nine o'clock Wednesday evening, proved to be nothing more serious than a fire in the chimney of the house on Pond street recently sold by Mr. Elisha Thayer.

James H. Bayley, Jr., of Ash street, who has been through such a long siege of typhoid fever has gone to a sanitarium in Bridgewater for treatment.

William A. McKean, trustee of the South Braintree Savings Bank has joined the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League, which is leading the movement to have a law passed permitting the savings banks of the Commonwealth to deal in industrial insurance. Up to date about half the savings banks are represented in the movement by one or more trustees. The labor unions throughout the state are also taking hold enthusiastically.

On Sunday evening, February 10, the Rev. Dr. Beiler, Professor of Practical Theology in Boston University, will speak in the Methodist Episcopal church East Braintree. The service begins at 7.15 o'clock.

A crowded audience enjoyed the illustrated lecture on "Ben Hur" at the Universalist church on Sunday evening. Rev. Melville Nash gave the lecture. Mr. Franklin Whitten presented the views.

Mrs. Sarah Thompson of Allen street is to move to Quincy, where she will make her home with her niece, Mrs. Francis Brewer.

Mrs. Julia M. Whiting died suddenly at her home in Quincy last Saturday. Mrs. Whiting was widow of the late Harrison Whiting. She was born in this town Jan. 15, 1833 and was a daughter of Jesse and Sarah Burrell. She is survived by two daughters Mrs. Francis Brewer and Mrs. Charles Wilson and a son William Whiting all of Quincy and a sister Mrs. Sarah Thompson of Allen street, East Braintree.

The funeral of Zilpha Putnam Robinson was held at the home of her parents on Adams street, Braintree, Sunday afternoon, at two o'clock. It was largely attended by friends and schoolmates. Rev. A. A. Ellsworth of Quincy, a former pastor of the First Congregational church, conducted the services. "Suffer Little Children" was feelingly sung by Mrs. Helen M. Ellsworth. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. The interment was at Blue Hill cemetery.

The Men's club will hold its first supper and regular meeting on Wednesday evening, Feb. 13, in the Sunday school rooms. There will be an informal gathering at six o'clock. Supper will be served at six-thirty, after which there will be two addresses. The speakers will be: Mr. Louis A. Frothingham of Boston, ex-Speaker of Massachusetts House of Representatives and the Hon. John D. Long of Hingham, ex-Secretary of the Navy. The membership of the club is now 76.

How well they had labored was very evident upon entering the hall Wednesday evening, which, owing to the severe storm of Tuesday, was the opening night. The hall was prettily decorated with many colored flags besides our own flags and with bunting. The national colors were in evidence everywhere around the booths.

The Unity Circle of King's Daughters made thirty dollars and upwards at the apron sale.

Mrs. Celia A. M. Thayer wife of Elisha Thayer passed quietly and peacefully to her rest on Friday morning after a lingering illness of fourteen months.

Funeral services will be held at her late residence 20 Crescent avenue, South Braintree, on Monday afternoon, February 11th at 2.30 o'clock. Kindly omit flowers.

Hunt-French
Home Wedding

Announcement cards of the marriage of Mr. Fred Thayer Hunt of Weymouth to Miss Bessie Bicknell French of East Weymouth, were received by a wide circle of relatives, friends and acquaintances early in the week. The wedding took place on Saturday, February 2, at five o'clock P. M. at the home of the bride.

The bride and bridegroom entered as the strains of the wedding march filled the house. Mr. Arthur Raymond assisted by two violinists rendered the appropriate music. Down the lovely lane of white ribbons the bridal pair approached and as they reached the bay window, adorned with palms and ferns, Rev. Mr. Cornish of Hingham met them and conducted the ceremony. Here in the presence of seventy-five friends their solemn vows were pledged. At the close of the ceremony congratulations were received by the newly married pair.

The bride looked very pretty arrayed in white chiffon silk adorned with costly lace. Lilies of the Valley held the bridal veil, while she carried a beautiful bouquet of the same with maiden hair fern. Later privileged guests were favored with the sweet flowers as a souvenir.

The wedding feast was spread in the dining room. Beautiful flowers decorated the table. A hearty and bountiful repast was enjoyed of salads, ices of every description, coffee and an abundance of wedding cake. As the guests departed the happy pair and immediate wedding party drove to Mrs. Edmund Hunt's, the mother of the bridegroom, who being an invalid was unable to be present at the ceremony.

All the way over from East Weymouth the blowing of horns announced the party's approach while the throwing of rice and confetti and tossing after of old shoes for luck had been duly observed at the start.

After receiving the mother's blessing, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thayer Hunt left for Boston and New York. They came home the middle of the week to prepare for leaving today for the sunny south with Mr. and Mrs. Nevins of South Weymouth. They will be at home to their friends after April the first.

J. A. KEATING,

1357 Hancock Street,
Quincy, Oct 13The Braintree
Town Warrant

There is nothing startling about the annual town meeting warrant except the number of articles therein. One year there were forty-six articles in the warrant and this year totals fifty. Article 17 reads as follows: "To see what action the Town will take in regard to purchasing land and building an Engine House for the south part of the Town and raise and appropriate money for the same."

We mention this article first for it is the most startling of the bunch. The late Martin L. Tupper of South Braintree built for the town, some twenty years ago an engine house in each section of the town. They have stood well and are in fine condition today and if the one at Braintree and the one at East Braintree are large enough what is the matter with the one at South Braintree?

We hear it is said that the hook and ladder company, and the hose company, or only one of them, are having trouble with the members of the Butcher Boy.

The Butcher Boy and Union are owned by the town and the Cochato by a company of men. The town has no use for either of her prize winners. They should not take up valuable space in an engine house.

Removing the Butcher Boy from the South Braintree engine house would give ample room unless the fire department proposes to purchase more trucks, etc. The location of the engine house at South Braintree is central, far more so than that at Braintree.

Article 31 indicates that the citizens of Mayflower Park are not snowed under or suffering from the extreme cold weather just simply pleading for water.

Article 47. "To see if the Town will vote to erect bulletin boards for the posting of official notices, in five different places in the Town and raise and appropriate a sum of money for the same. Probably these if built of wood, would decay and disappear like the signboards from our street corners. Unless they were costly, an ornament to the locality where they would be planted, they might soon look as objectionable as the advertising signs seen from the steam car windows in Braintree and elsewhere.

Article 32 is very small, yet quite important. "To see what action the Town will take in relation to the purchase of meters." Every service in the town that is to be metered should have a meter attached within a few months for it is unjust to make A pay for his water double what B does, because B is fortunate in having a meter. About one-half of the water system is metered and the daily pumping record shows that thousands of gallons are being saved each month.

Hello. Under article 16 we find the engineers asking for telephones. Well they should have them. The article does not call for an appropriation but perhaps they can be had just the same.

Article 23 is all right. We believe that the town should instruct the Board of Selectmen to appoint a Chief of Police. Fifteen constables without a chief are like a company of volunteer soldiers without a captain.

Whatever the appropriation committee approve and recommend, the voters will be safe in voting for.

The Workingman.

By THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

From the President's Latest Book, "A Square Deal."

WITH the sole exception of the farming interest no one matter is of such vital moment to our whole people as the welfare of the wageworkers. If the farmer and the wage-worker are well off, it is absolutely certain that all others will be well off too. It is therefore a matter for hearty congratulation that, on the whole, WAGES ARE HIGHER TODAY IN THE UNITED STATES THAN EVER BEFORE. The standard of living is also higher than ever before in our history and far higher than in any other country. Every effort of legislator and administrator should be bent to secure the permanency of this condition of things and its improvement wherever possible. Not only must our labor be protected by the tariff, but it should also be protected so far as it is possible from the presence in this country of any laborers brought over by contract or of those who, coming freely, yet REPRESENT A STANDARD OF LIVING SO DEPRESSED THAT THEY CAN UNDERSELL OUR MEN IN THE LABOR MARKET AND DRAG THEM TO A LOWER LEVEL.

AMERICAN WAGeworkers WORK WITH THEIR HEADS AS WELL AS THEIR HANDS. MOREOVER, THEY TAKE A KEEN PRIDE IN WHAT THEY ARE DOING, SO THAT, INDEPENDENT OF THE REWARD, THEY WISH TO TURN OUT A PERFECT JOB. THIS IS THE GREAT SECRET OF SUCCESS IN COMPETITION WITH THE LABOR OF FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When all is said and done, the rule of brotherhood remains as the indispensable prerequisite to success in the kind of national life for which we strive. Each man must work for himself, and unless he so works no outside help can avail him, but each man must remember also that he is indeed his brother's keeper and, while no man who refuses to walk can be carried with advantage to himself or any one else, that each at times stumbles or halts, that each at times needs to have the helping hand outstretched to him. TO BE PERMANENTLY EFFECTIVE AID MUST ALWAYS TAKE THE FORM OF HELPING A MAN TO HELP HIMSELF.

HOW TO SECURE FAIR TREATMENT ALIKE FOR LABOR AND FOR CAPITAL, HOW TO HOLD IN CHECK THE UNSCRUPULOUS MAN, WHETHER EMPLOYER OR EMPLOYEE, WITHOUT WEAKENING INDIVIDUAL INITIATIVE, WITHOUT HAMPERING AND CRAMPING THE INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT OF THE COUNTRY, IS A PROBLEM FRAUGHT WITH GREAT DIFFICULTIES AND ONE WHICH IT IS OF THE HIGHEST IMPORTANCE TO SOLVE ON LINES OF SANITY AND FARSIGHTED COMMON SENSE AS WELL AS OF DEVOTION TO THE RIGHT.

Exactly as business men find they must often work through corporations and as it is a constant tendency of these corporations to grow larger, so it is often necessary for laboring men to work in federations, and these have become important factors of modern industrial life. Both kinds of federation, capitalistic and labor, can do much good, and, as a necessary corollary, they can both do evil.

OPPOSITION TO EACH KIND OF ORGANIZATION SHOULD TAKE THE FORM OF OPPOSITION TO WHAT IS EVER IS BAD IN THE CONDUCT OF ANY GIVEN CORPORATION OR UNION, not of attacks upon corporations as such nor upon unions as such, for some of the most far-reaching beneficent work for our people has been accomplished through both corporations and unions. Each must refrain from arbitrary or tyrannous interference with the rights of others. Organized capital and organized labor alike should remember that in the long run the interests of each must be brought into harmony with the interest of the general public, and the conduct of each must conform to the fundamental rules of obedience to the law, of individual freedom and of justice and fair dealing toward all.

EVERY EMPLOYER, EVERY WAGeworker, MUST BE GUARANTEED HIS LIBERTY AND HIS RIGHT TO DO AS HE LIKES WITH HIS PROPERTY OR HIS LABOR SO LONG AS HE DOES NOT INFRINGE UPON THE RIGHTS OF OTHERS.

It is of the highest importance that employer and employee alike should endeavor to appreciate each the viewpoint of the other and the sure disaster that will come upon both in the long run if either grows to take as habitual an attitude of sour hostility and distrust toward the other. * * * We can get good government only upon condition that we keep true to the principles upon which this nation was founded and JUDGE EACH MAN NOT AS A PART OF A CLASS, BUT UPON HIS INDIVIDUAL MERITS.

All that we have a right to ask of any man, rich or poor, whatever his creed, his occupation, his birthplace or his residence, is that he shall act well and honorably by his neighbor and by his country. We are neither for the rich man as such nor for the poor man as such. We are for the upright man, rich and poor.

The consistent policy of the national government, so far as it has the power, is to hold in check the unscrupulous man, whether employer or employee, but to refuse to weaken individual initiative or to hamper or cramp the industrial development of the country. We recognize that this is an era of federation and combination, in which great capitalistic corporations and labor unions have become factors of tremendous importance in all industrial centers. Hearty recognition is given the far-reaching beneficent work which has been accomplished through both corporations and unions, and the line as between different corporations, as between different unions, is drawn on conduct, the effort being to treat both organized capital and organized labor alike, asking nothing save that the interest of each shall be brought into harmony with the interest of the general public AND THAT THE CONDUCT OF EACH SHALL CONFORM TO THE FUNDAMENTAL RULES OF OBEDIENCE TO LAW, OF INDIVIDUAL FREEDOM AND OF JUSTICE AND FAIR DEALING TOWARD ALL.

Whenever either corporation, labor union or individual disregards the law or acts in a spirit of arbitrary and tyrannous interference with the rights of others, whether corporations or individuals, then where the federal government has jurisdiction it will see to it that the misconduct is stopped, paying not the slightest heed to the position or power of the corporation, the union or the individual, but only to one vital fact—that is, the question whether or not the conduct of the individual or aggregate of individuals is in accordance with the law.

NO MAN IS ABOVE THE LAW, AND NO MAN IS BELOW IT, NOR DO WE ASK ANY MAN'S PERMISSION WHEN WE REQUIRE HIM TO OBEY IT. OBEDIENCE TO THE LAW IS DEMANDED AS A RIGHT, NOT ASKED AS A FAVOR.

PRIZE CONTEST

FOR MATTER FOR OUR "SCRAP BOOK" PAGE

The American Press Association offers the following cash prizes for anecdotes—odd, humorous, pathetic or heroic; not exceeding 300 words, and preferably of not more than 200 words—for use in our "Scrap Book" page:

For the best anecdote, One Hundred Dollars

For the second best, Fifty Dollars

For the third best, Twenty-five Dollars

For the fourth best, Ten Dollars

The anecdotes may be original or from reprint. If reprints, the source or author should be given if possible.

More than one prize will be given to one contestant if his offerings merit such reward.

In the awards, no preference will be given to original over reprint, to new over old, to long over short anecdotes. Pathetic and heroic stories are as likely to take prizes as humorous anecdotes. The interest in the story will be the only test of merit.

The contestant who sends the greatest number of good anecdotes, not neglecting stories of, or current in, his own locality, will perhaps stand the best chance in the awards. Poor and pointless anecdotes should not be sent to us; they are only a vexation.

The American Press Association reserves the right to use anecdotes for which no prize is given—reprint anecdotes without compensation; original anecdotes to be paid for by us at the rate of One Dollar each.

Rejected anecdotes will be returned only to those who enclose stamped and addressed envelopes for the purpose.

The contest will close on Thursday, March 28, 1907. No anecdotes received after that date will be considered. The awards will be printed in the American Press of April 6, 1907. The cash will be sent to the successful contestants as soon as the awards are determined.

EQUILIBRIUM.

Try These Balancing Feats if Your Mamma Will Let You.

The accompanying illustration may lead you at first to think that it represents several feats that only a skillful juggler can perform, but when you have had an explanation of the apparently precarious positions in which the glasses are placed you will see that any one with steady nerves and a little patience may readily accomplish everything here pictured.

The first thing to do is to practice standing one glass upon another in such a way that the axis of the upper one shall be a prolongation of the side of its support. Care should be taken that glasses as nearly alike as possible be used and that the table on which they are placed be perfectly level, for even a slight variation from this rule may make a failure of your experiment.

The second exercise consists in balancing the body and foot of one glass

upon the rim of another, as shown in the middle figure of the cut. At the back part may be seen a way of doubling this experiment with hardly any additional risk.

Two glasses may also be balanced side by side in the mouth of a third. Their feet must not touch the body of the third glass. They are simply bedded on their support, and it is strange to see how in consequence of their exact juxtaposition neither of them shows any inclination to swerve or to tumble off.

It may be remarked that this latter feat is not so much an experiment in equilibrium as a new and curious arrangement to puzzle a late comer to the dinner table.

Thanks to the exactitude of the geometrical form of your glass, you may with a little practice succeed in making stranger superpositions still, and the pyramid shown on the right will seem to you after a little while as mere child's play.—Chicago News.

A Dog and an Indian.

Recent experiments made in Germany have proved that a dog taken across the country on foot a distance of a hundred miles can find his way back over the highways. At a greater distance he appears to get all turned around. Many that wander away from home do not return at all, but generally that is because they find better masters.

Ten years ago experiments were made in the west on Indians. It was shown over and over again that an Indian could not be lost. He might be taken into a strange country blindfolded, but five minutes after he could see he would locate the points of the compass and head for home.

He can see no better at night than the white man, but will take a straight course on the darkest night and make no mistake. He has to have the instincts of an animal to live.

The Flying Fish.

The flying fish does not fly. It jumps out of the water, propelled by the most powerful tail in use in proportion to the size of the bearer. It jumps from the water only to escape from its enemies, among which are the bonito, the shark, the sperm whale and the dolphin. The last is the most active. The fins, which are called wings, guide the fish to some extent and enable it to make such extraordinary leaps. Some leaps have been estimated at eighty rods in length. The flying fish of the West Indies is from six to eight inches long. The largest are found in the Pacific and are sometimes eighteen inches long. It is said that flying fish have taken the fly and fight well when hooked. The West Indian flying fish is said to be better eating than a smelt, but the Pacific coast fish is not esteemed as food. The scientific name for the flying fish is Exocoetus.

A Queer Experiment.

A man who is always hunting up unusual things suggests an experiment that boys and girls might find amusing. Here it is: Sing for twelve or fifteen seconds, with the usual pitch of the voice, part of any song you know. Then, having stopped your ears with your little fingers so as to exclude all external sounds, sing the same as before and note the sound of your voice. Now, as a third experiment, press the palms of your hands against your ears and sing as before. You will be astonished, perhaps, at the force and volume of the tones you hear.—Chicago News.

Arctic Advantages.

"It's bedtime, dear," they always say just when I'm at my nicest play. And then I wish for arctic climates. Where day is six months long at times.

But when the breakfast bell I hear my bed does seem so snug and dear. I yawn and long with all my might for six good months of arctic night. —Mary Catherine Callan in St. Nicholas.

OFFERED A BRIBE

Contractor Wanted Alderman to Vote For Certain Plans

Lawrence, Mass., Feb. 9.—Patrick F. Burke of Groveland, a building contractor, was found guilty of offering a bribe to Alderman Frank B. Goodwin of Haverhill while the alderman was a member of a committee on plans for a new high school building. The court allowed counsel for the respondent time in which to file exceptions, meanwhile deferring sentence until Feb. 14. The trial was begun Thursday morning and was finished late yesterday afternoon, when the case was given to the jury of the superior criminal court.

Burke denied offering any bribe, but admitted that he had told the district attorney that a conversation he had with Goodwin might be construed as an offer of a bribe. The prosecution claimed that Burke offered the alderman $500 to vote for certain plans for the high school building and that the alderman rejected the offer.

Old Murder Charge Reopened

Boston, Feb. 9.—Robert McGraw, a middle-aged negro, is under arrest on an indictment warrant charging murder in the first degree. It is charged that McGraw shot Benjamin P. Farwell. After the shooting of Farwell, in April, 1904, McGraw was held for the grand jury. "No bill" was returned at the June sitting. The police again took up the matter and when the present grand jury met they submitted newly discovered evidence. Farwell was employed in a factory as foreman and McGraw as night watchman.

Capitalist Sued For $475,000

Boston, Feb. 9.—Three attachments, aggregating $475,000, have been filed here against George Fernald, as trustee for Charles W. Morse, the New York capitalist. The attachments affect stock in a number of corporations supposed to be controlled by Morse. The plaintiffs instituted the proceedings against Morse on the ground that he failed to carry out an alleged agreement with them regarding a transfer of stock in the Massachusetts Telegraph and Telephone company.

Bostonians Must Have Coal

Boston, Feb. 9.—Claiming that the coal situation in Boston is nearly at a crisis, Police Commissioner O'Meara has decided that the police are not to ask for summonses for persons delivering coal to consumers on Sunday next. O'Meara assumes responsibility for this emergency, an authority which is not given to him by law, and no dealer may have excuse for leaving his customers without fuel over Sunday.

Indictment of Alleged Yeggmen

Plymouth, Mass., Feb. 9.—Eight men who were arrested in Boston on suspicion of being members of the gang of so-called yeggmen who have committed numerous breaks in Brockton were indicted by the Plymouth county grand jury. It is expected that they will come up for trial at the next session of the superior criminal court here.

As to Murder and Insanity

San Francisco, Feb. 9.—An opinion was rendered in the supreme court holding that two commitments to an insane asylum do not exempt a murderer from responsibility for his crime nor upon his plea that at the time of the homicide he was insane. Frank Willard had been arrested on the charge of insanity, was before the court and adjudged insane when he suddenly escaped from the courtroom, declaring he was not insane. Sheriff Smith of Mendocino pursued him and was killed. Willard was convicted of murder and sentenced to death.

French Navy Has Disaster

Orient, France, Feb. 9.—An explosion occurred on board torpedo boat No. 329, and as a result nine men are dead and two sustained injuries. The boat was launched but a short time ago, and at the time of the accident she was undergoing, prior to being placed in commission, her full power steam trial in the roadstead. The reason of the accident is that the automatic doors that should have closed to prevent the return of the flames to the stoke hole did not work.

Mysterious Loss of Evidence

Albany, Feb. 9.—All the evidence on which was based the complaint of the then state's attorney general, Julius K. Mayer, against the American Ice company for dissolution of an alleged monopoly of the ice business, has mysteriously disappeared from the attorney general's office and cannot be found, according to an announcement made by Attorney General Jackson, Meyer's successor.

Japan's Graceful Compliment

Washington, Feb. 9.—As an expression of its high appreciation of services rendered to Japan during its war with Russia, the Japanese government has asked for permission to confer upon the American ambassadors to Russia and Japan and other legation officials during the Russo-Japanese war various decorations, and the secretary of state forwarded the request to congress.

In Memory of War Heroes

Harbin, Manchuria, Feb. 9.—The Japanese are erecting two monuments on Pempolechny hill, Port Arthur, to the memory of the Russian and Japanese soldiers who fell in the siege. In proximity to the monument to the Russians a Russian chapel will be built.

Cars Went Into Ditch

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Spreading rails threw four cars of a passenger train from the track at a curve near Hutchins crossing and into a ditch, where they overturned. One passenger was dangerously and two others less seriously injured.

The stereopticon address at Bethany church Sunday evening will especially attract those interested in life in foreign lands. The sixty colored views forcefully illustrate the contrasts between practical Christianity and pagan religions. The public is cordially invited.

The Bethany Church Brotherhood has secured an exceptionally fine speaker for its meeting next Tuesday evening. Major Joseph C. Bridgman of Hyde Park served under two administrations as U. S. Indian agent in Wisconsin, and is thoroughly acquainted with Indian life and "land steals" on the reservations. The men of the community are cordially invited.

DELIBERATE SUICIDE.

Why It Should Excite More Horror Than Any Other Murder.

As to its moral aspects, suicide is manifestly forbidden by the divine law. One of the commandments of the Decalogue declares, "Thou shalt not kill." To make the law as comprehensive as possible it is not said, "Thou shalt not kill thy neighbor," which qualifying phrase is employed in some of the other commandments—as, for instance, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor;" "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house." The prohibition to kill is therefore absolute. It forbids the taking of human life, whether by suicide or homicide.

There is another commandment which says, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Now, the love which we owe to our neighbor forbids us to slay him, and therefore the love which we owe to ourselves forbids us to compass our own death. If the law allowed us to kill ourselves, while forbidding us to kill our neighbor, our love for our neighbor would not be equal, but superior, to our love for ourselves.

Nay, I hold that suicide is a more revolting sin than the killing of another. The closer the ties of relationship between the murderer and his victim the more atrocious is the crime. In the estimation of mankind, a parricide, or matricide, or fratricide, or uxoricide, is a more shocking criminal than an ordinary homicide. And as a man has more intimate relations to himself than to a parent or brother or wife, his deliberate self destruction should excite more horror than the murder of a parent, brother or wife.—Cardinal Gibbons in Century.

BEECHER'S ONLY POEM.

The Verses Were Always Kept Sacred by Mrs. Beecher.

It was related by Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher that during their courtship Mr. Beecher once "dropped into poetry" and wrote a few lines of verse teeming with affection for his sweetheart. But the verses were always kept sacred by Mrs. Beecher, and nothing could win them from her. One day Mr. and Mrs. Beecher were in the office of Robert Bonner, the publisher.

"Why don't you write a poem, Beecher?" said Mr. Bonner.

"He did once," said Mrs. Beecher.

"Recite it for me, won't you, Mrs. Beecher?"

But the eyes of the great preacher were riveted on his wife, and she knew that he meant silence.

"Come," said Mr. Bonner, "I'll give you $5,000 if you will recite that poem to me," addressing Mrs. Beecher.

"Why, it ran"—quickly said Mrs. Beecher.

"Eunice!" simply said Mr. Beecher.

And, although Robert Bonner afterward offered to double the sum first offered, he never got the poem from Mrs. Beecher. It had been hidden away by Mrs. Beecher and cherished as one of the dearest treasures her husband left her.

Persian Rugs.

"Antique Persian rugs," said the rug salesman, "are dyed with vegetable dyes; the new ones are dyed with aniline dyes. There's a great difference. Vegetable dyes are fifty or sixty times more expensive than anilines, and they give a color that is literally imperishable, a color that keeps growing richer and richer till the rug falls to pieces. Anilines, made out of coal tar, look well enough at first, but they fade. When a vegetable red or blue would be at its best an aniline red or blue would be nearly white. We civilized people harmed the Chinese by introducing our cheap opium among them, and now we have equally harmed the Persian rug by introducing our cheap anilines among the rug weavers."

The Hydrophobia Menace.

Since hydrophobia is transmitted by inoculation and its virus resides in the saliva of its victim, the only absolute safeguard is to keep dogs muzzled when at large. A muzzle is a nuisance no doubt and in the immense majority of cases needless, for almost invariably the mischief maker is the stray cur, belonging to no one in particular and coming from nobody knows where. But it seems impracticable to frame an effective regulation for the protection of the public from such irresponsible and dangerous creatures without making it applicable to all dogs.—New York Tribune.

Limit of Economy.

"I don't mind a young man economizing when he is out with me," sighed the girl, "but it seems to me that when he takes you in a penny in the slot machine parlor, drops a penny in a slot and hands you one of the ear things while he takes the other the limit has just about been reached. Of course you can hear the opera almost as well with one ear, but how does it look?"—New York Press.

Charity.

The lady was making some remarks about the kind of clothes some other ladies at church had on.

"The finest garment a woman can wear," said her husband, "is the mantle of charity."

"Yes," she snapped, "and it's about the only one some husbands want their wives to wear."

The Fun of It.

"Why did you do that?" demanded the teacher.

"Oh, just for fun," replied Tommy.

"But didn't you know it was against the rules?"

"Sure! Dat's where de fun comes in."—Philadelphia Press.

SUNDAY: 12 TO 1—SHARP

Bethany Church, City Square

If YOU are a young man, and not associated with any other Quincy church, YOU are most cordially invited to come to our meeting.

A warm welcome—Happy singing—A helpful hour together.

"The best, yet" is the verdict which Daily Ledger readers have passed on "Partners of the Tide." Kindly call the attention of your neighbor to the fact that the Daily Ledger is publishing the story.

The nomination of United States Marshal Charles K. Darling for another term will be forwarded to the Senate within a very few days. The Massachusetts Senators have not formally endorsed his papers yet, but will probably do so.

The constitutional convention of Oklahoma killed the provision providing for woman's suffrage by accepting a clause extending the right of suffrage to males only.

A Long Prayer

(Original.)

One evening soon after the accession of King Charles II. of England a young girl called at the palace of Whitehall and begged to see the sovereign. She would not have succeeded had it not been that he was leaving to go to the rooms of his mistress, Lady Castlemaine. Charles, passing the girl, who was evidently suffering from some great mental strain, asked her what she wanted.

"Oh, sire, give me the life of my brother, Arthur Hower, who is to be executed tomorrow on Tower hill."

Hewer had fought on the side of the parliament, and upon the restoration certain parties high in power deemed it expedient that he should be put to death. The king was not a blood-thirsty man, but a great admirer of beautiful women. Mary Hewer, who was beautiful, gained from him a promise that her brother should be pardoned. Then the king passed on. Mary, delighted, was about to hurry away when a courtier, young Sir Richard Vyner, called to her.

"You do not know the king," he said. "His majesty intends to grant the pardon he has promised, but he has gone to visit Lady Castlemaine, and heaven knows when he will come away from her. It may be too late to keep his promise or he may forget it. I will do what I can for you by reminding him of it as soon as he comes again."

Mary Hewer was greatly cast down at this information, but gained hope at the young man's promise. The next morning she received a message from him saying that the king had not returned to the palace, and he feared he would not return in time to order the pardon sent to the Tower before the hour of execution.

Hewer was to be executed at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. In those days all people, the highest and the lowest, attended these executions, for which places were engaged ahead. In a diary of a prominent man who then flourished is an entry, "Engaged a place for my wife to see the execution, then went to the office." When the hour for the tragedy came the prisoner was conducted to the scaffold, from whence he looked down upon a sea of upturned faces. There were dukes and bakers and tallow chandlers.

A few minutes before 3 the Tower chaplain offered a short prayer for the prisoner's soul. Then as the executioner stepped forward a young man in the canonicals of the Church of England produced an order from James, duke of York (the king's younger brother), that he should be permitted to pray for the condemned man so long as he desired. The young clergyman then knelt and began to pray.

A half hour passed, when the lieutenant of the Tower interrupted the clergyman, reminding him that the spectators were getting impatient for the execution. The young man drew the duke's order and pointed to the words "as long as he desires." The king's brother was too high a personage for his order to be disobeyed, so the lieutenant stepped back, and the clergyman went on with his prayer.

But the clamor became so great that the lieutenant again interrupted, begging the clergyman to desist. This time the young man paid no attention to the request. He was kneeling, with one hand on the block, his head sinking lower and lower, his voice becoming fainter and fainter. For nearly two hours he prayed. Then there was a clatter of horse's hoofs heard coming up from the city, and a rider was seen dashing toward the Tower holding aloft a paper. He was Sir Richard Vyner and bore a pardon from the king. As he threw himself from his horse and elbowed his way through the crowd to the scaffold the words died on the clergyman's lips and he sank in a swoon.

Both the prisoner—now by the king's order a free man—and Sir Richard, leaving the crowd to mingle shouts of disapproval or approval, turned their attention to the young clergyman whose extraordinary effort at prayer had saved the former's life. Since he could not be at once revived they sent for a coach and put him in it, got in themselves and drove away to the home of the released man. Before they reached it the clergyman opened his eyes and, seeing Hewer beside him, threw his arms about his neck.

"Arthur!"

"Mary!"

Mary Hewer during the morning before the execution had conceived the plan, if delay should be necessary, of achieving it by spending time in prayer. She had sent to Sir Richard Vyner asking if he could get her permission for a clergyman to do so, and the knight, finding the Duke of York, with whom he was a favorite, prevailed on him to give him the order. It was sent to Mary Hewer at the Tower, who, disguised, had made the prayer.

Then Mary turned from her brother to Sir Richard, took his hand in hers and, bringing it to her lips, kissed it.

"Tell me, I beseech you," she said, "something I can do for you. Nothing can requite such a service, but I may show my gratitude."

"Nothing now," he replied. "In time I may ask an inestimable boon."

"But why have you done so much for me?"

"I saw you at a window long ago, when the king returned and received his welcome from the people. I saw you again at the coronation. I need to see you no more to know that you are come down from heaven."

Arthur Hewer became prominent in the naval war against the Dutch, and his sister became Lady Vyner.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Commencing Monday, Feb. 11, Houdini will be the special feature at Keith's for one week only. This will be his farewell engagement in Boston for a period of at least two years, as he goes abroad in June for a long engagement. A program that will consist of sensational stunts will be presented, Houdini having already accepted enough challenges to enable him to attempt one or more at every performance throughout the week. The surrounding bill will include Edwin Stevens and company in Mr. Stevens' new sketch which introduces a half dozen characters from Dickens; Wilfred Clarke and company in that fast moving farcelet, "What will happen next?" written by Mr. Clark himself; the Onlaw Trio, wonderful wire performers; the Frazer Trio, international dancers; the Sawadas, Japanese acrobats; Conlon and Hastings in a sketch; Tyson and Brown, dancers and roller skaters, and the Kinetograph.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

It is good news for Dickens lovers that "Little Emily" is to be played at the Castle Square theatre next week. Wherever the English language is spoken and read, David Copperfield and Little Emily are the favorite personages of fiction, and even though since the great novelist created them, they are as popular as ever. The full membership of the Castle Square stock company, with Miss Elfrida Lasche in the title role, will be enlisted in this production. On February 18th, the Castle Square stage will be the scene of another Shakespearean production, "As You Like It."

Hub Theatre.

The recent boast of Miles Brothers, the moving picture men, that they would take a set of pictures that were "clear, distinct and without the vestige of a flicker" seems to have been realized far beyond their fondest hopes. They took the films of the O'Brien-Burns twenty round bout at Los Angeles, and those who have seen them say that they are absolutely perfect. As one enthusiastic scribe puts it they are "the ultimate perfection in animated photography." Matinees will be given each day.

THE ORPHEUM.

The rapid development of the Percy Williams' circuit of vaudeville houses is continually adding to the possibilities of each of the theatres controlled by its owner and manager. The engagements, now possible for this circuit are attracting artists from all over Europe as well as the stars of the American vaudeville stage and Manager Williams is fully realizing the promises he made the public. Realizing the large share of patronage given the Orpheum by the residents of the surrounding cities and towns Resident Manager Robinson has planned a series of evenings when one of each of the suburban districts will be invited to make up theatre parties of its own residents.

—Prof. de Martens, Russian Imperial Councillor of State, has practically completed his conferences with officials on the subject of the programme to be submitted at The Hague peace convention.

—A rot on the part of the miners employed in one of the copper mines in the Ashio district, Japan, is now assuming grave proportions. The chief engineer of the mine is reported to have been killed and other officials to have fled.

EVERY EVENT

Won by Quincy
Boys in the
Y.M.C.A. Meet
Of Five Associations

The members of the boys department of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. proved themselves good all round athletes when they lined-up on Saturday evening against such associations as the Boston, Cambridge, Everett and Middleboro. There were in all 167 entries, largely from Quincy, but some picked men from the others except Everett.

The attendance of interested parents and friends taxed the gallery, and applauded the winners.

There were five events, each divided into three classes according to age, and Quincy won in every event, and in eight of the fifteen classes. It was a record of which to be proud, and the honors were divided among seventeen of the Quincy boys.

Until some of the ties for first place between Quincy boys are decided this week it will be impossible to tell which Quincy boy won the most points. At present H. Prout of the youngest class leads, and has a chance to increase his total. Five others are tied for second place.

Particularly good work was done by Pease of Cambridge in the shot put; by Ireland of Cambridge and Harold Curtis of Quincy in the high jump; by Gourlie, Bonney and Walker in the broad jump; and by Walker in the dash. The events resulted as follows:

15 YD. DASH.

Age 12-14—Time, 2 3-5 sec.
Gallagher of Quincy, first.
H. Prout of Quincy, second
E. Prout of Quincy, third.

Age 14-16—Time, 2 2-5 sec.
Kane of Cambridge, first.
Barker of Cambridge, second.
Dunne of Boston, third.

Age 16-18—Time, 2 2-5 sec.

Scorer,—J. J. Floyd.
Inspector,—Fred Farquhar and Archie Leverage.

There were a corps of assistants.

Some Stars at K. of C. Minstrels

The minstrel show of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus tomorrow night at Quincy Music hall, promises a rare evening's pleasure for those who attend. A rehearsal was held Sunday at Greenleaf hall, and those who were privileged to hear it pronounced it the best yet.

Dr. Daniel B. Reardon will be the interlocutor, and the show will be given under the direction of John McGowan. George Powers will be the accompanist. Edward D. Barrett, William Carey and John H. Heaney will rattle the bones, and Thomas Joyce, John Joyce and William DeCoste will shake the tambos. The chorus will consist of thirty voices and includes many well known vocalists.

HEAVY TAXPAYERS

Many Assessed
On Valuation
Of Over $5,377
Some On Million

Not for several years has a list of the heavy taxpayers of the city been published and there have been so many changes in valuation and ownership that the list below of those whose assessments are over $200.00 will be of interest.

The tax rate of the city in 1906 was $18.00, so that every assessment of $100 represents a valuation of $5,377.00. The Daily Ledger has therefore prepared the following summary which will be found handy when the assessment is known:

	Represents
Tax of $100	Valuation of $5,377
Tax of $200	$10,754
Tax of $300	$16,131
Tax of $400	$21,508
Tax of $500	$26,885

She went to San Francisco after the death of her husband and there became connected with the State Normal school which was then located in that city. She then became a member of the faculty of the Girl's High school of that city and continued as teacher of English literature for twenty-one years.

During that period, thousands of young women passed under the tutelage and to them her name and influence will be ever grateful.

Mrs. Beals retired from the school department of San Francisco in 1888. She then spent six months in Europe, and, upon her return, retired to her home, 2214 Atherton street, Berkeley, where she philosophically awaited the final summons.

Her passing away was gentle, like the tenor of her life and brought to close a career and honorable old age vouchsafed to but few in these strenuous times.

Notables as Guests
At the Elks Ball

Mayor Thompson of Quincy, Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston, and Congressman-elect O'Connell are among the guests expected at the Elks' ball at Quincy Music hall tonight. Others invited are Senator Jenney, Representatives Hultman and Sandberg, County Commissioner Merrill, President Bowles and General Manager Smith of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co.; Rev. W. E. Gardner, Chief Burrell of the Police department, Chief Engineer Litchfield of the Fire department, President Piper of the City Council, Commissioner Burke, and many prominent representatives of the order throughout Massachusetts.

Teacher at High Fifty Years Ago

Former pupils of the Quincy High school fifty years ago, will remember with pleasure the first assistant teacher there, Miss Caroline Rowena Burgess. After faithful service for three or four years, she became one of several assistants in Mr. Lincoln F. Emerson's young ladies' school, 6 Allston street, Boston, to which school several of her pupils followed her for a finishing course. She married Mr. Isaac Nelson Beals, and after his death went to California, where, after a very honorable career as instructor in the Girls' High school of San Francisco, she died at her home in Berkeley, California, Nov. 11th, 1906, at the age of eighty. She left the memory of a noble woman, tender, strong and true.

The following article from the Oakland, Cal., Tribune will be read with interest by all who knew and loved her: "This afternoon at 3 o'clock a solemn and affecting farewell was taken by professors, pupils and friends of a beloved teacher, the late Mrs. Caroline R. Beals, for 25 years instructor in English literature in the Girls' High school of San Francisco, whose funeral took place at the Unitarian church, Berkeley, the services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Lathrop, minister of the society.

The auditorium was filled with people, few of whom held kinship with the deceased, but all of them were bound to her by indissoluble ties of appreciation and love because of her womanly character, her intellect, the gentleness and geniality of her disposition and the success which crowned the efforts of a lifetime in the uplifting of woman kind in the enervating work of the class room.

Many of the auditors, more especially former students, now women with silvery hair, were visibly affected, especially when the final parting was taken. Several vocal selections were rendered by the Masonic Quartette of San Francisco. The pallbearers were H. A. Powell, Warren Gregory, Prof. Carey Jones, Prof. Senger, Prof. Haskell and George Pape. The remains were taken to Mt. Feake, Waltham, Mass., where they will find sepulture beside those of the husband of the deceased, who died many years ago.

Death did not claim Mrs. Beals until after she had rounded out full fourscore years. The eightieth anniversary of her birth, a short time ago was rendered eventful by a generous rivalry among former pupils of hers to show their gratitude for the many advantages they had derived at her hands. Hundreds of letters fluttered into her home on that day, and all that could be said in congratulation, in prose and verse, failed not to find expression on that occasion.

She went to San Francisco after the death of her husband and there became connected with the State Normal school which was then located in that city. She then became a member of the faculty of the Girl's High school of that city and continued as teacher of English literature for twenty-one years.

During that period, thousands of young women passed under the tutelage and to them her name and influence will be ever grateful.

Mrs. Beals retired from the school department of San Francisco in 1888. She then spent six months in Europe, and, upon her return, retired to her home, 2214 Atherton street, Berkeley, where she philosophically awaited the final summons.

Her passing away was gentle, like the tenor of her life and brought to close a career and honorable old age vouchsafed to but few in these strenuous times.

LARGEST BATTLESHIP

The Vermont
Built at Quincy
In Commission
Today at Boston

The battleship Vermont, the queen of Uncle Sam's navy, was formally delivered to the government at the Charlestown Navy Yard this noon. She was to have been delivered a week ago, but owing to some additional work ordered by the inspectors the delivery was postponed a week.

It was 8.30 when the tugs Confidence, Pallas, Juno and Ariel surrounded the Vermont at her dock at the Fore River shipyard and began to back her out into midstream. At her bow was the blue navy flag, and from her stern the American flag, while at her masthead was the builders' pennant.

There was a large crowd upon the decks of the Vermont, who included naval officers and officers of the Fore River Co. and workmen.

A large open space about her berth had been cleared of ice giving her a clear passage.

She was backed slowly out and turned so that her bow headed toward the opening in the Quincy Point bridge. She then went ahead under her own steam, and at 8.55 she passed through the draw without a hitch.

As she passed through she was so close to the bridge that it would have been an easy matter for anyone on board to have jumped to the bridge. Although she was so close to the bridge, however, she did not touch. Once through the bridge she was pointed toward the channel which was full of floating ice and steamed away toward Boston. She is the largest battleship that ever entered Boston harbor.

RESPITE FOR WIFE

Thaw Asks For a Change in the Plans of His Counsel

WOMAN IS IN BAD SHAPE

Will Appear in Court a Day
Later Than Expected—One Juror Slightly Ill—Thaw Appears to Be in Good Spirits

New York, Feb. 11.—Evelyn Thaw may not, as had been expected, return to the stand today. The strain of the last few days, in which she has been made to live again the hours when, according to the confession she has sworn that she made to Harry K. Thaw, she was the victim of Stanford White's caprice, has told severely on her.

Upon her visit to the Tombs Saturday Mrs. Thaw told her husband that she had suffered greatly during the ordeal when the story of her association with White was laid bare and Thaw communicated the fact to the lawyers. He told them that his wife was in bad shape, and requested that she be given an opportunity to recover. Attorney Belmont then set about to so arrange the plans of the defense that Mrs.
Thaw's presence in court as a witness would not be required until Tuesday.

If present plans do not miscarry Mrs.
Thaw will continue giving direct evidence Tuesday and her cross-examination by District Attorney Jerome will begin Wednesday, a day later than had been anticipated.

A development yesterday that startled those directly concerned in the case was the reported illness of a juror.
Visions of a mistrial were soon dissipated, however, for it was ascertained that the sickness of the juror was not such as threatened to incapacitate him.
Wilbur F. Steele, 60 years of age, a manufacturer of gas appliances, has contracted a severe cold, but careful attention has given him relief.

The jurors are living under guard at the Broadway Central hotel and when the usual Sunday ride in Central park, which has been the weekly diversion of the 12 men, was proposed yesterday, it was found that Steele would not be able to go out. Steele is a man of usually robust health. The other jurors, all of whom are in good condition, took the drive.

Yesterday may be said to have been Thaw's best Sunday in the Tombs. He arose after what he declared had been a restful night, in good spirits and with a hearty appetite. He did not attend service in the chapel, but spent the morning with the newspapers and in reading the many messages which were brought to him. Of these one read:
"Be brave."

None of Thaw's counsel called during the morning hours and at noon the prisoner sat down to a lunch sent in from Delmonico's. He ate with a relish.
During the afternoon he walked the tender briskly for an hour, covering several miles. Later he sent the suit which he has been wearing at the trial out of the Tombs by a messenger, who subsequently returned with a complete change of clothing for the prisoner.

It is said that Mrs. Thaw is anxious to have the ordeal over as soon as possible and asked that she be permitted to resume the stand today. This was not promised, though it is said that possibly Mrs. Thaw may be called late in the day.

A LESSON FOR PARENTS

Evelyn Thaw Not the Only Girl Ruined by Lecherous Scoundrel

Pittsburg, Feb. 11.—Taking for his topic, "The blessings and curses of wealth and home," Rev. Dr. C. W.
Blodgett, at the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, preached a sensational sermon, citing the Thaw case on trial now in New York, and urging it as a warning in the rearing of children.

"Wealth need not be a corrupter of morals," he said. "It is the vulgarity of it that the world recoils from. No child should be trusted with a dollar until he has learned the value of the same by earning it by the sweat of his brow."

"This country is reading of the tragic scenes in the court of justice in New York with intense interest. Here in Allegheny the wife of the chief actor played when she was a girl. Across the river, in Pittsburg, the husband, now on trial for murder of a man in New York, the revelations of whose life make you shudder with horror, spent his boyhood days.

"They both came from respectable families. They both go wrong. One seemingly by the cruel hand of fate, the other through love that was blinded.
All our hearts bleed for them. Will the fathers and mothers of this and other cities take any warning?

"A lecherous scoundrel of a man, poor or rich, should have the same treatment as the abandoned woman. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw is not the only girl that has been ruined as she says she was.
"Of the outcome of the trial of Harry Thaw, the reckless and unfortunate boy of one of our most respected homes, millions are interested. What of the outcome of the lads and lassies not grown to manhood? Hearts are still to be broken and homes made desolate and some of them may be yours."

Hartridge Predicts Thaw's Acquittal

New York, Feb. 11.—Clifford W.
Hartridge, counsel of record for the defense, said yesterday:

CLIFFORD W. HARTDRIDGE.

"We are absolutely confident of the acquittal of Thaw. There is no question in our mind, of a hung jury. I hope the district attorney will not require us to dig up any more unpleasant history. But if it is necessary to do so we shall not hesitate."

Protest Against Revolting Details

Chattanooga, Feb. 11.—A mass meeting of women was held here for the purpose of protesting against the printing in the daily papers of the revolting details in the Thaw murder case and all other criminal court proceedings of like nature. The auditorium of the First Baptist church was filled. The protest, it was stated, was made "in the interest of the sanctity of our homes and the purity of our children and to protest against the minute and detailed account given in the daily papers of the sensational and scandalous proceedings of the criminal court."

Lehr Not Welcome in Berlin

Berlin, Feb. 11.—Because he persisted in calling on high social lights of this city in a tweed suit and shirts that spoke for themselves, and insisted that his wife should be given precedence over the wives of ambassadors at a function attended by royalty, Harry Lehr, the American champagne agent, is in bad odor here. All sorts of attacks have been made in the press against Lehr, and the emperor himself is said to be very sore.

American Expelled From Hayti

Port au Prince, Feb. 11.—The Official Monitor recently published notice of the expulsion of Mr. Mansour, an American citizen, but Mr. Furness, the American minister, believing the call for the man's expulsion unjustified,
asked for the withdrawal of the order.
This was refused, and Mansour has left for New York. The seal of the American legation has been placed on his shop.

Jealous Woman's Double Crime

Kansas City, Feb. 11.—Dr. Everett
H. Merwin, 38 years of age, and Miss Maude Slater, aged 23, were found dead in Merwin's office and all available evidence points to the theory that the girl shot and killed Merwin and then committed suicide as the result of jealousy.
Each had been shot through the head and a pistol was found near the extended right hand of the girl.

Perished in Freight Car

Patterson, N. J., Feb. 11.—Workmen who broke the seal of a lumber-laden freight car here found an unknown man who had died from starvation.
The car was sent here from North Carolina and had been a week on the way.
It is supposed the man crawled into the car and was sleeping when the seal
was placed on the door.

Victims of Gasoline Explosion

New York, Feb. 11.—A gallon can of gasoline exploded among a gang of workmen in the Western Electric company's building last night. The blazing oil splattered upon several of the men, setting their clothing afire. Seven were burned, five so seriously that they were removed to a hospital.

Steel Company's Big Purchase

Pottsville, Pa., Feb. 11.—The Bethlehem Steel company has purchased the mines of the Boyertown Ore company for a consideration said to be over $400,000. The rights secured by the Bethlehem company cover mineral privileges on 200 acres of land.

Shea Trial Under Way

Chicago, Feb. 11.—The jury for the second trial of President Shea of the Teamsters' union and other labor leaders on charges of conspiracy founded upon the teamsters' strike of 1905 has been completed. The taking of evidence commenced today.

Death of Mayor of Kingston

Kingston, Jan. 11.—Charles Tait, mayor of this city died yesterday as a result of injuries sustained at the time of the earthquake. He was then conducting a meeting of the council and the building collapsed. Tait was 68 years old.

The Best Job Printing at This Office

PRIZE CONTEST

FOR MATTER FOR OUR

"SCRAP BOOK" PAGE

The American Press Association offers the following cash prizes for anecdotes—odd, humorous, pathetic or heroic; not exceeding 300 words, and preferably of not more than 200 words—for use in our "Scrap Book" page:

For the best anecdote, One Hundred Dollars

For the second best, Fifty Dollars

For the third best, Twenty-five Dollars

For the fourth best, Ten Dollars

The anecdotes may be original or from reprint. If reprints, the source or author should be given if possible.

More than one prize will be given to one contestant if his offerings merit such reward.

In the awards, no preference will be given to original over reprint, to new over old, to long over short anecdotes.
Pathetic and heroic stories are as likely to take prizes as humorous anecdotes. The interest in the story will be the only test of merit.

The contestant who sends the greatest number of good anecdotes, not neglecting stories of, or current in, his own locality, will perhaps stand the best chance in the awards. Poor and pointless anecdotes should not be sent to us; they are only a vexation.

The American Press Association reserves the right to use anecdotes for which no prize is given—reprint anecdotes without compensation; original anecdotes to be paid for by us at the rate of One Dollar each.

Rejected anecdotes will be returned only to those who enclose stamped and addressed envelopes for the purpose.

The contest will close on Thursday, March 28, 1907. No anecdotes received after that date will be considered. The awards will be printed in the American Press of April 6, 1907.
The cash will be sent to the successful contestants as soon as the awards are determined.

Stock Transfer Stamps Are Reported as "Destroyed"

WERE PRACTICALLY CASH

Two Lots Representing $5,457,- 507 "Burned" While Others Were Made Way With In Some Stage of Process of Manufacture

Albany, Feb. 11.—Comptroller Glynn has made public the results of an investigation which he has been making into the condition of the stock transfer tax bureau of his office, with reference to the handling and disposal of $7,000,- 000 worth of the stamps issued by that department for use in the transfer of stocks under the act of 1905. According to the comptroller's statement, more than $5,000,000 worth of these stamps have been destroyed in the two years since the act was passed, and there is only the personal word of a single clerk, not under bond, to certify the fact that they were destroyed at all.

The total amount of stamps recorded as destroyed at different times between June 2, 1905, when the first issue of stamps began and Dec. 29, 1906 (two days before Glynn assumed office) was $5,011,658. Two lots reported as actually burned represented respectively $174,000 and $228,507. Another lot said to have been destroyed at the time of manufacture, because one or more stamps in each sheet was defective, amounted to $968,842. The balance of the vast total of over $5,000,000 are recorded as destroyed in some stage of the process of manufacture.

According to Comptroller Glynn, the entire business of printing and caring for the stock transfer tax stamps was in the hands of Charles M. Watkins, chief clerk in the stock transfer tax bureau, an appointee of Comptroller Kelsey, who continued to serve in that capacity under Comptroller Wilson after Kelsey was appointed by Governor Higgins to be superintendent of insurance.

Mr. Watkins was superseded early in January by an appointee of Glynn, and it was in the process of checking up the stamps on hand that the alleged state of affairs was discovered. The comptroller detailed an expert accountant to check up the stamps and papers on hand, and for several weeks
he has been counting paper and stamps, showing a total of over $6,000,000 worth of stamps on hand and a deficiency accounted for by stamps reported as "destroyed" either in process of manufacture or by burning in bulk.

The stamps were printed by Quayle & Son of this city. The plates were in the custody of the comptroller's representative and each day were delivered to Quayle. The paper first used was of an ordinary commercial sort, which Glynn said was stored in the Quayle shop under an ordinary lock in an ordinary room and, while the sheets were counted out before printing, there was no safeguard to prevent their being abstracted. Moreover, the comptroller declares, the count of the sheets does not tally, the explanation being that some of it was used for other purposes.
The first issue of stamps was found to be susceptible to counterfeiting and the removal of cancellation marks, and in May or June of last year the printing of these was stopped and a new issue was begun, on patent paper.

"When the new paper, which was to defy counterfeiting, came to hand," said the comptroller, "it received no better safeguard but was left in the Quayle shop. And the comptroller's seal, with which the bundles were sealed, was apparently as carelessly treated."

Mr. Glynn said that Watkins gave him a statement, adding: "He says that early in October he took all that remained of the old issue of stamps from the vaults down to Quayle's shop in Green street, boxed them up and they remained there without guard or watchman at least one night. There is a conflict of testimony on this point.
The safe deposit people say they were not returned until Dec. 23.

"These stamps are practically cash and I feel it my duty to make the facts public so that should it turn out that any of these stamps supposed to have been destroyed have escaped from the custody of the comptroller my own kinds would be clean. The government of the United States does not handle its stamps or money in this way and I do not believe the people of this state want their money handled in this way, either."

Heard Warning to Depart

Woodburn, Or., Feb. 11.—Following the replacing by the Southern Pacific of 10 white section men with Japanese laborers, 50 Americans enlisted at the section house and warned the Japanese to leave town. There was no violence, but the Japanese departed for Portland.

Great Explosion in Arsenal

London, Feb. 11.—A terrific explo-

COLLAPSE OF POST

Said to Have Caused Schoolhouse
Floor to Give Way

A CROWD WENT WITH IT

Sagged In the Middle Until It Rested In V-Shape on Decks
Below—Three Persons Badly Hurt, One Perhaps Fatally

Woonsocket, R. I., Feb. 11.—By the collapse of a floor on the second story of a school building, where an entertainment was being held last night, 200 persons were thrown to the floor below, but with the exception of three all escaped severe injuries. Twenty-five others were somewhat bruised and scratched.

The entertainment was under the auspices of the Independent club, a political organization, and it was held in a schoolhouse. The building is a two-story frame structure. It was constructed about two years ago, but had never been fully completed, only the lower floor being used for school purposes, while the second story was in an unfinished condition.

For the entertainment the room was fitted with seats consisting of long planks placed on supports of a temporary nature, and the little room was nearly filled. Suddenly the cracking of timbers was heard and the next instant the floor began to sag in the middle. The frightened people began a scramble for the doors and a panic was threatened, but Rev. Mr. Roberge, who was in the midst of an address, managed to calm some of the more frightened ones. All this time the floor was settling slowly, carrying with it all the people who were unable to attach themselves to the side walls, and it continued to sag in the middle until it rested in V-shape on the tops of the school desks in the room below. To the group of people tumbled together at the bottom of the V it seemed hours before a way was cleared so that they could make their exit, but it was really only a few minutes. Headed by Mr. Roberge the men got all the women out safely, passing some through the windows and guiding others out under the rows of desks on which the timbers of the fallen floor rested.

It is believed that of the injured all will recover except possibly Ida Paradis, aged 14, who is suffering from brain concussion. The collapse of a post under the middle of the floor is said to have been the cause of the disaster. It is said also that the flooring was not designed for so large an assembly as that of last night.

Old Official to Leave China
London, Feb. 11.—It is announced that Sir Robert Hart, director general of Chinese imperial customs, will leave China for England at the end of February on a two years' leave of absence and that he is not likely ever to return. This is regarded as the outcome of the appointment last summer of Chinese as customs commissioners. Hart, who is an Irishman by birth, has been in the Chinese customs service since 1859.

Proof of Lincoln's Christianity
New York, Feb. 11.—Rev. Dr. Prentiss, at the Methodist church, explained why, in his opinion, Abraham Lincoln never joined a church. "He was too big-brained and world-wide in his sympathies," he said, "to care for sectarian differences, but that he was a Christian at heart as well as in form, that he believed in the Bible and the divinity of Christ and the efficacy of prayer, extracts from his addresses verify."

Germany and Hayti at Odds
Port au Prince, Feb. 11.—The relations between the governments of Hayti and Germany are strained owing to the refusal of the German bankers, Herman & Co., by direction of the court at Port au Prince, to return to the Haytian government large sums of money alleged to have been obtained fraudulently. Fears are entertained here of grave complications.

Elevator Passengers' Bad Fall
New York, Feb. 11.—Through an unexplained mishap to the running gear, an elevator carrying 11 men dropped from the eighth floor to the basement in the New Rhinelander building last night. None of the occupants, it is believed, was dangerously injured, though all suffered contusions and bruises. Three printers fared the worst and were removed to a hospital.

Murder at a Christening
New York, Feb. 11.—Dominico Laprest, aged 28, was shot in the heart and killed instantly at a christening party in the home of his brother, Giuseppe Laprest, last night. Laprest had attempted to stop a quarrel when he was killed. The murderer escaped.

Congressional Eulogies
Washington, Feb. 11.—The house yesterday listened to eulogies on the life and character and public services of the late Representative Rockwood of Georgia, both of whom died during the past summer.

BOILER RENT ASUNDER

Engineer, Fireman and Brake-

man Are Badly Scalded

Chester, Mass., Feb. 11.—Three trainmen were injured, one probably fatally, by the explosion of the boiler

of a locomotive dragging a heavy freight train. The cause of the explosion has not yet been determined. It is known, however, that the crown sheet

gave way with a deafening roar.

The train was proceeding up a heavy grade, a quarter of a mile east of the Chester station. Engineer Murphy intended to stop at this station for water.

Suddenly there was a tremendous shock, and the great boiler was rent asunder. Windows in houses within a radius of a quarter of a mile were broken by the concussion, while huge pieces of steel weighing 500 pounds

were thrown as many feet.

Engineer Murphy was crushed under the wreckage of his locomotive and was dreadfully scalded by the escaping steam. Fireman Roberge was making his first run when the accident happened. He also was badly scalded, as was Head Brakeman Hutchinson.

All of the injured were taken to the hospital at Springfield, where it is said that Roberge and Hutchinson will probably recover, but Murphy is believed to be fatally hurt.

Bench and Bar Honor Moody

Boston, Feb. 10.—A notable array of the bench and bar of New England greeted Justice William H. Moody of the United States supreme court at the complimentary banquet extended to him by the Essex County Bar association in this city. In reply to the numerous laudatory speeches Moody said that he would rather have the kindly remembrance from his fellow-members of the Essex county bar than his present position.

Lawyer Takes His Own Life

Fall River, Mass., Feb. 11.—Milton

Druce, a prominent attorney of this city, who had been suffering from a mental trouble, was found dead in his room in a boarding house last night

with two bullet wounds in his head and a revolver grasped in his right hand.

He was 40 years old and unmarried.

Bankbooks showing deposits of about

$8000 in various banks were found in Druce's pockets.

Providence Epidemic Spreading

Providence, Feb. 11.—The scarlet fever epidemic continues without visible signs of abatement. There were 11

deaths for the week and there were 27

new cases reported. Diphtheria is still prevalent also. The Italian districts continue to be the main centres of the disease, with indications that the fever is spreading.

Spent Forty Years In Prison

Boston, Feb. 11.—When Albert H.

Hurd was released from state prison

yesterday at the expiration of a 15-year sentence as a notorious thief, he had spent more than 40 years of his life behind prison bars. Hurd is 66 years old and his prison terms began before the Civil war.

Resignation of District Attorney

Nashua, N. H., Feb. 11.—Charles J.

THE CORTESE BOMBS

Paterson Citizens to Start Fund

For Hunting Down Senders

Paterson, N. J., Feb. 11.—Several hundred persons, mostly Italians, met yesterday to consider the murder of Justice of the Peace Cortese, who was blown to death by an infernal machine

in his office on Friday evening. A committee was appointed to draw up resolutions relative to Cortese's death.

The resolutions, beside expressing regret at the death of Justice Cortese, will call upon the federal, state and county governments to offer a reward for the arrest and conviction of the manufacturers and senders of the bombs. Business houses, manufacturers, the railroads, express companies and other business interests will also be called upon to contribute to ward a fund to be used as a reward for information which will bring about the arrest of the murderers. It is expected that at least 5000 persons will take part in the funeral procession.

The police are working to eliminate the names of those who might have sent the bomb who it can be shown did not. They still refuse to tell the names of three men mentioned by Cortese in his ante-mortem statement. The police, however, are inclined to the belief that if they find the murderer of Cortese they will have a person who was more or less concerned in the death of Joseph Motto, who was found dead

here some weeks ago. Motto had weathly friends in Newark and they have been stirring the authorities to action.

One of the most active in the investigation was Justice Cortese.

Bombs In Female University

Moscow, Feb. 11.—Another search for bombs at the Moscow female university has resulted in several unfilled ones being found. Eight girl students have been arrested in connection with the threat of the terrorists to execute the death sentences imposed upon Count

Ignatieff, General Pavloff, General Von

sky.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 11.—The assass-in of S. A. Alexandrovsky, governor*of Penza, who was shot Friday night,*has been identified as Hittlerman, a*Jew.*Hotel Destroyed by Fire

Syracuse, Feb. 11.—A careful investigation has failed to reveal any one missing as a result of a fire which destroyed the Mowry hotel early Sunday. It is believed all the guests have been accounted for. Some uncertainty still exists regarding the fate of some of the help employed in the hotel. The hotel fire also burned the Andrews

Hall block adjacent, the property loss aggregating $250,000. Most of the hotel guests lost their personal property.

Faithful to Duty To the Very Last

After an illness of only four or five days of pneumonia, Mr. Martin V. B. Minchin passed away at his home on Middle street, Braintree, Sunday night. Undoubtedly his illness and death were due to having the severe storm, Feb. 5, having to attend to his regular duties as crossing tender at Quincy.

Mr. Minchin was born in Braintree, May 18, 1842, and was a son of John H. and Clarissa B. (Penniman) Minchin, and has made the old town his home nearly all his life.

July 3, 1864, he was united in marriage to Miss Julia A. Huff, at South Weymouth by the Rev. Elmer Hewitt of the Universalist church. To them was born one son Martin Alonzo Minchin, who is very popular as superintendent of the Braintree post office.

The deceased served in the Civil war, and was an active member of Paul Revere Post 88, of Quincy, where he will be greatly missed. His brother John G. Minchin of Braintree is also a member of Post 88.

His war service was in the 3d Massachusetts Heavy Artillery in Co. F.

Besides a devoted wife, a son, daughter-in-law and a grandson, Arthur Minchin, he leaves four sisters and a brother—Mrs. Clara N. Howe, John G. Minchin, Mrs. Alfred Southworth and Mrs. Will Watson Mayhew of Braintree, and Mrs. Thomas Sutton of Needham.

Mr. Minchin in his younger days was employed at A. S. Morrison's mill in Braintree but for nearly twenty years has been employed by the Old Colony Railroad and later the N. Y. & N. H. & H. R. R. as gateman at the Water street crossing at Quincy Adams.

He was always to be depended upon, always there even if he had to walk the two miles in the toughest storms. Few, if any, accidents occurred at the water street crossing. His eyes were always on duty, looking out for the safety of the public, and he will be missed.

Funeral services will be held at his late home, Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, Rev. Frederick K. Griffin of All Souls' church officiating.

City Shovelers Obstruct Tracks

Men employed by the city shoveling snow caused more or less trouble to street car traffic Friday and Saturday by shoveling the snow from the side of the street into the car tracks. At West Quincy, on School street, and at Wollaston and Atlantic they seemed to take particular delight in doing this. At Wollaston and West Quincy these men blocked the tracks so badly that it was necessary for passengers to change cars and walk a distance of 1,000 feet.

Commissioner Burke claimed that it was not done by his orders, and he stopped them as soon as his attention was called to it, but it was too late then, for the mischief had been done.

Had it not been for the snow plows of the street railway opening the streets last week there were some days when the people would have had to wade through snow banks, as the sidewalks were now plowed out.

Rectors from Boston, Brookline and Cambridge will assist at the Wednesday evening meetings during Lent at Christ church, Rev. W. E. Gardner having secured the following:

Rev. John McGraw Foster, Church of the Messiah, Boston.

Rev. Daniel Dulaney Addison, All Saints Church, Brookline.

Rev. E. S. Drown, Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge.

Rev. George Hodges, Dean of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge.

Rev. Harry Perkins, Church of the Redeemer, Chestnut Hill.

Did Not Escape

Some of the prisoners at Fort Andrews on Peddock Island escaped from confinement Saturday night and attempted to gain their liberty by crossing the ice to Houghs Neck. Their escape was soon discovered and a squad of soldiers sent after them. In the meantime word had been telephoned to the Quincy police station, and the officer on duty at Houghs Neck was notified. He with several others stood on the shore waiting for the escaped prisoners to appear. The squad of soldiers from the island had captured the men, however before they had gone far.

SYNOPSIS.

Chapter I.—Bradley Nickerson, an orphan, twelve years of age, arrives at Orham, Mass., to live with his cousins, Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy Allen, old maids. In the Orham stage he meets Captain Ezra Titcomb, master of a coasting schooner, home for a brief vacation. II.—Captain Titcomb visits the Allen old maids, to each of whom he presents a fan, one the exact counterpart of the other. III.—Bradley becomes acquainted with Augusta ("Gussy") Baker a girl of about his age, who lives next door. She owns several dogs. Bradley is sent to the village school and gets a whipping for fighting with Sam Hammond, a fellow pupil. IV.—Captain Titcomb on his periodical visits to Orham is very kind to Bradley. Bradley delivers an "address" at the "last day" exercises at the Orham school. Prissy informs Tempy that evening that their resources are practically exhausted. V.—Bradley overhears the conversation and consults Captain Titcomb, who agrees to take him on his ship as a sort of cabin boy.

VI.—Bradley's first trip as a sailor. He goes to New York, and the captain takes him to the theatre. Bradley visits Orham at the end of three months and learns that through the instrumentality of Captain Titcomb Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy are receiving regular contributions from the Sampson fund for the children of shipmasters. The "old maids" have no knowledge of Titcomb's connection with the matter.

VII.—Bradley is now twenty years old and is second mate of Titcomb's vessel, the "Thomas Doane." Titcomb is injured on the trip and is laid up in his cabin, when Bradley, in an effort to prevent the first mate from running the schooner on a shoal, overpowers that officer and locks him up. When Titcomb is well enough Bradley learns that the schooner was to be wrecked on the rocks of Titcomb's consent, by the owner's orders. Bradley is horrified, and Titcomb, agreeing with him that "honesty is the best policy," they both leave.

Bradley somehow didn't enjoy the rest of the conversation. In the first place, he didn't relish the idea, so suddenly brought to him, that "fellers" were running after Gus, and particularly he didn't care to have Sam Hammond among the runners. He had met Sam once or twice in New York. A big chap he was, handsome and well dressed in a rather loud fashion and with a boastful knowledge of life about town. Bradley was not a prig, but satulons and after theater suppers had little attraction for him, even if his salary had been large enough to pay the bills. He had wondered idly how Sam could afford the "fun" he was always describing.

The melodeon in the vestry struck up "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," and the loungers on the fence began to move over toward the door. He went with them, standing a little way back from the entrance. The final verse of the hymn died away in deaf Mrs. Piper's tremulous falsetto. Then there was a hush as the benediction was pronounced, the door swung open, and with giggles and a rustle of conversation, the worshippers began to emerge.

She came out and stood on the step.

Bradley looked for Gus, and at last he saw her. She was talking to Mr. Langworthy, and the light from the bracket lamp in the entry shone upon her face. Again he decided, just as he had when he left her before going to sea, that she was pretty, but now he realized that hers was not a doll-like prettiness, but that there was character in her dark eyes and the expression of her mouth.

She came out and stood on the step, buttoning her glove. Two of the young fellows stepped out of the line toward her. She spoke to both of them and laughed. Then she caught sight of Bradley, who also had moved into the lamplight, and brushing past the rival pair of volunteer escorts, she held out her hand.

"Why, Brad!" she exclaimed. "Where on earth did you come from? I'm ever so glad to see you. How do you do?"

Bradley shook hands and said, "How do you do?" There was no earthly reason why he should be embarrassed, but he was, just a little. He stammered and then asked if he might have the pleasure of "seeing her home."

"Why, of course you may," she said. "That's what you came here for, isn't it? I hope so, at any rate."

Bradley laughed and admitted that he guessed that was about it. Gus took his arm, and they moved down the path and down the rough stone steps to the sidewalk.

"Why, I haven't seen you for an age!" said Gus. "And you haven't written for nearly three weeks! Why did you come home now? You didn't expect to come home so soon, did you?"

Bradley explained why he had come home. Captain Titcomb had left the "Thomas Doane," he said, and he had left with him. He didn't tell the real reason for the leaving, but hinted at dissatisfaction with the owners. To head off further questions on this ticklish subject he asked Gus what she had been doing that winter.

"Well," she said, "I graduated from high school, for one thing, and I'm keeping house for grandma. I guess that's about all."

"What's been going on in town? Any dances?"

"Yes; a few. I went to the Washington's birthday ball, but it wasn't much fun. Most of the floor committee were old, married people and about every other dance was 'Hull's Victory' or a quadrille. Round dances, you know, are wicked, especially if you don't know how to dance them."

"You wrote me you went to that. Sam Hammond's been home, hasn't he?"

"Oh, yes. I went to the ball with him. He's a lovely dancer, and we waltzed whenever they played a waltz tune, no matter whether the rest were busy with a quadrille or not. But why don't you tell me what you are going to do now that you've given up your position?"

Bradley told her of Captain Titcomb's idea concerning the purchase of the Lizzie and the offer of partnership in the wrecking business. As he talked his growing interest in the plan became more evident, and he spoke of it as something already nearly decided upon. "What do you think of it?" he asked in conclusion.

"Why, I don't know," replied Gus. "If it all works out as the cap'n hopes it will be a fine thing. But isn't it rather risky? It means staying at home here in Orham, where people's ideas get into a rut, it seems to me. The cities seem so big and to have such chances for a man! You know yourself, Brad, that you've improved a lot since you went away."

"I haven't got a gold watch yet or any fine clothes, and my dancing wouldn't draw a crowd, I guess."

"Don't be silly. Sam is a good waltzer, and he has improved in his manners and in other ways. I shouldn't want you to settle down into nothing but a 'longshoreman.' I guess I'm like Miss Tempy. I hoped you'd be captain of an ocean liner some of these days."

"Well, I don't mean to cramp myself to 'longshoreman' size just because I stay in the village. It looks to me like a chance—a good chance—to be my own boss and make something of myself. I hoped you'd see it that way."

"Perhaps I shall when I get more used to it. Tell me more please."

Talk of Day About the City

The Atlantic Bridge club met Friday evening with Mrs. Henry Von Renden of Botolph street. The hostess gave her guests a delightful time.

Henry L. Kincaide has been appointed aide-de-camp for Massachusetts by Hamilton Ward, commander-in-chief of the United Spanish War Veterans.

A pupil of the Gridley Bryant school was brought into court this morning by Triant Officer Johnson for truancy. He was put on probation until April 2.

Miss Helen I. Mahoney, one of the teachers at the Gridley Bryant school, who was operated upon for appendicitis at the Somerville hospital a few days ago, is reported as comfortable. She was remembered today with flowers from the teachers.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Sinclair of 403 Washington street were pleasantly surprised on Saturday evening by a good number of their friends. A fine program had been arranged of music, games and dancing. Light refreshments were served throughout the evening and at 11 o'clock a bountiful supper was provided.

Quincy was largely represented at the annual dinner of the Megantic Fish and Game club on Saturday at the Copley Square Hotel, including: Henry H. Kitson, W. E. Burke, William T. Isaac, C. A. Howland, Jr., Fred B. Rice, W. R. Bateman, Dr. F. R. Burke, Dr. J. A. Gordon, Dr. N. S. Hunting, Dr. S. W. Ellsworth and H. L. Rice.

Everybody who has an American flag is flying it today in honor of Lincoln's birthday anniversary.
Born, Feb. 12, 1809, in Kentucky.
Died April 15, 1865, at Washington.
The memory of the martyr President who was born in a log cabin, is revered by all Americans, and the centenial of his birth two years hence should be celebrated in every city, town and hamlet in the United States and its possessions.

H. Trask of Quincy, first
Henry Prescott of Quincy, second.

POTATO RACE.
Age 12-14—Time. 32 sec.
Prout of Quincy, first.
Trask of Quincy, second.
Prescott of Quincy, third.

The most points at the meet were won by H. Prout, who made 13. H.
Trask was a good second with 11, while these five made 6 each, Walker, Gourlie, Cladin, Tingloff and E. Prout. There were three who made 5, Tupper, Gallagher, and Prescott. Bonney made 4, Curtis, Carlson and Bates 3 each, Brooks 2, and Howard and Johnson 1
each.

Anniversary Party.
A pretty party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Farmer at their home on Granite street on Sunday evening to their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs.
Arthur Farmer, in honor of the third anniversary of their marriage. The young couple were completely surprised, as they simply intended to call for the evening. They were presented with two beautiful rugs and a lovely picture.
Although surprised the young couple joined in with the rest of the party and made things cheerful, with plenty of music and merriment. Then all went to the dining room where a table was spread with plenty of good things.

Annual Dance.
The Bigelow base ball club held their second annual dance at Faxon hall on Monday evening which was attended by about 100 couples, and a good time was enjoyed. Thompson orchestra furnished music, and frappe was served during the evening. The floor director was Peter M. Sullivan, with Edwin C.
Donovan and Joseph McDonald as assistants and several aids. They were designated by badges of which they were proud. It was a 12 o'clock party.

nothing was wanting.
The hall was very prettily decorated
by the New England Decorating Co.
Streamers of purple and of red, white and blue were festooned about the hall.
In the center over the platform was a large banner announcing that it was the first annual ball of Quincy lodge.
Beneath this was a large clock dial

The grand march which opened the ball was at 9 o'clock, and was a feature of the evening. Leo J. McMasters was the director of the march and it was executed in a manner that called for rounds of applause, especially as a line of sixteen couples first came down the hall with slow measured step under the colored calcium lights thrown upon them.

with the horns of an elk pointing at 11 o'clock. On either side of this there were draped two American flags.
Along the front of the platform were a number of potted plants, in the centre of which was a large floral shield upon which were the words "Hello Bill."
These words it was explained was the original password of the Elks, and was used during its infancy. The floral decorations were by Derringer of Atlantic. Flags and bunting were also festooned along the front of the balcony.

them came Assistant Floor Director Edward J. Murphy and Mrs. Murphy,
John W. Walsh and Miss Margaret
Walsh, James W. Sweeney and Miss Sweeney, the aids, committee of arrangements, reception committee and guests.
About 150 couples participated in the march which more than encircled the hall.
General dancing was then in order.
At 11 o'clock there came a lull in the festivities. The lights were dimmed, and a bright calcium light thrown on the dial over the platform, the hands of which pointed to the hour of 11. The significance is known only to those who have been admitted to the inner circle of the order.
All was hushed during the silent toast save for the slow and measured strokes of a gong which sounded the hour. Then while still in darkness Edward Cuff sang beautifully the "Elks' toast." This over, the lights were again turned on and dancing con-

FLOOR DIRECTOR THOMAS.

Quincy was not alone represented,
for there were hosts of Elks and ladies from out of town. Cuff's orchestra was at its best and never furnished more entrancing music for dancing.
From 8 until 9 o'clock they gave a promenade concert the program including:
March—New England's Finest
Overture—Follia
Concert Waltz—Sylvan Dreams
Puccini Solo—Selected
March—Noodles
Clark
Mittenhal
Hildreth
H. J. Harding
Blake

Meanwhile the dancers and guests were arriving, and their wants were looked after by an efficient reception committee consisting of Frederick W.
Tirrell, P. E. R., Daniel J. Deasy, E.
R., William T. Shea, Benjamin Johnson, James Milne, Eugene C. Hultman, Dr. Fred E. Jones, John W. McAn-arney, William J. Coleman, Charles C.
Hearn and John Smith.
The invited guests present included
Congressman-elect Joseph F. O'Connell, County Commissioner John F. Merrill, Representatives Eugene C. Hultman and Edward J. Sandberg, Chief of Police
Frank E. Burrell, Chief Engineer A. L.
Litchfield, President Walter E. Piper of the City Council, Postmaster Charles L.
Hammond, District Deputy Joseph A.
Murphy of Boston, G. E. L. Knight, W.
H. McLaughlin of Boston, P. E. R.

WANTED.

in 1907 for a

NEW CODDINGTON

GOOD AFTERNOON.

There are many benefits which will accrue to Quincy if the Granite and Shawmut branches of the N. Y., N. H.
& H. R. R. are connected.

It will hasten the four tracking of the main line between Boston and Braintree via Quincy.

It will secure a double track road through West Quincy. It will result in a "Quincy circuit" road and closely connect all the Quincy stations, and probably at a five-cent fare. Perhaps the fare between stations of the "Quincy circuit" and Boston will be but five cents.

The Quincy station will not only have frequent electric trains running in both directions, but more express trains would stop at the Quincy station, to transfer passengers to and from the "Quincy circuit." These express trains would run on different tracks from the "Quincy circuit" trains and make quick time.

The "Quincy circuit" sounds good and will advertise Quincy.

For these and many other reasons the representative men of Quincy, the Mayor, the Board of Trade, and the Citizens' Association, should attend the hearing tomorrow morning at the State House, and speak in favor of the petition of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R.
R. for authority to connect the Granite and Shawmut branches.

After all Quincy has quite a long list of heavy taxpayers. The instalments being published in the Daily Ledger are assessed on a valuation in excess of $11,750, and the end has not yet been reached. Several pay a tax of over $1,000.

Quincy is proud of the battleship
Vermont, the largest of Uncle Sam's fleet. She is the largest battleship that ever entered Boston harbor, and Quincy had the honor of being the builder.

It now transpires that the Virginia lady who handed her baby to a bear did so under the impression that it was her husband. She is not the first woman of record who couldn't see any difference between the two.

If it costs the school teachers of Somerville $618.10 per annum to live, how is it that Quincy teachers exist on much less? The fact remains, however, that lady teachers in our public schools are underpaid.

More interest will now be taken in the Y. M. C. A. athletes, since they came out victorious in a large meet like that with the Boston, Cambridge and Middleboro boys.

Drift of Opinion.

The great achievement that stands to the credit of the President is that he has broken the spell of the notion—which had reached almost the point of a superstition—that it was impossible, in this country, for an Administration put into power by a conservative party to invoke the country's laws with vigor and effectiveness against gi-gantic corporate law-breakers, and that it was impossible, under such an administration, to enact legislation to which the great financial interests of the country were opposed. The demonstration that these things can be done is a service of incalculable value as a protection against what may be styled the danger of the mob spirit.—Balti-

CAFÉ MARTIN NOTE

Produced In Court and Identified
by Mrs. Thaw

"BLACKGUARD WAS HERE"

Jerome Compels Defense to Go Into Taking of Testimony as to Thaw's Insanity—Expert Says Defendant Did Not Know That Act of Shooting White
Was Wrong at Time He Did It

New York, Feb. 12.—Answering a hypothetical question covering every detail of the testimony up to this time in the Thaw trial, including Mrs.
Evelyn N. Thaw's narration of her life history to the defendant, Dr. Wagner, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Binghamton, declared on the witness stand late yesterday that in his opinion Harry K. Thaw did not know that the act was wrong when he shot and killed Stanford White on the roof of Madison Square Garden.

The taking of Wagner's opinion of a hypothetical question, the man under consideration being the author of the letters which have been introduced as emanating from Harry Thaw during the period of his estrangement with Evelyn Nesbit after their return from Europe, in 1903, followed a day of almost continuous legal sparring between Delphin M. Delmas for the defense and Mr. Jerome for the prosecution.

Mr. Jerome effectually blocked the completion, for the time being, of the direct testimony of Mrs. Evelyn Thaw by insisting that before she go further competent testimony as to Thaw's unsoundness of mind should be placed before the jury. Delmas tried to carry forward the young wife's story, but the district attorney was on his feet with an objection to every question asked.

Mrs. Thaw had been recalled as the third witness of the day. One of her predecessors was J. D. Lyon, vice president of the Union National bank of Pittsburg, who stated that he had received Harry Thaw's will from the latter's own hands some time prior to April 1, 1906, and had held it in a safe deposit box until late in November last, when he directed his secretary to forward it to John B. Gleason of Thaw's counsel.

Mr. Gleason followed Lyon on the stand and said he had received the will by mail on Dec. 11, 1906, and that absolutely no changes had been made in the instrument during the time he had been in his possession. Jerome admitted the progress of the will from Lyon to Gleason without the necessity of bringing the former's secretary as a witness.

Mr. Delmas did not offer the will in evidence, however, owing to the fact that it has not in its entirety been proved as having been legally executed by Thaw.

When young Mrs. Thaw was called to the stand she was dressed precisely as when she occupied the witness chair last week. As she was taking her seat Delmas turned to the district attorney and renewed his demand of Wednesday last that the note which was passed by Mrs. Thaw to her husband at the Café Martin the night of the tragedy should be produced. Jerome, upon the occasion of the first demand, had remained silent. Yesterday he was on his feet at once, saying he would send for the slip of paper. It was brought from his office, was identified by Mrs.
Thaw and then read by Delmas as follows: "The b—— was here a minute ago, but went out again."

The contents of the note caused a surprise only as to the exact wording. It had generally been supposed that the note read: "The b—— is here." Mrs.
Thaw testified that "the b——" meant "the blackguard," as Thaw always referred to Stanford White, whom she had seen on the balcony of the café.

The only other essential point Mrs.
Thaw was allowed to bring out in her testimony was the statement that the defendant never carried a pistol except when in New York city. She was asked many other questions embodying various stories she had discussed with Thaw, including the alleged fate of a girl known to them as "The Pie-girl" at the hands of White, but Jerome blocked every question with a sustained objection.

After compelling the defense to go into the taking of expert testimony as to Thaw's insanity by his objections to Mrs. Thaw's testimony, Jerome next proceeded to block the testimony of Wagner as to the results of his six visits to the defendant in the Tombs and his tests as to the latter's mental condition.
Wagner was not allowed to go into the conversations he had had with the defendant nor the conclusions he had reached from these conversations. He was confined by Jerome's continuous fusillade of objections to stating what he actually observed, and he declared his observations were so closely interlarded with his questioning of the defendant that he did not know if he could separate them.

A long argument over the point resulted in Delmas withdrawing any further questions as to the tests, confidently himself with asking Wagner to give his opinion of the hypothetical question covering the evidence in the case. The question was almost record-breaking in length—a comprehensive resume of the entire case, including Mrs. Thaw's personal narrative.

In his hypothetical question Delmas accused White of having "drugged" the Nesbit girl and of having attempted to renew "communication or relations"

with her subsequent to her marriage.
Jerome objected to these features of the question and it was amended to embrace the evidence of record as to the disputed points.

It was on the amended question that Wagner gave it as his opinion that Thaw did not know, because of defective reason, that his act in killing White was wrong. Here the expert's direct examination was amended and he stepped aside for cross-examination later. When he is taken in hand by Jerome he will have to give detailed reasons for his opinion.

A new rule by Justice Fitzgerald, barring from the courtroom all women
not engaged in active newspaper work, went into effect yesterday. Many of those who had occupied front seats heretofore were on hand, but to no avail. The court officers had direct orders this time and obeyed them implicitly. As a result there were empty benches in the courtroom all day.

Ministers Favor Publicity

Providence, Feb. 12.—The Union Federation of the Evangelical Ministers of Providence and its vicinity voted unanimously in favor of the publication of all testimony in the Thaw trial, it being deemed inadvisable to lose the effect "of the greatest moral lesson of the age" by failing to make public the testimony in the trial. Rev. Mr. Bartlett said that the tenor of the testimony of the Thaw trial was one of the best indications given in recent years of the easy manner in which a young girl may be led astray under such conditions as exist in some of our great cities.

Warning to Newspapers

New York, Feb. 12.—United States District Attorney Stimson of this city has served notice upon the publishers of all the principal newspapers of this city that he intends to bring before the United States grand jury for criminal prosecution all violations of the federal laws against the circulation of obscene matter in reporting the Thaw trial.
Stimson said, however, that as his presentation of the matter before the grand jury, it would depend very much upon future publications throughout the remainder of the trial.

Big Claim For Back Taxes

Chicago, Feb. 12.—The probate court has been petitioned by County Treasurer Thompson to enter an order directing the executors of the estate of the late Marshall Field to pay to the county treasurer $2,007,796 as the personal property taxes from 1899 to 1906 assessed against the estate of Field. The executors of the estate offer no objection to the payment of the taxes for 1906, but will contest the payment for the other years because Marshall Field was alive at that time.

Prize Fighting Shut Off

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 12.—Because of a riot in a prize ring last Wednesday, when half a dozen policemen were necessary to prevent possible bloodshed, the city council passed an order last night prohibiting boxing contests of all kinds. No person or newspaper is permitted to advertise prize fighting in Kalamazoo.

Chicago Railway Franchise

Chicago, Feb. 12.—The city council last night, by a vote of 57 to 12, passed over the veto of Mayor Dunne the ordinances granting 20-year franchises to the present street railway companies of Chicago. The ordinances were originally passed last Monday night and Dunne vetoed the measures.

Alleged Violators of Law

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 12.—Indictments were returned in the United States court against more than a dozen persons and corporations for violation of the anti-trust laws. All the defendants who could be reached were notified, appeared and made bond in the sum of $10,000 each.

Automobile In Pole Hunt

London, Feb. 12.—A new British expedition to the South Pole will leave England next October under the command of E. H. Shackleton. The present enterprise has influential support.
A novel feature of the voyage will be the employment of a motor car built for ice traveling.

Ten Hours For Day's Work

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 12.—The senate last night passed the 10-hour bill, which limits the time of labor in cotton and woolen mills in South Carolina to 10 hours a day. The bill has already passed the house and will become a law when signed by the governor.

No Raise In Army Pay

Washington, Feb. 12.—The senate passed the army appropriation bill, carrying $81,600,000. An amendment offered by Senator Dick increasing by 20 percent the pay of officers and enlisted men was defeated by a point of order made by Senator Hale.

Ministers Want "Salome" Barred

Cincinnati, Feb. 12.—After listening to a fierce denunciation of the grand opera "Salome," the Evangelical Alliance of this city passed a resolution to take steps to prevent its proposed presentation in Cincinnati by the Conried Grand Opera company.

Virginia Has an Earthquake

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 12.—An earthquake of considerable violence was felt throughout this section yesterday. In Charlottesville dishes were rattled at the tables. The tremor lasted 20 seconds.

LONG IN SERVICE

Mingo Sanders Had Honorable
Record In Army

HIS STORY TO SENATORS

Heard Lieutenant Give Order to Break Gun Racks on Night of Brownsville Affray—Town-
smen Fired Several Shots

Washington, Feb. 12.—Mingo Sanders, who was discharged from the army without honor, was the star witness before the senate committee on military affairs.

Sanders was first sergeant of company B, Twenty-Fifth infantry, and was one of the several of the discharged soldiers whose re-enlistment was recommended by the inspector general of the army, Brigadier General Garlington, who believed them to be without any knowledge of the Brownsville affair. The application of Sanders is now before the department. He will probably be re-enlisted.

Sanders testified that when he was discharged he had served 25 years 6 months and 23 days in the army, more than three years of which had been spent in Cuba and the Philippines. He had never been court-martialed, or even rebuked, and had never had any trouble during his whole service. He was asleep the night of Aug. 13 last in his quarters, which were 50 yards or more distant from the quarters house. These were the quarters where the married non-commissioned officers live, with their families. Sanders was awakened by his wife, who had first been aroused by the family of another "non-com." At first Sanders thought there was fire, but when he heard the call to arms he hurriedly dressed and rushed out in the direction of B company quarters.

His testimony at this point deeply interested the committee. He continued:
"While I was going to my quarters the bullets were whizzing over my head from the direction of the town. As I passed by the quarters of one company I heard an officer, whose voice I recognized as that of Lieutenant Graeme, say: 'Where are your guns?'
The men said they were locked up in the racks. 'Break open the racks,' said this officer."

Sanders told of finding his own company in confusion and of his efforts to straighten it out. He said he found some of the men down on their knees and that others were yelling to put out the lantern so that it would not furnish a target for persons to shoot at. "I told the men to stand up and be soldiers, and it was better to be shot in the ranks than out," said Sanders.
"When the men did not stand up I told them some other things I don't want to repeat here." On cross-examination Sanders said it was "mixed firing." He thought it came from six-shooters, Winchesters and Mausers.

Sanders said that he had nothing to do with the shooting; did not know anyone who had, did not suspect anyone, and had made diligent inquiries among the men to find out from them what, if anything, they knew, and had been unable to get any information.
He declared that he had not withheld any information and that there was no conspiracy of silence.

Sanders was cross-examined by Senator Warner. He repeated that many of the shots fired on the night of Aug. 13 came from the town, and said that he had reported this fact to Major Penrose, although it did not appear in his evidence taken by Captain Lions. Indeed, he said, he had not stated this to any one else until this time. He had not been asked about it and didn't volunteer information.
"I am looking after Sanders first," he said.

Sanders stated that his gun was not in the rack at the time of the shooting, but in the sergeant's room and that he returned to this room for it. He was not required to keep his gun in the rack on account of peculiar duties. He thought there were about nine guns out of the company's racks on the night of the shooting, but they were all accounted for. Sanders' evidence is not concluded.

Sanders is the first witness who has been specific in telling of hearing an officer give the order to break open the racks. If this be verified, it will be the most important fact yet brought out by the inquiry, as the broken gun racks of C company have always been regarded as damaging evidence against the soldiers. The committee will question the officers very closely on this point when they are examined. At present the officers of the B, C and D companies are at Brownsville in attendance upon the court martial of Major Penrose.

Alleged Corruption In Venezuela

Caracas, Feb. 12.—Rudolf Dolge, the ex-American consular agent here and secretary of the United States commission on Venezuelan claims, has filed with the government a long exposure of the complicity of certain prominent officers in attempting to rob the Orinoco corporation of its immensely valuable rights in the Orinoco delta.

Persians' Demands Granted

Teheran, Feb. 12.—The shah last night sent a message to parliament granting all the popular demands. This message was telegraphed to Tabriz,
where the people had seized the arsenal and closed the government offices. All is now quiet.

Tidbits from
All Wards of City

M. F. King and family have moved from Union street to Wollaston.

A. C. Prouditt and family of Prospect street have moved to Boston.

The choir of Christ church give a concert at the Sailors Haven, Charlestown, next Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Merritt of Elm place have been entertaining relatives from the Cape the past week.

Temporary receivers have been appointed for the Sheldon Company, boat builders, at Neponset.

Mrs. F. C. Hewson of Newcomb place has been the guest of her son George at his home in Everett, the past week.

Mrs. Francis Baxter of Washington street will entertain a few lady friends at her home on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. H. R. Morton has been confined to her home on Hancock street the past two weeks by illness. She is slowly improving.

Owing to continued illness Charles Cummings of Mill street, a veteran of the G. A. R., has been moved to the City Hospital.

Mrs. Eliza A. Penniman of this city has been appointed by the National president of the W. R. C. as one of the National aids.

Albert Grant, of Brackett street, formerly with the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., left Saturday for Providence, to accept a position in that city.

Mrs. Baxton of Lunt street is giving a charming luncheon in the Vendome, Boston, today, in honor of the birthday of her niece Miss Alice Baxton.

The many friends of Mrs. Edward Farmer of Granite street are glad to see her about again after a long and tedious illness which has kept her indoors all winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Theophilus King of Adams street have contributed $100 toward the permanent endowment of Dr. Hale's works, and the fund is now in excess of $10,000.

Frank K. Foster, who was one of the speakers at the Wollaston Unitarian club last winter, collapsed on Saturday evening at the close of an address in Toledo, Ohio, and is seriously ill.

Miss May Keenan has severed her connection as clerk, for the Board of Trade, and her genial and pleasant smile will be greatly missed by those who had the pleasure of meeting her daily.

George Richardson of Botolph street has purchased a four cylinder Grout car that is bright and new for spring touring. In his travels abroad last winter Mr. Richardson had a chance to judge all the automobiles of foreign make, but he has made in choice of a domestic car, after all, finding it ranks equal to any.

Mr. H. Van Kaltenborn assumes that most newspapers are either yellow or are tools of the corporate interests.
Mr. Van Kaltenborn is of Harvard; yet
Harvard does not teach anything.

There are many yellow journals—infact every paper that shows an occasional flash of enterprise or originality is called yellow by some people. There are many papers that are very kind to corporations. There are many papers that do not believe all they hear about corporations and who say that corporations do enough good in the business world to be supported. There are other newspapers that roar daily against corporations and apparently desire to see them wiped from existence. Neither of these classes of papers is absolutely truthful. Neither believes absolutely in itself.

But there is another large class of newspapers that tries to be fair to the public and the readers in reporting the news of the day and in handling it.
This class is conservative to the extent of not caring to needlessly hurt feelings and needlessly injure business that is good business. It is fair enough to try to deal with people alike, or to as great an extent as this is possible in an imperfect world. It takes some interest in its business and strives to improve every day.

Generally speaking, the newspapers of today are so vastly better than they were even twenty years ago that any critic ought to see the improvement and ought to find something besides fault to find in modern newspaper work. But the atmosphere of Harvard is fatal in many cases to the development of anything but the adversely critical faculty.—Brocton Enterprise.

cerned, the sooner we reach the "execut omnes" stage, the better we shall like it.

DIVERGENT VIEWS

Roosevelt and Californians Are Not In Accord

PUZZLE OVER JAPANESE

People of Golden State Opposed to Admission of Coolies Into This Country—Cabinet to Consider Latest Proposition

Washington, Feb. 12.—As a result of an hour's conference at the White House, attended by President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Root, Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco and the members of the school board of that city, it has been agreed that the whole matter will be considered at the cabinet meeting to-day. Schmitz declined to say whether the question of excluding the Japanese coolies by congressional legislation formed a part of their proposition which was submitted to the president in writing.

Members of the San Francisco delegation have received hundreds of telegrams urging them to advocate a treaty excluding the Japanese laborer and legislation by congress to carry the provisions of this treaty into effect. Schmitz hesitates in making any agreement that will not meet with the approval of the people of California. The private dispatches from the coast have in all instances indicated the wide interest of the people in California.

It can be authoritatively stated that the president has appealed to Schmitz and his associates to bring the anti-Japanese agitation to an end by rescinding the school board's order for the establishment of Oriental schools. Under the California law the question of separate schools is left to the discretion of the school authorities and before the earthquake disaster the Japanese were admitted to the white schools. Schmitz declares that the only reason for establishing the separate institutions was because the Japanese were crowding the white children out of the schools in certain districts of the city.

When asked as to the general tone of the telegrams received from San Francisco, Schmitz said: "The people of California don't give a rap about the school question, but they are opposed to the admission of Japanese coolies into this country."

Members of the California delegation in congress express ignorance of the nature of the basis of settlement proposed to the president. The San Francisco delegation has entered into an agreement that all statements given out for publication must come from Schmitz, while Representative Hayes is acting as spokesman for the California congressional delegation.

"The people of California are unduly excited over misleading reports from the east," said Hayes. "They seem to believe that we are going to give everything away, when, as a matter of fact, we will get what we are contending for. Had the school authorities of San Francisco believed that they would insult a foreign nation by closing the schools to certain foreigners of course they would not have done what they did. The very best that can be done will be done, I feel sure, and there is no reason for our people feeling that we are going to betray their interests."

Long Fight Over Jurymen

Wallack, Ida, Feb. 12.—The trial of Steve Adams, implicated by the confession of Harry Orchard with the assassination of former Governor Steiuenberg, on a charge of murdering Fred Tyler, has begun. The selection of a jury is expected to continue for two weeks. Tyler's murder remained a mystery until after the death of Steiuenberg. This trial is the first step in the legal attempt to convict the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners of the murder of Steiuenberg.

Chinese Labor on Canal Job

Washington, Feb. 12.—Secretary Taft, Chairman Shonts of the isthmian canal commission, and R. R. Rogers, general counsel for the commission, appeared before the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce to explain the proposed canal contract. Secretary Taft said that his understanding of the contract and the present law is that they would not prevent the successful contractor from employing Chinese labor on the isthmus.

Case of Interest to Peary

New York, Feb. 12.—The Brooklyn police have been requested to search for Charles Percy, Jr., assistant steward on Lieutenant Commander Peary's exploration vessel, the Roosevelt. He has been missing since Thursday. The request for a search was made on telegraphic instructions from Peary, who is in Boston. He states that Percy's father suspects foul play.

Motorman's Legs Amputated

Easton, Pa., Feb. 12.—In a collision between trolley cars just beyond the city limits Edward Hopkins, a motorman, was probably fatally injured and Peter William and Quintus Heitzman were dangerously hurt. Hopkins' legs were so badly crushed that they had to be amputated. Many passengers were slightly hurt.

Alger's Successor Sworn In

Washington, Feb. 12.—William A. Smith has taken the oath as United States senator to fill the unexpired term of former Senator Alger of Michigan. Smith has also been elected for the full term, beginning March 4 next.

URIC-O CURED HIM.

Rheumatism Tortured and Crippled Mr. Theo. D. Hadley of Kennett Square, Pa.

Dear Friend: You will remember of my writing you some time ago regarding Uric-O for rheumatism. I took your advice and purchased three bottles from my local druggist and began its use at once. Favorable effects were experienced and day by day I improved. I have used the three bottles and can truthfully state that I am a well man. Uric-O has cured in me as bad a case of rheumatism as ever existed. My suffering for months was intense, some nights not able to get one moment's sleep, could not raise my right hand to my head, had to do all with my left. I could not even dress myself for over three months. My trouble being inflammatory rheumatism had settled in my right arm and shoulder, crippling as I thought, permanently. This is the third letter I have written you, and I am hardly expected to be able to do again, as I did not think I could possibly recover from the terrible effects of the disease, as you know I am and the four score year on the way to the "New Jerusalem." I am happy to state that after suffering so long with the most painful form of rheumatism, that Uric-O has cured me and nearly normal conditions exist. My former strength is improving, and yet for all I am 55 years old, sleep well again, eat well and as hale and hearty as a man of my age. Thank you very much again most heartily for recommending Uric-O to me. I can now recommend it to my friends. Theo. D. Hadley, Kennett Square, Pa. This marvelous specific is sold at 75 cents a bottle, two weeks' treatment, a blood cure for all forms of rheumatism, acting alone on the blood, muscles and kidneys. Uric-O is a liquid, not a powder, and is taken three times daily and must be used for rheumatism only. Ask your druggist for samples and circulars explaining the treatment. The store of E. J. Murphy is the Uric-O store in Quincy.

FIRE IN BOSTON HOTEL

One Man Killed and Many Others

Narrowly Escape Death

Boston, Feb. 12.—One person was killed and the lives of 150 others were placed in jeopardy by a stubborn fire in the Waverly house, a large family hotel in the Charlestown district, last night. One-third of those in the hotel found their usual means of escape cut off and were forced to gain the street by means of the fire escapes or over ladders which the firemen raised to the second and third-story windows.

John Flynn, aged 60, who fell from a fourth floor window to the sidewalk, had his skull crushed and expired on the way to a hospital. Margaret Harrigan, a sister of the dead man, and Josephine Munroe were taken to a hospital after being overcome by smoke, but they were discharged today.

The fire started from some unknown cause in the basement and rushed up an elevator well to the third floor, where it spread out into the rooms. The hotel was soon filled with smoke and the halls were quickly filled with an excited crowd.

The hotel inmates, who made such a hasty exit from the building that they had but little on, were taken across the street to a police station. Nearly all related tales of narrow escapes from suffocation, and all were thankful for getting out with only a few of their possessions.

The building was not badly damaged, but the greater portion of the block was heavily soaked with water, and the total loss is estimated at $25,000.

Report in Fernald Case

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 12.—According to District Attorney Sanderson, the mystery surrounding the deaths of three members of the Fernald family in Everett in December is dissipated, and unless some further evidence shall be forthcoming the conclusion is that the deaths were due solely to natural causes. Professor Whitney of Harvard university says that after a careful examination of the viscera of the dead Fernalds, he finds no trace of poison or of any other substance of a suspicious nature.

Easy Victory For Melody

Valley Falls, N. Y., Feb. 12.—William Melody of Boston, welterweight champion of the world, last night proved his superiority over William Lewis of New York, the Boston fighter winning in the fourth round after Lewis' seconds had thrown up the sponge in a bout scheduled for 15 rounds. Once only during the contest did Lewis appear to be in Melody's class.

Part of Body Blown to Pieces

Montpelier, Vt., Feb. 12.—Henry Downey, 40 years old, was instantly killed by the explosion of a dynamite cartridge, the top of which he was trying to remove with a knife. Edward Freedom, who was nearby, was knocked down, but not seriously injured. The upper portion of Downey's body was blown to pieces.

Clothing Caught Fire

Newton, Mass., Feb. 12.—While standing too close to an old-fashioned fireplace, the clothing of Miss Bridget Denison, for 40 years in the family of Mrs. Samuel Kilborn, caught fire, and, before help arrived, the woman was burned to death. Miss Denison was 70 years old.

Serious Trouble Not Expected

Washington, Feb. 12.—Believing in the justice of its position, the Haitian government does not expect any serious difficulty with Germany, growing out of certain transactions of German bankers of Port au Prince and a syndicate which received considerable sums from Hayti in cash and bonds, on account of various public improvements. The case is an old one and twice has been before the Haitian courts, Hayti in both instances being sustained.

Freight Train on Wrong Track

Ossining, N. Y., Feb. 12.—At the corner's inquiry into the causes of the wreck of the Montreal express here witnesses stated that the freight train which collided with the express had been allowed to get on the express track in spite of the signals, and the train could not be reversed in time to prevent the crash. The engineer of the freight is under $2500 bail.

In Use For Over Fifty Years

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

As a reliable family tonic, in all complaints of the stomach, liver or bowels, especially constipation, Dr. True's Elixir stands without an equal. It is a pure vegetable compound with a wonderfully successful record since its use. Adults as well as children are troubled with worms. The symptoms are: indigestion, with a variable appetite; foul tongue; offensive breath; hard and full belly, with occasional gripings and pains about the navel; eyes heavy and dull, itching of the nose, short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth, starting during sleep; slow fever, and often in children, convulsions and bed wetting.

A few doses of Dr. True's Elixir will expel the worms if there are any. If not it acts as a gentle laxative tonic, clearing the stomach and bowels of all waste matter, leaving the system sweet and clean—it increases the appetite, raising pure life-giving blood to flow through the body, thus invigorating the whole system with rugged, robust health. It is a regularity it will prevent coughs, colds, fevers and worms.

WAR CLOUD PASSING

No Clash in Central America, Says Nicaraguan Minister

Washington, Feb. 12.—Minister Corea of Nicaragua had a lengthy conference with Assistant Secretary of State Bacon regarding the situation in Central America, with particular reference to the trouble between his country and Honduras.

"You may rest assured of one thing," said Corea, "there will be no war between Honduras and Nicaragua. Although advised from my government are that President Bonilla of Honduras withdrew from the arbitration of San Salvador, there are influences now at work which will avert a conflict at arms."

He would not state just what the influences were, but it is believed that the representations of the United States, Mexico and other Central American governments have been such as to convince Honduras of the futility of any warlike action on her part.

Mr. Corea declared that Nicaragua does not want war; that the country is in better condition now than ever before, and that her citizens are thinking only of their country's progress and development.

Striker Tied Up Traffic

Baltimore, Feb. 12.—Because they objected to a foreman employed by a New York firm having the contract to reconstruct the plant of the power house of the street railway company, engineers, firemen, oilers, etc., went on strike just as the usual homeward rush of workers was beginning last evening. As a result every street railway line in this city and its suburbs was brought to a standstill and remained so for two hours. The objectionable foreman was finally replaced by another man and the strikers returned to their duties.

Father and Four Children Killed.

Allentown, Pa., Feb. 12.—Edwin W. Reidner, a baker, and his four children, aged 8, 6, 4 and 2 years, were burned to death last night in a fire which destroyed their home. Reidner was frying doughnuts when the fat boiled over on the floor, setting the house on fire. The children and their mother were asleep in an upper room. Reidner endeavored to rescue his family, but was overcome by smoke and all of the inmates, with the exception of Mrs. Reidner, were burned to death.

Canal Contract Conference

Washington, Feb. 12.—A conference on the Panama canal contract award was held at the White House, when representations in behalf of the McArthur-Gillespie combination were made by attorneys for the company. No conclusions were reached and the conference adjourned until Wednesday, when the attorneys for McDonald and Pierce will be given a hearing. These persons are associated with Mr. Oliver in his contemplated bid as submitted to the isthmian canal commission.

Ex-Queen Lili Wants Settlement

Washington, Feb. 12.—Vice President Fairbanks laid before the senate for Liliuokalani, former queen of the Hawaiian Islands, a second addition to the petition filed by her in 1905, praying for the settlement of her claim for sovereign lands taken from her at the time of the acquisition of the islands by the United States. She asks that action be taken at the present session of congress.

Wants Smoot Out of Senate

Washington, Feb. 12.—Senator Berry (Ark.) addressed the senate in opposition to Senator Smoot's retention of his seat. Berry disclaimed any personal feeling against Smoot. He held that any senator could be excluded by a majority vote of the members of the body. His opposition to Smoot was based on the doctrine of polygamy.

Cars Wrecked and Burned

Cleveland, Feb. 12.—While running at a high rate of speed two traction cars met in a head-on collision near Gates mills. A dozen persons were injured and the cars, which were wrecked by the collision, took fire and were burned up. None of the injured will die.

RECEIPTS OVER FIVE MILLION

The Fore River
Shipbuilding CO.
Have Larger Surplus
And a Reserve

At the annual meeting of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company held in Boston, on Tuesday, February 12, the following directors and officers were elected, all being re-elections: Directors.—Gordon Abbott, Francis T. Bowles, Wallace B. Donham, F. C. Dumaine, William A. Gaston, Robert Winsor, Arthur Wainwright, William Endicott, Jr., and W. C. Fish.

Executive Committee.—William Endicott, Jr., Gordon Abbott, F. C. Dumaine, Francis T. Bowles and Wallace B. Donham.

The officers are: Francis T. Bowles, president. H. G. Smith, manager. J. A. Sedgwick, treasurer. Samuel T. MacQuarrie, clerk.

The Directors submitted to the stockholders a comparative balance sheet of the company as of December 31, 1906, and December 31, 1905, signed by Francis T. Bowles as president as follows:

These statements show for the year an increase in the cash on hand of $97,075.45; and an increase in the surplus of $32,453.31, after setting aside $200,000 as a reserve for turbine development. There has also been a gratifying increase in the quick assets. The gross cash receipts of the company for the year were $5,512,169.43.

Additions to the plant and machinery were made during the year to the amount of about $65,000, including two small pieces of real estate adjoining the plant and a marine railway capable of hauling out moderate size vessels for repairs. All items of repairs have been charged to expense, and $120,000 has been charged off for depreciation. All the company's bills have been paid as soon as they were due and approved, and the present accounts payable represent only current items not due. No money has been borrowed during the year, and the company has no notes payable. The accounts receivable are believed to be worth in every instance their full value. At the present time your directors consider the plant in general well equipped to carry on a shipbuilding business on a large scale.

The yard has been well filled with work during the entire year, and the amount of business now in process is satisfactory. Considerable delays have been experienced in construction, through the difficulty in purchasing good steel castings. The average number of employees for the year was 3,900. The following vessels were under construction on December 31, 1906: Battleship "Vermont," now ready for delivery; scout cruisers "Birmingham" and "Salem"; four submarine boats, of which two are practically ready for delivery; the 10,000-ton freight and passenger steamer "Creole"; two steel freight steamers "Ocmulgee" and "Ossabaw"; and three 11,000-ton steel colliers, "Everett," "Malden" and "Melrose."

The Company has undertaken the development and construction of a thoroughly equipped steamship terminal on a large scale for the use of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad Company at Brunswick, Georgia, and the work on this contract is well advanced and is progressing in a profitable and satisfactory way. During the year the Battleships "Rhode Island" and "New Jersey," the side wheel passenger steamer "South Shore" and two steel freight steamers "Satilla" and "Ogeechee" have been completed and delivered, in addition to a considerable amount of miscellaneous work. The machine shop has been operated at all times to the limit of its capacity.

The development work of the year on the Curtis turbine has been on the whole very encouraging to

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c

the Directors, and it is their belief that the exclusive option held by the company on the marine rights of this turbine for this country will prove of great value in the future. The principal turbine contracts so far obtained by the company are for the construction of the U. S. scout cruiser of 3,750 tons, the Southern Pacific S. S. "Creole" of 10,000 tons, and for the construction of turbine equipments for two large vessels. The "Creole" will be complete in the near future, and if the trial of this vessel fulfills the expectations of the management there will undoubtedly be a demand for further vessels fitted with Curtis turbines, which should be of great benefit to the Company.

On the whole, the results of the year are believed to be distinctly encouraging and the outlook for new work is satisfactory. A contract has just been entered into for the construction of a steel freight coasting steamer.

The balance sheet signed by The Audit Company shows the assets of the company less depreciation to be $3,595,656.79, and the current assets to be $1,733,146.28 more, a grand total of $5,328,803.07, compared with $5,032,123.98 a year ago.

The liabilities are $4,800,000.00 plus current liabilities of $259,702.40, allowing a reserve and surplus.

The Butt of Several Jokes

The high thing in Quincy a couple months from now according to one of the end men at the minstrel show of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, will be when the bill is rendered for remodeling the new High schoolhouse.

The show was given in Music hall Tuesday evening to a large and appreciative audience.

The end men were brimful of jokes and they flew thick and fast between several numbers. Dr. Daniel B. Reardon was the interlocutor. Edward D. Barrett, William A. Carey and John H. Heffernan rattled the bones, and Thomas J. Joyce, William D. DeCoste and John J. Joyce shook the tambos.

They were supported by a strong chorus composed of Henry Magee, Geo. W. Berry, D. J. S. McCurdy, J. A. Carey, Thomas J. Shortle, L. W. Lyons, Dennis Crowley, Michael T. Walsh, John Enright, John P. Tierney, Edward L. Duran, James J. Byrne, Edward G. Heffernan, John E. Heffernan, Peter M. Sullivan, Daniel Donovan, George Powers, Dr. J. P. Murphy, Richard Little, Timothy DeCost and Robert J. Williams, Jr.

The end men were costumed in striking suits of red and green silk and velvet, while the chorus was in black with red velvet collars. In the center front of the group was Master Daniel L. O'Meara, who was dressed in the uniform of one of Uncle Sam army officers. Cuff's orchestra furnished the musical accompaniment and the musical director was John A. McGowan.

When the curtain arose shortly after 8 o'clock and disclosed the sea of black faces there was loud applause. The program opened with chorus by the circle. William A. Carey followed with a solo "Let it alone." This was in the nature of a parody and had taken off on Mayor Thompson, William T. Shea, and the Dudley street cars.

William D. DeCost followed with "If the man in the moon were a coon," and S. J. Kirkpatrick with a ballad entitled "Some day when dreams come true." Then John H. Heaney sang "Moses Andrew Jackson, Good-bye." The dancing of Mr. Heaney during the chorus was a particularly pleasing feature, and he was obliged to respond to several encores.

John J. Joyce made a hit with his solo, "Brotherly Love."

"Oh! my, that's Brotherly Love;
When you are down
He gives you a shove;
Oh! my that's Brotherly Love."

The next number on the program was a solo by D. J. Seward McCurdy, entitled "Sevilla." The particular interest attached to this number was the fact that its composer was George Powers, a member of Quincy Council. "I'm Going Right Back to Chicago" by Edward D. Barrett, called for several recalls. One of his verses was dedicated to Commissioner Burke, who was referred to a man who could hold down a sandow.

Thomas J. Joyce appeared dressed as a dandy girl for his solo "Abraham Jefferson Washington Lee," and scored a hit.

The finale was "Good old U. S. A.," and was sung by Master Daniel L. O'Meara. At the close of the chorus of the first verse the curtain in the rear was raised, showing a living picture of the Goddess of Liberty standing on a pedestal. In the chorus of the final verse a living picture of Uncle Sam was shown. It was a very pretty thing and brought down the house.

As noted above, jokes flew thick and fast between the several numbers.

President Piper of the City Council was the best musician in town, one of the end men declared.

One of the well known members of the circle was likened to the judge of the local court, from the fact that the judge went to the district court every day, and the member referred to went to Hancock court every Sunday.

One of the special policemen was likened unto a rainbow as he never came out until after the storm.

People in the New York courts were wearing rubber boots now, as there was a thaw there.

There were scores of other jokes but members of Quincy council were largely made the butt of them.

Part second of the program included buck and wing dancing by the Coffey brothers, and solos by Fred Goosman and Thomas R. Donovan.

There was also a musical monologue by Stanley Nichols, and specialties by Joyce brothers.

Desires to Give Good Service

It is evident from the following notice to subscribers that the Telephone Company desires to give the best of services:

The Company will esteem it a favor if subscribers will acquaint the management with any instances of error or defective service which may come to their notice.

The effort of the management has been to keep the service at all times at a high standard of efficiency, and to make it of the greatest possible usefulness and value to those who employ it; and we believe that both those having direct charge of the lines and apparatus and those engaged in the operating department are working with fidelity and earnest purpose to that end.

Owing to the extreme sensitiveness of the telephone and the mechanism employed in its operation, to many disturbing causes, even with the exercises of great care on the part of employees of the company, the instruments at times work unsatisfactorily without our knowledge, though the defect may be quite apparent to those who are making use of the service.

By giving us information of any failure to obtain prompt and effective service, whether the fault be due to operating errors, which we are aware will occur, or to other causes, our subscribers will render the management a service which will be highly appreciated, and enable us to trace the source of the defect and take the necessary measures to correct it, and so far as possible prevent its recurrence. The more freely those who make use of our system will advise the management with respect to whatever may effect their interests as subscribers, the greater, we feel assured, will be the advantage both to themselves and to the Company.

Ordinary troubles should first be reported to the local manager. If not promptly remedied, information should immediately be given to the Superintendent. (Telephone, Main 6061).

KINGS DAUGHTERS

Annual Meeting
Of Unity Circle Shows Year of Great Activity

With possibly one exception, the most popular organization among the ladies of the city is the King's Daughters. There are two or three circles in the city, and Unity circle which held its annual meeting Tuesday evening is the largest but one in the State with 148 active and 11 honorary members.

The secretary's report showed that the circle was aiding the following outside charities:

Pond home for Aged, at Pondville, Ingleside, at Revere.
Dennison House, at Boston.
Frances E. Willard Settlement, at Boston.
Little Wanderers Home, at Boston.
Also these Quincy charities:
Visiting Nurse.
Day Nursery.
City Hospital.
Poor and unfortunate given help with food, clothing, etc.

The money was raised by entertainments, fines, and gifts by interested friends.

The business meeting was held at 5.30 P. M. in Bethany chapel. The devotional exercises were led by Mrs. Frank W. Crane. There were reports in detail by the secretary and treasurer and the nominating committee of which Mrs. C. W. Guy was chairman. These officers were elected:

Leader.—Mrs. H. E. Crane.
Vice Leader.—Miss Alice Hatch.
Secretary.—Mrs. Frank Moore.
Assistant secretary.—Mrs. John F. Hunt.

Treasurer.—Mrs. H. W. Beattie.
Bethany.—Mrs. Herbert Pratt.
Devotional.—Miss Mary Sampson.
Distributing.—Mrs. E. W. Sheppard.
Entertainment.—Mrs. S. I. Wood.
Flower.—Mrs. G. L. Shaw.
Membership.—Mrs. A. L. Melcher.
Music.—Mrs. J. Paul Weikler.
Opportunity.—Mrs. George Taylor.
Sewing.—Mrs. A. L. T. Abele.
Visiting.—Mrs. George E. Hatch.
Welcoming.—Miss Lillian Taber.

After the business meeting the members and invited guests adjourned to the supper room, where an unusually good supper was served by a committee of ten. Instead of the usual after-dinner speeches in response to inquiries as to the line of work taken up by Unity Circle, Mrs. Crane gave words of welcome which introduced members of the King's Daughters, who gave short talks on some of the different work.

Miss Hatch spoke of the work of the Willard Y. Settlement. Mrs. J. D. Kent on Dennison House college settlement work. Mrs. S. I. Wood on Ingleside, a training school and home for girls and Mrs. Guy on Pond Home for the Aged. Each one appealed for money that more and better work be done for each.

After the supper came the evening service up stairs. Devotional exercises by Rev. Dr. Hardy. The King's Daughters quartet.—Mrs. Page, Mrs. Ryder, Mrs. Abele and Mrs. Fitts—sang, "No evil shall befall thee" in a very effective manner.

Mrs. Moore sang "My dreams," by Tosti, and Mr. A. L. Hayden "Love me if I live," by Arthur Foote. Mrs. Crane gave the King's Daughters admission service to fourteen new members. While the silver crosses were being pinned on Miss Grace Isaac sang "O Jesus thou art standing." The quartette sang, "Father in Heaven be with us" during the offering and the closing number was a duet by Mrs. Moore and Mr. Hayden, "When the wind bloweth in from the sea." Mrs. Hunt at the piano.

The treasurer's report for the year showed receipts of $702.83, and expenditures of $509.84, leaving a balance of $192.99. The Home Helpers ten is a new ten this year.

DELMAS PROTESTS

Thaw's Counsel Charges Jerome
With "Misconduct"

IS INSERTED IN RECORD

Superintendent of Insane Asylum Says White's Slayer Was Mentally Unsound at Time of Tragedy, but Has Improved Since

New York, Feb. 13.—District Attorney Jerome and Delphin M. Delmas came together late yesterday in the first serious clash between counsel in the Harry Thaw trial and the California attorney, who is directing the defense, took exceptions to certain statements of the prosecuting officer and had inserted in the record of the case a protest against "the misconduct of the learned district attorney."

Mr. Jerome hotly accused the defendant's counsel of trying to instill into the minds of the jury the fact that the operation performed upon Evelyn Nesbit in 1903, before Thaw took her to Europe, was "of a criminal nature, when as a matter of fact it was for appendicitis."

Mr. Delmas called the attention of justice Fitzgerald to the fact that the district attorney was stating facts not in evidence and that "a very serious exception must be taken to his remarks."
Send the jury out of the room if you want to," said Delmas, "but I am going to get this thing straight. I am not going to have these false impressions fostered before this jury and in the mind of the witness."

Dr. Evans, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Morris Plains, N. J., was the witness, and he testified earlier in the day that he was of the opinion that Thaw was insane at the time of the tragedy. He had been called upon to answer a long hypothetical question, in which reference had been made to "a serious if not capital operation" upon Miss Nesbit when the storm between counsel broke.

Mr. Jerome seemed thoroughly wrought up. Delmas did not for an instant lose his calm demeanor, but he gave emphasis and force to his words, new to his hearers. Jerome said he would withdraw objection to the term
"capital operation" if Delmas would give him the word of counsel that they did not know the nature of the operation. Delmas gave his word that he did not know its nature.

"But you may consult with counsel," suggested Jerome.

"I do not care to do that," replied
Delmas, "it is not essential—"

"Ah," cried Jerome in a loud voice,
"then you do want to make this insinuation."

"The district attorney strangely forgets his character and position when he charges me with an attempt to deceive," retorted Delmas, with more feeling in his voice than at any time during the trial. "He must upon deliberation see the injustice of his implied discourtesy."

"I see injustice plainly," retorted Jerome, "but not in my remarks."

The storm had been brewing for some minutes before it finally broke within the quarter of an hour before adjournment. Jerome and Delmas are of two such diametrically opposed types that the clash was not unexpected. Justice Fitzgerald did not rule out any of the district attorney's remarks before the jury and Delmas took care to have every exception he made "seriously noted." Jerome won his point and the words "serious if not capital," as defining the operation, were withdrawn by Delmas.

During the tilt Delmas inquired of the district attorney as to how he came into possession of knowledge as to the character of the operation upon Miss Nesbit without a violation of a confidence. Jerome said he had been told of it by Miss Nesbit's mother. It thus became known for the first time that the district attorney is in possession of a long statement by Mrs. Holman, who now is in Pittsburgh, but who it has been reported from time to time might be called as a witness by the state in rebuttal.

Dr. Evans was on the stand all day, occupying nearly two hours of the afternoon session in a perusal of the letters written by Thaw at the time of his estrangement with Miss Nesbit. Evans was by far the most satisfactory expert witness to the defense so far produced. He detailed to the jury his observations and examinations of Harry Thaw during eight visits to the prisoner in the Tombs and declared it to be his opinion that Thaw was suffering from "a brain storm or an explosive or fulminating condition of mental unsoundness" at the time he shot and killed Stanford White. Dr. Evans gave many and elaborate reasons for his opinion and during his examination Delmas deftly brought out the fact that whereas Thaw was suffering from
"storm and stress" when the alienists first visited him in August last, his condition had shown steady and gradual improvement until, on Oct. 8, Thaw was "more composed and deliberate."

Mr. Delmas laid particular emphasis upon the importance of showing Thaw's condition of mind just subsequent to the tragedy in arguments with Jerome "in order," Delmas explained, "that the jury by means of the wreckage on the beach may infer that there has been a storm upon the waters."

Dr. Evans declared that the mental explosion which had induced Thaw to kill Stanford White had left its traces upon the defendant when he first visited him. He said Thaw exhibited symptoms of paranoia and adolescent insanity. The first was indicated by his exaltation, his "exaggerated ego"—the idea of his supreme importance. The adolescent insanity was due to heredity and is characteristic to the development period of life—from 10 to 40 years.

Dr. Evans declared that Thaw's mind had slipped its moorings and was like a ship without a rudder in a wind-storm. Ordeals of stress had added their work to the psychopathic taint which came from heredity.

This testimony was brought out in line with the contention of the defense that while Thaw was insane prior to and at the time and immediately subsequent to the homicide, he has improved to a sound condition of mentality following the removal of the cause of stress.

Scrappy Central Americans
Washington, Feb. 13.—The gunboat
Marietta has arrived at Greytown,
Nicaragua, and reported to American Consul Ryder. The warship will enable the consul to get into close communication with the Nicaraguan authorities at Managua, and assist in carrying out the state department's plans for the prevention of a hostile clash between Nicaragua and Honduras. Cruiser Chicago is on her way down the Pacific coast to Acapulco, Salvador, and will report to American Minister Merry.
The issues between Honduras and Nicaragua appear now to have dwindled down into a mere exhibition of temper on both sides.

Providential Escape From Disaster
Easton, Pa., Feb. 13.—An iron girder extending above the track saved at least two cars of an express train from going over the side of the Delaware bridge and into the river, 70 feet below.
The two last cars were derailed in a manner that seems to mystify railroad men. The first of the derailed cars ran along the ties for a distance of about 25 yards. The other swerved to the right and ran within an inch of the edge of the bridge. The passengers were thrown into a panic and a number were injured by broken glass.

Both Sides Satisfied
Philadelphia, Feb. 13.—An agreement has been reached between the Pennsylvania Railroad company and its engineers, firemen and trainmen on the lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie.
The engineers asked for an arrangement whereby their runs would be more evenly divided as to time, and the firemen and trainmen demanded either an increase in wages or a more equitable schedule of runs and division of time. Neither side will discuss the concessions which have been granted.

England Grateful to America
London, Feb. 13.—The second session of the second parliament of the present reign was opened by King Edward in person. The king read the speech from the throne in the house of lords.
He expressed gratitude to the American people and the American navy for sympathy and help in the Kingston disaster, touched upon legislation for Ireland, army reforms and temperance, and declared that some changes in the governmental methods of India were under consideration.

Death of Former Governor Higgins
Olean, N. Y., Feb. 13.—Frank W.
Higgins, former governor of New York, died at his home here last night.
The end was peaceful and free from pain, following a period of unconsciousness which lasted 24 hours. When the only official duty which remained for him to perform was to assist in the inauguration of his successor as governor, he firmly resisted the importunities to spare himself and went to Albany to take part in the ceremonies. This act shortened his days.

The Bailey Investigation
Austin, Feb. 13.—Declaring that "all this prattle is a lie" and urging that the committee interpose and "stop these insults," Senator Bailey brought to a climax an exciting session of the legislative committee appointed to investigate charges filed against him by Representative Cooke. This was in reply to a request of Cooke that additional witnesses be summoned by which he hoped to prove that Bailey had borrowed $7000 of J. D. Suggs.

Santo Domingo Revenues
Washington, Feb. 13.—The president sent to the senate the new treaty with the republic of Santo Domingo relative to the revenues of that country. The new agreement is confined entirely to the matter of the collection of revenues. The treaty will go direct to the committee on foreign relations and there will be a determined effort to have it reported and acted upon before the adjournment of congress.

Surgeons Operate on Castro
Washington, Feb. 13.—Official information received here is to the effect that President Castro of Venezuela has at last yielded to the advice of his doctors and friends and submitted to an operation, as the result of which his recovery seems assured.

TREASURER GONE

Securities Valued at $150,000 Gone
From Savings Bank

RUN ON THE INSTITUTION

Missing Man, Who Was Church
Officer and Lived Modestly,
Also Had Charge of Baptist Convention's Funds

New Britain, Conn., Feb. 13.—Negotiable securities to a very large amount are understood to be missing from the vaults of the Savings Bank of New Britain, of which institution the treasurer, William F. Walker, mysteriously dropped out of sight in New York on Sunday last.

President Corbin of the bank states that the bank auditors have been unable to locate securities of a value of $150,000, but did not find any other irregularity in the accounts or cash of the bank. The situation, according to Corbin, suggests abstraction of the securities from the vaults. It is understood that Corbin received a letter from the missing man, in which the statement was made that a defalcation would be found, and upon this information an examination of the bank's collateral was begun, which is still in progress.

Not an inkling of Walker's whereabouts has been obtained, and the return of his son, who has been searching in New York, is believed to indicate the feeling of the family that the missing treasurer is not in that city.

Walker has been treasurer of the funds of the Connecticut state Baptist convention for many years, having about $75,000 in securities in his charge, and while there is no reason to suspect any irregularity in these accounts President Thompson has outlined an investigation. Walker was not under bonds in that society.

Great sums of cash have been received at the bank to be used in paying off alarmed depositors, the total withdrawals Monday and yesterday amounting to about $150,000. The bank received offers from many sources, which were declined, as ample cash was on hand to meet all the demands. The run on the bank yesterday was a lively one, mostly by small depositors, the great number of them being foreigners. Police officers were necessary to keep them in check.

The alleged wrong-doing of Walker
has created a tremendous sensation.
He was held in the highest esteem, was a church officer and a citizen who lived quietly and modestly. He was not known to be interested in stock investments of any kind or in any outside enterprises. For about 27 years he had been a bank officer and was under bonds of $20,000. The bank had deposits of upwards of $600,000, with a surplus estimated at more than $500,000.

Walker had been suffering with kidney trouble and had been under treatment in New York. On Friday last he went to New York to see a physician, and then disappeared. Members of the family seem certain that Walker has become mentally unbalanced and is wandering about under the belief that he is "E. H. Merriman," the identity of William F. Walker having been lost in a supposed railroad wreck. The name of "Merriman" was signed to a telegram received here stating that Walker had been killed.

A. J. Sloper, H. E. Russell and W. H.
Hart, a committee from the bank's directors, left here last night for New York. They denied any knowledge as to Walker's whereabouts and said they were going to New York to push the Soldiers All Tell Same Story

Washington, Feb. 13.—Senator Foraker has about completed the examination of former members of companies B and D of the Twenty-fifth infantry and expects today to examine former members of company C as to their alleged participation in the affray at Brownsville, Tex. There is such a similarity in the stories told by the negro soldiers that there is little interest.

Miners Escape Awful Fate
Bakmut, Russia, Feb. 13.—Fire broke out in the coal mines at a time when about 100 men were underground at work. The first report declared that 40 men had lost their lives, but strenuous efforts resulted in getting all to the imprisoned men and after seven hours underground the fire was put out and all men brought safely to the surface.

Compromise in Church Question
Paris, Feb. 13.—It is declared that Minister of Education Briand has drawn up and issued to the prefects a new document for the leasing of churches which meets both the legal requirements of the situation and the susceptibility of the members of the French episcopacy.

Thaw Case Interrupts Business Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 13.—When the senate met yesterday Senator Hayman moved that the reading of the official journal be dispensed with "because of the desire of many senators to read the latest developments in the Thaw case." The motion was adopted without dissent.

State Dispensary Must Go
Columbia, S. C., Feb. 13.—The state senate last night adopted the Carey-Cottrill bill by a vote of 23 to 15. This means the abolition of the state dispensary.

AN APPALLING MARINE DISASTER

Hundred and Fifty Lives Are Lost
In Block Island Sound

JOY LINE STEAMER STRUCK BY SCHOONER

Many of the Nearly Two Hundred Persons on the Larchmont Went Down With Her, While Others, Who Were Not Prepared For Exposure to Zero Temperature, Succumbed to the Cold—Bodies Encased in Ice Washed Ashore—Skippers of Ill-Fated Vessels Each Lay Blame Upon the Other—No Fatalities on Schooner

Block Island, R. I., Feb. 13.—About 150 persons went to their death in Block Island sound as a result of a collision between the three-masted schooner Harry Knowlton and the Joy Line steamer Larchmont, bound from Providence to New York.

It is estimated that, including the crew, there were nearly 200 on board the steamer when she sailed from Providence. Of these only 19 appear to have survived the disaster, 10 members of the crew and nine passengers.

Awakened from their slumbers in comfortably heated rooms, the unfortunate passengers were at the mercy of the fates. Many of them were down with the ship. Others, temporarily thankful that they had escaped drowning, prayed that they might be relieved of the terrible pain caused by their frozen bodies, and one man, a passenger whose name could not be learned, plunged a knife into his throat and ended his suffering.

The few who survived were in a pitiful condition. In almost every case their arms and legs hung helpless as they were tenderly lifted out of the boats in which they reached shore. During the day 48 bodies came ashore, either in boats or thrown up by the sea. Only five of the 48 bodies were identified.

The bodies washed ashore were all encased in ice, the covering being from six to seven inches thick. They were strewn along the shore, forming one of the most ghastly sights ever witnessed. Many of the frozen bodies are those of women.

The cause of the disaster has not been satisfactorily explained. An investigation of the wreck will be instituted by the United States steamboat inspectors at the Providence district.

The disaster came to light when a lifeboat of the Larchmont drifted into Block Island harbor.

In the boat were several bodies of men who had died from the effects of long hours of exposure to a death-dealing temperature. In the boat also were 11 men whose suffering was so intense they seemed oblivious to the fact that death was in their midst, and that they had escaped only by virtue of their ability to withstand the rigor of zero temperature.

Following closely in the wake of the solitary lifeboat came bodies cast up on the beach by angry waves. Then came lifeboats and rafts. Each of them bore their burden of grim death as well as a load of suffering humanity, and each brought a tale of sorrow, of suffering and of despair.

The only positive evidence of the steamer's victims is lying at the bottom of Long Island sound. The list of passengers and crew, handed to the purser just before the steamer left Providence, was locked in a safe, and it was not recovered.

LARCHMONT'S LAST TRIP

Intense Suffering Immediately

After the Crash Came

The Larchmont, a side-wheel steamer, which was only put into the Joy line service during the present season, left her dock in this city Monday night. A strong northwest wind was blowing as the steamer plowed her way down through the eastern passage of Narragansett bay, but the full effect of the gale which was blowing out in the sound was not felt until the Larchmont rounded Point Judith. Then the side-wheeler pointed her nose into the very heart of the gale and continued down through Block Island sound.

Captain McVey was preparing to retire after a turn around his ship, when he was startled by several blasts of the steamer's whistle. He rushed into the pilot house, where he saw a three-masted schooner sailing eastward before a strong wind. The schooner seemed to suddenly luff up and head straight for the steamer. Again several blasts were sounded on the steamer's whistle, the pilot and quartermaster whirling their wheel hard about in a mad endeavor to avert a collision.

But as the Larchmont was slowly veering around in response to her helm the schooner came on with a speed that almost seemed to equal the gale that had been pushing her toward Boston. Even before another warning signal could be sounded on the steamer the schooner crashed into the port side of the vessel and the impact of the big vessel was so terrific that the bow of the sailing craft ate its way into more than half the breadth of the Larchmont. When the force of the impact had been spent the schooner temporarily remained fast in the vitals of the steamer, holding in check for a moment the rushing water.

But the pounding sea soon separated the interlocked vessels and as they backed away the water rushed into the gaping hole in the steamer's side with a velocity that could only mean the doom of the passenger vessel.

There were no water-tight compartments to be closed and, therefore, the rushing flood could not be confined to the damaged section and it poured in over the cargo and down into the hold. As the water struck the boiler room great clouds of steam arose and the panic-stricken passengers, many of whom had been thrown from their bunks when the collision occurred, were at first under the impression that a fire had broken out on board.

The passengers thronged onto the decks. Few of them had waited to clothe themselves, but their fear was so great that the first penetrating blasts of the zero temperature was disregarded. The suffering from the elements soon became so intense that personal safety was forgotten in a general effort to keep the blood in circulation. Those who had not stopped to clothe themselves now found it impossible to return below and do so. Their rooms were flooded soon after they had been deserted, and the steamer, floundering in the high seas, was sinking rapidly.

While some of the seamen held back the frantic passengers by brute strength, others were preparing to lower the lifeboats and rafts. There was no time to think of the comfort of any one. It was a physical impossibility for any but the most hardened to withstand the cold, which turned ears and noses white with the frost, and which so benumbed feet that both the passengers and members of the crew stumbled rather than walked to the small craft in which they were to leave the sinking ship.

Shrieks of agonized pain drowned the roar of the rushing water. Pandemonium reigned supreme, but in spite of it the women on board were placed in lifeboats, the male passengers and members of the crew selecting the unprotected rafts as their vehicle of escape.

Captain McVey remained on the upper deck, directing his officers and crew until everyone on board appeared to have been cared for. He ordered all lifeboats and rafts out away and before he stepped into his own boat he stood on the upper deck a moment to see that his order was executed. Then he ordered that his boat, the largest on board, be cleared away, which was done just as the steamer became submerged.

The pitiable condition of the passengers and crew was increased a hundred fold the moment they had launched their boats. Every wave sent its dash of spray over boats and their contents. Soon a thin coating of ice enveloped everyone. Those who were fully clothed suffered from frozen faces and numb feet, but there were many who had on only their night clothing.

One man, in the captain's boat, was suddenly driven insane by his intense suffering. He pulled a big clasp knife from his pocket and gashed his throat. Those who sat near him either were too dazed to interfere or looked upon the act of self-murder as justified. The unknown man's body fell to the bottom of the boat, where it remained undisturbed.

Fisher's point, the nearest point of land, was not quite five miles to the westward of the point where the steamer went down and every boat immediately headed for that place. But the boats were heavy and the men at the oars were weak. A 50-mile gale blew on their backs as the men strained at the ice-covered oars in a hopeless endeavor to overcome the handicap against which they were struggling.

The boats and rafts soon became separated and the only details of the terrible disaster which could be learned here were given when Captain McVey's boat came ashore. Not a man on board was able to walk. Their feet were frozen so badly that the lifersavers carried the survivors bodily to the life-saving station.

Captain McVey said that had his crew been able to make progress against the northwest gale they would have land at Fisher's island between 12 and 1 o'clock. The wind, however, he said, was too strong to be overcome and there was nothing left for the suffering seamen to do but turn around and head for Block Island, 15 miles away. It was shortly after 11 o'clock when the captain of the boat cut away from the sinking steamer and it was not until 6:30 o'clock in the morning that it arrived at Block Island. It seemed, McVey said, as though the seven hours' struggle against the elements occupied an eternity, and not a soul in the boat expected to survive the excruciating suffering to which all were subjected.

Captain McVey asserted, with emphasis, that the crew of the schooner was responsible for the wreck. He said that had the sailing vessel held true to the course which she was sailing when first sighted there would have been no possibility of an accident. The schooner, however, suddenly luffed and crashed into the port side of the Larchmont almost before the helmsman had ported their wheel.

Captain Haley of the schooner Harry Knowlton, which was in collision with the Larchmont, stated that the accident was entirely due to the steamer. He said that his lights were burning and he held to his course with the expectation that the steamer, having sighted him, would pass him with plenty of sea room. When he discovered that the steamer would not turn out Haley said it was too late to avert a collision.

The steamer, with a huge hole torn in her side, was so seriously damaged that no attempt was made to run for shore, and she sank to the bottom in less than half an hour. The Knowlton, after she had backed away from the wreck, began to fill rapidly, but her crew manned the pumps and kept her afloat until she reached a point off Quonochontaug, where they put out in the lifeboat and rowed ashore. There were no fatalities on the schooner, but the men suffered from the extreme cold.

A majority of those on the Larchmont had retired for the night and when the collision occurred there were few on board, with the exception of the crew, who were prepared for the weather which prevailed. They hurried from the warm staterooms to the deck of the steamer and into a zero atmosphere.

Literally chilled to the bone, many rushed headlong below to secure more clothing, while others, barefooted, bareheaded and clad only in nightgowns, stood on the decks, fearing that to go below would mean certain death.

IN RECORD TIME

Two Men Sentenced to State Prison For Fifteen Years

Boston, Feb. 13.—What was probably a world's record was established in the superior criminal court before Judge Gaskill, relative to speed in trying a case before a jury when the cases of James H. Lee and James A. Stachom, who were both charged with assaulting a 10-year-old boy, were disposed of.

It required five minutes to impanel a jury and read the indictment. It took four minutes for the victim of the assault to tell his story to the court, another three minutes for a doctor to corroborate the boy's testimony, 10 minutes for Gaskill to charge the jury, and three minutes for the jury to return a verdict of guilty.

In two minutes more Gaskill had sentenced the two defendants to state prison for a term, not less than 15 years, or more than 20 years, and in two minutes more the two men were speeding over the road toward the state prison. Allowing 20 minutes for the van to go from the criminal court to the state prison, it required just 49 minutes to dispose of the case from the start to the finish.

Served State and Nation
Lawrence, Mass., Feb. 13.—Moses T. Stevens of North Andover, prominent as a woolen manufacturer, died last night after an illness due to heart trouble. He was born in North Andover in 1825. In 1861 Stevens was elected to the legislature and in 1868 to the state senate. He was a member of the national congress in 1890 and 1892. He was a Democrat in politics.

Hughes Talks to Bostonians
Boston, Feb. 13.—Governor Hughes of New York was the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Middlesex club last evening. He spoke upon the question of state rights as connected with the subject of federal powers and declared the need of increased efficiency in state governments and also in an improvement in the character of public servants.

Schooner Sunk In Sound
Milford, Conn., Feb. 13.—After an all-day effort to get an unknown waterlogged two-masted schooner into harbor, tug Patience, bound for New York with a tow of four barges, was compelled to abandon the task and the schooner sank just off Charles Island.

The crew of the schooner, it is said, made their escape to the tow of the tug.

For Immediate Tariff Revision
Boston, Feb. 13.—A petition to the president and congress urging immediate action for revision of the tariff was dispatched from this city, bearing the signatures of Governor Guild, President Chapple of the senate, Speaker Cole of the house and 222 out of 280 members of the legislature, without regard to party.

Train Collision In Maine
Freeport, Me., Feb. 13.—Three passengers were injured in a rear-end collision of passenger and freight trains two miles west of Freeport station. There were no fatalities. The passenger train, which was late, had stopped for some reason and the freight ran into it.

Against Japanese Coolie Labor
Washington, Feb. 13.—It is stated that President Roosevelt has proposed to Speaker Cannon and to the chairmen of the senate and house committees on immigration and other Republican leaders in congress that a clause be inserted in the immigration bill now pending in congress which will bar Japanese coolie labor from the United States. Mayor Schmitt's delegation favors such a provision.

Female Inventor a Suicide
New York, Feb. 13.—Despondent, it is said, because of her failure to capitalize a company to manufacture a steamer-chair which she had patented in four countries, Miss Anna L. Kipp, a trained nurse, 35 years old, threw herself in front of a train in the subway. She was so badly crushed that she died at the hospital.

THE Young Men's Christian Association

OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1894.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and requests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as a dormitory.

Should the donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for the Association, or the sum could be designated for the name of the donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, c/o City Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, EDWARD G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and requests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Quincy Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

shreds. A pair of felts which he happened to be wearing saved him from being badly bitten on the leg.

The Norfolk Bar association will hold its annual banquet at hotel Brunswick, Boston, on the evening of Wednesday, February 20. Henry P.
Buswell, Oscar A. Marden, George K.
Clarke, Asa P. French and John P.
S. Churchill constitute the dinner committee. In addition to having the wants of the inner man supplied, it is expected that there will be a flow of soul and a feast of legal reasoning.

A concert will be held in the Wollaston Unitarian church this evening,
under the direction of William E.
Weston. The following artists will appear: Adah M. Gaskins, soprano; Susan R. Baxter, contralto;
Bruce W. Hobbs, tenor; Alma Faunce
Smith, organist; William E. Weston, accompanist, assisted by a string quartette, composed of young men from Harvard college.

RAILROAD HEARING

Many from Quincy Advocate the Connection of the Two Branches

Quincy, Milton and Dorchester people were well represented this morning at the hearing at the State House given by the Legislative Committee on the petition of the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. for permission to connect the Granite and Shawmut branches separated now by the Neponset river and less than half a mile of unoccupied land. Milton people generally were opposed and some Dorchester gentlemen, but the majority including Quincy favored the petition.

When the Daily Ledger went to press at 2 P. M. the hearing had not adjournd, and a more extended report will be given tomorrow.

Among those to speak in favor of the petition were Counsel Benton of the railroad, H. S. Carruth of Ashmont, Street Commissioner Hannan, Charles
A. Uford, ex-Representative Peter T.
Fallon, President Williams of the Quincy Board of Trade.

Also Mayor Thompson, City Solicitor
W. I. Thomas, ex-Councilman W. T.
Shea, Assessor Charles H. Johnson, ex-Councilman James H. Elcock, Representative Hultman, O. E. Sheldon of Milton, John Cashman, Josiah Babcock
of Milton, Frank F. Prescott, ex-Senator Gore of Dorchester and Perry Lawton.

The remonstrants were represented by lawyers Peters and Hill.

AMONG THE CLUBS.

Several Quincy club women are planning to attend the Federation meeting at Attleboro on Friday. As Attleboro is a lively club centre and the Federated clubs of the city will act as hosts, the meeting promises to be of unusual interest. Trains leave South station at 8.40 and 10.40 A. M. and return at 4.29 and 5.29 P. M.

The Mothers' meeting at Bethany church last week Wednesday afternoon was largely attended. It was the annual and the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. William H.
Doble, vice president, Mrs. E. I. Beal and secretary, Mrs. John F. Hunt.

The Feb. 27th meeting of the Wollas-ton Alliance will be for business.
The literature class of the Quincy Women's club meets tomorrow morning at half past ten at the club house, when Mrs. Gurney will take up the books of Gissing and Stevenson. The class is open to any member of the club.

Several of the smaller literary clubs have been invited to attend the reciprocity afternoon of the Quincy Women's club on Feb. 26th. It will be a large and enjoyable meeting.

Miss Alice K. Prescott entertains the Junior Friday club at her home on Monday afternoon the 18th. The program will be in charge of Mrs. George F. Hall with Hayne and Timrod and the works of Edgar Allen Poe as subjects.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

As usual the first meeting of the month of the Quincy Women's club was preceded by a business meeting at half past two with the first vice president, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith in the chair.
Although Tuesday was a cold day there was a good attendance of members.

Besides the customary reports by the officers, announcement was made of gentlemen's night on Tuesday evening,
Feb. 19th, from eight until eleven;
members to be admitted with their guest by the membership ticket. Members were asked to contribute sandwiches or cake.

A slight fire in the officers' room on Feb. 7th was spoken of and the prompt and efficient service rendered by Mr.
Anderson the caretaker in putting it out before much damage was done. It was voted to substantially recognize
Mr. Anderson's services.

Announcement was made of the Federation meeting on Friday at Attleboro, the club being entitled to two delegates. There were also tickets for any club members desiring to attend.

Those desiring to join the millinery class were referred to Mrs. Charles K.
Crane. A class in cooking was also mentioned and information could be had of Miss A. B. Douglas the member from Hingham.

A cordial letter was read from the president Mrs. E. C. Bumpus who hopes to return soon from California where she has been detained by the illness of her sister.

Attention was called to the tablet over the fireplace in the reception hall recently placed there by Dr. and Mrs.
Brackett.

The afternoon's program was in charge of the Civic Betterment committee. Mrs. D. E. Wadsworth, chairman being out of town Miss Elizabeth Hubbard presided and introduced Miss Bessie H. Bates of East Weymouth who sang the following group of songs:
"Oh for a breath of the Moorland," by Fisher; "When the roses bloom" by Reichardt and "Daisies" by Hawley.
Miss Bates has a rich, sweet voice and charmed her listeners. She responded to a hearty encore.

The speaker, Mr. Edward T. Hartmann, spoke on Civic Improvement and gave a clear comprehensive idea of what the term civic improvement meant.

Mr. Hartmann said as a person was judged by their clothes, their personal belongings, house, yard and environment so a town or city was judged. A man made for himself the best home possible. A man interested in the looks of his house and yard, front and back soon looked to the street in front of his house and his immediate neighborhood.
Continuing if he had the right spirit he would try for the improvement of his ward and soon would look to the betterment of the whole town.

He favored playgrounds and parks.
Children should be looked after and given a chance to play. Thought school system wrong. Children were not machines to all be treated alike and ground out by rule and rote.
Favored industrial school. Approval of medical inspection in the school and spoke of benefit to scholars where it was in force.

A town with an unattractive railroad station and entrance prejudiced prospective residents, often deterring most desirable people from building or buying homes. Churches should look like churches and not barns or boxes. City buildings, town house, schools, etc., should be architecturally pleasing.

Mr. Hartmann urged the club to make war on the unsightly billboards. As women are the buyers for the family it was in their power to do away with billboard advertising a form of advertising that was of benefit to no one and for the expense of which the consumer had to pay.

It is impossible to quote Mr. Hartmann in a brief report but we wish every citizen of the city might have heard him. Every thing he said was right to the point and hit Quincy in several instances although unintentionally as Mr. Hartmann has not made a study of Quincy.

Mr. Hartmann is an entertaining speaker, keen witted and earnest, and club members were glad they braved the cold weather and bad walking as it was one of the afternoons they would not wish to miss.

A club tea was served during the social hour, the pourers being Mrs. George L. Badger, Mrs. Charles C. Hearn and Miss Flora Underwood. They were assisted by Mrs. Edward B. Marsh, Mrs.
Thomas Fenno, Miss Madeleine Fish,
Mrs. Mark Read, Mrs. Richard Drinker, Mrs. F. D. Fellows, Mrs. S. E.
Ames, Mrs. Frederick L. Flowers and Miss Carter.

The clubhouse was decorated with small flags in honor of Lincoln's birthday, being especially effective on the tea tables.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

A largely attended meeting of the Alliance was held on Monday afternoon in the parlor of First church. Mrs. F. S.
Davis, president in the chair, conducted the devotional and business sessions.
Considerable business was discussed.

A letter was read from the American Unitarian association which is trying to raise $150,000. Helping the Morgan Memorial in Boston was also talked over.

Instead of the speaker announced on the program the Alliance had the pleasure of listening to Mrs. William B.
Nichols, of this city, president of the Cheerful Letter Guild of the National Alliance, who gave a most interesting account of the work. Her listeners will be inclined hereafter to save every magazine and interesting paper to contribute to the cause, as a letter or reading matter means so much to the thick-set communities.

As a result of Mrs. Nichols' talk the Alliance voted to establish a circulating library. Mrs. T. L. Sturtevant spoke most feelingly of the cheerful letter work.

It was a particularly helpful and interesting meeting and Alliance members were charmed with Mrs. Nichols. She may expect in the future more cordial support of the cheerful letter work.

A social hour with cups of hot cocoa and crackers closed the meeting.

QUINCY DAY NURSERY ASSO.

The postponed meeting of the Quincy
Day Nursery association was held Monday afternoon at the Quincy Women's club-house, with the usual gathering of earnest workers. Mrs. T. A. Addison was in the chair. Reports were given by secretary, treasurer, and house committee for the month, also a lengthy report by the matron.

The attendance at the Nursery for January was 130. Donations had been received as follows: box of butter Mrs.
Faxon; cookies, crackers, oranges and cocoa, Mrs. Cummings; preserves and oranges, Mrs. Read; potatoes and apples
Mrs. Ross; books and pictures, Mrs.
Tupper and Mrs. Abele; picture Mrs.
Babcock.

Mrs. Safford of Atlantic will act as treasurer during the absence of Mrs.
Faxon.

Finances were discussed and it was thought that if the membership could be increased the dues would eventually entirely support the Nursery work. The following chairmen were elected, each to choose her own committee, to make a canvass and see if a large membership
could not be secured: for ward one Mrs.
Theophilus King; ward two, Mrs. T.
A. Addison; ward three Mrs. Arthur L.
Mitchell; ward four Mrs. James P.
Burke; ward five Mrs. W. E. Simmons; ward six Mrs. C. R. Safford.

In the meantime a few sales or entertainments will be given to raise money for the immediate use of the nursery.

CLUB NOTES

Edward Howard Griggs' course of six lectures on "The Ethics of Personal Life," commences Saturday morning at eleven o'clock at Tremont Temple, Boston. His subject will be "The Aim of Life."

Friday afternoon Mr. Edward T.
Hartmann will give his illustrated lecture upon "Environment and Citizenship as Applied to Cambridge," before the Cantabrigia club of Cambridge.

Mr. Hartmann is in demand as a lecturer on civic improvements.

Mr. Arthur M. Raymond has arranged an organ recital for the meeting of the Monday club of Weymouth, on Feb. 18th.

The Somerville Woman's club gave a dramatic entertainment on Tuesday evening the proceeds of which are to be used for local benevolences.

The New England Woman's Press club is to observe Poet Longfellow's birthday on the 20th at hotel Vendome, Boston. Mrs. Marion Longfellow O'Donoghue will tell of the writing of Hiawatha. Appropriate music and club tea will round out the afternoon. The club is also arranging an Easter breakfast.

Heptarian club of Somerville holds its annual guests night on St. Valentine's night. The entertainment will include the Schubert male quartet and Heinrich Schnecker, harpist of the Boston Symphony orchestra.

A new club has been formed in Hyde Park which will be an evening current events club.

Rev. G. W. Solley of the Winchendon Guild of Home Handicraft lectured before the Woman's club of Brockton, on Feb. 4, his subject being "Handicraft and Life." He exhibited a large display of rugs, baskets, embroidery and dyeing. He recalled the fact that the men and women of colonial times were all handicraft workers, doing their own weaving, dyeing, soap-making and carpentering. He also claimed that for nervous diseases or incipient insanity nothing was better than some handicraft and urged its introduction into sanitariums.

The Old Colony club of Weymouth,
at its meeting Thursday has a brief review of recent books followed by violin solos and a social tea.

Wollaston Unitarian Club Meeting

"Lincoln" and "China" were the two subjects considered by the Wollaston Unitarian club at their February meeting on the night of Lincoln's anniversary, and both were treated in a masterly way. The former by Rev. F. W. Pratt of Hopedale, the founder of the Wollaston club, and the latter by Dr. Charles D. Tenney of Cambridge, who for twenty-five years was in China, and today has charge of the Chinese students sent to this country.

At 6.30 the club sat down to a hot roast dinner served by young men of the church. President Parlin presided at the post prandial exercises.

The club voted that the next meeting on the second Tuesday of March should be observed as ladies' night.

Mr. Parlin's tribute to Lincoln in introducing Rev. Mr. Pratt was summed up as follows: Abraham Lincoln, representative of the common people, legitimate son of our genius, the greatest American; born in obscurity, cradled in poverty, schooled in adversity, unspoiled by society; rich in his endowments, noble in his motives, grand in his achievements, supreme in his sacrifice; great enough to be simple, honest enough to be natural,
strong enough to be kind, wise enough to trust the right; just, true, patient, reverent; illustrious example of God's noblest handiwork.

The former pastor was enthusiastically welcomed. At the outset he was pleased to note that the country had almost forgotten the abuse of Lincoln by prominent men and the newspapers of the North during the great struggle of the 60s, but the people as a rule stood by him. They were impressed with his honesty. No one can realize the tremendous burden he had to bear. He was preeminently a man of the people.

The democracy of our country has developed since the adoption of the Constitution. It may seem like heresy to say that in the constitution there is distrust of the people. It was undemocratic in the manner of electing the President and National Senators.
History shows the framers did not consider it safe to let the people elect by direct vote.

In the last few years there had been a tremendous awakening in that the people were to be trusted. We were thankful to Lincoln for much of this. The speaker argued for direct nominations and elections of President, Congress and even Governor by the people, claiming the convention plan was undemocratic. He also advocated the initiative and the referendum. Give the people more power and they will protect the country.

Dr. Tenney spoke of the reform movement in China, having returned recently and being eminently qualified to speak on the subject. He claimed that what was happening on the other side of the world was of vital importance to us, and showed why.
Five or six years ago it seemed to the speaker that our work in China was at an end, because of the uprising against it but there has been a wonderful change.

The problem of the reform of China is not the reform of an illiterate country, because China was civilized 4,000 years ago.

But it has been a strictly classical educational, not practical. There was a democracy, because men of all classes could compete for civil examinations for government positions.
The new scientific education of America is however conquering the world, and the speaker reviewed steps whereby China had been led to reform. The Chinese received a rude shock from the Japanese in 1894, and it led to the formation of the first reform party. It incurred the enmity of the people and the outbreak of 1900 followed. But since then the reform movement has flourished, and it was difficult to provide schools and pupils to meet the demand. The Russia-Japan war was the climax and the reform movement has gone forth with remarkable rapidity. The English language was now required in many schools of China. It was a problem how to change the Chinese language to make it practical.

There was a new patriotic development. They are considering the good of the country instead of themselves.
For this reason they are becoming sensitive of the treatment of Chinese in foreign countries. There are grave dangers because the Chinese number one-fourth of the human race, and they are making progress in modern warfare. The country now has three parties: First the moderate reformers, and on each side the rabid conservatives and the rabid reformers. There is the most danger from the latter, because they are unreasonable in their haste.

In conclusion the speaker commented on the result the reform would have on other nations of the world. He expressed the opinion that the Mongolian race was not inferior in education to the Caucasian. The yellow race cannot be neglected by us.

ÆSTHETIC OBJECTIONS

But Practical
Necessity Demands Better Railroad Facilities

It is urgent demand for improved service for the multitude vs. æsthetic objections of a few people a mile distant, which is to decide whether the Committee on Railroads of the Legislature will report favorably on the petition of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad for authority to cross undeveloped park lands to connect the Granite and Shawmut branch railroads. The adjourned hearing at the State House on Wednesday was largely attended by people of Quincy, Milton and Dorchester.

Lawyers Peters and Hill were on hand to represent the remonstrants, but at the outset it was ascertained that they were not registered.

Chairman Faxon said, as the petitioners had previously presented their side the committee was ready to hear the remonstrants.

Counsel for remonstrants then said their only knowledge of the arguments were from newspaper reports, and they would like to hear from the petitioners first.

The committee were agreeable and Counsel Benton for the railroad took the stand, and once more frankly told the committee what was wanted.

In brief a second bridge across the Neponset river, to relieve congestion on the main line and to open a new route between Braintree and Boston. Frequently, now, vessels are stuck in the Neponset bridge and accidents on the main line between Braintree and Harrison Square delay traffic. It was the most congested section of the New Haven system either in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut or New York, there being about 170 trains in 24 hours. It is one of those cases where, if the railroad was not willing, it ought to be required by the Commonwealth to build the new bridge and establish a new route by consolidating the Granite and Shawmut branches.

The Dorchester suggestion that a freight line was wanted was not well founded, for the curves and grades on these branches would not make it feasible. The freight would still be run over the main line, which was being equipped with four tracks. The railroad was not begging the privilege as the cost would be quarter of a million dollars.

H. S. Carruth of Dorchester, who has built up Ashmont with attractive houses, spoke vigorously in favor of the petition. Some of my neighbors misapprehend the situation because they fear freight trains, but it has been explained that this would be folly, because of grades. The advantages are increased service for the rapidly growing section about Fields Corner which needs rapid transit. It would develop the section for healthy homes.

Dorchester had always been the "mother of opposition." When the railroad was built in 1845 it was crowded as far out to sea on the marshes as possible, for fear it would hurt the town and the stage routes. The people learned their folly, and it made necessary the building of the Shawmut branch.

Now still better facilities were needed. The service on both branches was inferior, but would be improved by the connection, for there would be more trains. The disfigurement on the marshes will be very slight if any, and would not mar the view. When Milton wanted a railroad it had no objection to building it along the Dorchester side of the river, and when East Milton wanted a railroad there was no objection to the railroad along the Quincy side of the river. This connection would be of more benefit to the community and patrons than to the railroad company.

Questioned as to benefit he said the Shawmut branch would have the additional trains from the Granite branch, also direct trains to Braintree, and close connections to Nantasket and the South Shore.

Street Commissioner Hannon of Boston said he had the interest of Dorchester at heart, and believed the connection would be a great public improvement, which people want and demand. All the objection is from Milton people who do not want the bridge. There would be better service. Dead ends on branches were always bad.

Charles A. Ufford a manufacturer favored. It was demanded years ago. It would make possible further connections with Mattapan and the Midland division. The improvement should be welcomed. It will be appreciated for its direct route to Braintree and beyond. Land to be taken was worth 2 to 5 cents.

If expedient he would place a restriction that a concrete bridge be built, a motor boat landing maintained, and other things to beautify.

Another gentleman spoke in favor, and said he was requested by Postmaster Hibbard of Boston to say he favored. He did not know anything about the æsthetic side or the financial side, but the connection must relieve something. He had known of more than two hold-ups at the Neponset bridge, probably fifty. On one occasion there were no trains for seven hours. Trains on branches were now delayed or abandoned at times.

Ex-Representative Peter T. Fallon of Quincy favored. Milton people, he said, were willing to ride on the Boston Elevated, which disfigured and damaged Boston streets, but object to a railroad which will benefit the public going across a marsh in an isolated part of their town. It will improve the railroad service. He had known two or three blocks at the Neponset bridge within a year. Atlantic had a surplus of trains, and some via Shawmut branch would benefit Dorchester.

The remonstrants at this point realized that there were many advocates of the petition and tried to limit them. The following were only given a minute or two to present their views.

President T. L. Williams of the Quincy Board of Trade said his association was practically a unit in favor of the petition.

City Solicitor Thomas favored, and said Mayor Thompson hoped to be present to favor, but was indisposed.

Ex-Councilman W. T. Shea said West Quincy was strong in favor of the petition believing it would improve the service.

Assessor Charles H. Johnson believed connection would be a benefit to Quincy.

Ex-Councilman J. H. Elcock said the railroad passed through the center of West Quincy, but the people were not at all agitated for fear of freight trains.

Representative Hultman favored. He had seldom known Quincy to wake up so much over a movement as this. All were in favor.

H. E. Sheldon of East Milton said Milton was not opposed. The view would not be obstructed. The grades made it impracticable to run freight over the branches.

John Cashman of West Quincy favored, saying it was a good thing to have a duplicate plant.

Josiah Babcock of Milton favored. It would be more direct; the present bad curve at Granite avenue would be obliterated, also the grade crossing.

Frank F. Prescott of the Daily Ledger favored, believing it would result in another connection at South Quincy between the main line and the Granite branch, so that circuit trains could be run from Boston. Three bad disasters in addition to the Neponset bridge had held up travel over the main line and this connection would then have been handy.

Ex-Senator Fred S. Gore of Dorchester favored. Connection with Braintree would be appreciated by Dorchester people. The marsh where connection is to be made is often under water, and will not soon be developed for park.

Perry Lawton of Quincy favored. Sixteen years ago the Legislature favored connection, and it should today.

In closing for the petition Counsel Benton said the railroad would not adhere to any definite plan or location. Connection would certainly give Dorchester better service.

The side of the remonstrants will be reported tomorrow.

HEAVY TAXPAYERS

Many Assessed
On Valuation
Of Over $5,377
Some On Million

Not for several years has a list of the heavy taxpayers of the city been published and there have been so many changes in valuation and ownership that the list below of those whose assessments are over $200.00 will be of interest.

The tax rate of the city in 1906 was $18.00, so that every assessment of $100 represents a valuation of $5,377.00. The Daily Ledger has therefore prepared the following summary which will be found handy when the assessment is known:

	Represents Valuation of
Tax of $100.....	$5,377
Tax of $200.....	$10,754
Tax of $300.....	$16,131
Tax of $400.....	$21,508
Tax of $500.....	$26,885
Tax of $1,000.....	$53,770
Tax of $2,000.....	$107,540
Tax of $5,000.....	$268,850
Tax of $10,000.....	$537,700
Tax of $20,000.....	$1,075,400
Tax of $50,000.....	$2,688,500
Tax of $100,000.....	$5,377,000

It will be seen that Quincy has many heavy taxpayers, some assessed upon a valuation in excess of a million dollars. The list will be continued from day to day:

Visitation of Royal Arch Masons

St. Stephens Chapter Royal Arch Masons received a fraternal visitation from Pentalfa chapter of Weymouth at its regular convocation on Wednesday evening. A large number of companions from both chapters were present.

The work of the evening was the most exalted master degree, which was conferred upon several candidates. The work of the degree was done by Excellent Companion John H. Gay, M. E. H. Priest, and officers of Pentalfa chapter, in approved style.

A banquet was served after the work of the evening.

It was announced that a ladies' night would be held at Masonic apartments Friday evening, March 8.

Library Notes.

All study clubs are asked to send their prospectuses to the Librarian of the Thomas Crane Public Library in order that the resources of the library may be made available in season for the uses of the committee and members of the various clubs. In the case of our own library not being able to supply what is wanted, through the inter-library loan system, books may be borrowed from the Boston Public Library for a limited time, and loaned to the student desiring to use them.

Readers are reminded that all Tabard Inn and Booklovers Library books are seven-day books, and therefore subject to the regular fine of two cents a day after that time. There may be some little misunderstanding in regard to the exchanging of these books. The Public Library is not an exchange station, though listed as such by the Tabard Inn in the sense that a person receiving a book from any regular station may exchange it here. The books are property of the Thomas Crane Public Library for the time being and must be charged and returned at the desk in the regular manner.

INTERESTING CONVENTION

Sunday School Workers Gather
At Wollaston
Baptist Church

The 55th annual convention of the Sunday School teachers of the South Baptist association was held Wednesday at the Wollaston Baptist church and was very largely attended.

The morning session opened with singing and prayer by Rev. Arthur V. Dimock of Dorchester. The address of welcome was by Rev. E. D. Webber of the Wollaston church.

The addresses at the morning session were as follows:—"The Earned Increment" by Rev. Charles E. Lewis of Boston; "The White and Colored Baptists, their relations and consequent obligations," by Rev. Matthew A. N. Shaw of Boston. Music during the session was furnished by the children of the Ebenezer bible school.

Rev. William O. Ayer of Braintree offered the prayer at the opening of the afternoon session after which the following officers were elected:

President—H. A. Bryant of Braintree.

Vice President—Ernest R. Benson of Boston.

Recording Secretary—Fred M. French of Randolph.

Treasurer—Robert Farquhar of Quincy.

Corresponding Secretary—Freeman Merchant of East Milton.

Auditor—Frank W. Crane of Avon.

Executive Committee—Lucian J. Fosdick of Dorchester, Robes Freeman of Dorchester, J. A. Sparrow of Wollaston, Charles S. Kadden of Brookville, and Jesse L. Rhodes of Boston.

Director of State Association—L. K. Marston of Boston.

At the afternoon session there were five-minute addresses as follows:—"The Bible school," by Rev. Lyman R. Sweet of Dorchester; "The Superintendent," by William W. Main of Boston; "The Minister," by Robert Farquhar of Quincy; "The Bible Teacher," by Leander K. Marston of South Boston; "The Library," by Rev. Ira Hardy of East Milton; "Regular Attendance," by Rev. Abner F. Newcomb of Roxbury; "Discipline," by Rev. William W. Everts of Dorchester; "The Syrian," by Rev. Miner B. Deming of Boston.

The question box was in charge of Rev. Clifton D. Gray of Boston. The address of the afternoon was given by Rev. Elmer E. Williams of Randolph. Music was furnished by the Sunshine chorus of the Boston Baptist Bethel, Miss Agnes A. Ashman leader. Rev. Tillman B. Johnson of Dorchester opened the evening session with prayer. The address was given by Rev. John S. Lyon of Holyoke whose subject was "A Teacher's Sacred Trust." The singing was under the direction of Amos D. Albee of Wollaston. Rev. John A. McElwan of Boston pronounced the benediction.

in 1907 for a

NEW CODDINGTON

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The annual report of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company makes an excellent showing. The stability of the company now seems to be unquestioned.
It not only has a good surplus from current expenses, but has set aside a large reserve for turbine development.
The big pay roll of the company distributes thousands of dollars weekly in the city, making trade at the local stores good, causes houses to rent for higher sums, and creates a demand for real estate development and new houses.

On more than one occasion we have commented favorably on the good work of the King's Daughters. It is not only exceedingly practical but far reaching.
It regularly assists in supporting outside and local charities, and does an immense amount of work among the individual poor and unfortunate of the city. Quincy is proud to have the largest, or second largest circle, in Massachusetts, a very popular organization among our ladies.

How deeply the disgusting revelations
in the Thaw case have stirred all decent people may be inferred from the unusual action of the President this week in officially requesting the Postmaster General to ascertain if there were not some method of barring from the mails the newspapers printing so much of the most objectionable accounts of the trial.
Of course this White House action is going to have no practical effect on the course of the present trial. Possibly the President knew that it would not, probably if he had been more familiar with the methods of papers in getting and printing their news, he would not have applied to the post office department to undertake the impossible task of censoring the whole newspaper press of the United States.

None the less this appeal from the President is bound to focus public attention on the excesses of many sensational papers in reporting this disgusting trial. The letter of the President has been referred to the solicitor of the Post Office department, and after it has been duly considered by him, he will report back to the Postmaster General, and he will report to the President, and by that time the trial will be over. But it will form a precedent and make all of the newspapers more careful of the sort of matter they print in connection with such loathsome episodes.

The action of the district attorney in New York in threatening the local papers with the prosecution for the circulation of obscene and objectionable matter, is probably a more effective way of striking at the root of the evil.
But there is another and more effective method of dealing with the situation.
That is to hold the press associations responsible under penalty of prosecution for the reports that they disseminate.
There are not more than a dozen papers over the country who really have special representatives at the trial. The great bulk of the report even for these papers is carried by the three great associations and if they are brought into line by any sort of suasion, the evil will be checked.

The essential feature of the President's action is that he has called attention to the need of decency in the way the reports of this and similar trials are handled. Most newspapers have had the decency to throw much of the Thaw report into the wastebasket as it came off the wire. Such papers of course got no credit for the prurient they suppressed.
Others who let the stuff get into print proved themselves a menace to the homes on their subscription list. But the matter has now been stirred from headquarters, and being once stirred, it is apt to be settled and settled right.

A BATTLE FOR LIFE

Took Place on Deck of the Ill-Fated Larchmont

A CHARGE OF COWARDICE

Survivor Says Unaccompanied
Women Were Left to Their Fate and That First Boat to Leave Wreck Was That of the Captain--Latter Admits That Part of Story is True--Three Heroic Officers Went Down

Providence, Feb. 14.—A terrible tale was brought here last night by the 19
survivors of the steamer Larchmont, and narratives of personal suffering paled into insignificance before the charge of one of the passengers, who asserted that in that awful hour of peril, when death stared all in the face, helpless women were thrust aside by men who cared only for their own safety.

The grave charge of cowardice was made by Fred Hiersgell, 18 years old, of Brooklyn. He said that not only were the unaccompanied women left to their fate, but that Captain McVey left the sinking ship in the very first lifeboat; that some of the ship's employees filled the boats to the exclusion of the passengers, and at least one boat was without oars when it was put over the side.

Louis McFarlane, a negro waiter on the Larchmont, gave a version of the departure of the captain's boat which was entirely different from that given by Hiersgell. He said that when he reached the captain's boat, to which he was assigned, he found Captain McVey there. The captain ordered that the boat be swung outward, ready to launch, calling to the passengers at the same time to step into the boat. The passengers, McFarlane said, seemed afraid to do so, and as the steamer was going down fast McVey ordered that the boat be lowered. When it reached the water, however, a rope fastened to the ring bolt and attached to the davit above became caught and those in the boat were in danger of being dragged down with the steamer when Boatswain Tobesen, who was on the deck, saved their lives by cutting the rope.

Hiersgell's statement was not confirmed by any other survivor of the terrible tragedy, but notwithstanding the fact that there was none to corroborate him, he held steadfast to his story.
Young Hiersgell, who was returning to his home in Brooklyn after having run away, was one of the first to reach the deck of the Larchmont after she had been rammed by the schooner Harry Knowlton, according to his own story, and he found there a scene of terrible confusion, but for a moment one thing attracted his attention to the exclusion of everything else in the tragedy of the sea. There were many women on the deck and, according to Hiersgell, many of them were alone.

Panic-stricken, almost crazed with fear, and chilled to the bone with cold, these women begged that some effort be made to save them. Some shrieked for life preservers and others asked that they be given a place in the life-boats which were being put out from the sinking vessel. But their appeals were ignored by the crew as well as by the passengers. Everyone on board was bent on self-preservation and none stopped to extend a helping hand to those who were helpless and who, because of the fear which paralyzed them, were unable to help themselves.

Even Captain McVey, according to this lad's story, left his ship in the first boat which was sent away from the steamer. A second boat, he said, became so crowded with negro waiters that it capsized as soon as it struck the water and every man was drowned.
Hiersgell said he left the ship in the third boat which put off from the side of the vessel on which he was standing. He did not know what took place among the passengers on the other side, but repeated questions could not shake the charges which he made.

When it was pointed out that he might have made a grievous error in the identity of those who left in the first boat, Hiersgell declared that he could not be mistaken. He repeated that the boat was in charge of McVey who, he said, he saw again on the trip from Block Island to this city.

Captain McVey, when seen at his home in this city early this morning in regard to the statement made by Fred Hiersgell, admitted that it was probably that his lifeboat was one of the first, if not the first, to leave the sinking ship. He explained, however, that this was due to the fact that a seaman standing on the hurricane deck cut the davit rope, but even after the boat was in the water he remained by the ship until she went down.

In explaining his departure from the ship, McVey dictated the following statement to a representative of the press:

"I believe I got my boat away as quickly as any other boat because I had a good crew. My boat got down first, but did not leave the ship first.
Although I think my boat was probably the first to strike the water, I did not let go of the steamer until I found that there were no passengers on our side.
Then I decided to move around to the other side, where I knew there were passengers. I know that six boats got away and I believe that all of the eight lifeboats and four rafts got away.

It was utterly impossible for me to see aft of the wheel box. After giving the men of the other boats orders to lower their craft, I went and lowered mine with my crew. I was on the windward or lower side. The steamer had a bad list to starboard.

"As soon as we reached the water I attempted to move around the bow of the steamer and go on the other side,
where I knew passengers would be.
The gale was terrific and in spite of our utmost efforts with the oars we could not go there. We were forced to drift at the mercy of the wind and the sea, and so we continued until we reached Block Island, 15 miles away."

President Dunbaugh of the Joy line issued a statement last night in defense of his officers and crew. He said that the ship's officers not only were not responsible for the collision, but that considering the terrible conditions which prevailed immediately after the accident the company's men did everything possible to save lives. Dunbaugh's statement said:

"The schooner was responsible for the collision. The officers and crew of the Larchmont are not to blame in any way. In view of the horrible conditions which prevailed immediately after the accident I am satisfied that the men did all in their power to meet the situation as conscientious and honorable men."

"It appears from my investigation that the schooner luffed right into the Larchmont and caused the accident which resulted in such great loss of life.
The fact that the steamer sank so soon after the crash; the fact that so many were unable to reach the boats even after they were put out, is to my mind sufficient proof that the crew acted bravely and did all in its power to aid the passengers who were able to reach the deck."

Steamer Kentucky, which was sent to Block Island by the Joy line officials, arrived here last evening. As soon as she docked the suffering survivors were taken ashore, placed in ambulances and sent to the hospitals. Many were in such a serious condition that the amputation of frozen limbs will be necessary to relieve their suffering.

The 49 bodies which arrived on the Kentucky were placed in a nearby morgue and the police had difficulty in holding back the crowd that wished to view the bodies. Only a few were allowed to enter at a time, but the death house was never empty.

The array of bodies, arranged side by side, presented a gruesome spectacle
as they lay on tables, boxes and biers, with their limbs frozen in many curious positions. Each frozen face was scanned closely as the people passed up and down the room from body to body. A cry, the calling of a name and then convulsive sobs told that some one had discovered a loved one. As soon as the curious had ceased entering the morgue, the work of identification proceeded rapidly and at midnight the names of 28 of the 49 victims were known.

Sad Scenes at Block Island

Block Island, R. I., Feb. 14.—Sadder scenes were never witnessed than yesterday, when the piled-up, ice-encased bodies of the dead of the Larchmont wreck and the tottering forms of the feeble survivors of the fearful horror left the island. In the midst of the sadness came a wild rush of anger when the people here heard from the lips of the rescued passengers the fearful stories of what happened on board the ill-fated steamer after the lumbering coal schooner had given her a death blow.

Then it was known why only two women escaped from the wreck, how women and children were beaten back from the lifeboats by the fists of frenzied men. And men admit it, too.
There was no sense of shame in their eyes as some of them told how they were victorious in the mad battle that raged on the deck of the steamer.

But in contrast to this is the full measure of praise bestowed on three unknown officers of the Larchmont, who chose to go to their deaths rather than desert the women and children.
These three men, with the waters rushing into the sinking ship, tore life preservers from the racks and, grabbing screaming women and children, buckled
the belts around them.

The dauntless three, heedless of the oncoming death, refused to follow where others rushed to safety, but gave their lives in the hope that the women and children might not perish.

Larchmont Far Under Water

New York, Feb. 14.—Steamer Santiago of the Joy line got in last night.
Captain Holmes reported passing the abandoned schooner Harry Knowlton, which collided with the Larchmont,
three miles east of Watch Hill light,
and probably 400 feet off shore, with all sails set. The captain saw no wreckage in his course, and estimated that the Larchmont's topmast was 50 feet under the surface of the waters of the sound.

Unknown Steamer Was Near

New London, Conn., Feb. 14.—Captain Frank T. Haley of the schooner Harry Knowlton, in a sworn statement to United States Steamboat Inspector Whitney, says that an unknown steamer was in the vicinity of the wreck and after showing her lights veered off and kept on her course without offering any assistance to the victims of the collision.

Seafaring Men Puzzled

Boston, Feb. 14.—Among the shipping interests, especially those whose vessels ply along the New England coast where the traffic is very heavy, the details of the Larchmont disaster, as told by the commanders of the two vessels were carefully considered.
Nearly everyone seemed unable to comprehend how two vessels approaching each other on a clear night with lights burning and both apparently under complete control should have been allowed to come together or even approach each other near enough to endanger such an encounter.

Block Island sound at the point where the disaster occurred is 10 miles wide and without the slightest suspicion of a shoal for a distance of nearly 30 miles.
Its waters are constantly ploughed by nearly the entire commerce of New England. That the schooner bound to the eastward before a favorable, although strong breeze, should have so swerved from her course as to bring her head on to the steamer was another detail which men familiar with shipping discussed. Even after the accident the schooner was so far able to survive her injuries as to run three or four miles in a heavy cross sea and gain the beach.

INSPECTED IN 1902

Larchmont Was Then Known as the Cumberland

New York, Feb. 14.—Superintendent Noble of the Joy line says that he has been investigating the books of the company and that in his opinion there were not more than 100 passengers on the Larchmont when the steamer was wrecked. The boat for the past month, he said, has been carrying less than 100 passengers. The traffic was much heavier previous to the holidays and immediately following the holidays.
Many Italians, he said, had been inquiring at the offices of the Joy line and it was possible that a gang of Italian laborers was coming to New York on the Larchmont. This would have swelled the usual number somewhat, he said.

At the office of the federal inspectors of steam vessels it was stated that the Larchmont had been inspected once in this port. This was in 1902. The vessel was known then as the Cumberland, of Portland, and was owned by the International Steamship company.

The inspection was made soon after the vessel collided in Boston harbor with a vessel of the United Fruit company. The Larchmont, or Cumberland, as she was then, was struck on the starboard bow and the bow crushed in.
She was loaded with passengers at the time, but managed to make her dock and disembark her passengers.
While on the way from her dock to East Boston she sunk, was raised and repaired.

The inspection here, when she arrived after that collision, showed that she had 110 staterooms, 136 berths, and that with her deck passengers she was allowed to carry 533 passengers. The authorized crew consisted of one master,
two pilots, two mates, two engineers,
six firemen, two oilers and 18 deck hands. If necessity required the steward's department was allowed 26 men, making a full crew of 59 men.

The hull was of wood, with three water-tight cross bulkheads. The bulkheads were of six-inch wood and one-quarter inch iron. The lifesaving appliances consisted of eight metal life-boats, four life rafts, four cork rings and 635 life preservers.

Superintendent Noble said that no efforts would be made to raise the sunken steamer, as she had gone down in a depth too great. He thinks that the actual number of lives lost will never be accurately known.

A Labor Exclusion Law

Washington, Feb. 14.—The Japanese school controversy is settled, insofar as President Roosevelt, Mayor Schmitz and the members of the San Francisco school board are concerned. If the amendment to the immigration bill, excluding foreigners who use their pas-ports to secure admission to the United States, "to the detriment of labor conditions in this country," is accepted and the immigration bill is passed at this session of congress, the order establishing the Oriental schools in San Francisco will be rescinded unless the Japanese government agrees to a proposition for separate schools, which will provide equal facilities for the Japanese children.

Deaths in Boiler Explosion

Luzon, N. Y., Feb. 14.—The boiler of an engine pulling a passenger train exploded near here and Fireman Mullen and an unknown man, who was riding in the cab of the engine were killed.
Engineer Gadwood fatally hurt, Baggage Master Reiley painfully injured and a dozen passengers injured, none seriously. The explosion is supposed to have been due to the freezing of the pipe between the tank and the engine, which prevented the water feeding into the boiler properly.

Taft Wants Money For Canal

Washington, Feb. 14.—Speaker Cannon received a letter from Secretary
Taft asking for an appropriation of $1, 126,902 to meet Panama canal deficiencies caused by contract indebtedness
prior to June 30, 1906, for the fiscal year 1906 and prior years. A statement of appropriations and expenditures to June 30, 1906, accompanies the estimates.

Pension Bills Rushed Through

Washington, Feb. 14.—The senate
last night broke all records by passing bills at the rate of 15 a minute for 66 minutes. The bills were pension bills on the calendar to which there were no objections. The number passed was 991 and during the procedure Senator McCumber was the only senator on the floor. Vice President Fairbanks presided.

Two Big Fires at Brooklyn

New York, Feb. 14.—The fire department of Brooklyn last night fought two bad fires. Buildings of the New York Dock company were burned with a loss of $250,000. The warehouse of the Bush Terminal company, filled principally with lumber and jute, also was destroyed. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Tidbits from
All Wards of City

The granite and brick buildings looked very handsome this morning with their coatings of white frost.

But little work has been done in the stone sheds during the past two weeks,
on account of the extreme cold weather.

Mrs. Arthur Fitts and Miss Fletcher of Somerville were in town Tuesday to attend the annual meeting of Unity Circle, King's Daughters.

Mrs. John Ramsdall of Billings street has just returned from Windsor, Vermont. During her stay, Mrs.
Ramsdall had an opportunity of going over the state prison and was shown the cell in which Mary Rogers spent her last days. This week Mrs. Ramsdall will spend in Winchester.

Mrs. William D. Hughes and son Han-dolph of Coney Island have been guests of Mrs. Hughes' sister, Mrs. John Ramsdall for a few days. Mrs. Hughes is a probation officer of Coney Island and has charge of the Rescue Home.
During the past year her great work has brought forth surprisingly good results. She is a smart, bright little woman and much beloved by all with whom she comes in contact in her work.

HEAVY TAXPAYERS

Many Assessed
On Valuation
Of Over $10,750
Some On Million

Not for several years has a list of the heavy taxpayers of the city been published and there have been so many changes in valuation and ownership that the list below of those whose assessments are over $200.00 will be of interest.

The tax rate of the city in 1906 was $18.60, so that every assessment of $100 represents a valuation of $5,377.00. The Daily Ledger has therefore prepared the following summary which will be found handy when the assessment is known:

Represents	Valuation of
Tax of $100.....	$5,377
Tax of $200.....	$10,754
Tax of $300.....	$16,131
Tax of $400.....	$21,508
Tax of $500.....	$26,885
Tax of $1,000.....	$53,770
Tax of $2,000.....	$107,540
Tax of $3,000.....	$161,310
Tax of $4,000.....	$215,080
Tax of $5,000.....	$268,850
Tax of $6,000.....	$322,620
Tax of $7,000.....	$376,390
Tax of $8,000.....	$430,160
Tax of $9,000.....	$483,930
Tax of $10,000.....	$537,700

It will be seen that Quincy has many heavy taxpayers, some assessed upon a valuation in excess of a million dollars. The list will be continued from day to day:

The End.

Annual Ball Of Odd Fellows

A largely attended ball was held Thursday evening at Quincy Music hall under the auspices of Mr. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows. The program opened with a promenade concert by Wilson's orchestra, which rendered the following program:

March,--Free Lance
Overture,--Poet and Peasant
Duet for flute and clarinet,--The Butterfly
Messrs. Gilbert and Poole
Arrah wanza
Concert waltz,--Mille Modist
Victor Herbert
J. Morse

While this was in progress the guests of the evening were arriving, and their wants were looked after by an efficient reception committee composed of Charles S. Jones, Frank L. Carlton, Charles Kezer, Thomas E. Farnald and W. J. Williams.

The decorations included three large links suspended over the platform, designed by Past Grand Charles S. Jones.

At 9 o'clock the ball was inaugurated by a grand march which was participated in by one hundred couples. The march was well executed and was a pretty affair. It was led by Floor Director E. Frank Mitchell and Mrs. Mitchell, assisted by Noble Grand James Moorhead, Jr., and Miss Jennie Crowell.

General dancing was then in order until 2 A. M. The program of dances contained twenty numbers besides several extras. They were each dedicated to the officers of the lodge, deputy, neighboring lodges, etc.

The order was one calculated to please, for in addition to the modern dances it contained a plentiful sprinkling of quadrilles.

There was no regular supper served, but at midnight, during a brief intermission, ice cream and cake were served by the committee.

The invited guests included the Grand officers of the order, and the deputy and suite, several of whom were present. Charles S. Jones was chairman of the Committee of Arrangements.

To Build a Well

The Sunday school at Quincy Point gives a concert on Sunday evening, Feb. 17, at 7.30 in the church. One of the features of the evening will be the building of a well. The material used in this well is the same as that used over 20 years ago, under the direction of Supt. Sherburne, when the same exercise was given in the same room. The boys and girls who took part in that program then, are now in some instances fathers and mothers of the children and young people who may participate Sunday evening.

Miss Edna Fowler of Phillips street has been on the sick list for the past week.

VISIT AND INVESTIGATE

The Need of a
New Coddington
Told by Master
Walter H. Bentley

Editor of The Quincy Daily Ledger:

I have been considering for some time the advisability of sending to you some facts regarding the need of a new Coddington School. As I believe that this need is not generally understood by the citizens of this district I feel it is my duty to call to their attention some of the conditions which prevail in the present building.

It is admitted by all that health is the most vital consideration during years of childhood. The hygienic and sanitary condition of a school building should therefore rank first in importance. One of the elements necessary to good health is an abundant supply of fresh air. Physicians and ventilation experts estimate the amount required at thirty cubic feet per minute for each child, or twelve hundred cubic feet for an ordinary school room accommodating forty pupils.

The average class room in the Coddington contains about 10,000 cu. ft. of space. It will thus be seen that the air in the rooms should be changed at least once every ten minutes.

At present there is absolutely no provision for the ventilation of rooms except by the windows. During the months from November to March inclusive, one-half of the school year, it is decidedly dangerous to open the windows and subject the pupils to a direct draught of cold air. Within a half-hour after the opening of school the air in these rooms becomes so close as to be absolutely offensive. It is frequently necessary to stop a class exercise, give the pupils gymnastics, and open the windows, even in zero weather.

The danger to health, the increased liability of spreading contagious diseases, and the difficulty of teaching and controlling children under these conditions can be imagined.

During the day a total of fifty to seventy-five children leave the grades and go to the sanitarium in the basement of the main building. They are out of their rooms from three to five minutes and during that time are subject, at this season of the year, to the freezing temperature of the corridors and basement, for they are absolutely unheated. The one hundred and seventy younger pupils housed in the annex have to go out of doors time and cross a part of the school yard, as there are no sanitary accommodations in that building. It is impossible for the teacher to see that these pupils put on their wraps, and the number of colds contracted in this way would be hard to estimate.

The average number of pupils per room since September, 1906, has been fifty-one. Although there are assistant teachers in the primary grades, it is impossible for any teacher to do justice to the work of her grade with this number of pupils. This crowding increases the harm done by the lack of ventilation, and would prove a very serious danger in case of fire, as the stairways are narrow and the fire escapes wooden and probably unsafe.

During a recent visit, one of the State inspectors of buildings said to me, that any fair-minded person who examined the Coddington would agree that there was a clear case of necessity for a new building.

Personally I may state that never in my experience have I seen such a building as the Coddington, in use for school purposes. Aside from the matter of health, I believe that every child during the impressionable years of his school life is entitled to a well lighted, cheerful and pleasant school room. The incentive to good school work, as well as to habits of neatness and cleanliness furnished by such surroundings is unquestionable.

I understand that the only objection offered to the erection of a suitable building is a financial one, and that the same objection has prevailed for several years. I believe that the intelligent citizens of Quincy want their children to have proper school accommodations, and are willing to pay for them.

In my judgment the present building is not only unsuited for school purposes, but is a source of danger to the health of the children attending it. I should be glad to have any person interested in this matter, particularly the parents in the Coddington district, visit the school and investigate the matter for themselves.

Respectfully yours,

Walter H. Bentley,

Master of the Coddington School.

MILTON.

A farewell reception will be tendered Rev. Theodore I. Reese next Tuesday evening at the Milton club by the members of St. Michael, and the Mission of Our Saviour churches. There will be an entertainment, refreshments, etc. Miss Fannie Johnson has accepted a position as bookkeeper in Smith's grocery.

A business meeting of the Thursday Evening club was held this week.

The ladies of the East Milton Congregational church will hold a supper and entertainment Feb. 28.

Edward Hodges has been confined to his home this week by illness.

The fire department was called out Sunday evening for a slight fire in a house on Pierce street. The fire was in the cellar and was caused by a lamp being placed too near some curtains.

Lenten services will be held at the Mission of Our Saviour church every day next week.

NEW WARD AT HOSPITAL

Hon. W. B. Rice
Makes It Possible
Trustees to Build
Also Nurses Home

Timothy Reed, secretary of the board of Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy writes:

At the meeting of the Hospital Trustees held Monday, Feb. 11, a message was received from Mr. William B. Rice, authorizing the Trustees to draw on him as needed up to fifteen thousand dollars, to build a new ward. The building committee on "Nurses Home" reported they had not secured funds sufficiently large to build as contemplated, and it was voted to proceed to build a less expensive temporary one of wood, on the opposite side of Whitwell street, that can be altered into a dwelling, to be disposed of when we are assured of funds enough to build as originally intended.

Because of the pressing need of the "Home" at the present time, the trustees reluctantly take this step temporarily. They continue to hope that the original idea may be carried out at no distant day.

WANTED.
in 1907 for a
NEW CODDINGTON

GOOD AFTERNOON.

All that is needed to convince people that a new Coddington schoolhouse is imperative is a brief visit to the building. It would not be necessary for any one to point out the defects. But it is a fact that parents seldom visit our schoolhouses and their little know the dangers to which the children are subjected, and there is too much indifference. Mr. Bentley's in his open letter today, touches upon only a few points, but what he says can easily be confirmed.

The City Book, year after year, shows that the Coddington schoolhouse is the only one in the city heated by stoves. The building was erected in 1855 and has none of the modern conveniences which pupils at most of the other schools of the city now enjoy. It is an old wooden building. A few years ago water closets were put into the cellar, but there is really no sanitary system, and no ventilating system. The very presence of the water closets makes the building unhealthy. The cloak rooms are at one end of the building near the outside doors and are unheated, inadequate and unhealthy. The stairways to the upper floors are dark and narrow and have two turns on each story. The schoolhouse inside and outside is unattractive.

Should the City Council make shorter loans for improvements it would not so quickly exhaust its debt limit. When the appropriation of $75,000 is made for the new building this year let it be divided into three payments of $25,000 each and then the building will be paid for before 1910 expires. The High school loans will not be cancelled until 195, and there are some street loans which run until the same year. Long loans cause heavy interest accounts.

Some Texas papers are daring Senator Bailey to resign and appeal to the people. The Senator naturally does not want to put the state to the expense of holding an extra election just to return him. And then you know there is the possibility that they might return somebody else.

A Honolulu dispatch instances as a growing sign of war the fact that the Japanese house servants in Hawaii are growing unbearably impudent. The same indications would put the rest of the United States on the verge of war with every power of Europe.

At all times during the 24 hours of St. Valentines day the temperature was above the freezing point. Whether Cupid had anything to do with this unusual warmth we are not quite sure.

Mayor Dunne of Chicago has appointed a friend of Roger Sullivan to office. This disposes of the story that the Mayor might have the second place on the Bryan ticket.

It becomes an interesting question as to how many more millions Mr. Rockefeller will have to slough off before he will go through the eye of a needle.

When Governor Hughes recommends insurance legislation, even his enemies cannot accuse him of talking of something he knows nothing about.

The Czar of Russia declares that he "will rise above his enemies." And his enemies doubtless will try to stand back and avoid the fragments.

Police statistics show that there are six bachelors arrested to one married man. Even the policeman seems to sympathize with the married man.

The English people are calling attention to the existence of the House of Lords by threatening to abolish it.

DELAYED BY DEATH

Thaw Trial Postponed After a Brief Session

THE JURY GIVEN LIBERTY

Court Depends Upon Their Honor and Oath Not to Read Newspapers or Discuss Trial—Halt In Proceedings Caused by the Death of a Juror's Wife

New York, Feb. 15.—Another tragic chapter in the history of the Thaw-White episode was written Thursday when grim death stepped in to halt the famous trial in its fourth week. The wife of juror No. 11, Mrs. Joseph B. Bolton, passed away yesterday afternoon, soon after her husband had reached her bedside. He had been summoned from the courtroom where the trial had been in progress for less than 15 minutes. The formal announcement of Mrs. Bolton's death was made in court shortly after 2 p. m., the hour set for the afternoon session, and Justice Fitzgerald immediately ordered an adjournment of the case until next Monday morning. The court also ordered, with the consent of counsel, that the other 11 jurors be given their liberty and no longer be held together. He admonished the jurors to be guided by their honor and their oath and not to read the newspapers or discuss the Thaw case with anybody.

The death of Bolton's wife cast a gloom over the criminal court's building and had a particularly depressing effect upon everyone connected with the trial. The prisoner seemed to feel the matter quite keenly when he was brought into court to hear the formal announcement of the order for a postponement of his further hearing.

The fact that the Thaw jury has been kept in close confinement since they were selected for trial service and that Bolton had been allowed to visit his home only three times during his wife's fatal illness, lent a pathetic aspect to the case. During the brief morning session, when Bolton had taken his place in the box, Thaw fixed the juror with his gaze as he entered. It was not a stare of curiosity or of concern as to his own welfare that the defendant turned upon the juror, but there seemed rather to be a light of sympathy in the eyes of the man accused of the murder of Stanford White.

Mrs. Bolton suffered from double pneumonia. Her condition became serious Wednesday, when the morning session of the trial was abandoned to allow the juror to visit his home. Bolton was accompanied by two other jurors and by two court officers. The law which was invoked at the beginning of the trial to keep the jury together provides that no one juror shall at any time be separated from the others. Mrs. Bolton rallied Wednesday afternoon, her husband returned to his place and the trial went on. When court convened at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning Bolton was again in seat No. 11, but it was said that his wife's condition was critical and he might be called away at any moment.

Dr. Britton D. Evans, superintendent of the New Jersey state hospital for the insane, was recalled as an alienist to continue his direct examination. The witness was asked to detail the conversations he had on various occasions with Thaw in the Tombs. He had already declared these conversations to be an essential feature in his conclusion that Thaw was of unsound mind at the time of the doctor's first three visits to him, the last being on Sept. 22. Mr. Jerome had withdrawn his objections to the statements by Thaw going into the evidence and Evans was about to detail the events of his first visit on Aug. 4 when the summons for Bolton came. Captain Ricketts of the court police squad was seen to whisper to Justice Fitzgerald.

A recess was taken until 2 p. m., and the juror, still accompanied by two of his associates and two court officers, hurried to the little home where Mrs. Bolton was being kept alive only by the use of oxygen. She died soon after her husband's arrival.

Juror Bolton is 57 years of age and a clerk. When court again convened at 2:25 p. m. there had been a conference of the attorneys with Justice Fitzgerald and the agreement had been reached to release the remaining jurors from further confinement. In taking this action, Justice Fitzgerald took pains to state that the rule keeping them together had not been adopted upon the separate recommendation of either side, but was the result of an agreement based upon reasons which appeared excellent alike to the interests of the defendant and of the people. There was intended not the slightest reflection upon the jury in any way. It would have been well, Fitzgerald remarked, if the rule could have been adhered to until the close of the trial.

In announcing the adjournment until Monday, Fitzgerald expressed the "hope" that the trial might then proceed. It is realized, however, that this will depend largely upon the condition in which Bolton may be at that time. If he feels that he can put aside all personal considerations and continue to do his sworn duty to the state as a juror the trial will be resumed. If he feels that his condition of mind is such, or that his personal affairs are such as to prevent his giving his whole attention to the case during the remaining days of the trial, some other solution of the difficulty must be looked for.

Your Sick Child

can't tell you what it has or how it feels—it only shows it is sick and miserable. If it is restless and peevish, doesn't sleep well, has pains in the stomach and bowels or has an erratic appetite the trouble undoubtedly is stomach or pin worms. Give the little one a few doses of that famous old life saver

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

IN USE 55 YEARS.
If worms are present they will be expelled. If no worms exist this wonderful medicine acts gently, yet positively, in tuning up the whole system to rugged health.

Dr. J. F. True & Co. I shall in the future know just what to recommend to others who are not feeling well; stomach out of order, headache, poor appetite, or a bad cold. Your Elixir is just what has helped me out of this combination of bad feelings. I had used it in my family for years and knew of its great worth, as I had given it to my small children for distressing worms. For each it saved me from a doctor's visit. I have cured me of all those bad feelings and do not feel any more. Yours truly, Mrs. E. A. Skiffeld. Sold by all dealers—50c and $1.00. Write for free booklet "Children and their Diseases." Dr. J. KUROPATKIN'S ESTIMATE

Criticism of Men and Measures
In Russo Japanese War

St. Petersburg, Feb. 15.—(Copyright, 1907, by The Associated Press)—General Kuropatkin's history of the Russo-Japanese war, which was confiscated by the Russian government, has at last become accessible, despite the most extreme precautions to prevent this galling official indictment from reaching the public.

The work consists of three bulky volumes, respectively devoted to the three crucial events of the war—the battle of Liang Yang, the battle of the Sha river and the battle of Mukden. The voluminous general orders, statistics, reports and other documentary matter, with the "conclusions" which have been formulated, constitute most amazing revelations of disorganization and incapacity, and even of disobedience of specific and urgent orders, on the part of certain general officers entrusted with high commands in the field, notably General Kaulbars, upon whose shoulders is saddled practically the entire responsibility for the crushing defeat at Mukden.

Kuropatkin's reasons for the failure of the war are based chiefly on a comparison of the warlike spirit of the Japanese, their preparedness and valor, which, he says, has never been seen in any previous war, and their ability to maintain the numerical superiority necessary to assume the offensive, with the disadvantages of Russia, owing to the inadequacy of the single track railway from Europe in feeding her fighting strength, with the commanding officers disobeying orders and in a hopeless state of confusion and cross-purposes, with a low state of morale and confidence among the troops, and continuous news from home of internal troubles and of insults and reproaches against the army.

The general closes his survey of the cause of the defeat of the Russians with the pathetic reflection that if Russia had been united and ready to make the sacrifices necessary to safeguard her dignity and integrity, "the valiant Russian army would have striven till the foe was subdued."

Stevens Refutes Press Statements

Washington, Feb. 15.—The isthmian canal commission has received from Chief Engineer Stevens, for the use of the senate committee on inter-oceanic canals, samples of borings made at lock sites at Gatun and Pedro Miguel. In a letter which accompanied these samples Stevens says that press statements that these drills have encountered mud and water and material of similar nature are false and that nothing has tended to show but that the "foundations of the Gatun locks will be as solid as the eternal hills."

Intestinal Germs in Ice

Albany, Feb. 15.—Formal complaint against taking ice from the Hudson river for domestic consumption was made in a letter to Governor Hughes by the committee on pollution of the Merchants' Association of New York. Governor Hughes said he would take the matter under consideration. The letter says chemists inspected numerous sources of ice supply and examined a large number of samples. "Most of the ice," the letter continues, "either at the top or bottom of the cake showed intestinal germs."

Negroes Get Good Advice

Macon, Ga., Feb. 15.—The Negro Equal Rights association has issued an address saying that "we join hands with all races and plead for majesty of law, strict enforcement, whether affecting whites or blacks." It urges negroes to acquire property, build houses, be honest and industrious; advocates agricultural colleges or schools for the negro youth, deprecates efforts to have convict labor on the Panama canal and declares that the "Jim Crow car" is a disgrace to the race.

Cramp Leaves Cramp Company

Philadelphia, Feb. 15.—Edwin S. Cramp, vice president of the William Cramp's Sons Ship and Engine Building company, has resigned. His retirement will leave the company without any member of the family of that name in the concern. No statement was made as to why Cramp resigned, but it is said that he was not in sympathy with the recent policies of the company.

To Improve Irish Government

London, Feb. 15.—Augustine Birrell, chief secretary for Ireland, has given formal notice that a bill "to establish an Irish council and for other purposes connected therewith" will soon be introduced. This is the Liberal government keeping its promise to the Nationalists to place Irish legislation to the forefront of the present session of parliament.

AN ACTIVE SEARCH

Fails to Reveal Whereabouts of Bank Securities

HAVE NOT BEEN SOLD

Warrant Drawn Up For Arrest of Treasurer Walker, Whose Defalcation Is Thought to Be Upward of $600,000

New Britain, Conn., Feb. 15.—A message received from New York late yesterday afternoon by the directors of the Savings Bank of New Britain contained, it is understood, a clue to the whereabouts in New York of William E. Walker, the missing treasurer of the bank, but the nature of the clue could not be learned. No clue as to the location of the securities which Walker took from the bank has been found, in spite of a very active search in New York and several other cities.

The bank situation apparently rests on the apprehension of Walker, for the run of depositors has ended. The actual shortage remains unchanged at $665,000.

The board of directors of the bank met last evening to discuss the present phase of the situation. The belief is held that a greater portion of the missing securities has been hypothecated, as inquiry among financial interests in New York brought out the fact that Walker would have been unable to dispose of the securities except at a considerable sacrifice, owing to the state of the market, but as their quality was excellent, he would have been able to borrow money on them without much difficulty.

The committee of the directors who went to New York seems to be convinced that if the bonds had been sent through the customary channels of exchange some trace of them would have been found before this. Up to the time the message was received from New York the directors declared that they did not have the least idea of Walker's movements since last Sunday, nor the least sign of a single bond having been offered for sale.

Prosecuting Attorney Mitchell, on his own initiative, drew up a warrant for the arrest of Walker on the charge of appropriating to his own use two bonds of $1000 each belonging to the bank, and sent Chief of Police Rawlins to New York to inform the police there of the fact that the missing treasurer was wanted on a criminal charge.

It has been ascertained that Walker had several outside business investments and that he had some outstanding notes which bear indorsement of local business men. Recently in a business transaction in which he was called upon to settle an account he is said to have asked for further time, owing to the fact that he was pressed for money just then.

With approximately $40,000 missing from the Baptist convention funds, the defalcation of Walker appears to exceed $600,000. The only reality that he had was his modest home which was assessed at $3500, and against this meager attachment for $500,000 was levied yesterday in favor of the bank.

Raisuli's Lieutenant Slain

Tangier, Feb. 15.—Ben Mansour, formerly Raisuli's lieutenant, was assassinated opposite the Spanish legation. Three natives belonging to Ben Mansour's tribe, doubtless incensed by his treachery to Raisuli, fired point blank at him and he fell to the ground mortally wounded. The assassins of the chief, however, dispatched him with knives. The assassins were arrested.

Alleged Theft of $2500 a Month

Philadelphia, Feb. 15.—Miss Flora Steipel, a cashier in the employ of N. Snellenburg & Co., owners of a big department store, is charged with embezzling funds of the company to the amount of $25,000. The woman, who is about 40 years old, is alleged to have secured this amount within 10 months by falsifying the books. She was held in $10,000 bail for a further hearing.

Eleven Arrests in Murder Case

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Eleven men are under arrest in connection with the murder of a girl known only as "Paulina," who was found dead in a yard. The police claim that they have proof that the girl was drugged with ammonia which had been placed in beer and was then attacked by the men. Four of the men are said to have confessed.

Educator Charged With Murder

Karlsruhe, Germany, Feb. 15.—Professor Karl Hau of George Washington university, charged with the murder of his mother-in-law, was taken to the university clinic at Freiburg, where he will be placed under the observation of Professor Hoche with the object of determining the prisoner's sanity.

End of Venezuelan "Revolution"

Washington, Feb. 15.—The Venezuelan legation last night received official advices from the Venezuelan consul at Trinidad stating that President Castro is doing well and that General Paredes, the revolutionary leader, has been captured with all his followers.

The Social Realm

Happy is he who wisely knows
To use the gifts that heaven bestows
Or if it please the powers divine
Can suffer want and not repine.
—SWIFT DANE

An event of importance on the social calendar for next week is gentlemen's night of the Quincy Women's club, which will be held at the club house on Tuesday evening, from eight until eleven. The reception will be followed by dancing, cards and refreshments.
As it is the first affair of the kind held by the club since its formation two years ago, it is looked forward to with most pleasant anticipation.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Ames of Whitney road are receiving congratulations, another little daughter being added to the home circle on Monday.

Mrs. Sidney Stevens (nee Nancy Woy) of Somersworth, N. H., has been a guest of the Misses Vogler of Botolph street this week. Mrs. Stevens was a resident of Atlantic for a few years and was regarded with affection by all her many friends. Her popularity is no less wide-spread in Somersworth, where her husband is in the New Hampshire legislature and is one of the best known men in the state.

Mrs. Charles Towns of Arlington street entertained ten friends at dinner
Wednesday evening.

Mrs. John O. Hall of Millbury is entertaining Mrs. F. C. Babcock, who gave on Friday afternoon her lecture on "The books we used to read and those we read now," before the Millbury Women's club. Mrs. Hall is as active along literary lines in her new home as she always was when in Quincy.

Mr. Robert C. Whiteacre of Safford street left Friday for Plainfield, N. H., for a week's stay.

The Kitulta Club was entertained by Miss Florence Gray of Atlantic on Valentine's evening. Prizes were won by Miss Corinna Wilde, Mrs. Addie Ruggles Lingley, Miss Ethel Vogler and Miss Virtie Moore. Heart souvenirs and bouquets were given each member.
The succeeding meeting will be with Miss Wilde on Feb. 28.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Willcutt (Harriet Ross of Wollaston) of Dorchester are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter, born Feb. 13.

Large social affairs in Quincy this season seem to run to dances rather than entertainments and more than usual have been held. Hardly a week passes but a ball is given at Music hall or several small dancing parties at the various smaller halls.

D. E. Wadsworth has returned from Cuba. Mrs. Wadsworth is to return later as she comes by the way of Chicago, where she is to visit friends.

The A. B. C. met last Wednesday at Braintree with Mrs. F. G. Pennock.
Highest scores were made by Mrs.
Frank F. Prescott of Quincy and Mrs.
A. W. Small of Braintree. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. George E. Stone.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Pennington are observing their marriage anniversary
today in a quiet manner.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cushing, who recently returned from the west, were surprised on Thursday evening at the residence of Mrs. Cushing's mother, Mrs. William E. Winegar of 99 Elmwood avenue, Wollaston. The fifty or more present enjoyed a delightful evening with music, dancing and refreshments. Mrs. Cushing was presented an elegant shopping bag.

William K. Van Iderstein of South
Orange, New Jersey, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Linnell, of Rawson road.

The state society of the Daughters of the Revolution is to observe Washington's birthday at Huntington chambers, Boston at half past two. Dr. Mary A.
Mosher will give her illustrated lecture on Alaska and Miss Ella Chamberlain is to whistle, accompanied by Mrs. J. D.
Robinson.

One of the pretty social affairs of the week was the dancing party at Colonial hall on Tuesday evening arranged by Miss Georgiana C. Lane and Miss Helen Claffin. Mrs. Cushing
Lane and Mrs. Rupert F. Claffin received and the ushers were: Messrs.
Frick and Thompson of Quincy; Mr.
Clendennings of Lynn, and Allen and Gerald Howland of Boston. Valentines were used for cotillon favors. Punch was served throughout the evening and ice cream and cake during the intermission. The cute little dance orders were much appreciated.

Mrs. Vernon S. Brokaw of South Central avenue has returned from a delightful visit of two weeks with friends in New York and Philadelphia.

Mrs. E. C. Richards of Washington street, Weymouth, left on Tuesday for a visit to the western coast. Miss Foster of Cambridge is her travelling companion. They reach Pasadena, California, for the first stop of four days and will include Long Beach, Los Angeles, Riverside and various other places in their travels.

Mrs. Charles Twiss and children of Tewksbury have been guests of Mrs.
Twiss' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis
Coles of Faxon road, this week.

Mrs. Elliott Pierce of Commercial street, Weymouth, is now at Riverside, California visiting her sister Mrs.
William McIntyre. Mrs. E. Frank
Linton of Brooklyn, N. Y. and Mrs.
Frank Worster of New York are there also. Their many friends feel confident the four sisters will have a delightful visit together.

The Misses Calvert of Portland, Maine, are guests of the Misses Claffin of Greenleaf street.

Miss Mary E. Rourke of Braintree entertained friends from Charlestown, Dorchester, Quincy, and East Braintree, with whist at her home
Saturday evening. Miss Elizabeth Mc-Donald, of East Braintree, won the prize. Refreshments were served.
Vocal and instrumental music were enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Warren Fisher of 112 Upland road have issued invitations to the observance of the tenth anniversary of their marriage, on Monday, February twenty-fifth, when they will receive afternoon and evening.

Miss Jennie Emerson of Norfolk Hills enjoys a German club composed of Providence teachers and college professors. It will be remembered that she teaches near Providence and among the high school branches. German is included in her classes. The German club meets on Tuesday evenings, converse in German, enjoy German refreshments and study German literature.

Miss Beatrice Morse of Albany, New York, is the guest of Mrs. H. P. Allen of Willow street.

The Philergians will meet in Cochato hall Tuesday, Feb. 19, Miss Whittier being the speaker of the afternoon.
Her subject will be "The work and success of Women's clubs." Owing to the storm of Feb. 5 no meeting was held on that date. It is expected that a public meeting will be held on the evening of April 10, at which Miss Fisher will speak on "Village Improvement."

Mrs. Joseph T. Burrell, formerly of Quincy, gave a very pretty party
Wednesday at her home in Dorchester from two to five in honor of the fourth birthday of her little daughter, Winifred Esther. Several little boys and girls of Wollaston attended.

Miss Nellie Courtney of Plymouth has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Charles McGrath of Hamden circle, for a few days.

Mrs. Helen Allen Hunt gave a fine concert at Potter hall, Boston, Monday afternoon, assisted by Miss Lida Low and Miss Brackett. Special mention was made of Mrs. Hunt's interpretation of the von Flieitz cycle of seven songs giving the story of Laurel and Elaine, which were beautifully sung.

QUINCY PROTESTS

Special Committee of Citizens Association on Telephone Rates

Editors Quincy Daily Ledger:

In yesterday's Ledger there was published the proposition which the Telephone Company is now putting out with reference to a change in telephone rates. In the proposition there was also described certain contemplated improvements in the telephone service. The proposition as published applied particularly to Quincy, but a similar plan has been put out for all the different sections of the Metropolitan district, and it is this general plan which the daily papers have been exploiting for the last few days. From the head-lines in the papers one would infer that there was to be a great reduction in rates to the majority of users of the telephone in the suburban district.
In the opinion of the special committee appointed by the Quincy Citizens' Association to investigate the matter, this inference is entirely unjustified and absolutely contrary to the facts.

QUINCY SITUATION.
To confine the statement primarily to Quincy, we are of the opinion that the great majority of telephone subscribers in Quincy would be obliged to pay more for their telephone service than they do now. To be sure, there is a seeming reduction arising from the fact that certain yearly rates are reduced, and that the toll rate to Boston is also reduced; but the great majority of Quincy subscribers have what is known as the $30 four-party line service, or $25 six-party line service. The $25 six-party line service is no longer installed by the company, and is to be abolished even for those already having the service. The $30 four-party line service is not to be reduced in price.

SMALLER DISTRICT.
The great fact, however, for Quincy to consider, and one that has not been emphasized by the daily press, is the fact that the free territory is to be curtailed to about one-third of its present size. Today we can talk without extra toll to any city or town within the territory surrounded by Cohasset, Hingham, Weymouth, Brain-tree, Randolph, Canton, Westwood, Needham, Wellesley, Weston, Lincoln,
Bedford, Lexington, Woburn, Reading,
Wakefield, Melrose, and Revere, excepting the exchanges in Boston Boston proper. Under the proposed plan the free district allowed to Quincy and include the following exchanges only: Braintree, Cohasset, Dorchester, Hingham, Hyde Park
Hull, Jamaica Plain, Milton, Quincy, Randolph, Roxbury, South Boston and Weymouth. Quincy is even shut-out from talking with Dedham, the County seat.

PAY MORE.
It should also be considered that to a great extent residential telephones are used in talking with other residences. Our friends are as likely to live outside of as within the proposed free territory, and almost every family has a few friends situated outside of the district with whom it is in frequent communication. The proposed scheme will compel us either to give up this extremely valuable privilege entirely, or to pay more for the use of the telephone, as our annual charge will still be $30, and all these toll charges will be in addition.

NOT ALONE.
Quincy is not alone in this situation. Some exchanges fare even worse than Quincy from the fact that their rate to Boston is not reduced even as much as Quincy's. Those within five miles of Boston having a reduction of five cents fare better than Quincy. Those further away from Boston fare worse. But the free territory for all exchanges is, in general limited to a radius of five miles from the exchange. The result is that the nearest an exchange is to Boston the more subscribers are embraced within its free territory, and, therefore,
the more it gets for its money, both from the fact of the number of subscribers with whom it can talk, and the reduced toll rates to Boston.

Today Quincy has free communication with 47,000 subscribers. By the proposed change this would be reduced to less than 15,000. The general result is that all the outlying exchanges in this Metropolitan district will pay more for what they use, and get less for the money expended,
than the exchanges nearest the city;
but yet the annual rates are the same for the whole of the district.

AN INNOVATION.
It seems to this committee that the Telephone Company has taken advantage of a petition to the Highway Commission asking for one redress only, viz: a reduction of the toll rate to Boston from ten cents to five cents, to try to force an agreement with the subscribers, seemingly in the nature of a compromise, which,
as a matter of fact, gives the Telephone Company an entirely new method of fixing its rates greatly to its advantage, which method the company would not have dared suggest of its own motion.

The proposed improvement in the service is an improvement which we have been informed has been contemplated by the Telephone Company for sometime, and is no more than necessary to keep abreast of the times, especially when a competing company is today trying to get a foothold in Boston.

TWO HEARINGS.
The present hearing before the Highway Commission has been continued until March 4. There is also another petition to the Highway Commission asking not merely for a reduction of rates, but also for a better service generally, on which a hearing has been fixed for February 21st.
We advise subscribers generally to appear at both of these hearings,
either in person or by representative,
and oppose the scheme which is now offered by the Telephone Company.

We should not make any compromise, nor voluntarily give up any privileges we now have, but should insist on a reduction in the toll rates between the suburban districts and Boston.

AN INVESTIGATION.
Before any such plan as the one now proposed by the company should be even tried, it would be much better for the suburban subscribers in general to allow matters to remain as they are temporarily until a thorough investigation of the Telephone Company itself could be made by the Highway Commission under the pending petition, which investigation the company is apparently anxious to avoid.

We are in favor of resolution recently adopted by the directors of the Quincy Citizens' Association, and urge all subscribers in the suburban districts to unite in their support.

THE RESOLUTIONS
as adopted are as follows:

First,—That in the opinion of this Board no agreement should be made with the Telephone Company whereby any privileges now enjoyed by subscribers in the suburban districts would be curtailed.

Second,—That no proposition should be considered at the present hearing before the Highway Commission except a proposition for the reduction of the toll rate between suburban districts and Boston from ten cents to five cents.

Third,—That unless a reduction of the toll rate between the suburban districts and Boston be granted voluntarily by the Company, the Highway Commission should be asked to complete its investigation of the subject matter under discussion, and make a report and recommendation thereon as required by statute.

SYNOPSIS.

Chapter 1—Bradley Nickerson, an orphan, twelve years of age, arrives at Orham, Mass., to live with his cousins, Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy Allen, old maids. In the Orham stage he meets Captain Ezra Titcomb, master of a coasting schooner, home for a brief vacation. II—Captain Titcomb visits the Allen old maids, to each of whom he presents a fan, one the exact counterpart of the other. III—Bradley becomes acquainted with Augusta ("Gussy") Baker a girl of about his age, who lives next door. She owns several dogs. Bradley is sent to the village school and gets a whipping for fighting with Sam Hammond, a fellow pupil. IV—Captain Titcomb on his periodical visits to Orham is very kind to Bradley. Bradley delivers an "address" at the "last day" exercises at the Orham school. Prissy informs Tempy that evening that their resources are practically exhausted. V—Bradley overhears the conversation and consults Captain Titcomb, who agrees to take him on his ship as a sort of cabin boy. VI—Bradley's first trip as a sailor. He goes to New York, and the captain takes him to the theatre. Bradley visits Orham at the end of three months and learns that through the instrumentality of Captain Titcomb Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy are receiving regular contributions from the Sampson fund for the children of shipmasters. The "old maids" have no knowledge of Titcomb's connection with the matter. VII—Bradley is now twenty years old and is second mate of Titcomb's vessel, the Thomas Doane. Titcomb is injured on the trip and is laid up in his cabin, when Bradley, in an effort to prevent the first mate from running the schooner on a shoal, overpowers that officer and locks him up. When Titcomb is well enough Bradley learns that the schooner was to have been wrecked with Titcomb's consent, by the owner's orders. Bradley is horrified, and Titcomb, agreeing with him that "honesty is the best policy," they both leave. VIII—Bradley and Titcomb return to Orham. They decide to go into the wrecking business. Bradley is very attentive to Gussy Baker.

"The smaller end of the 'way line,' a stout rope tapering from one inch to three inches in thickness, was spliced to the 'drag line' and drawn down and under the supposed anchor until the latter was looped by it. Then the 'messenger,' an iron shackle or collar fastened by a bolt or pin, was clamped about the upper parts of the loop. To this 'messenger' was also attached a small cord.

The 'way line' was drawn tight, and the heavy 'messenger' plunged out of sight beneath the water. It slid down to the end of the 'way line,' thus holding with a tenacious grip the submerged object. They tested with the 'messenger,' pulling it up with the cord and letting it drop again. It struck solidly and with the tinkle of metal against metal.

Bradley pulled down the Lizzie. Barney and he hoisted canvas enough to give them stowage way, and the little vessel ran alongside of the captain's dory. Then the ropes were rigged through the block in the fore rigging, and Bradley and Barney fitted in the brakes of the clumsy hand windlass, while Captain Titcomb stood by the bulwark.

"Hust away!" commanded the skipper.

The windlass creaked, the cable tightened and the blocks groaned as a heavy weight was lifted from the bottom. A minute or two more and the captain signalled to ease up.

"Look at that," said Captain Ezra, pointing. "What do you say to a bell-buoy frame?"

"Why, sure," Bradley's tone was a disgusted one. "Well, we've had our work for nothing. That framework isn't worth anything."

"Tah! the stockin' that counts always; it's what Santa Claus puts inside of it. I have a notion this feller may be a 'sprise' package. Hust away!"

More of the wet rope came aboard. Captain Ezra chuckled.

"I guessed pretty nigh that time," he muttered. "Now, Brad, come here."

The iron frame, green with seaweed and trimmed with kelp and shells, hung half out of the water. At its base, just above the battered and crushed cone that had been the buoy, a big bronze bell glistened and dripped.

"And I can get $25 for that bell," crowed the captain. "Which in the present state of this corporation's finances mustn't be considered a widow's mite. Well, this ain't what I was after, but it's none the less welcome, as the cat said when it found the mouse swimmin' in the milk pail. Swing her in, Barney! Now we'll go back and have another try for the Mary D's anchor."

They had some long talks together concerning their new venture, which no to date, although they had made some money, had not given them the opportunity for a "big job" that they hoped for.

"Brad," observed the captain as they were walking up from the wharf one evening, "are you gittin' discouraged?"

"No, not yet. I didn't expect anything different this first summer."

"What do the old maids say?"

"Oh, they believe I'm going to get rich, of course."

"Of course. Well, maybe they ain't any further out in their reck'nin' one way than Simmons and the rest are the other. What does that little Baker girl have to say about it?"

"Oh, well, she didn't quite like it at first, but the more we talk about it together the better the plan seems to her."

"I presume likely you and she talk about it a good deal?" There wasn't the slightest flavor of sarcasm apparent.

"Get out of the channel, Winfield," said in this question, so Bradley admitted that he and Gus did have a good many talks on the subject.

And this statement wasn't an exaggeration. It had become a regular thing for the junior partner in the anchor dragging concern to drop in at the Baker homestead of an evening after supper was over and discuss happenings and plans with Gus. The feeling that the girl was not so wholly at one with him in his hopes and ambitions as she used to be had galled Bradley. He resented her criticisms of the new venture on the evening when he first told her of it. Five years before, he knew, she would have thought it "splendid" simply because he thought so. He had come home expecting to find her unchanged, forgetting how much he had changed himself, and now he determined that he would compel her to believe in him and his work.

Dancing was one of the subjects on which they didn't agree. Bradley considered dancing nonsensical and a waste of time. Gus, on the other hand, was very fond of it.

"I'd rather saw wood myself," declared the former one evening. "There'd be about as much work in it, and considerably more fun."

"But, Brad, I do like dancing, and there are dances here once in awhile, such as they are, and—well, I wish you danced."

"I suppose I could manage to navigate through a quadrille without wrecking more than half the set, but a waltz would have me out of soundings in no time."

"Will you try to learn if I teach you?"

"Think 'twill pay for the wear and tear on your nerves—and the furniture?"

"I'll risk the nerves, and we need some new furniture anyway. Come, we'll begin now. I'll hum the tune, and you can imagine that Bennie D's three piece orchestra is playing 'Annie Rooney,' with their own variations, and that you're waltzing—well, with Georgiana Bailey."

"Great Scott! Let's imagine something pleasant to begin on. All right, here goes! Get out of the channel, Winfield."

One evening toward the end of the month Gus said to him: "Brad, if you were I would you go to the ball on the evening of Decoration day at the town hall? I've had two invitations."

"Humph! The answer was somewhat hesitating."

"I supposed you didn't know. Other wise, of course."

"I should have invited my dancing teacher to go with me, Gus, would you have liked it if I had invited you?"

"I should."

"Well, then, Miss Baker, may I have the pleasure of escorting you to the grand fandango to be held in the Orham Crystal palace, under the supervision of his royal swelledness, Mr. Solomon Bangs?"

"You may, sir. Oh, Brad! Of course I'd rather go with you, because—"

"Because what?"

"Because I want to see how my pupil looks dancing with somebody else."

Gus was prettier than ever the night of the ball. She was dressed simply in white, but when she came out of the dressing room at the hall and took his arm Bradley noticed that the eyes of half a dozen young men followed her and that they whispered to each other. Gus "order" was filled in a few minutes after the first number was over; there were more applicants than dances. Bradley danced a quadrille with Clara Hopkins, who was pretty and jolly, and he enjoyed it thoroughly. He labored through a contra dance with Georgiana Bailey and didn't enjoy it as much, although that effervescent young lady purred that she had had a "perfectly lovely time," and he was "lookin' so well" and why didn't he call at the house.

Miss Bailey's blue silk gown had an imposing and very troublesome train, and she smelt like a perfumer's shop.

Captain Titcomb came up the stairs. He had a dripping umbrella in his hand.

"Why, hello!" exclaimed Bradley. "I didn't know you were coming."

"Hello yourself!" retorted the captain. "I didn't know you was comin' either, so we're square on that hitch. It's blowin' up a reg'lar snorter outside," he added.

"Georgiana's gayer'n a tin peddler's cart, ain't she?" continued Titcomb. "Cap'n Jabe's the only moul'tin pullet in that coop."

He broke off suddenly and was silent for a minute or more. Bradley asked him what the matter was.

"Oh, nothin'!" was the hasty reply.

"Quite a crowd here tonight. Who's the little clipper in the white with blue penants in her fore riggin'—the one dancin' with Jonadab Wixon's sister's boy?"

"That's Clara Hopkins."

"Humph! You don't say! Jim Hopkins' girl. I wouldn't have known her." And the captain subsided once more.

A little while after that, as Bradley was dancing his Virginia reel with Gus, he noticed a disturbance among the crowd of watchers at the door. He was in the middle of the line at the time, and "Snuppy" Black stood next to him.

"Hello!" exclaimed "Snuppy." "Why, it can't be! By thunder, it is! Sam Hammond's come. I didn't know he was expected."

Hammond it was, and in all the glory of city clothes and unlimited self confidence. When the reel was over, he came across the floor to where Gus and Bradley were standing.

"How d'ye do, Gus?" he said, extending his hand. "I'm down for a few days. Got a vacation that I wasn't looking for. Came on tonight's train and thought I'd run up here for a little while, soon as I could get away from the home folks. Let me see your order. Hello, Brad! How are you?"

He was well dressed, still in the rather conspicuous way, and he had an easy, masterful air about him that none of the country fellows had, though they all envied it. And he was goodlooking. That couldn't be denied.

The last dance was the lancers, but as "Bennie D." arose to "call off" he announced that there would be, by special request, an "extra"—a waltz. Bradley had seen Hammond talking with the prompter and with Mr. Bangs, and he knew whose the "special request" was. Under other circumstances he

"This waltz belongs to Bradley," wouldn't have cared so much for that waltz, but now he wanted it very much indeed.

He walked over to where Gus, flushed and laughing, stood talking with Black, her partner in the lancers. Just as he reached her side Sam came hurrying up and pushed in front of him without ceremony.

"Gus," said Hammond, "I made Ben give us this waltz on purpose so that we might have it together. You haven't been half generous to me tonight, and now I'm after my pay. Come!"

He offered his arm, and for a moment the girl seemed about to take it. Then she looked at Bradley, who, disappointed and chagrined, stood silent in the background.

"Thank you very much, Sam," she said, "but this waltz belongs to Bradley. Come, Brad, the music is beginning."

If any one had told Bradley previously that he would thoroughly enjoy a waltz he would have laughed, but he enjoyed every moment of this one. He saw Sam's scowl as Gus stepped past him, saw the smile on the faces of Black and the other bystanders, and then they whirled away. Round and round and round. "Bennie D." music wasn't the best in the world, but to Bradley just then no grand opera orchestra could have played more sweetly. His feet seemed almost as light as his partner's, and they kept perfect time.

It was over all too soon.

The Duties of Life.

By THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

From the President's Latest Book, "A Square Deal."

EACH of us, unless he is contented to be a cumberer of the earth's surface, must strive to do his life work with his whole heart. Each must remember that, while he will be noxious to every one unless he first do his duty by himself, he must also strive ever to do his duty by his fellow.

A MAN TO BE A GOOD CITIZEN MUST FIRST BE A GOOD BREADWINNER, A GOOD HUSBAND, A GOOD FATHER—I HOPE THE FATHER OF MANY CHILDREN—JUST AS A WOMAN'S FIRST DUTY IS TO BE A GOOD HOUSEWIFE AND MOTHER.

The business duties, the home duties, the duties to one's family, come first. The couple who bring up plenty of healthy children, who leave behind them many sons and daughters fitted in their turn to be good citizens, emphatically deserve well of the state.

But duty to oneself and one's family does not exclude duty to one's neighbor. Each of us, rich or poor, can help his neighbor at times, and to do this he must be brought up in touch with him, into sympathy with him. Probably the good done is almost equally great on both sides, no matter which one may seem to be helping the other. But it must be kept in mind that no good will be accomplished at all by any philanthropic or charitable work unless it is done along certain definite lines. In the first place, if the work is done in a spirit of condescension it would be better never to attempt it. IT IS ALMOST AS IRRITATING TO BE PATRONIZED AS TO BE WRONGED. The only safe way of working is to try to find out some scheme by which it is possible to make a common effort for the common good. Each of us needs at times to have a helping hand stretched out to him or her. Every one of us slips on some occasion; shame to his fellow who then refuses to stretch out the hand that should always be ready to help the man who stumbles. It is our duty to lift him up, but it is also our duty to remember that there is no earthly use in trying to carry him.

IF A MAN WILL SUBMIT TO BEING CARRIED, THAT IS SUFFICIENT TO SHOW THAT HE IS NOT WORTH CARRYING.

In the long run the only kind of help that really avails is the help which teaches a man to help himself. Such help every man who has been blessed in life should try to give to those who are less fortunate, and such help can be accepted with entire self respect.

To give such aid it is necessary not only to possess the right kind of heart, but also the right kind of head. HARDNESS OF HEART IS A DREADFUL QUALITY, BUT IT IS DOUBTFUL WHETHER, IN THE LONG RUN, IT WORKS MORE DAMAGE THAN SOFTNESS OF HEAD. At any rate, both are undesirable. The prerequisite to doing good work in the field of philanthropy—in the field of social effort, undertaken with one's fellows for the common good—is that it shall be undertaken in a spirit of broad sanity no less than of broad and loving charity.

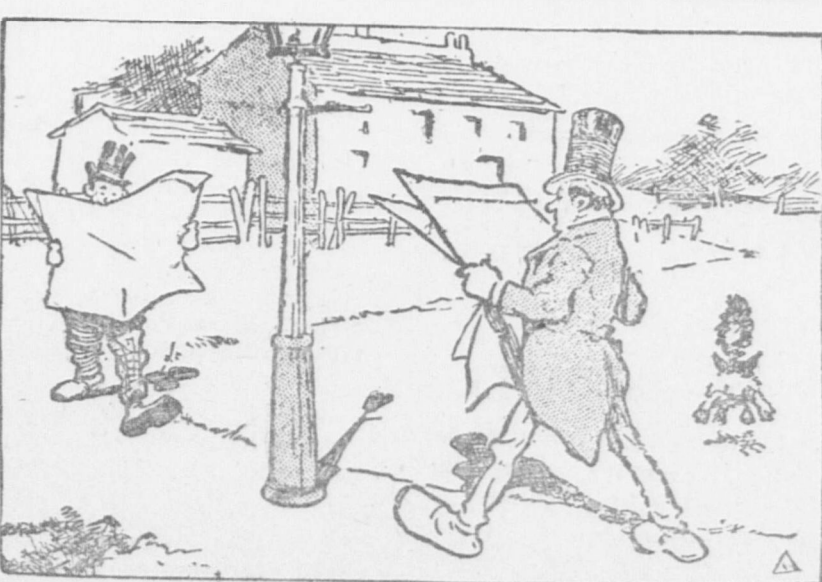

The Scrap Book

Elsewhere in this issue we present the first installment of a new feature, the "Scrap Book," which we commend to the attention of our readers. To neglect to read it would be as if one were to fail to pick up a dollar bill which was honestly one's own for the taking. He who reads will get at least five or six laughs which will stir his liver, kill the microbes in his system, and strengthen his whole organism against disease, dejection, cowardice and all other insidious enemies of our kind. He will also be inspired by a noble little poem, by pathetic and heroic passages, and by the wisdom of the wisest. He who reads will be a better and happier soul for the reading.

Good as a dollar? By Jupiter, we wrong ourselves by the comparison! It is good as health, good as wisdom, good as laughter, good as sympathy and heroic example—good as the most precious things known to us poor mortals struggling through the mystery, toil and trouble of life!

An Installment Once a Week

He Who Walks Must Read.

Everybody reads this paper—it is truly quite surprising. How they pore these pages o'er, in studying the advertising. Looking for the things he fancies in the WANTS and big "display." He who runs (or walks) must read what ADVERTISERS have to say.

NO TRACE OF WALKER

Mystery as to How He Managed to Steal Securities

New Britain, Conn., Feb. 16.—Chief of Police Rawlings, who went to New York with a warrant for William F. Walker's arrest, returned to this city last night. He claims that he has secured no trace whatever of the missing bank treasurer, but says that all the machinery of the police department in New York has been set in motion and it Walker is still in New York he will be found shortly.

Detectives came here and made a search of Walker's house. They also had long interviews with C. P. Oldershaw, acting treasurer, and Clerk Curtis. The general line of the detective inquiry was as to how it had been possible for Walker to carry out all the securities, in view of the fact that the time lock on the vault goes on at 4 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 o'clock the next morning, and that during the day Walker was never alone in the room, one or the other of the men being present. Neither could the men recall any time for a month past when Walker could have gone to the vault and carried out the securities without being noticed.

Senate Will Back President

Washington, Feb. 16.—The senate, in closed legislative session, adopted a resolution extending cordial support to the president in any steps he may deem it wise to take in relation to Congo affairs, so long as his action is not inconsistent with treaty or other international obligations or with the traditional American foreign policy which forbids participation of the United States in the settlement of political questions entirely European in their scope.

Dying Moments Soothed by Poetry

Bologna, Feb. 16.—Giosue Carducci, the Italian poet and critic, who had been ill here for some days past with influenza and pneumonia, died yesterday afternoon. He was considered as having attained the heights of modern Italian poetic genius. Before losing consciousness Carducci asked to have poetry read aloud to him, saying the cadences and rhythmic sounds alleviated his sufferings. He refused spiritual assistance. He was born in 1835.

Eleven Hundred on Strike

St. Louis, Feb. 16.—Eleven hundred boilermakers and blacksmiths and their helpers, employed on the Missouri Pacific and the St. Louis Iron Mountain and Southern railways, have quit work and refused to accept a flat increase of 2 cents an hour, which, with the 1 cent increase made in November, would amount to 3 cents an hour. The boiler-makers asked for an increase of 3 cents an hour in addition to the recent increase.

Failure of an Old Concern

New York, Feb. 16.—E. P. Coe and W. H. Knox, surviving members of the firm of Cadogan & Coe, general export and import merchants of this city, have made an assignment. The firm is one of the oldest in its line in the city and has done a large commission export and import business with both Europe and South America. The amount involved in the failure is large, but no details are available.

Died From Loss of Blood

Hartford, Feb. 16.—As a result of having had eight teeth extracted George E. Stevens, a tobacco grower of East Hartford, died last night. Last Tuesday Stevens' teeth began to ache so severely that he had eight of them taken out. He lost so much blood that he became very weak and finally died of exhaustion. He was 28 years old.

Mail Carriers to Quit Work

Butte, Mont., Feb. 16.—The mail carriers of Butte will quit work in a body March 1, advising having been received from Washington to the effect that the increases in salaries asked by the carriers cannot be granted. Resignations of the carriers have been accepted. The salaries for carriers in Butte range from $600 to $900.

Lawbreaking Was Unintentional

New York, Feb. 16.—J. F. Keller and S. I. Keller, partners in the Keller Mechanical Engraving company of this city, were acquitted of the charge of conspiracy with George B. Boynton in counterfeiting the coin of Venezuela. Judge Holt said he was convinced they had no intention of violating the law in making the dies.

To Close All-Night Bank

Baltimore, Feb. 16.—The Third National bank, the only all-night bank in Baltimore, will discontinue its all-night feature in conformity with the action of the Baltimore Clearing House association, which adopted a resolution limiting the banking hours of its members from 9 or 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Woman Suffragists Mollified

London, Feb. 16.—W. H. Dickinson, having introduced a bill in the house of commons to give the suffrage to married and rate-paying women, the "suffragettes" have decided to cease their campaign pending the discussion of the bill.

Naval Appropriation of $96,000,000

Washington, Feb. 16.—The naval appropriation, carrying, in round numbers, $96,000,000, has passed the house. An effort was made by Mr. Burton (D) to reduce the number of battleships authorized in the bill, but it was defeated by a vote of 114 to 146.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, Feb. 17.
Sun rises—6:20; sets—5:18.
Moon sets—10:48 p. m.
High water—2:45 a. m.; 3 p. m.
Fair weather is indicated for New England, with higher temperatures.

TRIAL WILL GO ON

Jury Bolton Will Be Ready to Report on Monday

THAW'S MENTAL STATE

Defense Claims That He Is Not Now Insane—Prosecution of Opinion That He Was Sane When He Killed White

New York, Feb. 16.—Despite the apprehension felt over the interruption of the trial of Harry K. Thaw, there appears no basis for a doubt that the case will be resumed on Monday. Juror Bolton, the death of whose wife necessitated the present recess, has, it is stated, communicated to Judge Fitzgerald his expectation of being able to take his place in the jury box when the case is called.

Thaw, who had been reported as cast down at the possibility of a mistrial, declared himself to be in good health when he visited him at the Tombs yesterday. If his spirits were not in keeping with his physical condition he did not make the fact known. With his wife, the prisoner went over 100 or more letters and belated valentines that the mails brought him.

Both District Attorney Jerome and the lawyers for the defense are of the opinion that the trial will be continued Monday morning. It is not expected now that Jerome will ask for the appointment of a commission to inquire into the mental condition of Thaw. Jerome has made this point clear on the part of the prosecution, while Lawyer O'Reilly insisted, on behalf of the defense, that Thaw is of sound mind today and that therefore it would be futile to apply for the appointment of a commission in lunacy. Both sides, it is understood, want to have the case tried out and hope that there will be no further delays.

As the case stands now, Thaw is assumed to be of sound mind. None of the experts called by the defense has said that in his opinion Thaw is insane now. Dr. Evans testified this week that, in his opinion, Thaw was of unsound mind when he killed White, also that he was of unsound mind during the first three visits he made to the Tombs, but that Thaw improved thereafter. All the other experts to be called by the defense will, it is said, testify that Thaw is of sound mind today.

The experts to testify for the prosecution will, it is said, insist that, in their opinion, Thaw is not only sane today, but that he was sane the day after he killed Stanford White. They will, it is understood, testify that they have had no way of determining whether Thaw was sane when he killed White; that when they saw the prisoner on June 26 and again on June 27, 1906, he refused to submit to an examination and, although during the trial they have observed him in court, they have not been permitted to converse with him. They would like an opportunity to do so.

The defense have announced their plans for next week. Dr. Evans and Dr. Wagner, the alienists, will be recalled to tell of conversations had with Thaw and which the court has ruled may be admitted. The prisoner's wife will then conclude her story, after which Mrs. William Thaw, the defendant's mother, will be called. She is expected to tell principally of the early life of her son and whether she discovered in him anything having a bearing on the present question of his recent sanity.

Arsenic Killed Five of Family

Chicago, Feb. 16.—Professor Haines, who has analyzed the organs of the members of the Venzal family, has informed the coroner that the death of Mrs. Rose Venzal, the mother of the family, was caused by arsenic. Of six deaths in the family, five are now known to have been caused by arsenic. The analysis in the other case has not yet been completed. Herman Belek is now confined in jail on the charge of being implicated in the deaths of the members of the family.

Hatpin Scratch Caused Death

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 16.—Howard T. Miller, 20 years old, was sitting beside a woman on an electric car a few days ago and she turned her head as he happened to have his head leaned toward her, her hatpin accidentally scratching him behind his left ear. Nothing was thought of the injury, but finally the wound began to swell and blood poisoning developed, causing Miller's death last night.

Dynamite Ruins a Home

Lebanon, Pa., Feb. 16.—Mrs. Zeller, wife of John Zeller of Annuville, was instantly killed by an explosion of dynamite at her home, and their two children were so badly burned and lacerated that there is little hope of their recovery. The house was wrecked. Zeller placed three sticks of dynamite in the stove to thaw and went to work, neglecting to tell his wife that the dynamite was in the oven.

Missionaries Feeding the Hungry

Shanghai, Feb. 16.—An American newspaper man has just returned here from the famine district. He reports that a heavy fall of snow has stopped the digging of weeds by the people for food and that the deaths from cold and starvation are increasing. The missionaries are now the sole distributors of this money, and are feeding vast numbers of people.

FORGER AND PERJUROR

Lawyer Tried to Cheat a Child Out of Her Inheritance

Boston, Feb. 16.—J. O. Higgins, an attorney of this city who was convicted of forgery and perjury in connection with the will of the late Mrs. Hannah Boyle of Boston, was sentenced to a term in state prison of from 10 to 14 years. After Higgins' conviction his counsel contended that the attorney was insane, or, at least, mentally irresponsible. Previous to the imposition of sentence Judge Gaskill had the defendant examined by three alienists. The alienists reported that Higgins was neither insane nor mentally irresponsible. Gaskill thereupon sentenced him to prison for terms of five to seven years on each count, one alleging forgery and the other perjury.

The case has attracted considerable attention. Higgins, together with Matthew Callanan and Peter Callanan, was charged with forgery and perjury in connection with the will of Mrs. Boyle, a sister of Matthew Callanan. This instrument bequeathed only $1 to Mrs. Boyle's 11-year-old daughter, Catherine, while the balance of the estate, valued at $17,000, was left to Matthew Callanan.

It was brought out at the trial that Mrs. Boyle affixed her signature to a blank paper and that later the will was written by Higgins over Mrs. Boyle's signature. The two Callanans' cases are now pending.

Negroes Angry at Eliot

Boston, Feb. 16.—Indignation knew no bounds among many of the negro residents of this city over the following statement by President Eliot of Harvard college, at a meeting to discuss the interests of Berea college, Kentucky, Thursday: "If we had a very large negro population in Boston we should have separate schools for colored people, and if one-half of the student body at Harvard were negroes, perhaps we should separate them over there." The opinion seemed to be general among prominent negro citizens that President Eliot's remarks were ill-timed and would tend to increase rather than decrease the feeling on race prejudice which at this time is especially active throughout the country on account of the Brownsville episode.

Crazy Man Attacks a Policeman

Chicago, Feb. 16.—A well-dressed man of unsound mind entered the police station in the city hall and placed a revolver close to Captain O'Brien's head, saying: "You're Roosevelt, ain't you?" O'Brien knocked the man down and took the revolver away. He was at once attacked by the insane man, but after a hard fight subdued him. The man was placed in a cell, where several officers had to hold him on the floor to prevent him from dashing his brains out against the wall. Later he was removed to a hospital.

Peace Prospects Not Bright

Mexico City, Feb. 16.—War in Central America is only temporarily suspended, according to the belief of those in Mexico City who are informed by private advices from the scene of the trouble. While both Nicaragua and Honduras have wired President Roosevelt, promising not to go to war at this time and to submit their disputes to arbitration, the old dispute and the old animus remains.

Business Well Maintained

New York, Feb. 16.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that despite holiday and weather interruptions, the volume of business is well maintained. In most sections of the country the movement of merchandise has resumed normal proportions, snow blockades being removed, but tardy deliveries still cause much complaint, especially in regard to grain.

Disagreement of Kahn Jury

Chicago, Feb. 16.—The jury which considered the case in which Julius Kahn, promoter of the Cash Buyers' Union First National Co-operative society, charged with using the mails to defraud, was unable to reach an agreement and was discharged. The question of the intent of the defendant was the reason given by the jurors for their inability to reach an agreement.

Got Eggs Under False Pretences

Charlotte, Mich., Feb. 16.—William Andre of Grand Lodge, who made a spectacular effort to corner the egg market and who later went into bankruptcy, was found guilty of obtaining $811 worth of eggs under false pretences. The claims of creditors aggregate $50,000.

A $100,000,000 Traction Merger

Cincinnati, Feb. 16.—The merger of all the traction lines in southwestern Ohio and eastern Indiana, involving a total capital of $100,000,000, is now under way. The merger company probably will be called the Indianapolis and Columbus Eastern Traction company.

Troops Failed to Catch Bandits

Tangier, Feb. 16.—Troops of the Sultan stormed the village of Bedadua yesterday and had 15 men killed in the operations. The bandits who had robbed the French mail had taken refuge in Bedadua, but they escaped, with the loss of one killed.

Killed Woman and Self

Toronto, Feb. 16.—John J. Raymore, a bartender, shot and killed Mrs. Mary Charlton, a widow, with whom he lived, and then killed himself. The tragedy was preceded by a quarrel, the cause of which is not known.

High Treason Indictment

St. Petersburg, Feb. 16.—A son of Count Leo Tolstoy has been indicted for high treason on the charge of printing the latest political pamphlet written by his father.

The Scrap Book

Nevertheless and Notwithstanding.

In my younger days out west, said Senator Vest, I went to a variety theater one night in Kansas City.

It was one of those primitive shows where the stage manager comes before the footlights without a coat and waistcoat and with his shirt sleeves rolled up to the elbows to announce the next number of the programme.

"Miss Bertie Allendale," remarked the stage manager, appearing in one of the interludes, "who has entranced two hemispheres with her wonderful vocal powers, will now render in her inimitable style that exquisite vocal selection entitled 'Down In the Valley.'"

A gentleman in a red dannel shirt rose in the midst of the audience and exclaimed in an impressive bass voice: "Oh, thunder! Bertie Allendale can't sing for green apples!"

The manager, who had started to leave the stage, halted and turned. An ugly light flashed from his eye. He came down from the stage, walked slowly up to the man in the red shirt and said, "You'll git out of here." This invitation being declined, a combat followed, lasting about ten minutes.

Chairs were broken, and both combatants were bruised and battered. Finally the man in the red shirt was ejected, and the manager walked back to the stage and faced the audience with a bloody face and clothing torn and tattered. He waited a minute, pumping for breath, and then announced impressively:

"Nevertheless and notwithstanding, Miss Bertie Allendale will now sing her exquisite vocal selection entitled 'Down In the Valley.'"

And she sang it with great applause and an encore.

RECESSIONAL.
God of our fathers, known of old,
Lord of our far flung battle line,
Beneath whose awful hand we hold Dominion over palm and pine—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies,
The captains and the kings depart,
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

Far called, our navies melt away;
On dune and headland stands the fire,
Lo, all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!
Judge of the nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

If, drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not been tame
We are as wild as the wind; we loose
Such boasting as the gentiles use.

Or lesser breeds without the law—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard—
All valiant dust that builds on dust
And guarding, calls not thee to guard—
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on thy people, Lord!

—Rudyard Kipling.

Who Is It?

Miss Maude Adams has a favorite story about a "Miss Johnsing" and "Culpeper Pete."

Pete became enamored of the dusky maiden, and not having the courage to "pop" face to face, called up the house where she worked and asked for her over the telephone. When he got her on the line he asked:

"Is dat Miss Johnsing?"

"Ya-as."

"Well, Miss Johnsing, I's got a most important question to ask you."

"Ya-as."

"Will you marry me?"

"Ya-as. Who is it, please?"

Seneca on Fortitude.

To win without danger is to win without glory. You are a great man, but how am I to know it if fortune gives you no opportunity of showing your virtue? You can judge of a pilot in a storm, of a soldier in a battle. How can I know with how great a spirit you could endure poverty if you overflow with riches? How can I tell with how great firmness you could bear up against disgrace, dishonor and public hatred if you grow old to the sound of applause, if popular favor cannot be alienated from you and seems to flow to you by the natural bent of men's minds? How can I know how calmly you would endure to be childless if you see all your children around you? I have heard what you said when you were consulting others. Then I should have seen whether you could have consoled yourself, whether you could have forbidden yourself to grieve. Do not, I beg you, dread those things which the immortal gods apply to our minds like spurs. Misfortune is virtue's opportunity.

Sympathy For the Brave.

A wounded soldier, young and good looking, was in a hospital in Philadelphia during the civil war. Enter a lady. "My poor fellow, can I do anything for you?" Soldier (emphatically)—No, ma'am, nothing. Lady—I should like to do something for you. Shall I not sponge your face and brow? Soldier (despairingly)—You may if you want to very bad, but you'll be the fourteenth lady as has done it this morning.

The Plucky Earl of Berkeley.

A story of highway robbery which excited me when I was a boy was that of the fifth Earl of Berkeley, who died in 1810. He had always declared that any one might without disgrace be overcome by superior numbers, but that he would never surrender to a single highwayman. As he was crossing Hounslow heath one night on his way from Berkeley castle to London his traveling carriage was stopped by a man on horseback, who put his head in at the window and said, "I believe you are Lord Berkeley." "I am." "I believe you have always boasted that you would never surrender to a single highwayman." "I have." "Well," presenting a pistol, "I am a single highwayman, and I say, 'Your money or your life.'" "You cowardly dog," said Lord Berkeley, "do you think I can't see your confederate skulking behind you?" The highwayman, who was really alone, looked hurriedly round, and Lord Berkeley shot him through the head. I asked Lady Caroline Maxse (1803-1886), who was born a Berkeley, if this story was true. I can never forget my thrill when she replied: "Yes, and I am proud to say that I am that man's daughter!"—Collections and Recollections.

Eugene Field's Breakfast.

Eugene Field, said of countenance and ready of tongue, strayed into a Denver restaurant and seated himself at a table. To him there came a swift and voluble waiter who said, "Coffee, tea-chocolate-ham-n-eggs-beef-steak-mutton-chop-fish-balls-hash-n-beans," and much more to the same purpose. Field looked at him long and solemnly and at last replied: "Oh, friend, I want none of these things. All I require is an orange and a few kind words."

Montaigne on Death.

I have often considered with myself whence it is that death should appear less dreadful in war than at home in our own houses. I believe in truth that it is those terrible ceremonies wherewith at home we set it out that more terrify us than the thing itself—the cries of mothers, wives and children, the visits of astounded and afflicted friends, the attendance of pale and blubbering servants, a dark room set round with burning tapers, our beds environed with doctors and priests, in sum nothing but ghostliness and horror round about us. We seem dead and buried already. Happy the death that leaves us no leisure to prepare things for all this foppery.

Edison's "Fake" Cigars.

Mr. Edison once complained to a man in the tobacco business that he (the inventor) could not account for the rapidity with which the cigars disappeared from a box that he always kept in his office. The "Wizard" was not inclined to think that he smoked them all himself. Finally he asked the tobacco man what might be done to remedy the situation.

The latter suggested that he make up some cigars—"fake" them, in other words—with a well known label on the outside.

"I'll fill 'em with horsehair and hard rubber," said he. "Then you'll find that there will not be so many missing."

"All right," said Mr. Edison, and he forgot all about the matter.

Several weeks later, when the tobacco man was again calling on the inventor, the latter suddenly said:

"Look here! I thought you were going to fix me up some fake cigars?"

"Why, I did!" exclaimed the other in hurt surprise.

"When?"

"Don't you remember the flat box with a green label—cigars in bundle form, tied with yellow ribbon?"

Edison smiled reflectively. "Do you know," he finally said in abashed tones, "I smoked every one of those cigars myself!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Report Small; Action Big.

Sir George Walton, admiral of the blue, was detached Aug. 11, 1718, with the Canterbury and five other ships after a Spanish fleet, and on the 18th he forwarded to Admiral Byng the following letter:

Schoepenhauer on Men and Dogs.

If you had a dog and wanted to make him fond of you and fancied that of your hundred rare and excellent characteristics the mongrel would be sure to perceive one and that that would be sufficient to make him devoted to you body and soul—if, I say, you fancied that, you would be a fool. Pat him, give him something to eat, and for the rest be what you please. He will not in the least care, but will be your faithful and devoted dog. Now, believe me, it is just the same with men—exactly the same.

Large Henhouse Takes Fire and Endangers
House and Barn

The alarm from Box 174, at 2.25 this morning, was for a fire in a large hen house on the Harlow estate on South street. It started from an incubator, and had been burning some time before it was discovered, and an alarm sounded.

The hen house which was 30 feet long, adjoined a large barn and when the fire department arrived the fire was just communicating with the barn which neighbors were working hard to save.

The department soon had the fire under control, but the hen house was too far gone to save. In the hen house were 125 hens that were burned, in addition to a large incubator, brooder and eggs. The loss on the building was $200 and about $100 on the contents.

It is said that people passing some hours before the fire broke out, saw a bright light in the hen house, but did not suppose it was a fire.

When the family of James Shea, who occupy the property, were awakened,
the whole building was a mass of flames,
and there was immediate danger of the barn and residence taking fire. The estate is owned by Henry M. Faxon.

The Quincy Tennis club which is to hold a ball on Friday evening March eighth at Music hall has a list of well known people as patronesses and ushers. Among them are: Mrs. William R. Bateman, Mrs. Paul R. Blackmur, Mrs. C. H. Brigham, Mrs. William L. Dewson, Mrs. R. S. Drinker, Mrs. Ernest V. Fitts, Mrs. Richard R. Freeman, Mrs. Ernest D. Gourd, Mrs. Arthur W. Hall, Mrs. W. E. Hayward, Mrs. Henry R. Holden, Mrs. Nathaniel S. Hunting, Mrs. James M. Nowland, Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann, Mrs. Charles A. Price, Mrs. Harry L. Rice, Mrs. Frederick H. Smith, and Mrs. Dexter E. Wadsworth, Ernest E. Armstrong, Paul R. Blackmur, E. Tyler Brigham, Ernest V. Fitts, Lorenzo H. Gilson, Ernest D. Gourd, W. E. Hayward, Arthur W. Hall, M. T. Holbrook, Henry R. Holden, Dr. N. S. Hunting, Brooks Keyes, D. King, George E. Pfaffmann, Charles A. Price, Walter C. Sampson, Moreton T. Swallow and Dexter E. Wadsworth.

Subscriptions to the ball are being received by the patronesses and ushers and tickets cannot be had at the door. A large and pretty party is anticipated.

An event looked forward to is the play to be presented by the pupils of Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis next Saturday evening the 23d at Colonial hall. The play to be given is "Breezy Point."

Mrs. Crawford Harvie and children of Billings street have gone to South Boston preparatory to leaving for Texas where they will make their home. Mr. Harvie who has been engaged in business in Texas for several weeks will come to Boston after his family. Mr. and Mrs. Harvie will be greatly missed by their many friends.

Miss Cypher of Braintree celebrated her sixteenth birthday by inviting a number of friends to her home on Tuesday evening. They in turn surprised her with the presentation of a dainty signet ring.

Fully 500 women were in attendance on Friday at the meeting at Attleboro of the State Federation of Women's clubs. Nearly every club in Eastern Massachusetts sent delegates. Taxing billboards, industrial education, exemption from civil service rules for Spanish war veterans and advantages of business training for women, were some of the subjects discussed. The spring meeting will be held at Concord.

The last but one of the teas given on Monday afternoons at the American Unitarian association building, Beacon street, Boston will be next week with Miss Eleanor Guild and Mrs. William T. Sedgwick as the pourers.

Tuesday evening, Mrs. W. T. Allen and Miss Agnes Burnham entertained a party of friends at the home of Mrs. D. A. Brooks at Braintree. There were seven tables at whist, and with the sociability and dainty refreshments a most pleasant evening was enjoyed by all. The prizes were secured by Mrs. L. W. Thayer, Mrs. G. A. Johnson and Mrs. S. S. Bridgman.

Miss Florence Gray of Botolph street is receiving much praise for her competency in solving the puzzle problems presented by the different Sunday papers. Miss Gray has been successful in almost every attempt.

The Current Events class of Atlantic will meet as usual on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Jewell, with Mrs. Babcock as leader.

Miss Floretta Vining, who is spending the winter at the Parker house, Boston, was the guest over Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Hardwick of Revere road and also found time for a few brief calls on several friends.

Miss Louise Burleigh of Braintree entertained the senior class of Thayer Academy at her home, Thursday evening. It was a valentine party and the guests were dressed in costumes appropriate for the occasion. Games were much enjoyed and prizes awarded the winners. Dainty refreshments were generously served.

WHO BEAR
THE TAXES?

26 Pay Over
One-Quarter of Taxes
And 332 Pay
Nearly One Half

It will surprise many to learn that the taxpayers of Quincy who are assessed a tax of over $200 pay practically one-half of the taxes assessed on estates. The levy on estates in 1906 was $498,236.06, and of this sum $239,014.60 is paid by the 332 individuals, firms and corporations published in the list of heavy taxpayers in the Daily Ledger this week.

How many taxpayers are there in Quincy?

There are just 14,040, of whom 6,619 are assessed on property, and 7,421 upon poll only.

While some may think the poll taxpayers get off easy, the 332 who pay $239,014.60 probably think the burden does not fall very heavily upon the 6,287 who pay $259,221.46.

The 332 pay an average of $720 each, and the 6,287 an average of less than $42.

For fear that the 332 may have a swelled head, it might be mentioned that two of the number pay over $60,000, viz.: The Old Colony street railway, $37,001.91, and the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., $24,616.17.

Twenty-six of the 332 are assessed for a total in excess of $125,000, which in turn is over one-half the $239,014.60 paid by the 332, and one-quarter of all the taxes assessed by the city. The average for these 26 is about $5000 each. So it will be seen that there are many classes of taxpayers, and each have their burdens.

Former Resident.

Caroline R. G. Rice, widow of the late Warren W. Rice, who lived for many years at Wollaston Heights, died at the residence of her son, William G. Rice, at Fairfield, Me., on Jan. 11th in her 88th year.

Mrs. Rice was married at the age of 20 to the late Warren W. Rice, who was for 16 years warden of the Maine state prison. She is survived by three sons, Wm. G. Rice of Fairfield, Wendell P. Rice of New York city and Joshua G. Rice of Warren, Me.

Her remains were carried to Thomaston and interred by the side of her husband who died in January, 1895.

Sleigh Party.

A merry party of young ladies and men were seen passing through Quincy Wednesday evening in two large sleighs. They started from the Swedish M. E. church, Fort square, and proceeded to Mattapan square to meet one of the party then they came back, each sleigh taking a different course home. Both met at the church. A nice lunch was prepared for the party in the chapel. On the way a pair of feet were lost and if rider returns them to their right owner he will be highly rewarded.

How to Ring Alarm

As has been previously stated the new fire alarm box 26 is what is known as a keyless box. It should be remembered, however, that turning the handle on the door does not give an alarm. In order to give an alarm it is necessary to turn the handle to the right. This opens the outer door and exposes to view a hook. In order to give an alarm it is necessary to pull this hook down as far as possible. Then let go and the alarm will be sounded.

Is Proposed

The company's theory is that the majority of the subscribers in the suburbs would much prefer to pay a low exchange rate plus a toll for occasional calls into Boston, rather than to pay the higher Boston rate without a toll, and that their needs being largely local are thus supplied at a much lower aggregate cost to the subscriber than they would be under the Boston rate.

It was stated by the company that in the endeavor to meet the demand for a low exchange rate for residences and the small business user, the company had installed a great many residence and business telephones on party lines. This enabled the company to make low rates for this class of service, but with the increasing number of subscribers and the increasing use of the telephone it has been found that these party lines in a multi-exchange district such as the suburban have brought about a very serious impairment of the service. The company contended, and the committee agreed, that the question of service was one of fundamental importance.

Early in the conference it appeared that if it were possible to arrange for a RE-DISTRICTING of the suburbs, along lines which would be satisfactory to a large proportion of the subscribers, it might be possible to secure not only some reduction in the toll rate to Boston, but also a reduction in some of the exchange rates; and, the company maintained, a very great improvement in the service by the abolition of all party lines carrying more than two parties.

Various methods of defining the outlines of proposed districts were suggested, some by the committee and others by the company. The boundaries of these districts were such as naturally suggested themselves along geographical and territorial lines, but upon careful investigation no plan appeared to the committee to be at all feasible until it was suggested that the districts be defined according to present use by subscribers.

Under this plan each suburban exchange would have its own district, comprised of a substantial number of neighboring cities and towns, these cities and towns being selected by ascertaining the exchanges most frequently called. Within this district the subscriber would talk without toll charge.

It was a most difficult matter to outline and equalize these districts, as any change in the proposed outlines of one district necessitated changes in many others. This follows from the fact that to prevent confusion no exchange district should include another exchange whose district did not in turn include the first exchange; or to illustrate, the Cambridge district should not include Newton unless the Newton district include Cambridge. A general plan has finally been worked out, however, which, the company states, will, if adopted, not only result in a universal and greatly to be desired improvement in the service but in most cases in a reduction in the cost of the service.

All but five of the forty-two suburban exchanges will get a reduction in the present ten-cent toll to Boston. The exchanges within five miles of Boston City Hall will get a reduction of five cents, and the more distant exchanges a less but proportionate reduction according to distance. The pay station and coin box rate from Boston exchanges to suburban exchanges within five miles will be reduced to five cents. The present charge is ten cents.

REDUCED RATES. Nearly all the present rates for suburban exchange service will be reduced except the $30 (4 party), and the $25 (6 party) unlimited residence rates. The $30 rate will remain at $30 but a two-party line will be substituted for the four party line, thus giving the subscribers for $30 a service which at present cost $42.

The $25 six party rate is really an obsolete rate at the present time, the company having declined to offer new contracts for this service for nearly a year. Subscribers having this service under old contracts will have the option of taking the $30 two party line service or the new $24 measured service as their needs may require.

All party lines will be limited to two parties. This will go a long way, the company states, towards removing the "busy line" nuisance and make for a great improvement in the service. They also state it will tend to eliminate "wrong number" calls, most of which occur on party lines. The new two-party line service will also be equipped with what is known as divided ringing. For instance, if A and B are on the same line, A's bell will not ring when B is called. All of which, the company states, will tend toward a very marked and valuable improvement in the service.

Under the proposed plan the QUINCY DISTRICT would include thirteen exchanges as follows: Braintree, Cohasset, Dorchester, Hingham, Hyde Park, Jamaica Plain, Milton, Quincy, Randolph, Roxbury, South Boston and Weymouth. The aggregate number of subscribers in these exchanges at the present time is 14,789.

Within this district, the company states, Quincy carries on 74.3 per cent of its telephonic communication; in other words, substantially three-fourths of Quincy's telephone calls are within this group of cities and towns.

Of the remaining 25.7 per cent, 16.3 per cent of Quincy's telephone calls are with Boston exchanges. On these calls Quincy would pay seven cents instead of ten cents as at present.

Of the remaining 9.4 per cent of Quincy's calls which go outside of the Quincy district as outlined, 5.4 per cent are by subscribers having full Boston and suburban service. These calls, therefore, are not affected.

There remains only 4 per cent of Quincy's calls which would carry a toll charge to suburban points outside of the Quincy district.

The proposed exchange rates for Quincy for service within the district are as follows:

BUSINESS TELEPHONE.

Private line, unlimited service, $72 per year. (Now $84.)

Private line, measured service, $40 calls, $42 per year. (Now $48 for 600 calls.) Additional calls three cents each.

Two-party line, measured service, 720 calls, $36 per year. (Now $36 for 600 calls.) Additional calls three cents each.

RESIDENCE TELEPHONE.

Private line, unlimited service, $45 per year. (Now $54.)

Two-party line, unlimited service, $30 per year. (Now $42.)

Two-party line, measured service, 480 calls, $24 per year. (Now $36 for 600 calls.) Additional calls three cents each.

TOLL RATES.

The toll rate from each exchange to suburban exchanges lying outside its district will be based on distance, i. e. 5 to 6 miles, 6 cents; 7 to 9 miles, 7 cents, etc. (Reckoned on air line distance from exchange to exchange.)

All present suburban rates to be abolished. This will result, as already stated, in the elimination of all party lines carrying more than two parties on a line, and the company states, makes for a very marked improvement in all Boston and suburban service.

The company states that this rate schedule, if adopted, will mean a large immediate loss of revenue, - so large

THE Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated, with the name of the donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

that they would under no circumstances feel justified in agreeing to it, except for the certainty that the proposed plan will result in a marked improvement in the service, and the belief that it will assist in solving service problems that would be almost impossible should the present suburban territory continue to be treated as a single district.

While the lower rates will tend to bring same increase of business, the company contends that any increase of business means a corresponding outlay for additional trunk lines as well as switching and operating facilities, and consequently does not proportionately tend to compensate for the loss of revenue which they will suffer under the proposed reduction.

DELAY NECESSARY.

The company states that they are unable to fix the date when the new rates will go into effect. It will be necessary to equip all exchanges with apparatus for divided ringing as well as provide the additional cable and switchboard equipment necessary for the purpose of properly handling the traffic under the new arrangement. The work of rearranging subscribers' loops will also require considerable time. The company's engineers are now preparing plans and if the new schedule is adopted will be prepared to carry forward the work with the greatest possible dispatch.

If the proposed rate schedule as outlined meets with approval of the association it will be presented to the Commission for their approval.

THE COMMITTEE.

The committee which have been acting under the authority of the Association have in no wise committed themselves, either in favor or in opposition to the plans now proposed by the Telephone Company. This report is not intended as an expression of opinion by the committee and the members reserve the right to criticize or approve of the plans as proposed.

These plans are now presented by the Committee to the Association, and by the delegates are presented to their respective organizations and to the subscribers generally for their examination and study. Any suggestions, criticisms, or matters of approval of the plans will be welcomed by the undersigned, and will aid the Association in coming to a conclusion upon the desirability of the changes above outlined.

Athen's Letter From Miss Thompson

The following extract from a letter of Miss Anna Boynton Thompson of the Thayer Academy to her Greek History class will be of interest to the readers of the Observer. Miss Thompson, who is at present studying at Athens, Greece, expects to write frequently of her work in Athens and of modern Greek life in general.

Athens, Greece, Jan. 10, 1907.

There seem to be two important social centres in Athens: one, the schools, and, the other, the court. The schools are five in number: first in importance comes the German Archaeological Institute, for here as everywhere the Germans lead in scholarship; the Austrian Institute is smaller, but does excellent work of typical German thoroughness; the French school has a beautiful building with large grounds, and their work in Delphi is of great importance; the English and the American schools are fortunately grouped together at the foot of Lykabettus, with connecting gardens, and, as there is a strong feeling of friendliness between them, the libraries and other advantages are common to both.

Dr. Doerpfeld, the head of the German school, attracts a brilliant circle about him: first the members of the schools, for they are the picked scholars of Europe and America; most of them are here on fellowships, and no one can belong who is not at least an A. B.; then the royal princes and the foreign ambassadors come generally—some are always present; and lastly all educated foreigners visiting Athens make it their first care to hear Dr. Doerpfeld. At the two regular German functions, the Saturday afternoon out-of-door lecture at the ruins themselves, and the fortnightly "open meeting" in the Institute, it is a matter of interest to see who is present: we recognize the clear-cut, scholarly face of Sir Francis Eliot, the English minister who attends with his daughter, Miss Eliot; near by is the American minister, Mr. Jackson with his niece; the Turkish minister with his fez is unmistakable; the German and the Austrian minister's we should expect; Prince Andreas we know by his slender, stooping form that so resembles his father's; Prince George, of Olympic fame, is away, or we surely should see his cap on the side of his head, as always; and so on through the diplomatic and the Court circle, till we come to many well-known Greeks of Athens, and many unknown new faces of distinguished type.

What Dr. Doerpfeld says at these lectures I shall tell you later, for I am taking very careful notes, and I bid you give heed to your German and study it very hard, for the world of scholarship is closed for him to whom German is not a familiar possession. The other schools do not often have out of door meetings, for Dr. Doerpfeld covers the antiquities of Athens, but their fortnightly open meetings are attended by the same people.

Then there is constant social activity in the circle of the schools. For instance Christmas eve Mr. Jackson invited the American school to his house to trim the Christmas tree. Professor John Henry Wright of Harvard is the annual professor at the American school and Mr. Wright's Tuesday afternoons are delightful occasions. The Doerpfelds are most hospitable in every way: last evening, for instance, the schools were invited to the house from nine to twelve: when we arrived, we were greeted only by little Miss Doerpfeld and Dr. Karo, Dr. Doerpfeld's colleague, for Dr. and Mrs. Doerpfeld had been summoned to the Palace to dine with the King, but about ten they arrived and we had a delightful evening. The French school is at present in mourning, but Mme. Hollean, the wife of the director, is a woman of great beauty and social charm, and we expect much from her later. Miss Dawkins, sister of the director of the British school who is a young bachelor, arrives Thursday to do the honors of the school, and we are expected to call upon her Saturday. As she is a graduate of Newnham, which I love so well, I expect much pleasure from meeting her.

Then the court is most attentive to the schools. The directors are expected to pay certain visits, the members call at the palace, go to the court ball, and are presented, if they wish. I am sure that you would like to hear about this, for Republic children who are fortunate enough to be without a King are curious about their ways. Etiquette demands that the callers at the palace should be introduced by some one already presented, and Mrs. Wright, who had early been presented by Mr. Jackson, has presented the members of the schools.

The calls are made upon La Grande Maitresse, Mme. Theokare, who in eighty, but wonderfully active, and upon the chief lady-in-waiting, Mme. Sapountzaki, the daughter of one of the most distinguished officers of the Greek Revolution, General Kolokotronis and a lady of great distinction of person and of manner. The usual rule obtains here that we remain till another caller arrives and then leave at once. Then personal invitations are sent us for the first court ball, after the two ladies have returned our calls by card. The night of the ball we must arrive before the King does—ten or half-past—or we are not admitted. We are received by Mme. Sapountzaki who remembers each one of us and directs us to the farther corner of the room where the royal circle will disport itself. Here we wait till they arrive, and have time to look about us.

The two ball-rooms are spacious, and brilliant with much gilding and several very large glass chandeliers with lights and pendants innumerable. The company is also brilliant, for the kind of toilette is prescribed, and without the proper dress no one is admitted. The officers and higher officials must come, and must come in full uniform with all their decorations. They are perhaps more splendid than the ladies.

The rooms fill rapidly, the men being massed together on one side and the women on the other, with a broad avenue between them for the passage of the royal party. Shortly after ten they enter accompanied by the ambassadors, bowing to the right and the left, while all the men salute and the women courtesy continually. They go to the vacant corner and there open the ball by dancing a square dance where the crown prince danced with Mrs. Jackson, while Mr. Jackson's partner was the wife of the president of the Greek parliament. Several dances followed. In the intervals between them the several ladies were presented to the Queen, who seemed to know about each and held with her, in her language, whether English, French, Greek, or what not, a little conversation about her interests.

It was all very simple, and natural, and friendly and made it seem probable that kings and queens are human beings after all. When the presentations were finished, the floor was cleared for the dancing of the guests. At twelve the men and women lined up again on separate sides to let the royal party pass to the supper room, and then followed them. After supper the dancing began again for those who wished, but the ball was finished for me. Today we made our calls upon La Grande Maitresse and the chief lady-in-waiting, and the first ball of the season is finished. Now follow the balls of the Ambassadors and the rich of Athens.

But I am giving you too much dissipation. My next letter shall be a serious one about my work in the Arsakion. Be sure to do your Greek and German well, for the two great thought centres of the world so far have been Greece and Germany.

Faithfully yours,

Museum of Fine Arts.

The Boston Museum of Fine Arts has recently received several choice gifts among them being a scarab of very unusual size and workmanship, from the bequest of Mrs. Martin Brimmer. This specimen belongs to the reign of Seti I, 1326-1300 B. C., in the nineteenth dynasty. Seen in profile, scarab impresses the observer by the elevation of the beetle above the base, from which it is raised by its legs, as if in the act of walking. This specimen was acquired by Mr. Brimmer in Egypt a number of years ago. It had evidently been on a mummy, perhaps that of the great Seti I.

Mr. Edward W. Forbes has contributed a valuable accession to the collection of original classical sculptures; two busts of Emperor Augustus. He was Emperor of the Roman empire from 27 B. C. to 14 A. D.

In the Japanese corridor are three screens painted by Korin during the early part of the seventeenth century; "Spring," "Autumn" and "Wave Screen."

Admission to the museum during the months of November and December were 37,155. The average number of visitors on Sundays was 2,243. Free tickets of admission were granted during the year to 636 public school teachers.

Fewer Licenses.

The law relating to common victuallers require that they shall have a sign to that effect on the premises at the entrance and that they shall be prepared to serve a food. In Quincy at the present time there are but very few who comply with this law. The idea that most people have is that a common victualler's license allows them to keep open Sundays and that is all there is to it. That may have been so in the past, but for the future it is intended by those in authority to enforce the law. There will probably be fewer licenses issued this year than heretofore.

PLANNED TO KILL

Shots Fired Over Brownsville Barracks From Outside

TESTIMONY OF EX-SOLDIER

Overheard Conversation Indicating That Massacre of Negroes Was Intended—Challenged to Leave Their Quarters

Washington, Feb. 16.—Startling testimony concerning alleged plans to massacre negro soldiers at Brownsville, Tex., by men from the town firing over the barracks to stampede the soldiers, and challenges to them to come out of the barracks was given by negro ex-soldiers at the investigation before the senate committee on military affairs. The most sensational story told was that of William Mapp, who was a member of company C, Twenty-fifth infantry.

Mapp was asked if he had ever heard any discussion of the shooting which caused him to suspect any persons of complicity. He replied that at breakfast on the morning following the shooting he had heard Wilbur T. Vosschelle, the reservation coral boss, and a white man who had been in charge of the coral prior to the arrival of a battalion of the Twenty-fifth infantry, discussing the case. According to Mapp's story Vosschelle said:

"Well, it is a good thing it happened as it did. I was out in town last night and the crowd came in front of me—the plan was to catch a lot of you fellows in Allison's saloon and massacre you." Mapp said that the remark was not addressed to him and that he did not question Vosschelle. He said that Allison is the former soldier who had started the saloon for the purpose of getting the negro soldier trade, the other saloons having barred the members of the negro battalion. Vosschelle is now in Washington, having been subpoenaed as a witness.

Before giving this testimony Mapp said that on the night of the shooting he had been awakened by the firing and had gone to the window of his quarters, and from there he saw several gun flashes and the shots seemed to be directed over the barracks. A man with a deep voice, he said, shouted: "Come out, you black—" (using an opprobrious epithet and making it applicable to the troops).

Mapp said this challenge was repeated several times during the firing, but the call to arms was then sounded and he hurried to get dressed and fall in with his company. He said the shooting and the shouting was outside the wall, at the end of company B barracks. Mapp told of the confusion in quarters and said that he got his gun from the rack that was broken open and was one of the first to fall in.

Thomas Jefferson, who was the room orderly in company C barracks, said he heard the shooting and thought there were 10 or 12 men firing. The shots, he said, came from the rear and near the end of B barracks, but he could not say whether the men were within the wall or not. He said he saw the flashes from guns and thought the garrison was under attack. He listened, he said, to see if the barracks were hit by any bullets, but when he could not hear any of the shots striking, concluded the firing did not amount to anything. He said he had been at the window, but went back to bed. From the flashes he thought the men were firing into the air. He got up after the call to arms.

From that point his story was similar to that of other witnesses. He said that he had made a statement at the war department, before Judge Advocate General Davis, for the purpose of clearing his name of suspicion. He had been actuated in making that statement, he said, by a statement in the papers that President Roosevelt would permit any men to re-enlist if they proved their innocence. Senator Foraker asked that a subpoena be issued for Davis.

Solomon P. O'Neill, also a former member of company C, testified that the shooting on the night of Aug. 13 was from near the wall at the end of company B quarters and that the shots were apparently over the barracks. He said he heard a man shoot and then yell: "Come out, you black—" This occurred several times, said O'Neill, before he was compelled to leave the window and dress. He testified that there was great excitement in the barracks and that when the gun flashes were broken open some of the rifles fell to the floor. There was no fight and the men could not get their own rifles.

Demurrers to Walsh Indictments
Chicago, Feb. 16.—Attorneys representing John R. Walsh, the former president of the Chicago National bank, have filed demurrers to the indictments charging him with misapplication of funds belonging to the institution, upon the alleged grounds that the information contained in the indictments is not set forth as fully as is required by law.

Newspaper Displeased Senators
Topeka, Feb. 16.—The Kansas senate, by a vote of 24 to 13, adopted a resolution barring representatives of the Kansas City Star from the floor or galleries of the senate. The action was taken because the Star printed articles commenting on the alleged pro-railroad tendencies of the senate.

AGREEMENT REACHED

California Promises to Admit Japanese to Public Schools

Washington, Feb. 16.—The San Francisco school controversy, growing out of the segregation of the Japanese school children in that city, has been settled. The basis of an agreement reached at the White House conference is that Mayor Schmitz and the members of the school board will, immediately after the passage of the immigration bill, as reported by the conferees in congress, abolish the Oriental schools and again admit Japanese children into the white schools.

The president and Secretary Root gave the San Franciscans assurances that if the bill is not passed at this session of congress an extra session will be called immediately after the adjournment on March 4.

An all-day fight in the senate on the Japanese immigration bill was marked by an attack by Senator Tillman on the president as a general meddler, and with several caustic hits at Senator Lodge.

When Tillman at one time referred to a possible war with Japan, Lodge in a half whisper said if that subject was to be discussed they ought to close the doors.

Much bitterness has been aroused over the bill, which is urged by the administration as the most effective solution of the Japanese problem in California, and many are predicting its defeat.

Want Severe Exclusion Law

San Francisco, Feb. 16.—The Japanese and Korean Exclusion league, reinforced by many civic bodies, opposes what it terms temporizing on the part of Mayor Schmitz in the Japanese school question. Officers of the league demand that the mayor hold out for an exclusion law as severe upon the Japanese as those that now apply to the Chinese.

No Agreement by Japan

London, Feb. 16.—In a dispatch from Tokyo the correspondent of The Times says: It is denied here upon good authority that Japan has agreed to any solution of the San Francisco problem depending upon restriction of the admission of Japanese laborers to the United States.

Eighteen Blackhanders Held

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 16.—Eighteen of the 23 Italians captured in the "Black Hand" raid at Browntown were held on the several charges which have been preferred against them. Five of the 23 were discharged from custody and four others who have since been arrested were committed to jail to await a further investigation. There was unfolded a tale of robbery, attempted murder and general terrorism that proved astounding to those unfamiliar with the actions of the "Black Hand" element. Witnesses gave evidence that the order had a membership of more than 500, with branches at Buffalo, Rochester, New York city, Scranton, Wilkesbarre and half a dozen other cities.

Serious Results of Lamp Explosion
Jersey City, N. J., Feb. 16.—Two persons were fatally and four others seriously burned in a fire which followed the explosion of a kerosene lamp at the home of Albert Osborne last night. Among the injured are three children who were ill in bed with diphtheria. The three sick children were in a room on the second floor. While descending the stairs, Osborne, who was carrying the lamp, tripped and fell. In a short time the building was ablaze.

Said to Have Five Wives

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 16.—Herman Boshaw, arrested on a charge of bigamy, has consented to return to Buffalo to stand trial without requisition. An alleged fifth wife was discovered yesterday by a telegram from Cincinnati informing the officers that Boshaw had been married there under the name of Herman Allison.

Divorce Mill Grinds Swiftly

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 16.—Judge Lawton presided yesterday over the divorce court in Middlesex superior court and in the course of three hours up to the noon recess 13 persons told why they thought they should be divorced. Twelve decrees nisi were granted and one temporarily held up.

Indictment of Mrs. Bradley

Washington, Feb. 16.—Mrs. Annie M. Bradley was indicted for murder in the first degree for the shooting of former Senator Arthur M. Brown of Utah in this city on Dec. 8 last. Her trial will not take place for perhaps two months. She is at present confined in the district jail.

The Best Job Printing at This Office

PRIZE CONTEST

"SCRAP BOOK" PAGE

The American Press Association offers the following cash prizes for anecdotes—odd, humorous, pathetic or heroic; not exceeding 300 words, and preferably of not more than 200 words—for use in our "SCRAP BOOK" page:

- For the best anecdote, One Hundred Dollars
- For the second best, Fifty Dollars
- For the third best, Twenty-five Dollars
- For the fourth best, Ten Dollars

The anecdotes may be original or from reprint. If reprints, the source or author should be given if possible.

More than one prize will be given to one contestant if his offerings merit such reward.

In the awards, no preference will be given to original over reprint, to new over old, to long over short anecdotes. Pathetic and heroic stories are as likely to take prizes as humorous anecdotes. The interest in the story will be the only test of merit.

The contestant who sends the greatest number of good anecdotes, not neglecting stories of, or current in, his own locality, will perhaps stand the best chance in the awards. Poor and pointless anecdotes should not be sent to us; they are only a vexation.

The American Press Association reserves the right to use anecdotes for which no prize is given—reprint anecdotes without compensation; original anecdotes to be paid for by us at the rate of One Dollar each.

Rejected anecdotes will be returned only to those who enclose stamped and addressed envelopes for the purpose.

The contest will close on Thursday, March 28, 1907. No anecdotes received after that date will be considered. The awards will be printed in the American Press of April 6, 1907. The cash will be sent to the successful contestants as soon as the awards are determined.

When Things Hummed

By Amy Harris

Copyright, 1906, by May McKeon

"Now, then, Hannah, things are going to hum."

It was Aunt Judith Wellman who spoke. She had arrived from Indiana for a visit with her sister in Michigan, and the pair had been talking for the last hour on the veranda, while Farmer Henderson was doing up the chores at the barn.

"What do you mean, Judith?" was asked.

"I mean several things. I mean that I have never heard of a case like it. Your Minnie has been old enough to marry for these last three years, and you've let a feller dawdle around here and make sheep's eyes at her and keep all other fellers away and yet hasn't asked her to be his and maybe three more years doing it. I call it a mean shame. When I say that things are going to hum I mean that somebody has got to toe the mark mighty soon or get out. You and Elisha ought to have put your foot down long ago."

"You wouldn't do anything to embarrass Minnie?" pleaded the mother.

"That's according. I guess the embarrassment will all be on the other side, however. Embarrassment is all right in a girl, Hannah, but it shouldn't be carried too far. Both of us were embarrassed when we were girls, but we weren't so much so as to kill our prospects of getting married. We knew when our beaus had hung around long enough. Has Minnie ever given this chap a jog?"

"Mercy, no!"

"Have you or Elisha ever given him a jog?"

"Never!"

"Then it remains for Judith Wellman to do it, and she's right on deck, with both elbows stuck out. It won't be a week before we'll know whether Joel Davis means business or is just sitting around like a bump on a log."

"But you won't—won't!"

"I don't know what I'll do, except to decide the case one way or other, and you needn't ask questions. I don't believe in folks getting married within a week, and I don't believe in courting for half a lifetime. A fellow either wants a girl or he don't. If he does, let him take her; if he don't, let him slip off and give some one else a chance."

Minnie Henderson was twenty years old and a recognized belle for ten miles around. Everybody was agreed that she would make somebody a good wife. She had been "keeping company" with Joel Davis for nearly three years. Joel was a bachelor of twenty-seven, living on the next farm west. He was steady, sober and industrious, and everybody said that he would make some girl a good husband. But Joel was also bashful and retiring. He was in love with Minnie, to be sure, but that very fact made him tremble in her presence. A hundred times over in the last two years he had resolved to propose, but on each and every occasion his courage had oozed out of his fingers' ends. He felt that the time must and would come, but whether it would take an earthquake or a cyclone to bring it about he wasn't sure.

It was three days before Aunt Judith saw Joel. She liked his looks, and that changed her plans somewhat. She hadn't been going to say a word to Minnie, but now she changed about and opened fire with:

"Well, I am astonished! So that's the feller that has been hanging around here for half his lifetime and will probably die of old age on your father's doorstep!"

"I don't know what you mean by 'hanging around,'" retorted Minnie, with a blush and a toss of her head.

"Why, coming over here two or three times a week to talk about grasshoppers and tater bugs. I am surprised at you. What can you see in such a feller to encourage him? I suppose he knows pumpkins from squashes, but I'll bet a big apple that if you asked him when the pilgrim fathers landed he'd fall off the veranda. Minnie Henderson, if you are the girl I take you to be you will send that feller packing this very evening."

"You misjudge him, aunty. He does not push himself forward, but I assure you that—"

"I've got eyes in my head," snapped her aunt. "It never takes me over five minutes to size up a man. Joel Davis is an 'it'! He'll always be ten days behind the Fourth of July. It's a wonder your father and mother have allowed it."

Minnie choked down a sharp answer and went off to her room to cry, and Aunt Judith sauntered into the kitchen to say to her sister:

"There, now, I've got the thing started, and you and Elisha have got to turn in and help me. Minnie will cry and then get mad and then see Joel, and there'll be a wedding before you know it. Don't you weaken when the time comes."

Next day Joel came to the house to bring back a bushel basket he had borrowed. Minnie was upstairs and Aunt Judith hiding behind the door, so it was left for Minnie's mother to say:

"Joel, I've been wanting to speak to you for some time. I don't think you ought to come here as often as you do."

"W-what?" gasped the lover as he turned very red.

"Your coming here so often keeps other young men away and does not give Minnie a fair chance. Of course she has no thought of marrying you, so it isn't right to waste her time on you."

Joel stared with open mouth, but to save his neck he couldn't say a word in reply. After making several vain attempts he walked off. On his way home he turned aside and climbed the fence to speak to Farmer Henderson, working in his field. Minnie's father had been posted and was waiting for his opportunity. Joel had stammered out that it was a hot day and that corn seemed to be looking up and that he was afraid that one of his cows had the hollow horn, when Elisha finished hilling up a hill of corn and slowly said:

"Joel, they say that there's going to be a heap of windmill and wire fence men along here this fall, and if any of 'em want to board with me for a week or two I shall take 'em in."

"W-why?" asked Joel.

"Well, there's Minnie, you know. It's time she was thinking of getting married. Some of those windmill fellers are smarter than chain lightning and well off to boot. I've always kind of thought I'd like one of them for a son-in-law."

"Mr. Henderson"—began poor Joel, but he had to halt at that. The change in the attitude of the farmer and his wife brought a great fear to his heart and started chills up and down his back.

"Minnie ain't looking for a husband, you know. She don't have to do that, but when the right feller comes along I guess a match will be made. A piano agent the other day asked me if she was engaged, and I told him there wasn't anybody around here good enough. Yes, it's a pretty hot day, Joel, and I shouldn't wonder if tomorrow would be hotter."

Joel didn't do any work the rest of the afternoon. He simply sat and thought. The result was that when evening came he headed for the Henderson homestead. He was going to see Minnie and find out what had happened. It was Aunt Judith who was at the gate when he came up, and she didn't lose any time, saying:

"Young man, I guess you've heard of me. I'm Minnie's aunt. Walk along the road with me while I talk to you. You don't want to force yourself upon a family where you are not wanted, do you?"

"Has something happened?" he anxiously asked.

"Well, Minnie's father and mother have got their eyes open at last. She has been praised so much that they realize she can make a good match. I don't care to tell you what the sewing machine man said today, but you can bet it was something nice. You know you ain't just the sort of man the Hendersons want for a son-in-law. Minnie may like you in a way, but when it comes to real love, that's another thing. If I was you, I wouldn't waste any more time here."

"But I love Minnie!" blurted out Joel, as he was driven to desperation.

"But if she don't love you what are you going to do about it? Better give the thing right up and look for some other girl. Going home are you? Well, good night. Try and think I have told you this for your own good."

Next day a farmer's little girl brought Minnie a note, and half an hour after receiving it she was down in the hickory grove talking with Joel. When she returned to the house, she looked pale and acted in a nervous manner, but she was not questioned. Soon after supper she pleaded a headache and went to her room, and Aunt Judith and Elisha and Hannah winked at each other. At 9 o'clock the house was quiet. At 10 Aunt Judith entered the spare bedroom, where husband and wife sat waiting, and said:

"Well, it's over with. Joel came to the gate and whistled softly ten minutes ago, and Minnie, who was all dressed, slipped downstairs and joined him. He had a buggy down by the barnyard gate."

"And—and?" gasped the mother as she began to sob.

"Hannah Henderson, don't be a goose. They'll drive to the preacher's and be married and be back here before the breakfast dishes are washed. Joel's got a wife, Minnie's got a husband, and you've got a son-in-law, and that's all there is to it."

Soldiers and Rain.

The rain fell in torrents on the soldiers tramping sturdily down the muddy street.

"Why don't they put up their umbrellas?" said a spectator.

With a sneer an elderly man replied: "Don't you know, sir, that soldiers never carry umbrellas? History records just one instance of their having done so. It was in an engagement of the civil war, and a group of officers were holding up umbrellas to shield themselves from a thunderstorm when General Grant passed. The general frowned at the sight and sent an aid to the officers with this historic message: 'I do not approve of the use of umbrellas in war and will not allow any of my soldiers to make themselves ridiculous in the eyes of the enemy.'"

"Since that time," ended the old man, "no soldier has ever dared to protect his uniform with the effeminate umbrella."

Polite Star Singers.

Prima donnas in the same city having the habits of polite society are particular about making formal visits to each other.

It happened in Detroit that Patti and Nicolini, her husband, and Albani and her spouse, Ernest Gye, were staying at the same hotel. Patti and Nicolini had gone out for a drive, and Albani, seeing them pass her window, called to her husband: "Ernest, they have gone out. We had better leave cards for them at once."

On returning Patti received the cards and later, when Albani and Gye had gone to rehearsal, said to Nicolini: "Ernest" (his name was Ernest), "they have gone to the theater. This is a good time to return their visit."

ONE MORE DEATH

Reduces Number of Larchmont Survivors to Seventeen

STORIES OF THE COLLISION

One Told by Knowlton's Crew Conflicts With That of Steamers' Officers—Dispute Over Charges of Misconduct

Providence, Feb. 16.—The death late last night of James Vann, a negro steward on the steamer Larchmont, reduces the number of those who survived the famous wreck last Monday night to 17, while of the 76 bodies recovered, 68 have been identified. The death of Vann is the second among the little band which reached Block Island on the morning after the disaster. James La Combe of Manchester, N. H., succumbing to his injuries Thursday night, Vann was in fairly good condition when he arrived here Wednesday from Block Island, but quickly developed pneumonia.

The condition of the other survivors is reported as being favorable to their recovery.

The identifications yesterday numbered 14, although several of these had been partially recognized. It is thought that three or four may be claimed today, but if by Sunday any remain unidentified they will be buried by the city.

The United States authorities at New London have partially finished their investigations of the accident by taking the testimony of the captain and crew of the schooner Harry Knowlton, which rammed the ill-fated steamer and sent her to destruction. These men have been released and are now on their way to their homes in New Brunswick.

The inspectors have yet to hear Captain McVey's account of the disaster, and it is expected that that officer's deposition, as well as that of his quartermaster, James Stables, will be taken in this city, as neither are yet able to travel even to New London.

Those on the schooner claimed that they held their course straight down the sound from Race Rock light toward Point Judith and that the steamer tried to cut across the bow of their boat. It is understood that Captain McVey and his quartermaster declare that the schooner altered her course and luffed into their vessel. This controversy is likely to continue for some time.

Some of the charges of cowardice made by several of the survivors against officers of the boat have been withdrawn, while others whose lives were saved are still emphatic in their declarations of misconduct. This dispute is also likely to be revived whenever the disaster is recalled.

A stiff northwester yesterday drove the Block Island searching fleet back into the harbor and for the first day since the wreck no bodies were recovered. It is now believed that should others be found, they will be discovered well to the eastward of Block Island, and perhaps as far as Martha's Vineyard, near which a portion of the wreck was seen floating yesterday.

One or two names have been added to the long list of missing, and it is probable that as the days go by and relatives and friends fail to reach their destinations still other lives will be credited as having lost their lives in one of the most terrible marine disasters that has ever occurred on the New England coast.

Larchmont's Mainmast Recovered

New London, Conn., Feb. 16.—The Lighthouse tender Cactus has brought in the mainmast of the steamer Larchmont. It was broken off 60 feet below its top, evidently by some passing steamer or large craft. A portion of the mast and some of the castings of the mast were attached to it.

Action in Congress

Washington, Feb. 16.—Representative Granger (R.) introduced a resolution in the house providing that the secretary of commerce and labor shall report to the house the results of the investigation of the sinking of the steamer Larchmont off Block Island.

Wealthy Englishmen Stingy

London, Feb. 16.—The poverty of British universities has again been brought to the notice of the public by an appeal issued by the chancellor of Cambridge university declaring that the sum of $7,500,000 is needed properly to equip the university and supply its needs. The newspapers contrast the generosity of wealthy Americans toward the universities of the United States with the indifference of Englishmen of wealth.

Cruiser Chicago at Post of Duty

Washington, Feb. 16.—The navy department was informed by cable that the cruiser Chicago has arrived at Acapulco, Salvador, to look after American interests during the existing friction between Nicaragua and Honduras. The vessel will be kept within reach of cable connection with the department for a few days, ready to meet any demands upon her.

Standard Oil Pleads Not Guilty

Chicago, Feb. 16.—Pleas of not guilty were formally entered by the Standard Oil company in several of the eight cases in which the corporation is under indictment on the charge of accepting rebates from railroads in violation of the Elkins law. In the other case a plea of not guilty had already been entered. No date has been set for the trial.

"Salome."

Most Vivid and Growsome Operatic Sensation Ever Known In the United States.

Striking Features of the Strauss-Wilde "Music Drama," Retired From the Metropolitan Opera House After One Production—Perversion of a Dramatic Bible Story Pronounced as an Unspeakeable Exhibition of Degeneracy.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.
UNQUESTIONABLY the most vivid and vital opera sensation ever known in the United States is now raging in New York and rapidly spreading to the rest of operatic America. The sensation is "Salome"—the unnamed Salome of the Bible, the Salome of Richard Strauss's music, the Salome of Oscar Wilde's play.

And the worst of these is the Wilde Salome. After one production at the Metropolitan Opera House the Strauss-Wilde "music drama" has been retired, so far as that institution is concerned. But it was not prohibited by the police authorities nor was its sudden suspension due to public protest. Most remarkably, "Salome" got its quietus through a pen stroke from the secretary of the opera house directors, half a dozen millionaires who are the principal owners of the property. These men, headed by J. Pierpont Morgan, instructed their secretary to notify Herr Conried, director of the opera house, that "Salome" was objectionable and detrimental to the best interests of the house. "We therefore protest against any repetition of this opera," was the ultimatum.

And it is said that Miss Anne T. Morgan, daughter of the famous financier, induced her father to lead the fight against the opera.

Being under contract with Strauss, the composer, Herr Conried may produce the opera at some other New York house and in several other American cities, but it appears that so far as the Metropolitan is concerned "Salome" is taboo.

Practically all the New York newspapers pronounced the opera an unspeakable exhibition of degeneracy. Private citizens likewise excoriated it in the press. But the fact that these rich opera house owners set their ban against the production, though the first night's receipts were above $20,000, is highly significant. Nothing like that ever before happened in this country.

To quote a familiar advertising line, "there's a reason." No matter what may be one's individual attitude in regard to art in poetry and music, "Salome" as played and sung by Herr Conried's artists is inevitably offensive and shocking to the average person. It is calculated to offend conventional senses of propriety, whether one be religious in the orthodox meaning or not. And for one who reverences the Bible and biblical characters "Salome" is an affront to the very soul of sanctity.

Oscar Wilde wrote the words of this play. He wrote it in French as a one act drama. It was translated into English by Lord Alfred Douglas, bosom friend of Wilde. Sarah Bernhardt was prohibited from playing it in England by the operation of a law in that country against the production of plays containing scenes from the Bible.

Perversion of Bible Scenes.
But, strictly speaking, "Salome" as conceived by Wilde is not really a portrayal of Bible scenes. It is a perversion of them. Most of the action and all of what some persons call the motif sprang from the brain of Oscar Wilde. In the New Testament he found a dramatic story, horrible enough there, inasmuch as it told of the beheading of John the Baptist by Herod, Herodias, Wilde heaped horror upon horror. He perverted altogether the Bible story, reading into it meanings which no man of ordinary human impulses could imagine. Here is the story as told in the fourteenth chapter of Matthew:

"For Herod had laid hold on John and bound him and put him in prison for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife.

"For John said unto him, It is not lawful for thee to have her.

"And when he would have put him to death he feared the multitude, because they counted him as a prophet.

"But when Herod's birthday was kept the daughter of Herodias danced before them, which pleased Herod.

"Whereupon he promised with an oath to give her whatsoever she would ask.

"And she, being before instructed of her mother, said, Give me here John Baptist's head in a charger.

"And the king was sorry. Nevertheless for the oath's sake and them which sat with him at meat he commanded it to be given her.

"And he sent and beheaded John in the prison.

"And his head was brought in a charger and given to the damsel, and she brought it to her mother."

Best of All Herods.
In the sixth chapter of Mark the story is told with a little more detail. The name of Salome is not mentioned at all. For that we must turn to secular history. We find that Salome was the daughter of Philip and Herodias. Philip was the half brother of Herod Antipas, the Herod named in the passage quoted. This Herod unlawfully married his brother's wife, who deserted Philip for him. Salome became the wife of her half uncle, also named Philip, a half brother of her father Philip. This second Philip was said to be the decenter of the whole tribe of Herods. He did some respectable things, which cannot be said for the rest of them, who were in very truth a miserable lot of human beasts. Salome's husband died in the year 34 A. D., at Bethsaida, which place he had made into a city. So far as history records, Salome was a decent, well disposed woman as things went in those days.

Now, what does Oscar Wilde make of Salome? Verily the most hideously depraved female wretch in the chronicles of fact or fiction, a physical and moral degenerate of the lowest type, a revolting and disgusting woman.

Dramatists are not supposed to stick to sober fact even when writing historical plays. Nobody expects that. But it is not to be found with Wilde for imagining things to strengthen his dramatic theme. His fault lies in the things he imagined. Of these one need not speak further.

The dramatist makes Salome herself responsible for the beheading of John the Baptist rather than her mother, who brought about the prophet's death by way of revenge for his opposition to her unholy alliance with Herod. He makes Herod in love with Salome and Salome in love with John the Baptist. Some of Wilde's perversions of the Biblical tale are based upon the wanderings of previous dramatists and romanticists. But the worst of them are out of his own mind. They are simply Wildesque.

Forerunner of Christ.
In the play as produced at the Metropolitan Opera House, then, we have Salome demanding of Herod the head of John the Baptist, the man who prophesied the coming of the Messiah. She demands it because she has made love to him and he has repulsed her. John the Baptist was one of the most important characters in the Bible. He was the forerunner of Christ. More than that, he was a second cousin of Christ.

Yet here we have in the closing scene, as Mme. Olive Fremstad plays the role, Salome receiving the severed and bleeding head of this sacred prophet, fondling it, kissing its lips and thus making a scene which caused many women in the audience to retire to the cloak-rooms in disgust. Horribly realistic, a papier mache head is handed to the singer and actress and is displayed for about twenty minutes.

This is the supreme affront of the opera "Salome" to Christian people, following as it does, the notorious "Dance of the Seven Veils" and the further exhibitions of degeneracy throughout the play. If you saw the oriental dances introduced into America by Gaston Alkon fourteen years ago on the Midway pleasure at the Chicago World's fair you saw something like the dance in "Salome." Mme. Fremstad did not perform this dance. It would have been physically impossible for her to have done it and the singing. Mme. Blanca Froelich, a clever dancer, was cleverly substituted for that strenuous performance. This is what Mme. Froelich herself says of the dance:

"It is symbolic and eastern. It is nothing but a danse du ventre. As given in Europe it was ten times as sensational as it is here."

The danse du ventre, it will be remembered, was popularly called the "hootle cootle" at Chicago. Protest against it has stirred the public in connection with every American exposition since the one at Chicago.

A Candid Opinion.
Mme. Fremstad, who sings the part of Salome, talks candidly about it. "We all realize that the theme is revolting," she says. "Certainly it is not 'Parsifal.' But I am concerned in the art of it. Even in the opera Salome is the worst sort of degenerate, but Strauss makes something more of her at the last, where she gets her idea of what love means."

Her instinct to ward good comes into play when she sees the head before her. Her feeling is partly passionate and partly ideal.

This view of the character may go for what it is worth. Opera artists have viewpoints quite removed from those of the average individual.

According to Herr Conried, the production of "Salome" is a great artistic achievement. The world of music, it is said, holds this to be perhaps the most important music drama since Wagner. It has been produced in many of the European cities, notably at the royal opera houses of Berlin and Dresden, and at Milan and Turin, and is now in rehearsal at Vienna and Paris.

Carl Burrian, who sings the role of Herod, says: "In Germany there is no feeling about it. Young girls go to this opera and enjoy it. It was played there quite as realistically as in America. Let them shorten the disagreeable part and make the scene with the head less repulsive. Fit it to people's heads. I think the directors should take the middle ground. Simply make it less repulsive. It should be softened."

So here we have views of the leading singers and actors themselves, each of whom out of his own mouth condemns the piece according to the American notion of propriety.

One more statement from the producers of this operatic sensation may be quoted. Says the business manager of the opera house, "The only religious personage in the work, John the Baptist, is treated with the utmost dignity and reverence."

This looks to be quite the most remarkable view of them all.

Musical World Divided In Its View.
The Strauss music is in itself a sensation. The musical world is divided as to its value. Some hold that if this sort of thing prevails and goes under the name of music, then the splendid art of music is doomed. Others proclaim the Strauss "Salome" a magnificent triumph, a revolution in the forward development of music. As a matter of fact, the general public must take it for granted either way.

Bill Nye once said of Wagner's music, "It is really better than it sounds." This is the only loophole of escape for Strauss, in the opinion of many who have heard his "Salome." No one denies, however, that the composer has interpreted with most amazing and audacious fidelity the meanings of Oscar Wilde, word for word. If idea or suggestion can be translated into music, Richard Strauss has done it. Some persons who know music when they hear it are loud in declaring that the Strauss score is equally degenerate with the Wilde book.

As there are no words in any language to express certain "symbolic" suggestions, so there appear to have been no musical instruments to express the Strauss interpretations of parts of the Wilde "Salome." Accordingly, several new instruments, some of them fearfully and wonderfully made—like the sounds they produce—had to be invented for this production.

Miss Julia Marlowe and E. H. Sothern have in their repertoire a drama called "John the Baptist," in which the Salome as played and danced by Miss Marlowe is by no means so degenerate as the character in the opera. Nevertheless, the play does not seem to please New York. It is more than probable that the western world of the twentieth century is not yet ready for the dramatic presentation of a sacred theme, particularly when it is perverted to the putridity of the degenerate. Art is not art when it becomes unnaturally indecent.

In fact, there appears to be little likelihood now that "Salome" will be permitted anywhere in the United States.

PRACTICALLY ONE A DAY

Rapid Increase
In the Number
Of Marriages
In City of Quincy

When a man, be he young or old, makes up his mind that it is time for him to get married, there are several things that he must do. First of all he must find a girl who will have him, and one that comes the nearest to meeting
what he has set up as his ideal.

Sometimes he meets his ideal but more times he does not. Finding the girl he must then get her consent. This is not always easy. While a girl may have made up her mind that she will accept, when the offer comes, she does not like to seem to be too anxious. She likes to convey the idea that she is doing you a favor in agreeing to let you find her in food and something to wear.

These important things out of the way, a visit must be made to the City Clerk where you must tell your age, color, and a seemingly long list of other things about yourself and the lady in question. As you answer the questions you are apt to think that the official is particularly interested in your case.
That is where you fool yourself. It is an everyday occurrence with him. The license in hand you hike yourself to the minister who does the rest.

All of these facts are recorded in books kept especially for that purpose, and from what is known as vital statistics. During the year 1906 the number of marriages recorded in Quincy was 348, almost one for every day.

This is an increase of 39 over the year 1905, and shows that as Quincy grows the number of marriages increase proportionately. The following table shows the number by months for the years 1905 and 1906 as compared with

Month.	1906.	1905.	1895.
January,	17	14	15
February,	17	14	14
March,	16	6	15
April,	30	17	15
May,	13	16	9
June,	23	54	29
July,	30	25	21
August,	15	17	9
September,	32	40	13
October,	43	34	23
November,	37	34	25
December,	27	28	11
Totals,	348	309	191

This table shows that the popular month to contract marriages last year was June, when 73 couples agreed to live together for better or worse. May was the smallest month for some unexplainable reason, but 13 marriages were recorded. One man explains the smallness of the number by saying that the man were saving their pennies for the summer vacation. Of this, however, there is no way of knowing for a certainty. Next to June the best month for marriages was October, when there were 43 recorded. The two best months were formerly June and November, but like the seasons, the minds of people about to contract marriage change as to the month when they shall be hitched.

Of the grooms, 262 gave their residence as Quincy. Of the brides, 257 claimed the City of Presidents as their home. Some few could not find a local clergyman to suit them, and they journeyed out of town to have the knot tied. On the other hand there were some few couples who journeyed to this city to be married. One about balances the other.

The majority of the couples said that the marriage to be consummated was their first. There were, however, quite a few widows who having once tried marriage bliss were anxious to have another try at it, for they had learned by experience that it was easier to do housework for two than to go out into the world and hustle for the wherewithal to buy bread, let alone pie.

Naval Bill Passed Two Battleships

The National House passed on Feb.
15 the naval appropriation bill which includes another battleship of the Dreadnaught type, making two to be built this year.

An amendment was adopted limiting to $800,000 each the cost of the two torpedo boat destroyers authorized in the bill exclusive of armament. Another amendment was adopted providing that of the vessels authorized in last year's naval bill, as well as in this year's, "not more than one battleship and one torpedo destroyer or two torpedo boat destroyers, shall be built by one contracting party." Both these amendments were presented by the chairman of the committee Mr. Foss.

The proposed amendment of Mr.
Burton of Ohio, providing for no additional battleship, was defeated after debate. The viva voce vote was 106 yes to 122 no. On a count by tellers the vote was 114 yes to 146 no.

Some of this work will certainly come to Quincy.

Surprise Party.

A surprise party was tendered Miss Alice Beattie of Willard street, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 13, by her Sunday school class, the occasion being her birthday. During the evening there were piano selections by Ruth Sproul and Alice Beattie. Games, and singing were enjoyed for about an hour, after which they adjourned to the dining room, where a dainty supper had been prepared by Mrs. Beattie. A most enjoyable evening was spent by all and Miss Alice was remembered with many pretty gifts. Those present were: Mr.
Robert Stewart, her teacher, and Misses
Ruth Sproul, Ruth McLeod, Priscilla
Clark, Annie Cotter, Matilda Bishop,
Alice Beattie and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beattie.

Beverly is to have a valuation book the first it has had since it has been a printing in his inaugural address, and an order for the publishing was passed by the common council Thursday evening, and will probably be passed in concurrence by the aldermen at the meeting on Tuesday evening.

Death of Edwin W. Marsh

Active in Quincy Affairs 85 Years

Edwin Wilson Marsh, one of Quincy's oldest and most prominent citizens, passed away Saturday evening shortly before 11 o'clock, at his home on Marsh street, aged 86 years.
Mr. Marsh has been confined to his home since the middle of January,
his illness being due to infirmities incident to old age. For years he has been a familiar figure in Quincy in whose welfare he always took a deep and active interest, and his passing away will be keenly felt by all.

Mr. Marsh was born in Quincy, Oct. 21, 1821. He was the son of Jonathan and Sophia Spear Marsh.
He was a direct descendant of Alexander Marsh, who was born in England, and married Mary Belcher, daughter of Gregory Belcher, who was one of the six who upon Sept.
17, 1639, signed the covenant for a church at Mt. Wollaston, now the First Congregational church. His ancestors died in Braintree, March 7, 1698.

John Marsh, the great, great grandfather of Mr. Marsh, married Sarah daughter of John Wilson, M. D., and great granddaughter of Rev.
John Wilson, the first minister of Boston, to whom the first grant of land was made at Mt. Wollaston.

Mr. Marsh married Ann Jane Bailey on Feb. 5, 1851. She was the daughter of Whitman and Patience Vose Bailey. Mrs. Marsh died July 13, 1866. His second marriage was to Mrs. Nancy Emery, widow of Jonathan Emery, and daughter of Joel and Betsy Raymond, and took place Nov. 12, 1868. She died Feb.
18, 1886.

Mr. Marsh received his education in the public schools of Quincy and commenced his business life as a weaver of coach and chair lace, his father's family having been engaged in the manufacture of that article in Quincy for many years. When hand weaving was supplemented by the power loom he turned his attention to boots and shoes, and for nearly twenty years he with his brother engaged in their manufacture. From 1861 to 1867 he was engaged in the leather business in Boston, and from the latter date he has devoted his attention to probate business and matters relating to real estate. In 1889 he became vice president of the Quincy Savings Bank, and continued to hold that office until 1904.

In that year the law which prohibited the cashier of a National bank serving as president of a savings institution went into effect, and upon the resignation of Rupert F.
Cliffin as president of the Savings Bank, April 12, which office he had held for fifteen years, Mr. Marsh was elected its president, and he continued to hold that office up to his death. In addition to this office he was also a director in the National Granite bank having been on its board since 1889.

From the spring of 1843, until Quincy changed its form of government from a town to a city, a period of 44 years Mr. Marsh took an active part in every annual town meeting and in most of the special meetings, performing such duties relative to town offices as were from time to time assigned to him. He was elected a member of the School Committee in 1855, and also served on that committee nine years from March 1875, succeeding the late John Quincy Adams as chairman of the board.

Thus he was a member of the School Board in 1855 which first elected Miss Julia E. Underwood as a teacher at the Coddington school, and also in 1875 when Quincy made an innovation by electing a superintendent of schools, and chose Col. Francis W.
Parker as that official.

In 1878 and 1879 he was Representative to the General Court from the Fifth Norfolk district, comprising the towns of Quincy and Weymouth. He was also a member of the board of registrars of voters and its chairman from the institution of that office in May, 1884, to May, 1894. He was also a justice of the peace.

Mr. Marsh was a man of excellent memory, and was considered as an authority on matters of the early history of Quincy, and in this respect his knowledge was always sought by those looking up such matters. He has always been an active man, and for many years he could always be found at his post of duty at the bank coming to his office in the morning and remaining there until noon. On days when the session of the probate court was held in this city he was one of the first to present his papers at the opening of court. During the past number of years he has had the settling of many estates and was an authority on probate matters.

He continued to take an active interest in these matters up to the time of his death, although for the past year failing health has prevented his constant attendance as was his wont.

Mr. Marsh was moderator of the annual town meetings in 1864, 1865, and 1875. He never served as Selectman as reported.

Mr. Marsh left but few near relatives. He lived with his step daughter, Miss Fanny M. Emery, and Mr.
J. Henry Emery of Adams street is a step son.

Funeral services will be held on Wednesday afternoon from his late residence on Marsh street at South Quincy.

Meetings of the directors of the Savings bank and the National Granite bank have been called for this afternoon to take action on his death.

Quincy Coliseum.

A very large crowd was in attendance at the Coliseum Saturday night. A very strong bill was offered, the feature being Mr. Amos, the tramp juggler, who gave a very fine bill and showed himself to be one of the best in the business. Howard's latest moving pictures were also very interesting and funny. The management has secured Wright & Webb, comedians of note, coming direct from Keith's and Proctor's New York theatre and they will be here for one week only.

Death of Granite Manufacturer

The Equirer of Buffalo, N. Y., reports the death on Feb. 13 of a granite dealer well known in Quincy.

John B. Bianchi, well-known monument dealer, proprietor of the West Seneca Monumental Works, died after a long illness at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, at his residence, No. 390 Eagle street.

He was born in Viggin, Italy, May 8, 1863, and after traveling in Europe
came to this country early in the 80's.
As a marble and granite cutter he was considered one of the best in the trade.
The Columbus monument in Scranton,
was cut by him, and in Quincy, Mass., Westerly, R. L., New York and Barre, Vt., he is remembered for his skill and as a very pleasant companion.

In partnership with his brothers in 1892, he established a monumental business at East Barre, coming to Buffalo a little more than six years ago. At West Seneca he was very popular.

After his arrival in Buffalo, he became ill with spinal trouble, and he never succeeded in getting well again.
Among the many trials of his long illness was a surgical operation. His patience, hope and good nature surprised everybody.

The wife, Angela, survives him; also two brothers, Charles, who is at the head of a large monument business and Ambrose of Barre, Vt.

Successful Raid At West Quincy

The police were on the war path
after liquor sellers on Saturday night and Sunday. Two places were visited.
The raid Saturday night took place about 8:30 at the place of Paul Panchenco at 19 Rockville road. In the raiding party were Lieut McKay, Officers Goodhue, Larkin and Donovan. No liquors were found but Panchenco was arrested.

The second raid took place at 11:45
Sunday morning and was in charge of Officer Goodhue. With him were Officers Larkin, Olson, Thorne, Phillips, Malone and Reiley. The place raided was that of James E. McDonald at 172 Copeland street. When the officers entered they found seven men seated about a keg of ale. A quantity of ale, whiskey and empty bottles etc. was seized. McDonald tells the Ledger that he is not the proprietor any more than the other members of the Shamrock club which new numbers over 60. The court will determine.

agement and set in the right way to become

REPORT OF M'VEY

Captain of Larchmont Gives His Version of Disaster

STEAMER SUNK QUICKLY

Boat Which Was Last to Leave Ill-Fated Craft Maneuvered Around Wreck, but Was Unable to Pick Up Anyone

New London, Conn., Feb. 18.—The official report of the loss of the steamer
Larchmont made by Captain George W.
McVey to the United States inspectors was made public upon its receipt here.

McVey's letter says that on the night of Feb. 11, after seeing that everything on the Larchmont was in shipshape order, he proceeded to his room to look over some papers. "Soon after reaching my room," the report says, "I heard several short and rapid blasts of the steam whistle from the Larchmont, and knowing this to be the alarm whistle I at once jumped from my room into the pilot house. When I arrived in the pilot house I noticed on our port side and very close to us the schooner, which appeared to be heading directly into the Larchmont. Almost in an instant the schooner, which I afterwards found to be the Harry Knowlton, loaded with coal and bound east, struck the Larchmont at about right angles in the Larchmont's port side just forward of amidships.

"Realizing that this was a severe blow, I at once rang the bell to call the engineer so as to have him report to me the condition of affairs below.
Failing to get any response, I at once sent Mr. Wyman, the second pilot, who had appeared on the scene, and Mr.
Staples, the quartermaster, to get the desired information.

"At this time the boat became enveloped in steam and everybody seemed to be panic-stricken except the crew.
I at once from my station in the pilot house ordered everybody to their stations as I realized that the boat must be in a sinking condition. I rang the necessary bells to start the engines ahead, but could receive no response and I returned to the deck to superintend the clearing away of the boat. At this time the Larchmont had a very heavy starboard list; in fact I think her freight deck was under water, which brought my own boat, which was the forward starboard boat, quite near the water.

"At this time there were no passengers in the vicinity of my boat and I proceeded to have my boat lowered into the water and at this time the ones who got into my boat were the only ones that were on my side of the ship, unless someone might have been left hidden by the starboard paddlebox. The names of those who were in my boat were George McVey, master of the Larchmont; Oscar Young, purser of the Larchmont; Mr. Staples, one of the quartermasters, two waiters of the Larchmont, named McFarland and Varn, and two firemen whose names I do not know.

"These were absolutely the only ones who were in my boat or on the starboard side of the Larchmont so far as I know. We at once proceeded around the bow of the Larchmont to get on her port side to be in a position to save life. The wind and sea were so very heavy that when we arrived on the port side of the Larchmont it was impossible to do any good. I maneuvered the boat in that vicinity until the Larchmont sunk out of sight, but I was unable to pick up anyone, as none seemed to be in my vicinity. Soon after my boat was lowered I saw the lights of the Larchmont go out.

"It was bitter cold and the cold was so intense that it was almost impossible to do anything but drift before the wind. So far as my personal knowledge goes, my boat was the last one to leave the Larchmont and I used every endeavor to pick up any lives that I could, but failed to find anyone to rescue.

"As near as I could judge, this collision occurred at about 10:50 p. m. and our boat drifted ashore at Block Island at about 6:30 a. m. on Feb. 12. When my boat drifted ashore at Block Island both myself and the balance of those who were in my boat were in a terrible condition.

"To the best of my knowledge and belief the Larchmont sunk out of sight about 12 minutes after the collision. As to the hearing of the schooner when she was first sighted from the pilot house of the Larchmont and as to her side lights or general movements from the time she was sighted by the Larchmont up until the time I saw her, which was just previous to the collision, I know nothing except what I have been told by other people.

"The boats were in their proper condition and the Larchmont was in shipshape condition, so far as I know, from truck to keelson. I will still further add that I used my utmost endeavors from the time the Larchmont's alarm whistle was blown until my boat drifted ashore at Block Island to observe discipline and save life in every particular, and no one can regret more than I do this sad affair."

McVey Is Prostrated
New Haven, Feb. 18.—Although every effort has been made to keep his presence unknown, it has been learned that Captain George R. McVey of the steamer Larchmont was brought here quietly Saturday morning and is now at his mother's home at Fairhaven,

where also are his wife and two children. The purpose of McVey's removal, it is said, from Providence, was to evade the newspaper men. Since his coming here his wife and mother have steadfastly refused to allow any one to see him. He is bedridden as a result of his experiences and said to be grievously affected by the accusations of neglect and cowardice which have been made against him.

Searched For Larchmont Victims
Westerly, R. I., Feb. 18.—Captain Sisson of the Fisher's Island lifesaving station and Captain Davis of the Watch Hill station, each with a power surfboat and a crew of lifesavers, searched all day Sunday in a vain attempt to recover additional bodies of victims of the Larchmont disaster. No bodies have come ashore at any point in this vicinity and no bodies have come ashore at Block Island.

Trying to Locate Wreck
New London, Conn., Feb. 18.—Light-house department steamer Cactus was employed in an effort to locate the wreck of the steamer Larchmont in Block Island sound. The Cactus was unable to find the wreck by soundings.
The steamer will continue the work today, and it is hoped to locate the wreck and chart it.

Barrels of Oil Washed Ashore Cuttyhunk, Mass., Feb. 18.—Several barrels of oil, believed to be a part of the cargo of the steamer Larchmont, came ashore here. No other wreckage and no bodies have floated ashore on this island, although the lifesavers are carefully patrolling the beach.

Salvationists at Peace With God
New York, Feb. 18.—More than 5000
persons crowded Carnegie Music hall, while as many more were turned away,
on the occasion of the memorial service held by the Salvation Army for the 10 officers who lost their lives when the steamer Larchmont went down off Block Island. Only three bodies of Salvationists have been thus far recovered and caskets containing these were borne up the center aisle to the platform of the hall, each covered by the colors of the Salvation Army and the Stars and Stripes.

Miss Eva Booth, in describing the scene when the Larchmont went down,
said in part:

"There was no time for repenting then. My brave New England lads and ladies found that the salvation of Calvary which they had preached on street corners and in the dark places of the earth for years was sufficient for them. They urged their fellow-passengers to make their peace with God.
Then, while the icy breath of the storm and the great avalanches of wintry waters washed over the sinking craft, they joined hands and, singing the last verse of 'Rock of Ages, Clef for Me,' went to their end. But their feet were on the solid rock Christ Jesus, underneath them was the arm that rules the world and they were anchored in the haven of rest. Our brave comrades have shown not only how a Salvation-ist can live, but how a Salvationist can die."

Immigration Bill Gets By Washington, Feb. 18.—The administration plan to settle the California Japanese situation was approved by the senate in the adoption of the conference report on the immigration bill.
This report contains a provision which authorizes the president to exclude Japanese laborers from the United States at his discretion. The report will now go to the house for its approval, which, it has been stated, is assured.

Murderous Conspirators
Belgrade, Feb. 18.—Three army officers who were members of the conspiracy that resulted in the murder of King Alexander attacked two Nationalist deputies because of their criticisms of the regicides and the present court. The assault took place on the street and the deputies retaliated.
Only one Nationalist, however, was hurt; he received a dangerous sword wound.

Big Hole In Torpedo Boat
Key West, Fla., Feb. 18.—The torpedo destroyer Vesuvius collided with the torpedo boat Hopkins at the government wharf, ripping a hole 15 feet long from the waterline to the conning tower of the Hopkins and penetrating three feet. Quick action on the part of the officers and crew saved the Hopkins from sinking at the wharf. No one was injured.

Opposition to Unionism
Bisbee, Ariz., Feb. 18.—Since last Tuesday 1100 miners have been laid off in the Warren district. It is said that the idleness of the men is due to the advent of organizers of the Western Federation of Miners and their announcement that they are going to unionize the camp. Warren district has always been an open camp.

Refuses Request to Resign
Albany, Feb. 18.—Otto Kelsey of Genesee declines to accede to the request of Governor Hughes that he resign the office of state superintendent of insurance, to which he was appointed in May of last year by Governor Higgins.

Flood of Tourists in Panama
Panama, Feb. 18.—Over 300 tourists arrived here yesterday from New York.
In the afternoon they inspected the Culebra cut. This is the largest number of American tourists ever visiting Panama at one time.

DELMAS IS "SORE"

Finds Fault With Associates In the Thaw Trial

HOLDING BACK OF WILL

That Document and Letters Connected Therewith Were Not Seen by Senior Counsel
Until Presented in Court

New York, Feb. 18.—Rumors of dissension among the six attorneys who have sat at the table assigned to the defense since the trial of Harry K.
Thaw began have frequently cropped up during the past few days, and were as often denied. There is no doubt, however, that there has been serious disagreements of some sort, and that Mr. Delmas has found some fault with the alleged actions of some of his associate counsel.

The trouble, according to a story current, arose over the publication of an alleged interview with Attorney Mc-Pike, partner of Delmas, in which Mc-
Pike was quoted as criticizing District
Attorney Jerome. Messrs. Harbridge, O'Reilly, Gleason and Peabody, also counsel for Thaw, are said to have seriously taken McPike to task for the remarks credited to him and that McPike vigorously denied the alleged interview. In this denial he is said to have been supported by his partner, Delmas.

On Saturday there was a five-hour conference of all the counsel for Thaw
at Delmas' office, and at this meeting, it is said, Delmas took occasion to criticize very severely the lack of support upon the part of his associates. He declared, it is said, that they had done everything to discredit him and to make him appear ridiculous, and that, although he had been nominally in charge of the case in court since the second day of the trial, he had in fact been nothing of the sort. As an illustration of this alleged desire to confuse him, he declared he knew nothing of Thaw's will and letters until they were handed to him as he was questioning a witness in court.

There seems little chance that the present situation in the Thaw case will result in a mistrial. It is said that Juror Bolton, whose wife died last week and was buried Saturday, has stated that he is willing and able to go on with the trial. So long as he is willing to state that his grief will not prevent his giving proper attention to the proceedings there is no way in which he can be excused. Bolton is reported to have told Justice Fitzgerald that he considers his duties as a citizen to outweigh all personal considerations and that he is willing to lay aside his grief and continue to serve the state so long as he is needed.

Dr. Evans, the alienist, will resume the stand and will proceed to tell of the conversations which he had with Thaw on his first three visits to the Tombs. The defense believes these conversations will go far to prove that at that time Thaw was not of sound mind. Dr. Evans will be followed by Dr. Wagner, who will also testify as to his conversations with the defendant.

Spanish Villages at War
Madrid, Feb. 18.—A feud of long standing between the inhabitants of the villages of Cervera and Caliz culminated in a violent outbreak. The people of Caliz began the hostilities by stoning to death a magistrate from Cervera, after which the Cervera people came out and engaged the inhabitants of Caliz in a pitched battle. Four men were killed and 11 were wounded in the fight.

Rumored Treason in France
Paris, Feb. 18.—There are persistent rumors in circulation of the discovery of treasonable practices carried on by an important official of the foreign office, who is alleged to have communicated to the Vatican the contents of diplomatic documents emanating from French ambassadors to foreign countries. This official is said to have been peremptorily discharged.

Carelessly Handled Powder
Pittsburg, Feb. 18.—Louis Mangeta, a miner, and his three children were fatally injured when a can of powder exploded at their home at Suter Station. The house was demolished and the four victims terribly burned.
Mangeta was asserting the powder before an open grate when a spark from the fire dropped into the powder can.

High Death Rate in Belfast London, Feb. 18.—Owing to the alarming mortality from spotted fever at Belfast and the generally high death rate, owing, it is alleged, to unsanitary conditions in many parts of that city,
the government has adopted the unusual course of appointing a royal commission to inquire into the situation.

Pension Scheme Causes Strife
Paris, Feb. 18.—Finance Minister Caillaux and Minister of Labor Viviani differ as to the cost of placing the scheme of workmen's pensions into operation. The estimates of Caillaux involve the expenditure of $91,800,000
and those of Viviani $78,800,000.

Strikers in Sore Distress Lodz, Feb. 18.—As a result of the prolonged strike by the men employed in the largest factories here, not less than 25,000 families of Lodz are in dire straits for want of food. The people are beginning to use their furniture for fuel.

Tidbits from

Richard M. Watt, a United States naval official at the Fore River shipyard will soon be transferred to League Island.

Samuel D. Thompson, a popular teacher at the Quincy High school since 1902, has tendered his resignation to accept a position in New York.

Maple lodge, K. and L. of H., will perform the work of initiation at its meeting in Wilson's hall on Wednesday evening, and receive applications.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight. It is possible that the Council may take some action on the proposed change in telephone rates and districts.

The weather was rather wild at 9 o'clock Sunday night and it looked as though it was in for a tough storm, but while the high wind continued through the night there was little snow.

AN AWFUL CRASH

Twenty Persons Are Killed In Electric Train Wreck

FIFTY SERIOUSLY HURT

Nearly a Hundred Were Slightly Injured When Coaches of a Train Going at High Rate of Speed Overturned - Coroner Inclined to Doubt Motorman

New York, Feb. 18.—Twenty dead, two fatally hurt and 145 others more or less seriously injured, is the result of the wreck of an electric express train on the New York Central railroad at 265th street and Webster avenue Sunday night. Of the large number of injured, 50 are, according to hospital and police reports, seriously hurt, and the death list may be soon increased.

Sunday was a day of investigation and inquiry by representatives of the district attorney's office, the coroner and the police. The cause of the wreck is still a matter of speculation. The result of the investigation may become known when the inquest is held by the coroner today.

With the clearing of the wreckage interest turned to what the authorities might do. Perhaps the most significant statement was the one made by Coroner Schwannacke. He had secured a statement from Motorman Rogers of the wrecked train. In this, according to the coroner, the motorman had stated that he was running on schedule time when the accident occurred, and admitted that the speed of his train was 70 miles an hour. Rogers, said the coroner, declares that he did not know anything was wrong until an eighth of a mile beyond the place of derailment. Then, said the coroner, it was another eighth of a mile before the motors came to a standstill. Rogers declared the motors did not leave the tracks.

The train consisted of a double-headed motor coupled into one engine, with one motorman, drawing five coaches. The first was a smoker, the second is described as a power car, though it is commonly designated as a combination baggage and smoker, and the three following ordinary passenger coaches.

Coroner Schwannacke said that he was skeptical as to the statement that the motors did not leave the rails, "because the ties show that the motors and first car were off the track an eighth of a mile from where they stopped. I have an idea that one of the motors left the rails first. I have a part of a rail which indicates that it is so. It appears to me that a spreading of the rails caused the disaster."

The coroner said that he had secured statements from some of the passengers that the train was running at a speed which frightened them.

When the wreck occurred the three rear coaches, completely filled with passengers, were thrown on their right sides just above a sharp curve at Woodlawn Road bridge. The shock was terrific. People were hurled violently from their seats and the most of those who were killed were pitched through the windows as the cars slid on their sides. The third rail held for a time, but soon broke with a flash and a roar seen and heard for a great distance. Between the wreck of the "current" rail and the main track the bodies were wedged. They were held here as the cars passed along and in this way were terribly mangled.

The scene at the wreck beggared description. The fact that the majority of the victims were women added to the horror. Dismembered bodies were strung along for a distance of 100 yards. One woman was impaled on a huge splinter from a railroad tie. The condition of other bodies was too frightful for description. It was a gruesome sight and the task that awaited physicians and police also sickening.

Although the scene of the wreck was in the heart of the thickly populated section, it was some time before nearby residents reached the scene. For a time only one physician could be secured. Later aid came without stint.

To explain the coroner's theory as to the cause of the wreck it may be said that his office is of the opinion that one of the motors struck a rail which was out of alignment, that the second motor and the smoker passed it, their rear trucks leaving the track, but that when the three other coaches hit the spot the coupling broke and they were thrown aside. The coroner can run an eighth of a mile before being stopped.

In an official statement, J. C. Hammond, press representative of the New York Central railroad, said that the investigation made by the railroad officials had not disclosed the cause of the accident.

One of the small wheels on the left side of the front of the leading motor was found to be broken at the point of derailment, as pieces of the wheel were picked up at that point. In almost the same spot, he said, a rail was broken, but it was impossible to say which of these caused the accident or which resulted from it.

T. R. Rogers, the motorman of the derailed train, who was arrested by order of the coroner and taken before him for examination, was subsequently paroled on his own recognizance to appear for the coroner's inquest later.

Report on Result of Probe on the Pennsylvania System

New York, Feb. 18.—"A mistaken public opinion, misinformed as to the facts, because of the publication of portions and not the whole of the testimony of witnesses before the Interstate commerce commission, and therefore, basing its conclusions upon insufficient premises, has done grave injustice to the whole service of the Pennsylvania Railroad company."

That service, constituted in the main, of educated, trained and self-respecting men, whose honorable and lives have won the esteem of those who know them best; it has its traditions of loyalty, and it has had, in its successive officers, examples of unselfish devotion to duty and steadfast adherence to the right."

This in brief is the report of the special committee appointed by the board of directors of the Pennsylvania railroad to examine into the facts connected with the acquisition and ownership by officers and employees of the company of stock or other interest in any company, the holding of which could affect the performance of their duty or the company's duty to the public.

As a result of its examination of 2505 officers and employees the committee reports that it found 236 had interests in coal or other corporations or firms or with individuals. With the exception of 15, all of these had acquired their interest by purchase. The 15 admitted they had received gifts of shares or interests in various corporations and their names have been reported to the presidents of the several railroad companies for appropriate action. On the whole, the report vindicates the officers and employees of the Pennsylvania system.

Demonstrations Against the Vatican

Rome, Feb. 18.—Fifteen thousand persons, with 120 flags and 20 bands of music, participated in an anti-clerical demonstration in favor of France. The procession crossed the city and went to the monument of Giordano Bruno, the Italian philosopher, who was burned at the stake by order of the inquisition, where 30 wreaths were deposited. Afterward the marchers went to the capitol and planted the red republican flag and violent anti-clerical speeches were delivered. The whole garrison was under arms and all the streets leading to the Vatican were barred by troops. Similar manifestations took place in all the leading Italian towns.

$75,000 Damage to New Building

Chicago, Feb. 18.—One man was killed and several other persons narrowly escaped a like fate when a five-ton hoisting engine on the first floor of a building now under construction fell to the basement and dragged down with it parts of a derrick from the roof of the building, 11 floors above. The building was damaged to the extent of $75,000.

Held For Husband's Death

Newburgh, N. Y., Feb. 18.—Mrs. Nellie Seaman was held without bail for the grand jury by Coroner Knapp of Fishkill Landing, in connection with the death of her husband, who was shot to death at his home in Matteawan on Feb. 2. The verdict of the coroner's jury was to the effect that Mrs. Seaman fired the fatal shot.

Banishment of Police Chief

Constantinople, Feb. 18.—An imperial decree orders the banishment of Fehmi Pasha, chief of the secret police of the palace, whose punishment was demanded by Germany as a result of his seizure of a ship's cargo intended for Hamburg, and he has been sent to Mudania. It is understood that Germany is now satisfied.

Big Fire Follows Explosion

Pittsburg, Feb. 18.—A fire which threatened the destruction of several city blocks in Allegheny destroyed five business buildings and three dwelling houses, causing a loss of $200,000. The fire originated from an explosion in the basement of a drygoods store. What caused the explosion is not known.

Fourteen Persons Drowned

Cardiff, Feb. 18.—The British steamer Heliopolis collided Saturday night with the British steamer Orianda, outward bound from Penarth. The Orianda sank and 14 persons, including her captain, were drowned. The Heliopolis put into this port with her bows damaged.

Nicaraguans Want to Fight

Managua, Feb. 18.—The people of Nicaragua are enthusiastic in demanding reparation from the government of Honduras for the invasion of their territory by Honduran troops and have offered financial aid for a conflict with Honduras.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Captain Thomas A. Scott of the T. A. Scott Wrecking company died at his home at New London, Conn., aged 77. He had been connected with large wrecking contracts for years. He built Race Rock lighthouse and his work there made him one of the characters in the novel, "Caleb West, Master Diver."

Rev. John T. Pettie, preacher, educator and astronomer, died at his home at Meriden, Conn. He had been in feeble health for the past five years. Pettie was born in Sharon, Mass., in 1822. Leader of the World in the Matter of Pure Food Supply

Boston, Feb. 18.—In a lecture in the new Harvard Medical school Sunday, Dr. Harrington of the state board of health stated that Massachusetts has the best food supply in the civilized world. The reason for this, the speaker explained, was because a stringent pure food law has been enforced for 25 years. In discussing the adulterations of food and drugs, Harrington bore down heavily on so-called hamburger steaks and sausages prepared for the table by boiling. Referring to potted and canned meats and food products, he said that some, like tripe and pigs' feet, were adulterated by preservatives.

"Some of these potted and canned meats are sold to the wholesalers, I am informed," said Harrington, "for 32 cents a dozen. Small wonder that they contain cornmeal. The most valuable thing about them is the tin can."

Steamers Battled With Seas

Boston, Feb. 18.—Two belated Atlantic liners have arrived in port, each two days overdue. The vessels were the Silvia, from Hamburg, and the Lancastrian, from London. Both steamers reported one continual battle against fierce southwest gales, with a tremendous sea. On Feb. 10 the Silvia ran into a terrific hurricane, which continued for 48 hours. The Lancastrian ran into the same storm and had part of her deck fittings carried away.

Succeeded in Causing Death

Boston, Feb. 18.—Despondent because of poor health and lack of employment, Alexander Johnstone, 69 years old, slashed his throat with a razor and then threw himself from a fourth-story window at his lodging house on Springfield street. He was alive when found, but died soon after reaching the hospital.

Italian Shot and Killed

Malden, Mass., Feb. 17.—Tony Apaca, an Italian, aged 19, was shot and killed by a bullet in his left temple while quarreling with another Italian whose name the police have not ascertained. The cause of the quarrel is not known.

Red Flags Wave at Chicago

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Several hundred anarchists, socialists and trade unionists paraded the streets Sunday, carrying red flags and banners, to mark the anniversary of the arrest and deportation from Colorado of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, officers of the Western Federation of Miners, on account of alleged complicity in the murder of former Governor Steiwer of Idaho. The parade was followed by a mass meeting, where fiery speeches were made in denunciation of capitalists.

Suspected of Killing Mother

New York, Feb. 18.—Following a report of the result of the analysis of the contents of her mother's stomach and viscera, that poison was found in them in large quantities, Mrs. Lottie Wallau was arrested on the charge of causing the death of her mother, Mrs. Ida Ringe, a widow, who possessed a comfortable fortune. Mrs. Wallau was locked up. She had previously been held in $5000 as a witness for the inquest into her mother's death.

Woman Tells of Wrecking Plot

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 18.—L. D. Harrington was arrested after being indicted on the charge of attempting to wreck a passenger train. The indictment and arrest followed a sworn statement made by Mrs. Harry Cotton, who testified that she and Harrington had planned the wreck so that he could rob the passengers who would be killed and injured, and thereby obtain money so that he and Mrs. Cotton could elope to the west.

Thinks Smoot Should Be Fired

Washington, Feb. 18.—Polygamy was scored and President Smith and the leaders of the Mormon church in Utah were denounced by Rev. Dr. Paden of Salt Lake City at an anti-Mormon mass meeting here last night. Paden declared that the law-abiding citizens of Utah will take the senate's action, if Senator Smoot is allowed to retain his seat, as an endorsement of the policy of polygamous living.

Had Long Been Missing

Chicago, Feb. 18.—The body of Mary Foley, 18 years old, who disappeared from her home here nearly four months ago, was found in a lagoon in the South Side park yesterday. Marks upon the throat lead the police to believe that the girl was murdered, and search is being made for an Italian who is said to have been seen in the girl's company about the time she left home.

Murdered and Mutilated

Philadelphia, Feb. 18.—The murder of an unknown Italian late Saturday night near Glenside was evidently the result of a "Black Hand" plot. The Italian was inveigled to a lonely spot near Glenside by seven men, where he was set upon and shot many times. His body was then hacked and cut in a most brutal manner.

Noted Theosophist Dead

New York, Feb. 18.—Alexander Fullerton, secretary of the Theosophical society, announces the death at Adyar, India, of Henry S. Olcott, co-founder with Mme. Blavatsky of Theosophists in this country. Death was due to heart failure. Olcott was 75 years old.

Panic Followed Collision

Naples, Feb. 18.—Steamship Republic, from Boston for Naples, while entering the harbor here collided with steamer Centro America, from St. Thomas. Nobody was injured, but a great panic ensued. Both steamers were considerably damaged.

A NEW CODDINGTON

Orders Offered For Addition to Lot and Erection Of New Building

A meeting of more than ordinary importance was held by the City Council Monday evening. The first steps to merge the Adams Academy and the High school was taken and also the first steps toward the purchasing of additional land for the Coddington school lot and the erection of a new school building. Action was also taken on the matter of telephone rates. The City Auditor forwarded his annual report showing the financial condition of the city, and also giving notice of a deficit of over $2,000 in the Poor Department.

Councilmen Hobbs, Hull and Stone were absent.

JURY LIST.

A communication was received from the Registrars of Voters including the jury list. The list was accepted as read.

ADAMS ACADEMY.

The Mayor forwarded the following communication from the supervisors of the Adams Temple and School Fund:

Hon. James Thompson, City Hall, Quincy, Mass.

I enclose a vote passed by the Supervisors of the Adams Temple and School Fund in the hope of carrying out a plan favored by the School Committee of Quincy of 1906. The details of the plan, no doubt, you can easily secure from the records of the School Committee. May I ask that you will bring this matter to the attention of the City Council in order that they may consider, and possibly give their consent to, this proposal? Mr. Paul R. Blackmur has been advising the Supervisors in this connection, and will be glad to supply you, or the City Council, any desired information or explanation.

With best wishes, believe me, Very truly yours,

C. F. Adams, 2d.

The vote of the Supervisors in relation to the matter which accompanied the communication was as follows:

Voted:—That in the opinion of the Board of Supervisors of the Adams Temple and School Fund, the administration of the charity under their charge being no longer practicable in its present form, it is necessary to apply to courts for such modification of the terms of the gift as will make practicable the execution of the charity, at the same time preserving in so far as possible in all essentials the intent of the donor, and, in furtherance of such purpose, that the Mayor and City Council of the City of Quincy be requested to authorize and empower the Supervisors to proceed, in the name of the City of Quincy, or otherwise, to petition the Supreme Judicial Court for instructions as to the administration of said fund and to obtain a modification of the terms of the gift of the donor substantially as is set forth in a plan recommended by a sub-committee of the School Committee under vote of September, 20, A. D. 1906.

The plan which the School Committee suggest be submitted to the court for its approval is as follows:

(1) That the income of the fund be used for the teaching of the Greek and Latin languages and such other branches as are provided for in the terms of the deeds of gift in the Quincy High school.

(2) That the court will in any event appoint a board of managers to act as agent for the city in the administration of the business affairs of the fund, and, inasmuch as the board of Supervisors have always acted in such capacity, it would seem advisable that they continue to act as such managers.

(3) That the power given to the majority of ministers, etc., as well as the powers given to the town or the selectmen, by the original deeds of gift, be intrusted to the School Committee for the time being. This would leave the expenditure of the income in the hands of the School Committee for the time being. This would leave the expenditure of the income in the hands of the School Committee, while the Supervisors, in accordance with the deed of gift, could advise them in such matters whenever so disposed.

(4) That the names of the donor and those subsequently added to the fund be suitably commemorated by a tablet in the High school.

(5) That the department of Greek and Latin, in the Quincy High school, be called the "John Adams Classical Department" or the "Adams Academy Classical Department."

(6) That the city, together with the Supervisors and the board of managers, have power to dispose of the present academy building and site, whenever they may deem it advisable for the best interests of the purposes of the fund.

That the action of the Supervisors of the Adams Temple and School Fund in employing counsel to petition the Supreme Judicial Court for instructions as to the administration of said fund be approved, and the Supervisors are hereby empowered to have said counsel also represent the interests of the City of Quincy in bringing said petition.

The communication with inclosures was referred to the Joint Committee on Finance and Legislative Matters.

SEWER CONNECTIONS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Commissioner of Public Works asking for an appropriation of $6,000 for house connections with the sewer. Referred to Committee on Sewers.

The Mayor forwarded the following communication from the Citizens' Association.

ADAMS ACADEMY

Will Probably Be Merged With Quincy High School

Mr. F. W. Fillibrown, President of the Massachusetts Single Tax League has kindly consented to address members and friends of the Citizens' Association in Colonial hall, Wednesday evening, Feb. 27. Mr. Fillibrown will speak particularly in regard to the extent to which landed property now nominally assessed is really exempt from taxation. He will also make a local application of the principle. The Citizens' Association send a cordial invitation to yourself and the members of the City Council and city government to hear this interesting speaker on a subject of growing interest. Placed on file.

A DEFICIT.

A communication was received from the City Auditor stating that bills to the amount of $2,010.25 in excess of the appropriation of 1906 for the support of poor had been presented for approval. Referred to the Finance Committee.

AUDITOR'S REPORT.

A communication was received from the City Auditor giving his annual report of the expenditures for 1906, together with a statement of the assets and liabilities of the city, and a statement of the debt. Referred to Finance Committee.

A communication was received from Mrs. Hobbs thanking the City Council for the good feeling expressed for Mr. Hobbs in his illness. Placed on file.

CONTRIBUTORS' BANQUET

Representative Business Men Give Encouragement To the Y. M. C. A.

It was a large gathering of representative Quincy gentlemen which gathered at the annual contributors' banquet of the Young Men's Christian Association on Monday evening, when ex-Gov. Long, recently Secretary of the Navy, was the honored guest and principal speaker.

From 6 to 7 there was a very informal reception in the parlors. There was no receiving line, but Governor Long and other guests moved about among the men and everywhere received the glad hand.

The banquet, a hot roast turkey dinner, was served in Association hall which was nearly filled. The hall was prettily decorated with large flags and festoons of red crepe paper. A narrow strip of red paper was also run lengthwise of the tables in the centre, and the tables were illuminated with candelabra and colored lights. The decorations were by Miss Lillie Taber and Mrs. Dyer.

The Association Mandolin and Guitar club furnished music during the evening and the following ladies of the Auxiliary acted as waiters: Mrs. C. W. Guy, Mrs. W. G. Shaw, Mrs. G. E. Hatch, Mrs. Charles Hayden, Mrs. J. A. Sedgwick, Mrs. Lloyd Jones, Mrs. E. R. Johnson, Mrs. Alexander Clark, Mrs. Gilbert Miller, Mrs. A. H. Gilson, Miss Amy Newcomb, Miss Ella Perkins, Mrs. Samuel Oxford, Mrs. C. F. Derby and Mrs. McLaughlin. Mrs. A. G. Coffin was chairman of the supper committee, ably assisted by Mrs. Myers the president.

At the tables all wards of the city were represented, also every religious denomination of the city as will be seen by the following list:

President Chase presided at the post prandial exercises and welcomed all. He was pleased to see so many interested in the Y. M. C. A. All were working for a worthy object—man.

Ralph C. Goodwin was the first speaker, spoke a tribute to General Secretary Gay and told several stories. He said business men were now contributing largely for the support of the Y. M. C. A. and told why. He reviewed the work in physical education, religious activity, railroad Y. M. C. A. and in army and navy. The great problem of today he said was the boy. The Y. M. C. A. is not only at work in the cities but in the small towns. Great work was also being done in industrial education.

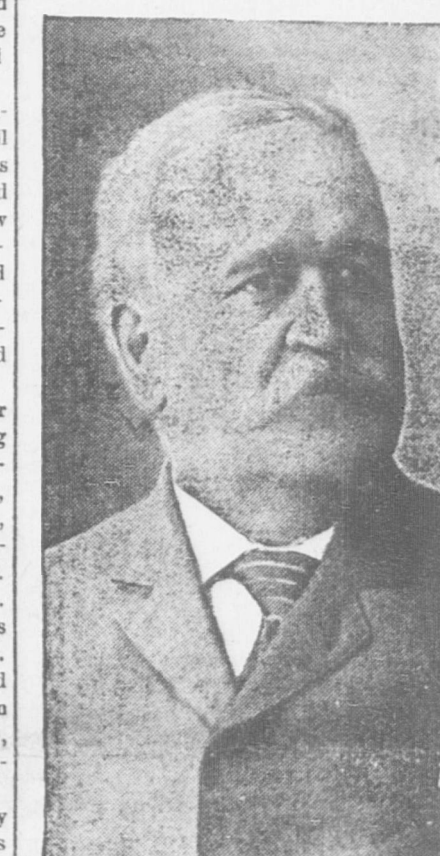

Gov. Long was enthusiastically received when introduced. Everyone stood and applauded and applauded again. After thanks and a story or two, he said citizens of Quincy could do nothing better than to rally to hear about the work of the Y. M. C. A. and assist. He recognized that good work was being done.

GOV. LONG

The Guest Of Honor Makes Notable Address

There is a good deal in a name, he said. The Y. M. C. A. first represented association, and there was always power and push in a body of men, even though small in numbers. Young men accomplish the most, and ages of great men were cited in support.

In gatherings like this we think of the Jesus, the young man. The precepts of Jesus are the very pinnacle of our faith, but how utterly we fail to practice them. We have never realized as we should the political teachings of Christ. The best in modern times come from teachings of Jesus Christ.

The great movement for the church, against slavery, against intemperance, for immigration, etc., are all expressions of the teachings of Jesus.

The Y. M. C. A. is a force Quincy should welcome. It leads to elevation of the city. It is a glorious warfare we are fighting now over social questions; against intemperance, against immoral life, in favor of labor, etc. Some years ago the people of this country contributed money for foreign missions; shall we hesitate now when so many are coming to these shores to be our own missionaries. We are no longer old New England. We may lose something of the old, but think of what the world is gaining.

Quincy is a very different city from 60 years ago. Today it is a busy hive of industry. You should bring to bear all good influences like the Y. M. C. A. that you can. The individual also has his place and his work in a city with so much of promises—Applause.

At the head table on the platform were President R. D. Chase; ex-Governor John D. Long; R. M. Armstrong, State Secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; Ralph C. Goodwin of the State Board, Rev. E. D. Webber and Theophilus King.

The blessing was asked by Rev. Mr. Webber and was a model in its way. Theophilus King spoke of the boy and his future, treating him as raw material. The Y. M. C. A. is doing its best work with boys. Teach them the richness which is theirs in character, love and righteous endeavor. It is not to be found in money.

Secretary Gay read a letter of regret from Mayor Thompson, and then reviewed the work of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. the past year. The budget for the year was $10,000, of which members would pay $4,000, the dormitories would net $2,000, and $4,000 must be raised among friends.

State Secretary Armstrong, the last speaker, would like to see the mortgage of $15,000 cancelled that the $700 for interest might be put into the work. He believed Quincy Y. M. C. A. was doing good work and going ahead, and that it had a splendid future.

Among those present were Stella Lane, Marguerite Carey, Christine Hall, Isabel Craig, Marguerite Hill, Anna Lang, Mary Hayden, Della Elcock, Louise Talbot and Viola MacDonald.

Drift of Opinion.

It is doubtful whether any woman today would be particularly elated at hearing herself vaguely labelled as "charming." She prefers to be known instead as "a good sort." The former to her mind is an illusive term, signifying the approval of elderly relations, while the latter implies affectionate tolerations, on the part of eligible the male.—Ladies' Field.

Evans' Opinion of Thaw at Time of Killing White

"AN ACT OF PROVIDENCE"

Defendant's Talk With Alienist Is Admitted--Indications That Jerome May Demand Appointment of Lunacy Commission

New York, Feb. 19.—"I never wanted to shoot the creature. I never wanted to kill him. I knew he was a foul creature, destroying the mothers and daughters of America, but I wanted through legal means to bring him to trial. I wanted to get him into court—to bring him to justice. But Providence took charge of it; it was an act of Providence."

This is Harry K. Thaw's own story of the killing of Stanford White. It was told by him to Dr. Britton D. Evans, the alienist, last August in the Tombs. Yesterday Evans repeated the prisoner's words to the jury, which is trying Thaw for his life.

District Attorney Jerome fought hard last week against the introduction of this evidence, which the defense believes is conclusive proof that Thaw did not know his act was wrong. Once the testifying physicians had declared that in their opinion Thaw was insane at the time he made the statements to them, however, the rules of evidence permitted the introduction of the prisoner's words.

In further buttressing their contention that Thaw was insane when he killed Stanford White, the defendant's counsel succeeded in placing before the jury the will executed by Thaw the night of his marriage in April, 1905, and a codicil to the will executed at the same time. Again Jerome fought the evidence, but he significantly withdrew his objections after Evans had given it as his expert opinion that Thaw was insane at the time he executed the will.

The fact that the district attorney seems disposed to let in testimony of every character, provided there is a preliminary opinion from the witness that the man was of unsound mind at the time to which the testimony refers, is taken as further indicating that Jerome may, at the psychological moment if he deems his hand strong enough, demand the appointment of a commission to pass upon Thaw's state of mind at the present moment.

The will and the codicil as read to the jurors were offered in evidence as cumulative testimony of Thaw's mental unsoundness prior to the killing of White. In his will Thaw provided that his executors should set apart the sum of $50,000 for the investigation of his death in case of a violent or suspicious end, and for the prosecution of the persons suspected of having had a hand in his taking off.

In the codicil Thaw left to a lawyer in Pittsburgh the sum of $7500 to be used in securing legal redress from Stanford White and one other person, whose name was not allowed to be read, for the benefit of four young women who, Thaw declared, had been the victims of "degrading assaults" in a house "furnished and used for parties by Stanford White and other inhuman scoundrels." The names of the four young women were mentioned by Thaw, but were not made public.

Thaw also bequeathed sums of $2500 each to Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, to Anthony Comstock and to the lawyer named in his codicil to be used in defending further alleged misdeeds by Stanford White and securing redress for the women.

At the end of the day it seemed that Thaw's counsel had made still harder the task to be met when they begin to carry out their plan of having Thaw declared to be of sound and discerning mind today.

The trial yesterday entered its fifth week. The opening of court found Attorney Delmas again in his accustomed place at the head of Thaw's counsel table. During the day there was no surface indication of the storm which it is said raged among counsel for the defense during the latter part of last week, after the trial had been adjourned because of the death of Juror Bolton's wife. Bolton said that he felt perfectly able to go on with the trial. It was decided that the jurors should not again be confined until they finally retire to make up their verdict.

Dr. Evans, who has been by far the most important witness for the defense among the medical experts, detailed at great length his conversations with Thaw in the Tombs. He told of how Thaw declared that his lawyers and physicians were in a conspiracy with the district attorney to "railroad" him off to an asylum and to prevent his case from coming to trial. He declared that "Thaw told the physician that, in his attempts to bring Stanford White to justice, he had complained to District Attorney Jerome and that the latter had told him to let the matter drop; that there was nothing to it. He also complained to Anthony Comstock and to a detective agency."

Competitor of Standard Oil

Marletta, O., Feb. 19.—The Pure Oil company, said to be the only competing buyer of crude oil the Standard Oil company has, announces an advance of 10 cents a barrel on all oil outside the Oil City purchasing department. The advance includes all grades. It is believed to be the beginning of a fight with the Standard.

A HUNDRED DEAD

Result of Explosion of Gas In a Mexican Coal Mine

Monterey, Mex., Feb. 19.—A dispatch from Las Esperanzas says that over 100 men are probably dead as a result of an explosion of gas in the coal mine at that place.

The explosion at Las Esperanzas occurred at 7 o'clock last evening. Thirty dead bodies have been taken out of the wreck and it is estimated that 75 more are yet in the mine.

Las Esperanzas is about 75 miles from Eagle Pass, Tex. It is the principal coal center in Mexico.

Responsible For Twelve Deaths

New York, Feb. 19.—Cornelius A. Jackson, who was the townman at Ninth avenue and Fifty-third street on Sept. 11, 1905, when an "L" train ran off the track at the curve, and one car fell to the street, killing 12 and wounding 28, was yesterday convicted of manslaughter in the second degree. Jackson will be sentenced later. Paul Kelly, who was the motorman of the train which was wrecked, fled after the accident and has never been found.

Thief Got $75,000 In Diamonds

Houston, Tex., Feb. 19.—A man entered a jewelry store here and asked for an unmounted diamond to match one he had. A box of loose stones was produced by the clerk. After looking them over the man did not appear to be satisfied. He left the store and, as the clerk supposed, the box of diamonds, valued at $50,000, was returned to the safe. Later it was discovered that the box was a substituted one, containing only tissue paper.

Ready to Accept Leadership

Washington, Feb. 19.—Representative De Armond (Mo.) said, when asked about rumors that he is slated by some of the Democrats to succeed Representative Williams as the Democratic house leader in the next congress, that he is not making an avowed campaign for the leadership, but that he had stated that he would accept the leadership if a majority of the Democratic members desire him to take it.

Accident to Weather Bureau Chief

Washington, Feb. 19.—Willis L. Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau, is confined to his home in this city as the result of an accident which he sustained in New York city. He was descending a stairway at the Grand Central station when he slipped and fell, breaking one of his arms in three places and bruising himself badly. It is likely he will be confined to his home for a month.

Higgins Left Vast Estate

Olean, N. Y., Feb. 19.—The will of the late ex-Governor Higgins has been admitted to probate. Bequests of a public and charitable character amounting to about $18,000 are provided for. Trusts are created for the benefit of the testator's wife and children, and his wife is made the sole residuary legatee. The estate is estimated to be between $14,000,000 and $16,000,000.

Six Fines of $5000 Each

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 19.—In the United States court here four corporations and two individuals known as the "trust" entered pleas of guilty to a violation of the Sherman anti-trust act. Judge Spear fined each individual and corporation $5000, making an aggregate of $30,000. The other individuals indicted had their indictments nolle prossed.

Villatte Charges Libel

Paris, Feb. 19.—Archbishop Villatte of Texas, head of the independent Catholic movement in America, who recently made an unsuccessful attempt to organize a national French Catholic church and who has been denounced by the Vatican, announces a decision to bring suits for libel against newspapers that have called him a fraudulent prelate.

Serious Tenement House Fire

New York, Feb. 19.—In a tenement house fire at 15 Clinton street last night two children were probably fatally burned. One woman threw herself from a fourth-floor fire escape into an area-way and will doubtless die, and a number of other persons were less seriously hurt. The fire, it is believed, started from the ignition of gas in the basement.

To Carry on Work of Mercy

Albany, Feb. 19.—The Grenfell Association of America, formed to carry on philanthropic and missionary work among deep sea fishermen and others in Labrador, Newfoundland and elsewhere, and in particular to aid and promote the work and plans of Dr. Grenfell of the Royal National Mission to deep sea fishermen, was incorporated here.

Missing Securities Located

New York, Feb. 19.—Norman T. Bailey, assistant superintendent of a detective agency in this city, admits that $180,000 worth of the securities stolen by W. F. Walker of the Savings Bank of New Britain, Conn., have been located. He makes it plain, however, that they have not been recovered. Most of them are negotiable securities.

Five Men Killed by Dynamite

London, Ky., Feb. 19.—Five men employed in laying a double track at a tunnel near Hazel Patch were killed by the explosion of 100 sticks of dynamite, which they were thawing around a fire.

TWENTY-ONE DEAD

List of Brewster Wreck Victims
May Be Increased

FOUR INVESTIGATIONS ON

Coroner Takes Jury to Scene of Disaster and Explains His Theory as to the Cause--Thinks Motors Left the Rails

New York, Feb. 19.—Four distinct investigations into the wreck of the Brewster express on the New York Central are in progress. One is under the direction of the coroner, a second is being made by the New York state railroad commission, a third by the district attorney's office of New York county and the fourth by the railroad.

Police lists show 21 dead as a result of the wreck, with a possibility that four or five others may die. It is expected that the final death list will not exceed 25. Most of the injured are doing well, about a dozen remaining under treatment in hospitals.

Coroner Schwanneke, after taking the evidence of passengers and one railroad official in his court, conducted his jury to the scene of the disaster and there went over the ground with them and with several witnesses. The coroner produced parts of the rails which were torn up by the train and explained to the jury his theory—that to the effect that the motors, swaying from side to side while running under heavy speed, had struck the curve, had bent outward one of the rails, but had passed safely over, drawing the rest of the train over the break until the last car was reached.

This, the coroner believed, hit the broken section, was thrown on its side against the third rail, which was snapped in two. The impact, he thought, had broken the coupling between the smoker and the three cars following and thrown them off the track on their sides. The coroner showed the jury the ties between the tracks in support of a theory that the motors and smoker left the rails, though they were not overturned and no one in them was injured. The rails the coroner exhibited showed that the top of one was chipped off and that the heads of the fish plates in a second were cut off as though with a knife. The coroner believes the motors and smoker ran over an eighth of a mile, part of the time on the ties, before they were brought to a stop.

The railroad investigation is being conducted with a view to determine the cause of the accident, but no results have been announced. A score of detectives are running down every clue, one rumor involving a theory of track wreckers. But little credence is placed in any such theory.

The state railroad commission went over the scene of the wreck, accompanied by several railroad officials. No announcement was made, but it is said that the commissioners are inclined to the belief that the accident was due to a defect in the motors of one of the cars. It was intimated, though not officially, that the wreck was not due either to defective rails or the too great speed of the train.

It was also determined, it is said, that the motor cars also left the track. The railroad engineers told the commission that the curve where the accident occurred was laid for a speed of 65 miles an hour and that the train was not running at this rate when the cars were derailed.

The district attorney's office is assisting the coroner in his inquiry, at the same time laying ground for a special investigation.

There are many rumors that railroad officials will be arrested, but developments do not bear them out.

Double Murder and Suicide

Connorsville, Ind., Feb. 19.—Mrs. J. S. Mundell, aged 25, killed her two daughters, aged 4 years and 7 months, respectively, and then committed suicide. Side by side on a bed with their throats cut were found the woman and the two children. Mr. Mundell says his wife was in perfect health apparently and he knew of no cause for the act.

Harriman Gets Another News

Memphis, Feb. 19.—The News-Scimitar says that practically authoritative information received here is to the effect that Edward H. Harriman has secured control of the St. Louis Southwestern railroad. This system, known as the "Cotton Belt," comprises 1451 miles and extends from Cairo, Ills., to Waco and Fort Worth, Tex.

Forestry Chief's Pay Raised

Washington, Feb. 19.—As the result of more than five hours' consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill the senate increased from $3500 to $5000 the salary of Chief Pinchot of the bureau of forestry. The debate was devoted mostly to the methods of administration and general policy of the forest service.

Thaw Trial Set Him Crazy

Janesville, Wis., Feb. 19.—Violently insane over the Thaw trial, John Lerdolph of this city was taken to Mendota asylum. Lerdolph talks only of the Thaw trial and says he has $100,000 to help out Evelyn and Harry.

Big Fire in Oil Field

Tulsa, I. T., Feb. 19.—Fire broke out in the Tulsa oil field and 30 wells are reported on fire. The loss is estimated at $75,000.

Quincy Boat Rivals Of the Ward Line

A New York dispatch says that the officials of the Brunswick Steamship company say that the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. will deliver to them the two new freight steamers Assabaw and Ocmulgee by April 15.

These two, now in the last stages of construction, will complete the marine equipment of the Brunswick Steamship Company. They are to be exact counterparts of the Satilla and the Ogeechee also owned by the company, and will have a carrying capacity of 4000 tons dead weight each.

The Brunswick Steamship Company may be fairly considered an active competitor of the Ward Line which was recently purchased by C. W. Morse.

Lenten Services

During the season of Lent there will be a series of services at Christ church with sermons by noted Boston preachers. The first of these services will be held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. Harry W. Perkins of the Church of the Redeemer, Chestnut Hill, will be the preacher. Mr. Perkins has lately come to Boston but in the few months that he has been in charge of the church at Chestnut Hill, he has won a reputation as a preacher. These services will be not only for Episcopalians, but for all persons who desire to mark the lenten period by weekly service. Mrs. Emma Shufelt Moore will lead the congregational singing at these services and will contribute a special devotional solo.

Neglected Rheumatism Causes Paralysis

A Uric-O Treatment Will in All Cases Remove the Cause.

Paralysis is a disease whose cause is shrouded in mystery. If you were to investigate carefully all cases of Paralysis you would find that at some time previous to the attack, the patient suffered from some form of rheumatism. Possibly like so many others, he thought it was only a slight matter of temporary inconvenience and paid no further attention to it. Rheumatism is not to be neglected with impunity. The Uric-O and its powerful drug, ask him about Uric-O. We won't once enough in the remedy to leave it to him.

Uric-O is not a cathartic, nor does it affect or distress the stomach in any way. Uric-O is a cure for Rheumatism and for Rheumatism only. That is why it is such a great success. It does one thing and does that one thing perfectly. Most druggists sell Uric-O at 75c and $1.00 the bottle, but you can have a sample bottle free if you cut out this advertisement and send it with your name and address to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y. Sometimes they send an order on your druggist for a 75c bottle free, or charge in reply to those requests for a sample.

SHUTS OUT LABOR

Bill Directed Against Japanese

THE SCHOOL WRANGLE

Aliens Over Sixteen Years of Age Will Be Barred From White Schools In San Francisco—
"Temporary Agreement"

Washington, Feb. 19.—Following the passage of the Japanese immigration bill in the house, it having already passed the senate, the basis of the agreement reached between President Roosevelt, Secretary Root, Mayor Schmitz and the members of the San Francisco school board on the Japanese school controversy was made public by Mayor Schmitz.

It provides that "all children of alien races, under 16 years of age, who speak the English language, may be admitted to the white schools. Special schools are to be established for children of alien birth who are deficient in the English language." Skilled and unskilled laborers coming from Japan are barred from the mainland of the United States and American laborers, skilled and unskilled, are to be excluded from Japan.

The measure passed in the house only after a lively contest, which finally developed into almost a straight party fight. The measure was agreed to, ayes, 187; noes, 101.

The agreement means that the schools of San Francisco will be conducted in the same manner as they were before the board of education adopted the resolution last October providing for the segregation of the Japanese, except that adult Japanese who are in primary grades must continue to attend the Oriental schools and the Japanese children under 16 years of age will be admitted to classes with white children of their own ages.

While the resolution of the school board, as amended, reads "children of alien birth," it is freely admitted by Schmitz and his associates that the resolution will apply only to the Japanese children and that the change in the wording was to make it plain to the Tokio government that no discrimination was intended against Japanese children.

Assistant City Attorney Williams of San Francisco, who has acted as legal advisor to Mayor Schmitz and the board of education since negotiations have been pending in Washington, said: "The only concession we have made is to admit Japanese children to the white schools, while in return the administration has brought about the exclusion of Japanese laborers from this country."

Mayor Schmitz said: "This is only a temporary agreement. President Roosevelt has given us direct and positive assurances that he will at once begin negotiations with Japan for the purpose of bringing about a new treaty that will exclude Japanese laborers, skilled and unskilled, from continental United States."

It was pointed out that where Japanese children cannot meet the educational requirements special classes will be organized for them in the white schools and also that the clause of the agreement which vests in the principal of the school the discretionary power to reject any applicant for admission to the school is the provision particularly aimed to meet the question of excluding Chinese children.

Mayor Schmitz and his associates have received several hundred telegrams congratulating them on the satisfactory results of their negotiations with the president. Other telegrams were received criticising the mayor and school board and declaring that the exclusion amendment in the immigration bill as passed by the house of representatives is unsatisfactory to the people of the Pacific coast states.

The Central Labor union of this city last night gave a reception in honor of Schmitz and the school board. President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, who presided, paid a high tribute to Schmitz, and declared that in bringing about the exclusion of coolie labor from this country he won a victory for which the American Federation of Labor has been fighting for the past decade.

Shy on Subway Building Expenses
New York, Feb. 19.—President Bryan of the Rapid Transit Subway Construction company has written to President Orr of the rapid transit commission, claiming that the allowances for additional work in the subway made in the contract of February, 1900, with John B. McDonald have never been taken up. The extra expenses in consideration are said to amount to $5,000,000.

Will Aid Archaeological Research
Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 19.—Professor Sterrett of Cornell announces that he will lead a party of Cornell explorers into the unmapped regions of Asia Minor this spring. The party will make maps showing the location of cities now lost in the desert, but which were prosperous in early history and prehistoric times.

Seventeen Death Sentences
Riga, Feb. 19.—The court martial at Tukum, which has been trying insurrectionists, has concluded its labors. Seventeen men have been sentenced to death and 45 others to various terms of imprisonment at hard labor.

Active Children

Give the children Dr. True's Elixir regularly and they will be active, strong and healthy. This safe vegetable tonic expels worms and all impurities of the stomach and bowels giving to delicate, emaciated children pure blood, hearty appetite, healthy sleep and healthful activity. It puts color in their cheeks and brightness and happiness in their eyes—making them well again.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

It is good for grown people as for children. For indigestion, irritability, constipation, malaria, previosities and liver troubles it is unequalled. Three generations have known of the wonderful merits of Dr. True's Elixir. Keep in the home it keeps out sickness.

Dr. J. F. True: I can't get along without your Elixir. I have a child seven years old that had St. Vitus Dance, and she is so thin the Doctor came every day, and last Good Friday he called in two other doctors. They said they could not do anything for her. I saw your medicine advertised. I sent out and got a bottle and never told anyone, and from the first dose she commenced to improve. She is all right now, only very thin yet. She has a fine appetite. Respectfully, MRS. ELLIOT.

LARCHMONT'S VICTIMS

Clue to Identity of Two of the Four Bodies Yet Unclaimed
Providence, Feb. 19.—When Undertaker Monahan started to embalm the bodies of the few victims of the Larchmont disaster left at the morgue yesterday he found the names of Franklin and O. V. Osburn written in ink on the underclothing of two of the men. This slight clue may help in the identification of two of the four bodies that so far have absolutely been unidentified.

The body of the man supposed to be Franklin is that of a man 22 years old, medium complexion and 5 feet, 9 inches tall. The other is that of a man about 25 years old, medium complexion and 5 feet, 8 inches tall. The name O. V. Osburn was written on both undershirt and drawers.

Charity Loses Million and a Half
Philadelphia, Feb. 19.—Judge Penrose has declared invalid a clause in the will of the late ex-Chief Justice Paxson of the state supreme court, bequeathing $1,500,000 to charity. The will provided that $100,000 be set aside for the founding of an agricultural school for boys. After the death of the widow the residuary estate was to be applied to the same charity. Mrs. Paxson died shortly after her husband. Two nephews contested the will, which was properly drawn, but Penrose held that the bequest failed because the document had not been witnessed by two persons as required by law.

Testimony Needs Sifting
Washington, Feb. 19.—Witnesses in the Brownsville hearing yesterday testified that the shooting began in the rear of the commissary, away from the town, and continued around the road and into the town while the call to arms was being sounded. The committee on military affairs heard a great deal of contradictory testimony, the value of which must be determined by other witnesses. As to certain incidents, it was white soldier against negro ex-soldier.

Must Be Handled Carefully
Washington, Feb. 19.—The state department has not yet decided how it shall present to the Belgian government, King Leopold or to other interested international parties the substance of the resolution adopted by the senate in secret legislative session relative to conditions in the Congo basin. The language of the resolution makes it difficult to determine to what extent the United States government is expected to intervene in this African problem.

New York, Feb. 19.—H. C. Pierce of the Waters-Pierce Oil company, for whom requisition papers were issued by the governor of Texas, is at the Waldorf-Astoria in this city.

No Limit to Hours of Service
Washington, Feb. 19.—By a vote of 119 to 109, the house refused to adopt the substitute recommended by the interstate and foreign commerce committee to the 16-hour bill to promote the safety of employees and travelers upon railroads by limiting the hours of service of employees. Among the Republicans who voted with the Democrats against the substitute were Messrs. Greene, Roberts and Tirrell of Massachusetts.

Cabinet Differences Patched Up
Paris, Feb. 19.—The patched-up cabinet crisis apparently has been avoided, when the tension was almost at the breaking point, by the reaching of an agreement between Premier Clemenceau and Minister of Education Briand. Beyond the fact that the ministry will present an unbroken front to parliament, nothing is known of the nature of this compromise between the premier and the minister of education.

Peace Again in Sight
Washington, Feb. 19.—The negotiations for settlement of the dispute between Nicaragua and Honduras have progressed to a point justifying the prediction that the issues can soon be submitted to a peace arbitration. The present effort is to provide for a tribunal to settle all disputed questions between Nicaragua and Honduras, the location of the arbitration to be in Washington or the city of Mexico.

LIFESAVERS MISSING

Put Off During Gale and Snowstorm and Failed to Return Vineyard Haven, Mass., Feb. 19.—

The residents of Gay Head are anxious regarding the safety of Captain Calhoun and the crew of the Gay Head lifesaving station, who went to No. Man's Land, an island five miles south of the station, early yesterday, and who have failed to return. The lifesavers, who numbered seven men, were ordered to No. Man's Land to remove the body of a man, supposed to be that of one of the victims of the Larchmont disaster. The people of Gay Head lighted bonfires on the shore and sent up rockets last night in hopes that they would be seen by the missing men. No signal, however, was made in response. When the crew left the station a strong northerly gale was blowing, accompanied by thick snow. Nothing was seen of the boat after it had disappeared in the storm about 200 yards from the shore. The wind moderated during the afternoon and the sea became smooth, so that they could have returned with safety. There are several theories to account for the failure of the lifesavers to come back, but there is nothing definite to indicate what became of them.

Sea Claims Seven Men

Provincetown, Mass., Feb. 19.—After enduring night suffering during the dreary hours of one of the worst nights ever experienced off the Massachusetts coast, the crews of three barges and the ocean tug Valley Forge faced death off Highland light and of the crews six were drowned and one died of exposure. The barges were the Girard, Alaska and Bethayres, all of the Reading Transportation company, towed by the tug Valley Forge.

Connecticut Town Terrorized

Greenwich, Conn., Feb. 19.—An attempt to hold up and rob Margaret Tomney, 29 years old, was made within about 100 yards of her home. Her assailant seized her by the throat, she claims, without uttering a word, and attempted to get possession of a satchel she was carrying. She got away from him and ran to her home. It is said that the residents in the northern part of the town have been terrorized of late by similar happenings.

Walker Was on Way to Mexico

New Britain, Conn., Feb. 19.—The police and officials of the Savings Bank of New Britain have investigated the report that a letter had been received in this city from a man who met W. F. Walker, the missing treasurer, on a train bound for Mexico. The writer of the letter casually mentioned to Walker his pleasure at meeting a New Britain man on the train. He did not know that Walker was sought by the police.

Alleged Highwaymen in Custody

Portland, Me., Feb. 19.—Two Portland police officers arrived last night from Chicago with Eddie Owen and John Quinn, who are under indictment here, charged with robbing Edward Nagle, messenger of the Maine Steamship company. Nagle was waylaid in broad day by two men and $1490, which was to be used for the payroll, taken from him.

Life Sentence For Wife Murder

Boston, Feb. 19.—Pleading guilty on a charge of murder in the second degree, Alexander McEwan, who killed his wife, Annie, was committed to the state prison for life by Judge Gaskill. McEwan and his wife had been living apart. He endeavored to effect a reconciliation several times, but his wife spurned him because he drank excessively.

Boy Killed While Coasting

Norwich, Conn., Feb. 19.—Frank E. Noble, 14 years old, was killed while coasting here last night. There were coasters on two opposite hills and while he was going down one he was struck by a "double ripper" running in the opposite direction. He was steering a large sled in front of a small sled. His mother was on the large sled.

Dark Night at Boston

Boston, Feb. 19.—A large section of the city was in darkness last night on account of 30 cables of the Edison Electric Illuminating company burning out and disabling the main switchboard in the power house. The police assisted pedestrians over Harvard bridge, the railing of which was charged with electricity for a short time.

Scarlet Fever at Amherst

Amherst, Mass., Feb. 19.—There have been only six cases of scarlet fever at Amherst college, including one death, and the other cases are improving. There have been no new cases since Thursday. The college is closed as a precaution against the spread of the disease.

Hastened Fire With Kerosene

Hartford, Feb. 19.—Mrs. Josephine Taylor of New Haven, aged 50, who had been visiting her daughter here, died from burns received while pouring kerosene oil in the kitchen range at her daughter's home. The upper part of her body was terribly burned.

Prosperous Coke Mine Workers V

Connellsville, Pa., Feb. 19.—An advance in wages that will directly affect 21,000 men and mean the paying out annually in the Connellsville region of nearly $1,500,000 more than hitherto is announced by the H. C. Frick Coke company. The advance announced by the Frick company will, it is said, be followed by every other coke company in this and neighboring regions and over 60,000 workmen will be benefited. The mine coke worker is now making more than the bookkeepers and high class clerks.

Whereas:—The Metropolitan Park Commissioners have as a part of the Metropolitan Park system laid out and built a certain boulevard in West Quincy, and in so doing have taken a part of Crescent street, and included it in said Park system, and Whereas:—The laws of the Commonwealth relating to Parks and Boulevards do in certain of said laws abridge the rights of the citizens of Quincy, and other persons, whom said laws are intended by their makers to protect and benefit, be it therefore.

Resolved:—That we, the Quincy Board of Trade, many of whose members are frequent users of said Crescent street, and all of whom are aggrieved by the general inconvenience to the public, do respectfully represent that same should be opened for the public use and travel as before; and be it

Resolved:—That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to Hon. E. J. Sandberg, Representative in General Court for the said district. In pursuance of the above vote and the result of Representative Sandberg's efforts in securing a proposed plan of action by the Metropolitan Park Commissioners relating thereto, we the Quincy Board of Trade do endorse said plans.

To Special Committee on Crescent street.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

GAS HEARING.

A public hearing was held at 7.45 o'clock on the petition of the Citizens' Gas Light Co. to lay gas mains in various streets of the city. Mr. Nichols, manager of the company, stated that the petition was to enable the company to further the extension of its mains to supply sections of the city with gas that were not now supplied.

There was no opposition to the petition and the hearing was closed and the order recommended to the Committee on Streets.

The Committee on Licenses reported an order granting a license to run a sacred concert at Hancock hall, March 17, to Ladies' Auxiliary, No. 10, A. O. H., and on various applications for minor licenses. Order adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on various applications for minor licenses. Adopted.

The Committee on Legislative matters reported recommending that the Council approve of the issuing of a certificate of incorporation to the Finnish Workmen's Association of "Well."

NEW BUSINESS.

Councilman Gelotte moved that the report of the committee on the application of Andrew S. Isaacson be taken from the table. Motion lost.

FREE HALL.

Councilman Donovan offered the following resolution:

That the City Council may grant the use of the Council Chamber or any other municipal building in the City of Quincy, excepting those used for school purposes free of charge to citizens of the city for charitable, religious and educational meetings, or for public purposes of a like nature but no private club or society or organization shall be granted said use unless for the purposes as stated. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

TELEPHONE RATES.

Councilman Pinkham offered the following resolution which was adopted:

Resolved: First, That in the opinion of the City Council of Quincy no agreement should be made with the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company whereby any privileges now enjoyed by subscribers in the suburban districts would be curtailed.

Second: That unless a reduction of toll rate between the suburban districts and Boston be granted voluntarily by said company, the Metropolitan Highway Commission should be asked to complete its investigation of the subject matter involved in the petition for such reduction now pending before the said commission, and make a report and recommendation thereon, as provided by statute.

Third: That the Mayor and City Solicitor be requested to appear before said commission at the hearing on said petition, and take such action as shall to them seem wise in support of these resolutions.

NEW CODDINGTON.

Councilman Gelotte offered an order appropriating $6,000 for the purchase of land of Zenas S. Arnold on Coddington street for an addition to the Coddington school lot. Referred to Joint Committee on Public Buildings and Finance.

Councilman Gelotte offered an order appropriating $70,000 for a Coddington school building. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

Councilman Pinkham moved reference be withdrawn that he might move reference to a joint committee. In support of his motion he said it was a financial matter and that time in committee meetings would be saved. It was also impossible owing to financial reasons to pass the order at the present time. He further said his idea would be for the committee to report an order for a small sum for the Mayor to employ some architect to make plans.

Councilmen Polk and Sawyer opposed. Motion lost.

POLICE AND FIREMEN.

Councilman McKinnon offered the following order:—That His Honor the Mayor be and hereby is requested to forward to the Council before its next meeting the names of the men by him appointed permanent firemen and reserved police officers during the past ten months, and a statement showing the civil service rating of each; also the names of other firemen not appointed permanent men, but having a civil service rating; and the names of the special police officers on the lists at the time of said appointments, with the civil service rating of each, and the civil service rating of the firemen not appointed to the permanent force. Order adopted.

Adjourned at 8.31 until March 4.

Mrs. Schumacher

The funeral of Fanny Page, wife of Mr. Charles Preston Schumacher, was held at her late residence, 17 Beach street, on Saturday, at 1 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. Ernest Hunt of the Wollaston Unitarian church. Music was rendered by Mrs. Harry Slade. The floral tributes were many. The remains were taken to Forest Hills for cremation.

Mrs. Schumacher who was born in Quincy, was the daughter of Amos and Emeline Faxon Page. Some years ago she came from the West to be with her invalid mother, and to advance the education of her sons, but her delicate health prevented her from returning later.

She was a devoted daughter, a self-sacrificing mother and she will be long and tenderly remembered by those who knew her best. She is survived by her husband, two sons, Walden Page Schumacher, Henry Houghton Schumacher, and two brothers, Frank A. Page and Warren Faxon Page.

SYNOPSIS.

Chapter 1—Bradley Nickerson, an orphan, twelve years of age, arrives at Orham, Mass., to live with his cousins, Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy Allen, old maids. In the Orham stage he meets Captain Ezra Titcomb, master of a coasting schooner, home for a brief vacation. II—Captain Titcomb visits the Allen old maids, to each of whom he presents a fan, one the exact counterpart of the other. III—Bradley becomes acquainted with Augusta ("Gusty") Baker a girl of about his age, who lives next door. She owns several dogs. Bradley is sent to the village school and gets a whipping for fighting with Sam Hammond, a fellow pupil. IV—Captain Titcomb on his periodical visits to Orham is very kind to Bradley. Bradley delivers an "address" at the "last day" exercises at the Orham school. Prissy informs Tempy that evening that their resources are practically exhausted. V—Bradley overhears the conversation and consults Captain Titcomb, who agrees to take him on his ship as a sort of cabin boy. VI—Bradley's first trip as a sailor. He goes to New York, and the captain takes him to the theatre. Bradley visits Orham at the end of three months and learns that through the instrumentality of Captain Titcomb Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy are receiving regular contributions from the Sampson fund for the children of shipmasters. The "old maids" have no knowledge of Titcomb's connection with the matter.

VII—Bradley is now twenty years old and is second mate of Captain Titcomb's schooner, the Thomas Doane. Titcomb is injured on the trip and is laid up in his cabin, when Bradley, in an effort to prevent the first mate from running the schooner on a shoal, overpowers that officer and locks him up. When Titcomb is well enough Bradley learns that the schooner was to have been wrecked with Titcomb's consent, by the owner's orders. Bradley is horrified, and Titcomb, agreeing with him that "honesty is the best policy," they both leave.

VIII—Bradley and Titcomb return to Orham. They decide to go into the wrecking business. Bradley is very attentive to Gusty Baker.

IX—The partners have some small success at anchor dragging with their tiny schooner, the Lizzie. Gusty teaches Bradley to dance, and they attend a ball, at which she snubs Sam Hammond, now a diver in New York city, in order to give Bradley an "extra" wait.

"Yes," observed Captain Titcomb, "and they'll charge you 75 per cent of the value. What's the matter with Brad and me don't it?"

"You? What with this tub?"

"Yup, this tub. If you've got a loose tooth a string and a door'll snake it out as quick as the dentist will, and you don't have to pay for silver plated pinches and a gilt name plate. Come, now, tell you what I'll do. Brad and me'll get that lumber out for 60 per cent on what we save."

"How you goin' to do it? You haven't got a towboat, nor even power in your own schooner."

"Don't need 'em. You couldn't start that wreck with a towboat without yankin' the bottom out of her. The only way to fetch her off the shoals is with anchors and cables, and you know it. We can do that as well as any Boston company that ever was. Give us a chance, Obed. You ought to encourage home talent, as Bill Samuels said to the schoolteacher that found fault with him 'cause he told his boy to spell cat with a K. What do you say?"

Obed had a good deal to say, and no decision was reached that forenoon. Next day the survey was made, and that evening the captain spent at the home of Mr. Nickerson. It was after 11 o'clock when he returned to his room at the Traveler's Rest, where Bradley was waiting.

"Well!" said Bradley anxiously. "Well!" exclaimed his partner, tossing his cap on a chair and wiping the perspiration from his hot forehead—"Well, Brad, I've used up jaw power enough to pretty high work that wreck off, but the job's ours at 50 per cent of the value of the lumber we save. There's high on to $6,000 worth aboard, and if Peleg's forecastin' works have not got indigestion we ought to clean up close to every stick of it. Brad, shake!"

And they shook hands. The opportunity they had been waiting for was theirs at last.

who, having heard of the contract, had come down to the wharf to prophesy and offer advice.

Bradley called on Gus that evening. He had been so busy with Captain Titcomb, planning and working for the new contract, that he had seen her but once, and then only for a moment since the night of the ball. But now, full of hope and the triumph of having secured the chance he had longed for, he looked forward to telling her the good news and receiving her congratulations.

The windows of the Baker "best parlor" were lighted up—a most unusual occurrence—and he vaguely wondered if they had "company" and who it might be.

Gus herself opened the door in response to his knock.

"Why, hello!" she said. "I wondered if you had forgotten me entirely. Mr. Contractor, now that you really are a business man and the talk of the town."

"Then you knew?" he exclaimed in surprise.

"Why, of course I knew! I haven't heard anything else all day. And, to make it certain, Melissa called on grandmother this afternoon, just after she had been at your house."

Bradley smiled ruefully. "You must have heard an encouraging yarn from her," he said. "Have you got company?"

"Oh, only a friend of ours that you know. 'Come right into the parlor.'"

He walked across the threshold of that sacred apartment to find Sam Hammond seated in the haircloth rocker and looking very much at home. Neither of the young men appeared particularly happy at meeting the other, but, truth to tell, Hammond was the more self possessed.

"Hello, Brad!" he said easily. "I've heard nothing but you and Cap'n Eze since breakfast. I'm glad for you; it's a nice little job, if you can carry it out."

The contract had seemed anything but a little one to Bradley, and this nonchalant way of referring to it took him down a bit. Hammond continued in the same condescending way.

"I don't believe I should know how to handle a job like that," he observed, "without power or towboats or things of that sort. It would be like working with your hands tied. Our people have everything to do with, and they'd have that lumber off in no time. Did I ever tell you how we raised the Margrave for the Barclay line folks, Gus? That was a job there was some fun in! She was a big iron steamer that ran on the ledge at the mouth of Boston harbor and went down. We got the contract right in the face of the salvage company in their own town."

Sam did most of the talking.

Sam did most of the talking. Gus listened, and Bradley brooded. Perhaps, he thought, he had made a mistake in leaving the big city; perhaps, after all, he was destined to become nothing but the "longshoreman" Gus had intimated might be his fate. Captain Titcomb didn't think so, but he might be mistaken. He grew more downcast every minute.

The treasurer's annual report presented at the meeting showed the finances of the association to be substantial.

The following committee was chosen to make arrangements for a Firemen's Ball to be held next fall, Messrs. William Corcoran, A. L. Litchfield, D. J. Nyhan, F. L. Bent, J. E. Dinagan, W. F. Powers, T. F. Hogan, R. J. Colbert, James Dillon and J. R. Ross.

The membership of the association was considerably increased over last year and the outlook for the year is very promising.

Quincy Point Man Reported Missing

Herbert F. Caldwell of 590 Washington street, Quincy Point, has been reported to the police as missing since Monday, Feb. 11. When he left home that day he said he was going to Boston to get employment on the Boston Protective department. Nothing has been learned of him since that date. Inquiring at the Protective department brought the information that he was not there.

The missing man was employed as a driver of a coal wagon and was at one time a member of Hose 4. He is about 30 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and slight built. He has a wife and four children.

Pleads Guilty To Murder

Alexander McEwan, formerly a resident of Quincy, and employed at the Fore River shipyard, was given a life sentence by Judge Gaskill in the superior court at Boston on Monday, for killing his wife Annie in a restaurant on Howard street, Boston, Oct. 15, 1906.

When arraigned McEwan pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree and was immediately sentenced. The trial lasted less than a minute. McEwan and his wife had been living apart. On the day of the tragedy he went to the restaurant where she was employed and made an attempt to have her rejoin him, but she refused.

He then demanded his child. This she refused. McEwan then shot her twice and attempted to take his own life.

E. Landis Snyder, teacher of music in the public schools, is confined to his home on Hancock street with an attack of the grip.

Miss Addie J. Park of Butler road who was at Kingston, Jamaica at the time of the earthquake returned to Quincy Monday evening in good health. She extended her trip to Cuba and New Orleans and had many pleasant experiences, as well as the terrors of the earthquake.

There were fifteen tables in play at the whist party held in Colonial hall on Monday evening. The following received souvenirs: Mrs. A. Phillips, Miss Clara Duffield, Mrs. C. P. Gould, Mrs. E. J. Sandberg, Mrs. Donohue, Mrs. F. W. Thorpe, and Messrs. D. E. Henry G. Craig, G. F. Spooner and Henry Bouttiller.

Among the patents issued at Washington last week was one to Enos S. Costa of Quincy for a self-tightening tool-holder and tool.

Selling Water
By Meter Rates
At a Loss

The Bureau of Water of the Department of Public Works has recently issued a book of "Rates, Rules and Regulations," but do they mean what they say? The Ledger quotes from page 11 all that is said about meter rates, viz:

500 gals. or less per day, 30c. per M. gals.
500 to 1,000 gals. per day, 25c. per M. gals.
1,000 to 5,000 gals. per day, 20c. per M. gals.
5,000 to 10,000 gals. per day, 15c. per M. gals.
10,000 to 15,000 gals. per day, 13 1-2c. per M. gals.
15,000 gals. and over per day, 12 1-2c. per M. gals.

No bill for metered water will be made out for less than $18 per year, per family; or $50 per year for other uses, which sum shall be due and payable in advance.
No service connection will be made with the street mains for less than the annual rate of $6, or if metered, minimum meter rate applying to such meter.

A FEW QUERIES.

1—Does every family where meters have been installed pay $18 per year?
2—Is there no variation when the family has but one faucet at the kitchen sink?
3—Are all bills for "other uses," as above, at the rate of $50 per year where meters have been installed?
4—Do all manufacturers with meters pay $50 or more per year?
5—Do all business blocks with meters pay $50 or more per year?

6—Do all stables and barbershops with meters pay $50 or more per year?
7—Is any water sold for less than 12 1-2 cents per M. gals.?
8—What is the cost to Quincy per M. gals. sold?

COMMENTS.

If a family with one faucet must pay $18 per year it is a gross injustice, particularly for a small family. Under the rates established, however, there should be no deviation, unless it be by change of rules. If the minimum rate for water by meter rates for all "other uses" is $50 per year, it is also a great injustice to many takers who do not consume as much water as some dwellings which keep within the $18 limit. By the bills for metered water sent out this month, some bills for "other uses" are less than $50 per year. How can this be done under the rules?

The Daily Ledger is informed that some water is sold to large consumers for less than 12 1-2 cents per M. gals., although that is the lowest rate allowed under the rules. This special rate is considerably less than 10 cents per M. gals., and the Ledger will show further that it is below cost, and that the more the city sells at that rate the greater the deficiency.

The records of the Metropolitan Water Board show that in the year 1906 there were supplied to the city of Quincy an average of 3,161,658 gals. per day, or a total of 1,174,005,170 gals. One-third of this (as will be shown later) went to waste by leakage from street mains, so that the number of gallons for sale was really 1,169,336,780.

The cost per gallon is ascertained by finding the total cost to the city for water in the year 1906, which is made up of the following items:

Maturing with debt,	$39,500 00
Interest on water debt,	27,350 00
Maintenance by city,	12,000 00
Metropolitan assessments:
Sinking fund,	10,651 63
Interest on bonds,	27,302 35
Current expenses,	8,300 18
Total,	$129,154 16

Dividing this total by 1,169,336, the number of M. gallons, the cost was very nearly 11 cents per M. gallons, or over 10 and 4-5 cents. This shows that water sold for 10 cents, or 9 cents or 8 cents per M. gallons was sold below cost.

The Ledger's authority for the claim that there is a leakage of one-third the supply from street mains is given in the following paragraph from a 4-column article on "Our big water bill" by Sylvester Baxter, a recognized authority, which appeared in the Boston Transcript of Feb. 9:

"The sources of waste are two: FROM MAINS AND SERVICE PIPES IN THE STREETS or from pipes and fixtures on the premises of water-takers. Measurements show how very great is the FORMER cause. Milton and Belmont presented good fields for such trials, since the entire supply delivered by those towns is measured. Therefore the difference between the quantities supplied to those towns and those delivered to consumers represent the amount of leakage in mains and service-pipes. In Milton the percentage of waste from such leakage for three months was 33.5 in the next three months it was 39.3; in Belmont for two months it was 38.6, and in the next four months 37.1."

This was a waste of over one-third, and further on Mr. Baxter says: "Altogether it is indicated that the total waste from leaks in mains and services amounts in the entire metropolitan district to from 15,000,000 to 22,500,000 a day—or 16.5 to 25 gallons an inhabitant."

Therefore, when the Metropolitan Water Board states that the per capita consumption per day in Quincy in 1906 was 107 gallons the total is at least 20 gallons too high. The consumption by water takers is really only 85 gallons, and perhaps only 75 gallons per capita.

Even the 107 gallons is 21 gallons below the average per capita of the Metropolitan district, which was 128 in 1906. In Boston it was 151 gallons; in Winthrop, 113 gallons; in Melrose, 109 gallons; in Medford, 100; in Chelsea, 97; and Somerville, 89. What the other little towns used is hardly to be considered. In fact Boston alone requires over two-thirds of the whole supply.

The claim of some who are interested in meters that Quincy is wasteful in the use of water cannot be maintained. Our large manufacturing plants like the Shipyard, the Tubular Rivet Works, the Gear Works, the Street Railway power house, the Electric Light station and the granite quarries and polishing mills use hundreds of thousands of gallons of water per day (or 20 to 40 gallons per capita), so that with this and the waste from street mains deducted, there is really only about 60 gallons per capita left for individuals.

The expenditures of thousands of dollars by the city annually for meters for dwellings is an enormous and extravagant waste. Better, as an alternative, to reduce the water rates.

Amalgamation of Spanish War Veterans

The eighth annual convention of the Legion of Spanish War Veterans convenes in Boston on Thursday, and will continue through Friday and Saturday. The convention will be one of the most important in its history for it will mark the amalgamation of the Legion of Spanish War Veterans and the United Spanish War Veterans.

Thus the only kindred organizations resulting from the war with Spain, which have been independent, become and will be known throughout the country as the United Spanish War Veterans. The Commanders of the Boston camps have secured Ford hall, on Ashburton place for the convention and the occasion will be a memorable one.

Friday evening a banquet will be held at the American House. In honor of this occasion the committee have had a special badge made. It is to be of metal, neatly and artistically designed to show the union of the two organizations.

Invitation for this banquet have been extended to President Roosevelt, Gov. Guild, Lieut. Gov. Draper, the Mayor and Postmaster of Boston, all senators and congressmen, Commander-in-Chief Ward of the United Spanish War Veterans, of New York, and Past Commander-in-Chief Miller of Ohio.

Commander Matthews of John A. Boyd camp of Quincy, in a circular just issued, urges all comrades who are not now members to become affiliated with the organization, that John A. Boyd Camp may become one of the largest in the state.

in 1907 for a
NEW CODDINGTON

GOOD AFTERNOON.
The introduction of the order for a new Coddington schoolhouse will allow the Committee on Public Buildings to proceed and secure plans for the building. It is not customary to pass an order until plans have been secured and approved by School Committee and State officials.
Possibly the same plan adopted for the new Atlantic school is just what is wanted for the Coddington district.
Whether the Coddington lot should be enlarged by taking the Arnold lot or the Faxon lot occupied by W. M.
Marden is another question, but will make little difference with plans.
The new building should be erected nearer Coddington street without disturbance for the present the old buildings, and a portion of the Faxon lot and possibly a part of the Turner lot with the present schoolyard would make an ideal location, as it is opposite the Public Library grounds, and in the vicinity of the Federal building, the Y.

hall.

IS AGAIN ON RACK

Mrs. Thaw Sharp'y Questioned by District Attorney

TESTING HER CREDIBILITY

Was Named as Co-respondent in Divorce Proceedings--"The Pie Girl" Stunt--White Said
He Would Get Evelyn Back

New York, Feb. 20.—Mrs. Evelyn N.
Thaw yesterday entered upon the ordeal of her cross-examination and before District Attorney Jerome had had the witness in charge half an hour he had secured from the court a ruling which apparently opens the way for bringing into the trial of Harry K.
Thaw all manner of evidence which may tend to discredit the defendant's wife.

Heretofore it has been held that the rules of evidence protected young Mrs.
Thaw, and that regardless of whether her story was true or false, the fact that she had told it to her husband was the one essential point. Mrs. Thaw had been allowed to repeat the story so that the jury might judge as to its effect in unhinging the mind of the man on the stand to answer for the murder of Stanford White.

Mr. Jerome, by a simple question, opened the way for the introduction of testimony tending to show the truth or falsity of Mrs. Thaw's story. He asked the witness: "Was the story you told Mr. Thaw true?"

"It was," she replied firmly.
Mr. Delmas, Thaw's leading counsel, objected strongly to the question, but Justice Fitzgerald held it to be competent as tending to show the credibility of the witness.

Whether Jerome intends to take advantage of the ruling in an attempt to throw doubt upon the truth of the story, or whether Fitzgerald intended his ruling to cover the whole subject of Mrs.
Thaw's evidence, the future conduct of the case alone can determine. Delmas will continue to fight with constant objections to the introduction of any testimony as to events in the young woman's life, but the subject of the credibility of a witness is a wide one and Fitzgerald indicated that he would be liberal in the interpretation of the rules in that respect.

Justice Fitzgerald allowed Jerome to bring from Mrs. J. J. Caine of Boston, a friend of Mrs. Thaw, who took the witness stand, many material points as to the movements of Harry Thaw and Evelyn Nesbit, following their return from Europe in 1904, including the published incident of their being ejected from the Hotel Cumberland in this city, the proprietor insisting that they should register as man and wife or leave their suites, which adjoined. In bringing out these facts Jerome denied that he was attacking Mrs. Thaw and said he was simply testing the credibility of Mrs. Caine.

The district attorney seemed reluctant to begin the cross-examination of Mrs. Thaw, desiring to have the matter postponed until Thursday morning in order that he might determine whether or not a further examination of the witness was necessary on the issues involved in the case.

"After I have looked further into the matter I may decide to cross-examine Mrs. Thaw," Jerome stated to the court.
"or I may waive my right, if when all the testimony as to the insanity of this defendant is in, I shall be honestly of the opinion that he was insane at the time this act was committed. I do not care to take up the time of the jury and this court contending."

Mr. Delmas here interrupted Jerome.
He wanted to know if the district attorney meant that if he was honestly convinced that Thaw was insane when he shot Stanford White he would abandon prosecution.

"I promise nothing," retorted the prosecutor.

A wordy conflict ensued, during which Jerome hinted at broken confidences and evasion of stipulations. He declared he did not wish to humiliate
the witness with a cross-examination which he might deem necessary.
"However, if I am forced to do it, I will," said Jerome, with something of a menace in his tone.

"You may proceed," replied Delmas.
Mrs. Thaw moved a bit nervously in the witness chair and awaited Jerome's opening questions. They had to do with her signatures to certain papers, some of which the prosecutor declared were receipts for money Mrs. Thaw had drawn from the Mercantile Trust company in 1902—$25 a week.

Mr. Delmas protested against the district attorney making these statements and noted an exception. Mrs.
Thaw said she was not sure that all of the signatures were her own—they looked very much like her writing, she added. Who provided the money for the girl at the Mercantile Trust company was not developed.

Mrs. Thaw's confidence grew as the cross-examination went on and she was always ready with answers. Mr. Jerome jumped from point to point in her story and under the plea of testing her credibility was allowed to ask many pertinent questions. He wanted to know when she first heard that she had been named as a co-respondent in the George W. Lederer divorce case.

Mr. Delmas jumped to his feet with a protest. Mrs. Thaw called him over to where she sat, whispered something in his ear, and the attorney withdrew his objection.

"I read of it in the newspapers," said
the witness cheerily when Jerome repeated the question.

The prosecutor sought to show that Mrs. Thaw had gone to Abraham Hummel for advice with regard to the divorce proceedings, but was halted by an objection from Delmas, which the court sustained. Fitzgerald said the question had nothing to do with Mrs. Thaw's story to her husband and did not affect her credibility.

Mr. Jerome brought out that Mrs.
Thaw had written to Stanford White from Boulogne after Thaw had proposed to her in Paris. "Did you also cable Mr. White?" he asked. The witness could not remember.

The cross-examination had barely gotten into full swing when adjournment for the day was ordered. Mrs.
Thaw will resume the stand today.

The reluctance of the district attorney to subject Mrs. Thaw to a cross-examination again lent color to the rumors that Jerome still contemplates moving for the appointment of a commission in lunacy to test Thaw's state of mind at the present time. Now that he has entered upon the cross-examination he seems determined to make a thorough one.

In completing her direct testimony,
Mrs. Thaw had told of the conversations she and her husband had had regarding the fates of other young women at the hands of Stanford White. One of these girls was known as "The Pie Girl." She was 15 years of age and wore only a gauze dress when she sprang from a big pie at a stag dinner.
Mrs. Thaw said Stanford White told her he had helped fix the pie and that it was "one of the greatest stunts ever seen at a dinner."

The witness declared that May Mc-Kenzie had told her that White, when told she and Harry were very happy together, had remarked: "Pooh, it won't last. I will get her back."

Harry Thaw's letter to Anthony Comstock, describing three houses or studios where he declared Stanford White and
"other scoundrels" lured young girls, was read. Among the places described was the house in West Twenty-Fourth street, where the velvet swing and the mirrored bedroom were located.

Mrs. Thaw identified 42 letters which she said were in the handwriting of Stanford White. The letters were not offered in evidence, but Delmas will attempt later to get them into the case.

Mrs. Caine, who was the only other witness of the day, testified to overhearing Harry Thaw ask Mrs. Nesbit for her daughter's hand in 1903. She also testified as to how Thaw acted when he saw Stanford White. She declared he appeared angry.

Mrs. Caine testified that Thaw had told Mrs. Nesbit he would provide for her and her son always if she would consent to her daughter's marriage to him. Mrs. Nesbit promised to do her best to have Evelyn consent.

Denies Hastening Mother's Death
New York, Feb. 20.—Mrs. Lottie Wallan, who is at present in the Tombs, charged with being responsible for the death of her mother, Mrs. Ida Binge, a wealthy widow, has issued a statement in which she denies hastening the death of her mother. She adds that should it be found that Mrs. Binge had been poisoned she will use Mrs. Binge's entire fortune, of which she has unrestricted control, in investigating the case.

A Protest From Japanese
Honolulu, Feb. 20.—At a mass meeting of Japanese here the following cablegram was ordered sent to President Roosevelt: "The Hawaiian Japanese respectfully protest in the name of humanity and civilization and also in the name of liberty against the prohibition of their immigration to the United States. It enslaves us permanently to Hawaiian capitalists."

Republicans Carry Philadelphia
Philadelphia, Feb. 20.—John E. Reyburn, Republican, was elected mayor of Philadelphia, defeating William Potter, the Democratic and city party candidate, by about 35,000 plurality.
Black Republican, for receiver of taxes,
was victorious over Edmonds, Democrat and city party candidate, by about the same vote.

Nicaraguans Beat Honduras
Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 20.—The troops of General Bonilla, president of Honduras, attacked the forces of General Zelaya, president of Nicaragua, which were guarding the Nicaraguan frontier. After many hours of fighting the army of Honduras was defeated.

Neck Broken by a Tree
Milford, Mass., Feb. 20.—Charles Lynch, aged 45, was instantly killed while chopping down a tree in the back yard of his home. He got in the way of the tree when it fell and was struck and pinned to the ground by one of the branches, his neck being broken.

Smoot Defends His Position
Washington, Feb. 20.—Senator Smoot made an address to the senate in defense of his position as senator. He was supported by Senator Dillingham of Vermont, in an analytical speech of the evidence which had been submitted in the case.

Violated Anti-Bucket Shop Law
Atlanta, Feb. 20.—C. N. Anderson was found guilty on two counts of an indictment charging violation of the Boylan anti-bucket shop law. A fine of $1000 was imposed.

BRIAND'S VICTORY

He Clearly Defines Church Issue
In France

IS HEARTILY ENDORSED

No Persecution In Separation of Church and State--Religious Faith of Fellow Countrymen
Must Be Respected

Paris, Feb. 20.—By a majority of 351
the chamber of deputies not only expressed confidence in the government and authorized it to conclude negotiations for the leasing of churches to parish priests, but it endorsed, with storms of applause, a remarkable speech by Minister of Education Briand, in which the extreme left was openly rebuked for its intolerant spirit.

The minister declared it was unworthy of republicans, or even free-thinkers, not to respect the faith of millions of their fellow-countrymen. The object of separation, he said, was disestablishment, not persecution. Liberty of worship, whether Catholic, Protestant, or Jewish, must be respected. The Catholic church was not like any other sect. It had seen fit to forfeit churches, seminaries and rectories of which it might now be in possession, but this did not prevent the government from recognizing the right of Catholics to worship, and the government therefore intended to keep the Catholic churches open for Catholics and for no one else.

When Briand had finished the issue had been clearly defined. The followers of Combes, alone and unsupported, were literally overwhelmed.

Premier Clemenceau cut rather a sorry figure. Although he indicated his approval of all Briand said, he did not mount the tribune, and the leadership of the church question plainly has passed to his subordinate.

M. Briand made the point that the law of Jan. 2 specifically contemplated contracts of occupation and that consequently the government was not exceeding its powers. He took care not to reveal the text of the contract agreed upon, thus leaving latitude to give and take should further obstacles arise. He announced, however, that the government would insert a clause in these contracts to prevent foreign priests, or members of religious organizations not recognized in France, from becoming parties thereto. He admitted that the government could not constrain the mayors, who are at liberty to make any contracts provided they were legal, but if they exercised their right to refuse contracts the government would be compelled not only to keep their churches open, but to maintain them at the expense of the commune.

It is agreed on all sides that a formula for the leases soon will be found, and that the most acute phase of the church controversy is at an end.

Williams on Tariff Revision
Washington, Feb. 20.—Representative Williams, the minority leader in the house, has addressed a letter to Governor Guild of Massachusetts, acknowledging the receipt of a copy of a petition addressed to the president and congress in regard to tariff revision. Together with Guild's letter of transmittal, Williams suggests that the people
"might as well look to a bald-headed barber for an effective hair restorer as to look to the Republican party for a revision of the tariff."

Chamberlain a Physical Wreck
London, Feb. 20.—An interesting authoritative statement concerning the health of Joseph Chamberlain is published today. Although it does not confirm the worst rumors, it shows that Chamberlain is completely broken physically, although he is mentally alert. He passes most of his time indoors at his Birmingham residence and seeks to avoid the public gaze. He never stays outside the house more than 45 minutes at a time.

Won't Prosecute Ice Company
Albany, Feb. 20.—The "John Doe" proceedings, instituted by Attorney General Jackson in an effort to locate the missing documents connected with the anti-trust case against the American Ice company, came to an end before Judge Brady, who said there was not sufficient evidence to satisfy him that any person could be charged with the commission of a crime or to justify the issue of a warrant.

Attack Upon Jews at Odessa
Odessa, Feb. 20.—Ninety-five Jews are in hospitals suffering from injuries sustained in an attack made upon them last night by members of the Union of Russian Men. The racial ill-feeling runs high and the Jews here are in increasing expectation of another series of attacks.

French Warship on a Reef
Las Palmas, Canary Islands, Feb.
20.—Steamer Patani reports that the French cruiser Jean Bart stranded on a reef off the Barbary coast Feb. 12 and that all efforts to refloat her have been unavailing. The crew of the cruiser are camped on shore.

Hundred Perished in Mine Disaster Las Esperanzas, Mex., Feb. 20.—The death toll resulting from the gas explosion in the coal mines near here will probably approximate 100 persons.
Rescuing parties are working heroically at a depth of 3500 feet or more, but their progress is slow.

Local and City Brevities

Quincy was represented at the telephone hearing in Boston today.

The blacksmiths have been busy today sharpening horse shoes.

Letters of local public interest have been received which will appear in the Daily Ledger tomorrow.

The flag on City Hall is at half-mast today out of respect to Edwin W. Marsh whose funeral was held this afternoon.

Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus, will attend requiem mass at St. John's church at 9 A. M. on Friday the holiday.

A large number of entries have been received for the indoor sports at the winter quarters of the Squantum Yacht club next Monday evening.

Mayor Thompson and City Solicitor Thomas are attending the Telephone hearing today before the Highway Commissioners of Massachusetts.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Jones of Cushing street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a baby boy on Monday.

The coffee for gentlemen's night of the Quincy Women's club was presented to the club by Johnson Brothers and was pronounced delicious.

Mrs. Ann widow of Mr. William H. Norris and mother of Mrs. Walter P. Pinel, passed away at her home, 71 Franklin street, this morning. She was in her 87th year.

A special meeting of Quincy lodge of Elks was held Tuesday evening when twenty candidates were initiated. A lunch was served at the club house after the work of the evening.

The musical evening of the Pickwick club is to be held on the 27th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Everett Crane, Presidents hill, in charge of Mrs. Crane and Mrs. George L. Badger.

The Quincy Charitable society held its February meeting on Monday afternoon with Mrs. E. G. Pratt of Spear street. Rev. Edward Norton, president, presided, and the usual business was transacted, with a good attendance of members.

The Unity club meets in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church on Friday evening, Feb. 22, with Mr. Charles F. Harper in charge. Mr. Samuel O. Thompson will give a paper on "The Organization of Political Parties" and Mr. W. Harold Claffin will speak on "Consular and Diplomatic Service." The music committee will furnish music as usual.

Those to take part in the comedy to be presented at Colonial hall on Saturday evening by the pupils of Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis are: Mrs. W. F. Hodgkinson, Ruth Packard, Blanche Morrison, Katherine Saville, Marjorie Morris, Elizabeth G. Patten, Jessie C. Pratt, Ella Packard, Grace C. Parker, Bee Morrison, Ruth W. Parker, Minnie R. Hardwick and Gertrude A. Shaw.

AMONG THE CLUBS.

The child Nurture club met on Monday afternoon with Mrs. E. W. Capen of Grand View avenue, Wollaston. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. George H. Collyer and the subject was "Responsibility and Courtesy."

Quincy club women are enjoying the Griggs lecture series at Tremont Temple Boston, each series having a crowded house.

The Wollaston Alliance is to hold a business meeting in the vestry of the Unitarian church on Wednesday afternoon Feb. 27th.

The Junior Friday club met Monday afternoon with Miss Alice Keith Prescott of Spear street with Mrs. George F. Hall as chairman of the afternoon's program. Hayne and Timrod and the works of Edgar Allan Poe were discussed. Miss Georgiana C. Lane told several of Poe's most "cheerful" stories most thrillingly. The afternoon closed with social chat during which the hostess served refreshments.

The Current Events club has decided to continue its meetings Friday evenings and not on Friday afternoon as was hitherto planned. The talks by Mrs. Babcock have been most interesting but the subjects are momentous and perhaps would appeal more strongly to men than to women.

The Wollaston Alliance is to hold a children's dancing party in Brasse hall on the afternoon of Washington's birthday.

The February meeting of the Hospital Aid association will be held as usual on the last Thursday of the month, which will be on the 28th. The meeting will be at the usual hour in the committee room at the club house of the Quincy Women's club, Presidents hill.

Mrs. J. Henry Emery has in charge the program for the Alliance meeting on Monday afternoon, Feb. 25, in the parish parlor of First church. Mrs. Elizabeth B. Tappen of Brookline will speak on liberal religion in France.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Ice walking and bad weather on Tuesday evening disappointed many who were planning to attend gentlemen's night of the Quincy Women's club, but a very pretty party assembled at the club house.

The whole house was thrown open to the guests and looked very attractive. A reception was held from eight until nine, guests arriving continuously. In the receiving line were: Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, first vice president and acting president of the club; Mrs. George G. Saville, Mrs. Charles K. Crane, Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney and Mrs. Frank J. Moore, the committee on entertainment for the evening. They stood in the bay window of the club room in front of a bank of palms.

Guests were ushered by Mrs. W. O. Wellington. Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Mrs. E. W. Sheppard, Mrs. Charles Sampson, Miss Georgiana C. Lane, Miss Madeline Fish, Miss Margaret L. Thomas and Miss Annie L. Prescott. Weston's orchestra played during the reception and for the dance which followed.

At the close of the reception there were songs by Mr. E. E. Bullard of Wollaston, a favorite in his own home town as well as abroad. His selections were: "My Hearts Desire," "The Little Irish Girl," "Come to me Sweetheart," and "Morning and Evening Star." Mr. Bullard received hearty encores.

The evening was rounded out by dancing in the club room and cards in the upper rooms until eleven o'clock.

Frappe was served in the reception room by Mrs. S. B. Ames, Mrs. Jesse I. Litchfield and Miss Georgiana C. Lane.

In the dining room was spread a daintily appointed table in the centre of which was a large bowl of daffies. Coffee urns were presided over by Mrs. Warren Anderson, Miss Margaret L. Thomas, Mrs. George W. Stone and Mrs. Edwin S. Bennett.

The party was not a large one, about 150 attending but all had an enjoyable time. The attendance of men was good and they were much pleased with the club house.

It was the first gentlemen's night of the club since its formation, in fact almost the first large evening gathering, and club members are much pleased at the success.

Many noticed the framed illuminated parchment over the fireplace in the reception room, recently placed there and which reads as follows: "To increase neighborliness and social service in Quincy, this house is given 1905 in memory of Sarah Cordelia Brackett and Jeffrey Richardson Brackett."

The Literary class meets Thursday morning at half past ten at the club house, when Mrs. Gurney will take for her subject, "Novels of the Day." Club members have enjoyed this class, passing the hours instructively and entertainingly under Mrs. Gurney's guidance.

A preliminary meeting of the millinery class is to be held at the clubhouse on Thursday afternoon at quarter of three. The teacher will be present to talk with those planning to join the class. Club members are privileged to join this class.

Reciprocity afternoon on the 20th promises to be one of the most enjoyable meetings of the season. Invitation to neighboring club presidents have been quite generally accepted and the words of greeting from their club cannot fail to interest the Quincy Club members. There will be good music and also a reception and tea. The exchange department in charge of Miss Carrie Hatch will be open after the meeting for members desiring home made cake bread, etc.

MASSACHUSETTS FEDERATION.

The mid-winter meeting of the Women's clubs was held Feb. 15, at Attleboro, by invitation of the Attleboro Federation of Women's clubs. Delegates were present from all parts of the state. The principal speakers of the meeting were Secretary Charles H. Morse, of the Commission on Industrial Education of Massachusetts, and Dr. Henry Lafavour, President of Simmons college.

Mr. Morse spoke on "The Work of the State Industrial Commission." He said:—"It is admitted today that there are 25,000 children in the Commonwealth between the ages of 14 and 16 years who are at work in the unskilled industries, or idle. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts must face this question. What is its duty to these children? Whatever is best for the child will be best for the Commonwealth. The state has now for the first time taken steps toward the providing of schools which will fit men to become skilled artisans."

The commission believes that the school course for the boy should not be less than three years' course, possibly four. At the end of the course he should remain still under the supervision of the school authorities and his work in the manufacturing should be followed. When he had completed the necessary apprenticeship of his trade by contact with actual manufacturing conditions in competitive business the Commonwealth of Massachusetts should issue a certificate, or diploma, which would be recognized the world over as a guarantee that the man possessing the same was a journeyman.

"As the young man is being fitted for his duty to society as well as to his employer and himself, so the girl must be educated with the same thought in mind. She will in a large majority of cases become the wife and mother, the 'home-worker.' She should therefore be taught the elements of domestic science, the value of foods and the most economical way of making them palatable. Her artistic sense should also be developed."

The principal address of the afternoon session was given by Dr. Lafavour on "Industrial Training for Girls." Dr. Lafavour's position as head of Simmons College qualifies him to speak authoritatively on this subject and he dwelt at length upon both the old and the more modern ideas of the industrial education of women. Practical suggestions and working examples made his address of value.

Miss Caroline J. Cook, Chairman of the Committee on Legislative Affairs, presented the following bills to the federation for approval:—On teachers' annuities, on savings banks, on insurance for wage-earners, on dangerous trades, on the taxation of bills and boards and also a measure to place the higher municipal offices under civil service control.

The spring meeting of the Federation will be held at Concord, Mass., in April.

Intermediates Defeat Seniors

The Dual meet held at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening proved the Intermediates the best team.

The first event was the fifteen yds. dash, and the Seniors were the strongest, having three men on the finals, against only one opponent. But at the finish, Goullie, of the Intermediates won first place, and Duncan and Wilson second and third respectively.

Throughout the entire meet, the Seniors had slightly the best of each event, so that the score stood 23 to 22 up to the relay race.

This proved one of the prettiest races ever ran on the association track. As the pistol sounded, the Seniors took the lead and maintained it for several laps, until Walker of the Intermediate team overtook his man, and from then on it was nip and tuck until the race was finished, but on the last two laps Cladin spurred ahead and won for his team by two feet.

By winning the Relay Race, the Intermediates gained nine points, making a total of 31 points to 23 for the Seniors. Below is given a summary of each event.

Tons Forwarded.

Returns from the two shipping terminals for the month of January show that the amount of rough and finished granite shipped that month amounted to 7,519,986 pounds. This was somewhat smaller than December, which is not to be wondered at considering the season of the year. Of the total shipments 4,733,665 pounds were forwarded from West Quincy and 2,786,321 pounds from Quincy Adams.

A very pretty dancing party was given in Colonial hall on Tuesday evening by Chester D. Brown and Harry Glover. The matrons were Mrs. F. U. Brown, Mrs. J. E. Glover and Mrs. D. E. McDonald. The Colonial orchestra furnished music.

The Twenty First Annual Ball

On Thursday evening, the Sons of St. George propose holding their 21st annual concert and ball in Quincy Music hall. This being the "coming of age of Granite lodge" of the above order, the committee are working hard to make the event a time to be remembered in years to come, as one of the most enjoyable they have ever had. They have a list of artists engaged to appear at their concert, who can hardly fail to give satisfaction, as they are not strangers by any means. John J. Quigley, "the famous newsway tenor," is well known to the concert goers of Quincy, as a singer. John Bohan, "Blackface comedian," is a first class fun maker and entertainer. Then again they have "The Russell troupe" who do not require any words of praise, as their previous appearances have made their names household words in Quincy. To complete the program they have Miss Agnes Hyde, reader and impersonator, and George Davey, a bass soloist. After the concert will come dancing. Let all help to make this anniversary a great success.

SIMPLE SERVICES

Bank Officials
And Many Friends
At Funeral Of
Edwin W. Marsh

The funeral of Edwin Wilson Marsh was held Wednesday afternoon from his late residence on Marsh street.

Although of a simple nature the services were attended by many of the officials of the Savings bank of which he was president, and of the National Granite bank of which he was a director as well as neighbors and friends.

There were also many others with whom he came in almost daily business intercourse, as well as Hon. Charles Francis Adams of Lincoln, with whom Mr. Marsh in his early days was associated in the affairs of the town and the public schools.

There was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes from friends and business associates, about the casket containing the remains. These included a standing cross from the Savings Bank, and a closed book from the National Granite bank marked "Finis."

The services were conducted by Rev. Ellery Channing Butler of the First Church. Mr. Butler spoke in eulogy, of Mr. Marsh, who while being an authority of things in the early days of Quincy was fully alive to the things of today. He was honest and sincere in his purpose in life yet honesty was not a virtue. The pastor also alluded briefly to his public service.

During the services the Apollo quartette sang "Abide with me," "It singeth low through every heart," and "Nearer my God to thee."

The burial was in the family lot at Mt. Wollaston.

New Art Exhibit At the Library

The exhibit of pictures from The Library Art Club this month is a collection of fifty-six photographs of Italian fountains. They will remain until March 4th. Owing to the limited space in the reading room only part of them can be hung at one time. Therefore the remainder of the set will replace a number of those which may be seen the rest of this week only. It is hoped to have more room for such exhibits when the addition proposed by Mr. Albert Crane becomes a reality.

The greater quiet which prevails at most times in the reading room is a source of gratification to the Librarian as it must be of appreciation by the public. None realize better than those who are trying to give all equal rights to the privileges of the Library, the difficulties of maintaining order where children and grown people are crowded in one room, either seeking the delivery desk or trying to read or study. If the good work goes on, it may yet be possible to do the latter, in spite of the delivery of books and before the children get the much to be desired room of their own, promised through Mr. Crane's liberality.

A list of about forty books lately added, will appear in the Ledger and Patriot.

The admiration of the world is never acquired through inattention to dress and good form. We can never overlook untidiness in a woman who lays claim to being "a lady." It is far better to have one becoming and well-made dress than a wardrobe full of misfits. Nineteen hundred years ago the Master said, "Consider the lilies," and today we can find no better lesson in simplicity. There is no power without clothes. It is the power that governs the human race. A policeman in plain clothes is one man; in his uniform he is ten.—Mark Twain.

We have rooms fitted especially for our Optical department and our work, in this line is done thoroughly as though it were the only business we did. If your eyes bother you in the slightest degree come and have them examined. No charge for it. C. F. Pettengill, Jeweler and Optician, 1391 Hancock street, Quincy. 1-o

A Word Relative To Book Agents

Editor of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

Will you give me space for matter that I think will prove useful as a warning to friends and fellow citizens? I am often visited by book-agents, asking me to examine their publications, with a view possibly to purchase, but certainly to recommend them to other likely purchasers. This I invariably refuse to do, declining even to look at any book, especially works of reference. Nor have I in a single instance, recommended or endorsed one. Yet my name has been used, and friends have bought books, on the strength of recommendations that I never gave.

A short time ago I was visited by an agent, canvassing for a new work of reference, to be in forty volumes, and afford all the information in which other such books were lacking. He wished me to endorse it, and proposed to pay me for the endorsement. He said he had been advised to call on me by various persons of consequence, among whom he particularly named Harry Thurston Peck, who he said was very anxious I should be called upon. I gave him no encouragement, and very soon closed the visit.

I have since written to Prof. Peck, who is of Columbia University. He tells me he never mentioned my name in connection with any encyclopedia, and has nothing to do with the book I was requested to endorse. He further says he has learned to put no credence in the statement of book canvassers, unless they present a personal letter of introduction. William Everett.

Young People's Rally.

The tenth annual Young People's Missionary Rally on Feb. 22 will be held in the Old South church, Copley square, Boston. The general sessions will be at 11 A. M., 2 P. M. and 7.15 P. M. The rally this year is under a new organization. The committee having it in charge is composed of representatives from the Young People's organizations and the Student Missionary organizations of all denominations in Greater Boston. Thus it becomes the Missionary Rally of the Young People, while in former years it was held under the auspices of the Boston Student Volunteers League.

The program is one of exceptional interest. The present situation in some of the leading mission-fields will be presented by experts on each country. The topic for the day is "Critical conditions a call to consecration."

The Quincy Built Battleships

The battleship Rhode Island, built at Quincy, arrived at Old Point Comfort, Va., Wednesday in excellent condition. On the trip down the coast the vessel indulged in satisfactory gun practice.

The battleship New Jersey, built at Quincy, will sail from the Charlestown yard either Saturday or Sunday. The ship on Wednesday began coaling in readiness for her departure.

Saturday the big refrigerator ship Celtic will go out of commission at the yard. The men composing her crew have been assigned to the crew for the new battleship Vermont, built at Quincy, which will be commissioned at the yard early next month.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock the big new Bath-built battleship Georgia left the Charlestown navy yard for her first cruise as a U. S. warship in general service. As the ship started down the harbor and was well clear of the yard her guns were fired for the first time in salute to Rear Admiral A. S. Snow, commandant at the yard, and the yard battery responded with nine guns for Capt. Richard G. Davenport and his new ship.

Thaw Witness
Formerly of Wollaston

It is perhaps not generally known that Mrs. J. J. Caine, the Boston milliner who has figured so prominently in the Thaw trial formerly resided in Quincy. Mrs. Caine's husband was employed by a Wollaston grocer and for a time the family resided in Wollaston.

Later they moved to Somerville, although Mr. Caine continued at his employment in Wollaston, going to his home in Somerville every night. Matters came to a head when Caine was arrested for larceny from the store where he was employed.

It was alleged that Caine would do up bundles of goods in the store and send them to his home in Somerville by one of Fox pie wagons. The case was settled out of court and the family dropped out of sight.

More for Clerks And Letter Carriers

The post office bill as passed by the National House on Wednesday has increases for Quincy post office clerks and carriers. Seven grades of clerks are established in first and second class offices, with salaries ranging from $600 to $1200. City letters carriers are divided into five grades, with salaries ranging from $600 to $1100, the $700 salaries being omitted.

Carriers, who on June 30, are regularly employed at $800 per annum, shall be promoted to the fourth grade upon satisfactory evidence of efficiency during at least one year's service.

Old Flags at Governors Reception

The reception of Gov. Guild on Washington's Birthday to which all are welcomed will begin at 10 A. M. and close at 12.30 P. M. in the Hall of Flags at the State House, where the battle flags of the civil war and the mural paintings will remind the visitors of the history of the commonwealth. The decorations for the day will consist of laurel leaves, the national colors and the official colors of Massachusetts, blue and white. The staff, as usual, will attend the governor.

An innovation will be introduced in the displaying of reproductions of various flags of Massachusetts borne by color sergeants detailed for the purpose.

The first flag and the oldest one is a white flag with the red cross and pine tree of New England. These are the original New England colors and were used in Gov. Dudley's expedition. The second flag exhibited will be the blue flag with the red cross, such as was carried at Bunker hill. The third flag is a copy of the flag of the United colonies, a composite of 13 stripes and the British union jack. This flag was originally hoisted by Gen. Israel Putnam at Prospect hill, Somerville, on Jan. 1, 1776, and is the one brought into Boston on March 17 by the victorious Americans under Washington.

The fourth flag is the 'Betsy Ross' flag, adopted by Washington as the first flag of the United States. The fifth color sergeant will carry the present state flag.

Music will be furnished by the full Cadet military band. Interspersed with the usual modern selections, however, will be a historical concert of the music used in the Continental army under George Washington, as well as some of the popular airs sung at the time of the Revolution.

Our Senator
Among Leaders

The Boston Advertiser in its State House gossip comments on our Senator as follows:

"Senator Jenney is showing himself an excellent presiding officer, and practical man of affairs, as well as possessed of one of the best equipped legal minds ever known at the state house. As a member of B. U. faculty for 21 years his legal lore might be expected to be proven, but the senator is much more than a scholar. A chairman of two of the most important committees—constitutional amendments and liquor law—he is displaying excellent executive ability and in liquor law, especially, he is tipping over the false premises in a way that delights the heart of men who formerly had to listen to interminable arguments on the same unstable foundations."

"Weymouth Ways."

Edmund S. Hunt of Weymouth has published a large volume of reminiscences entitled "Weymouth Ways." The book is of historical value and is filled with events of interest from 1830 to the present time. There is also an outlook ahead in 1925 when the Brockton canal has been an accomplished fact and has wrought wonderful changes according to this prophetic account. An excellent portrait of the author adorns the book.

His descriptions, of early days at Union church, East Braintree, also of musical societies, which include East Braintree people and many characteristic allusions of former residents. Mr. Hunt dedicates his volume to his "Dear Wife," and it is a fitting tribute of his love.

Mr. Hunt remembered some of his schoolmates with an autograph copy and those so favored treasure the work highly. The book itself is clearly printed on vellum and beautifully bound in dark-green leather covers.

Beverly Estimates

The estimates of the city of Beverly for 1907 include $83,547.50 for the interest account, $35,800 for the highway department, $16,500 for city teams, $30,000 for the water department, $96,000 for the school department, $15,000 for the fire department, $16,000, for the poor department, $18,250 for the police department, $32,500.11, for the street lighting and $12,700 for salaries.

If your eyes bother you in the slightest degree come and have them examined. We make no charge, and furnish the right glasses at the right price. C. F. Pettengill, Jeweler and Optician, 1391 Hancock Street, Quincy. 1-o

Novelties at Church Social

The "Church social" at Bethany church Wednesday evening was an exceptionally enjoyable occasion. It was in charge of the deacons of the church and their wives, the deaconesses, the pastor, clerk and treasurer and their wives.

A buffet lunch was the novelty, and it "took" well. It could not have been otherwise with tables loaded with such viands as these: Bisque glace, chicken and ham sandwiches, gelatine fruit puddings, charlotte russe, jellies, Spanish cream, fruit salads, tapioca cream, Chinese pudding, with a generous supply of whipped cream, delicious cake in great variety, pickles, tea and coffee.

That everybody might personally know everybody there was a generous supply of cards with blanks for the name, address and business of a person, which he was expected to exchange with all strangers. As some collected 25 to 50 cards from others it will be seen that everybody got acquainted.

Then there was a spelling match between 12 young men and 12 young ladies with unusual rules which made lots of sport.

A few young ladies had small barrels in which the guests of the evening might contribute toward the expenses, which they did freely.

Annual Banquet
Of Alpha Club

The second annual banquet of the Alpha Club was held at the Hotel Greenleaf, Tuesday evening, Feb. 19, covers being laid for 42. The guests were conveyed from West Quincy by a special car. An excellent and bounteous dinner was served in the satisfactory manner characteristic of the proprietor. After ample justice had been done to this, Mr. Merton A. Turner as toastmaster introduced Rev. A. B. Tyler, pastor of the West Quincy church, who as president of the club voiced their welcome to the visitors present. Mrs. H. D. McNeil responded to the toast, "Mere Man." Clarence H. Trask responded to the toast, "Lovely Woman." Miss Olive H. Grant read a delightfully humorous poem, "An Exposure of the Alpha Club," in which kindly reflections were cast upon all the members. The club then adjourned, voicing their pleasure and vowing that another year should find them again at the Greenleaf for their third annual banquet.

Naval Bill Passed.

The National Senate has also passed the Naval bill and the River and Harbor bill carrying a new battleship and several other warships.

Tightly gripping the handle of his pickaxe he flew through the air. Giuseppe Rossaile, a laborer, who had driven the implement into an unsuspected stick of dynamite while working in Roxbury, Monday was hurled many yards and instantly killed by the force of the explosion that followed.

in 1907 for a

NEW CODDINGTON

GOOD AFTERNOON.

It was clearly shown in the Daily Ledger of Wednesday that the city of Quincy cannot afford to sell any water for less than the Boston price, 16 cents per thousand gallons. The cost to the city is at least 11 cents, and there should be a little profit. The minimum price in New York city is 13 1-3 cents per thousand gallons, and the minimum price in Boston 16 cents per thousand gallons. Why not put the Water department on a paying basis? Now the minimum charge for a house which has a meter is $18, whether the household uses 10, 12, $14 or $16 worth of water, but the manufacturer buys water at 8, 10 or 12 1-2 cents per thousand gallons which costs the city 11 cents or more.

A deficit in the Poor department seems to be almost a regular thing each year since the late E. W. H. Bass was at the head of the department. Since then too the State has taken over considerable of the expense for insane and others.

The prominent politicians of the country without regard to party are divided into two camps, one of which is afraid the president will refuse another nomination if it is offered him and the other of which is afraid he won't.

Both the Adams Academy and the High school and the students of Quincy will gain by merging these two secondary schools upon the lines proposed. The new High school building makes it possible.

Mayor Schmitz says that California got what she wanted. We are not just certain about her getting what she wanted, but there seems little question that she got it in the region of the sub-maxillary.

If Evelyn Thaw has done nothing else, she has at least elucidated the question of how an $18 a week chorus "loidy" can own $3,000 automobiles.

Why not a perpetual fund of $6,000 for sewer connections, to be credited with all receipts, rather than a new loan each year?

The Gas Company generally gets what it wants now of the City Council, without opposition, because the company is fulfilling all agreements.

Edward Harriman says feverishly that he must work. And he does not care whom.

GRILLS MRS. THAW

Jerome Shows No Disposition to Spare Her Feelings

SHE RECEIVED $25 A WEEK

Came From Fund Deposited by White-Skittful Fencing by the Witness When Questioned About Her Past Life

New York, Feb. 21.—In continuing his cross-examination of Mrs. Evelyn N. Thaw at the trial of her husband yesterday, District Attorney Jerome brought out the fact that in 1902 Stanford White deposited the sum of $1330 with a New York trust company with instructions that it should be paid to the Nesbit girl at the rate of $25 a week. Mrs. Thaw admitted receiving a number of checks from the trust company, but she would not admit that there was a provision that she should receive the money only when out of employment. The prosecutor spent nearly the entire afternoon in trying to make Mrs. Thaw admit that this was true, but as often and in as many ways as he put the question to her, she gave incessantly the one answer—"I don't remember."

Mrs. Thaw's inability to remember a number of other things about which Jerome questioned her was by far the most material element in the cross-examination. The district attorney delved into the witness' past life with a familiarity as to details and a store of general knowledge which at times seemed to amaze all who heard—not excepting the defendant's counsel themselves.

Mr. Jerome indicated early in his questioning that he had no disposition to spare Mrs. Thaw's feelings in any way whatsoever. He interrogated her most pointedly as to her men acquaintances of the past. He laid especial stress upon her acquaintanceship with James A. Garland, who figured for the first time in the case. Mrs. White said she knew Garland before she met White.

"Were you named as co-respondent in the Garland divorce case?" asked Jerome.

Mrs. Thaw was shaking her head when Mr. Delmas sprang to his feet with an objection. He demanded that the record of the divorce case be brought into court that it might speak for itself. Justice Fitzgerald overruled the objection, but Jerome withdrew the question.

Mr. Jerome questioned the witness about her manner of posing for artists and brought from her a denial that she ever posed in the nude. Jerome was insistent for details on the subject. He did not mince words. Many photographs of Mrs. Thaw were introduced in evidence.

Mr. Jerome piled the young woman with questions as to what disposition she had made of the letters written to her by Stanford White. Some, she said, had been destroyed, and some she had given to her husband.

Mr. Jerome indicated that he had in his possession a number of letters written by Stanford White to Evelyn Nesbit, saying he would show her the letters to see if they would not brighten her memory a little bit. He changed his mind, however, and the letters were not produced. Jerome demanded that Thaw's counsel deliver to the court the Stanford White letters they have in their custody, but they made no response.

Mr. Jerome was assisted materially in his cross-examination by typewritten statements made by Mrs. Thaw's mother and Howard Nesbit, her brother. He consulted the statements from time to time and Delmas let this fact become known to the jury by remarking upon it.

Mr. Jerome's cross-examination may require several days yet. He jumped about yesterday from one part of Mrs. Thaw's story and one period of her life to another in a way that baffled any attempt to tell how far he had progressed with his attack. He apparently intends to take every advantage of the ruling which allows him wide latitude in testing the credibility of the witness.

Mr. Delmas, contrary to expectations, interposed few objections. He is evidently preparing, however, for an extended redirect examination, and this, together with Jerome's cross-examination on the redirect, promises to keep the prisoner's wife on the witness stand for an indefinite period.

Mrs. Thaw seemed perfectly self-possessed at every stage of the cross-examination. She fenced with the prosecutor continuously, corrected him at times as to assumptions drawn from previous answers, and occasionally told him his questions were entirely too long to permit of a proper answer.

Favorable to American Product
Rome, Feb. 21.—The government has presented a bill to parliament to reduce the duty on coal oil from $9.00 to $4.80. This reduction will work almost exclusively to the profit of the United States, as since Russia has been in a disturbed condition the United States has supplied almost all the oil used in Italy.

Europe Suffers From Storm
London, Feb. 21.—Tremendous gales, accompanied by snow, hail and thunder storms, swept over the whole of northern Europe yesterday. There has been widespread damage to property in all directions, numerous fatalities, and many shipping casualties.

A WIDE-AWAKE PORTER

Prevents What Might Have Been a Railroad Catastrophe

Baltimore, Feb. 21.—The arrival of the Pennsylvania railroad's congressional limited train in this city was delayed two hours last night by an accident on the bridge spanning the Gunpowder river, about 10 miles east of here.

Just as the train ran upon the bridge, which is about a mile in length, the porter of the car following the dining car noticed an unusual noise, apparently beneath the train. He promptly pulled the emergency cord and when the train came to a standstill in the middle of the bridge it was found that the rear truck of the dining car had jumped not only the track, but the guard rail. The prompt stopping of the train probably prevented a catastrophe. No one was injured.

Passengers on the train made up a purse for the porter as a token of their appreciation of his prompt action.

Fruit Steamer Sunk by Cruiser

New Orleans, Feb. 21.—The French cruiser Kleber last night rammed and sank the American fruit steamer Hugoma in the Mississippi river just off New Orleans. Seven Japanese coal passers and firemen were drowned. The cruiser was slightly damaged. The Kleber was rounding a sharp turn and the Hugoma, drifting with a six-mile current, turned directly into the man-of-war's path. The Kleber struck the fruit ship amidships and within five minutes the Hugoma plunged to the bottom.

Terrible Conditions in Odessa

Odessa, Feb. 21.—Street attacks by the Union of True Russians, a reactionary organization, have brought about a condition of extreme nervousness among the residents of this city, especially the Jews. Yesterday a Jew drew a revolver in self-defense. He was immediately seized and conveyed to a deserted courtyard, where his arms and legs were cut off. Citizens have come to the conclusion to suspend business as a sign of protest until the outrages are no longer tolerated by the authorities.

Unique Outfit at Washington

Washington, Feb. 21.—Eli Smith, the Alaskan mail carrier, who has been making a trip from Nome to Washington, arrived here, and with his team of seven Eskimo dogs and his sled on wheels he drove to the White House. The president spoke to his visitor for some minutes. President and Mrs. Roosevelt and their children were given an opportunity to see some team work by the Eskimo dogs on the White House grounds.

Magoon Will Remain in Cuba

Washington, Feb. 21.—Referring to published reports of an interview with General Andrade in Havana, in which Andrade gives the substance of an interview with President Roosevelt, it is officially stated that the president did not tell anyone that he was about to withdraw Governor Magoon from Cuba and it is added that he has not the slightest intention of so doing at present or in the near future.

Two Americas Are Friends

Buffalo, Feb. 21.—Joquin Nabuco, ambassador from Brazil, was the guest of the Liberal club here last night. Taking for his topic "Trade Relations Between North and South America," Nabuco reviewed the rapid strides toward continental confraternity in the Western Hemisphere and prophesied even closer relations between the republics of the two Americas.

Constitutional Democrats Swamped

St. Petersburg, Feb. 21.—The tide of Radical success in the parliamentary elections continues to flow unchecked. The Constitutional Democrats will have at the outside a round hundred of delegates, less than one-fifth of the total representation, and with the recognition of this fact there disappears the last hope of this party of taking over the ministry.

Mrs. Binge Perhaps Poisoned

New York, Feb. 21.—At the coroner's inquest into the death of Mrs. Ida B. Binge, alleged to have been poisoned, and in which connection Mrs. Lottie Wallau, her daughter, was arrested, an expert chemist testified that he had found .83 of a grain of mercury in the portions of the dead woman's body given to him for analysis.

Municipal Playgrounds Advocated

Washington, Feb. 21.—Municipal playgrounds within easy walking distance of every boy and girl in the large cities was advocated by President Roosevelt in a letter and by many speakers at a "playground banquet" given under the auspices of the Washington Playgrounds' association.

Tour of Business Men

Charleston, Feb. 21.—With a party of 32 business men representing the Commercial clubs of Boston, Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati on board, steamship Prinz Joachim sailed southward last night for a visit to the West Indies and the Isthmus of Panama.

Congress May Investigate

Washington, Feb. 21.—A resolution was adopted by the house requesting the department of commerce and labor to send the report of the investigation of the Larchmont collision off Block Island to the house as soon as the investigation is completed.

Tidbits from All Wards of City

Rev. A. R. Atwood of the Point church delivers a lecture at the Congregational church in Rockland, Mass., Sunday evening, on "The Tinker and Thinker, or John's Journey between Two Cities."

Will It Help The Hospital?

Editors of Daily Ledger:
I see by the advertisement, that a benefit lecture for the Quincy Hospital is to be given on a Sunday evening. I realize that this is lawful, but is it religious etiquette and will it pay?

To put in a lecture in the midst of five churches and at the same time of their evening services, it seems to me, an infringement upon religious etiquette. Was it necessary that this secular lecture should come on a Sunday? The Sabbath day is for religious and spiritual culture, not for a "remarkable lecture." But even if we admit (which we do not do) that it was necessary to have this lecture on Sunday, could it not have taken place in the afternoon, when it would not, to such an extent have interfered with religious services on Sunday evening?

This lecture does not effect me financially, religiously or spiritually; I shall not even be in the city next Sunday evening. But I have a sense of the fitness and the finance of things. I am sure that a benefit lecture for our Hospital on a Sunday evening will be a financial injury. Suppose 400 tickets (the seating capacity of the hall) sold at 15 cents a total of $60. This is less than two families give to the support of the hospital. To run such a secular lecture and lose the support of two such families, is not good finance.

Therefore, from a sense of religious etiquette and financial success, I say let's have no more "remarkable lectures" for Hospital benefit on a Sunday evening.

Celebration of Eighty-Eighth Birthday

A happy joyous occasion was the meeting at the residence of George E. Ludden, Shaw street, East Braintree, on Sunday, Feb. 17, when the children of Mrs. Elizabeth Loring assembled to congratulate her on her 88th birthday. Mrs. Loring was born in Gloucestershire, England, Feb. 17, 1818, and came to this country with her parents (John and Ann Gunning) when she was ten years of age. For several years she made Boston her home, and in 1841 the family moved to Weymouth. In that year she married Benjamin J. Loring, as well known and respected citizen who also spent an active and useful life in that town and Braintree, and who passed away Feb. 7, 1895, aged 77.

To this union came seven children; Benjamin J., Charles H., Lucy E., Amos A., Robert M., Eliza J. and Willie J., four of whom are still living. Three of the boys enlisted in the Civil war, two of whom served over three years, receiving honorable discharges, the other giving his life to his country. Besides these Mrs. Loring had a brother who lost his left arm at the battle of South Mountain. He is now living in Washington, D. C., and well known in Weymouth. She has also three sisters living, Mrs. Charlotte Binney and Mrs. Rebecca C. Puttillow both of Weymouth, and Mrs. Fannie Bryden of New York.

During the day four generations paid their respects to their aged relative. She has fifteen grandchildren and ten great-grand children living.

Mrs. Loring enjoys health to a remarkable degree for one of her age; her mind perfectly clear and unimpaired, recalling many incidents in her early life and bidding fair to attain the age of her venerable mother who passed away at Weymouth several years ago at the age of ninety-seven years.

The gathering was necessarily limited in number and was attended by only the children and their wives and two sisters.

During the evening refreshments were served and a large birthday cake inscribed "Mother, 88 years" was presented by her daughter, Mrs. Eliza J. Ludden, which later was cut and those of the family not present were remembered.

A poem partially composed by Mrs. Carrie F. Loring was read by her.

A NATION OF CRIPPLES RHEUMATISM BEYOND CONTROL

The Only Hope to Rheumatic Sufferers is Uric-O Treatment.

If rheumatism continues to spread as it has in the past few years, it would seem as though we would before long become a nation of cripples. The terrible destructiveness of this disease is apparent on every side of us. Almost nine out of ten of the cripples one meets had their affliction brought on by Rheumatism. How many thousands more there are that are hopelessly bed-ridden and whom we never see. Rheumatism from the very nature of the disease, can never cure itself, and if neglected, is bound to grow worse, rather than better. If you ever have any twinges of Rheumatism go to E. J. Murphy's drug store right here in Quincy, and get a bottle of Uric-O, the wonderful new Rheumatic Specific. It will cure you and it is the only treatment in the world that will cure you permanently and thoroughly. Uric-O cures by its direct action on the muscles, blood and kidneys. It seeks out the poisonous Uric and Rheumatic Acid and drives it from the system and it is only a treatment of such a nature that will ever cure Rheumatism. Liniments and plasters only serve to drive it from one spot to another. They never cure Rheumatism, because it is primarily a blood disease, and until the blood is cleared from the poison, a cure cannot take place.

There never was a case of Rheumatism that Uric-O could not cure and you should not put off taking it because it is the end by far the cheapest method. You can test Uric-O free of charge if you wish. Just cut out this advertisement and send it to the Smith Drug Store, Syracuse, N. Y., and state that you have never used Uric-O and would like to try it. They will send you a free sample which you can test and try free of charge.

WATCHMAN ON BOW

New Testimony Regarding Sinking of Larchmont

STAPLES IN PILOT HOUSE

First Saw Lights of Schooner
About Two Minutes Before
Collision Occurred—Defence
His Superior Officer

New London, Conn., Feb. 21.—United States Steamboat Inspectors Withey
and Stewart have received a transcript of the statement of James I. Staples, quartermaster of the steamer Larchmont,
taken by the Providence inspectors.

It is notable as describing incidents of the collision of the two craft and makes the first mention of a bow watchman thus far in testimony given.

Staples declared he had followed the sea for most of his life, being on tugboats. He had been quartermaster on the Larchmont for two weeks, that being his first position of that rank. He took charge of the wheel soon after 8 o'clock. The wind was northwest and weather clear, no fog or snow. The window of the pilot house was down at the time. Could see a man in the darkness at the bow of steamer and supposed he was the bow watchman.

The first the witness knew of the approaching schooner was seeing her red and green lights himself. Could see Watch Hill light at the time. It was about two minutes after first seeing the schooner that the collision occurred.

When first seen thought schooner was half a mile off. Lookout reported her to the pilot, who said "all right." Pilot told witness to port his wheel a little,
which order was obeyed.

This action shut out view of the schooner's red light, but showed the green light. Pilot then told him to port wheel more and witness gave it port as fast as he could. Could see schooner's green light all the time about quarter of a mile away as the wheel was put to port.

The collision occurred about half a minute later. Did not notice how the steamer was headed then, as he did not look out because he was holding onto the wheel and that was all he could do.
He had not reduced the speed.

The pilot pulled whistle just as schooner was onto steamer.

The schooner was so near that steamer's electric lights showed on her hull.
Was headed then for the steamer's pilot house. Pilot did not say a word at the time; gave no orders to witness.

Witness did not notice what the pilot did just after the collision and next saw him outside the pilot house.

The captain sent witness below to see if engines would work, the captain entering the pilot house almost the moment of the collision. Captain said something to pilot, witness did not know what.

Witness left pilot and captain at the pilot house and went as far toward engine room as he could on account of steam. Steam was so hot on main deck as to choke witness. Being unable to get further, witness hurried back to pilot house, too choked to speak at first; finally able to make captain understand could not get into engine room. All left pilot house, witness dorming his ulcer.

Second assistant told captain steamer was sinking. Other officers were standing around. When first saw schooner he was not steering straight course. Schooner seemed to be luffing when she struck steamer just ahead of pilot house.

Witness thought it was 10 or 15 minutes after impact before Larchmont sank. Captain McVey ordered all standing around to the boats. Witness went to his boat, No. 1 on the starboard side. Did not see any passengers around captain's boat. Did not know who lowered the boat or held the falls, there was so much steam. Thought there were people in the boat when lowered. When witness clambered down side of steamer into boat there were people there, but did not count them.
Did not know whether Captain McVey was there or not.

Captain McVey wanted to take boat to lee side to get passengers. He did not seem excited. Two waiters, a fireman, coal passer and the purser were in their boat, but no sailors. There were three people near where their boat was, but in the darkness and steam they made no attempt to get aboard. Those of the crew in the boat were unable to get around to the lee side on account of the gale. The boat remained around the spot after the steamer sank. Captain McVey evidently was anxious to save any people possible.

Starvation in Russia
Kazan, Russia, Feb. 21.—A correspondent of The Associated Press has returned here after a 25 days' trip through Kazan, Samara and Ufa, three sample provinces of the 20 affected by famine. The population everywhere was found to be absolutely dependent on outside relief. The present state of affairs is characterized by slow starvation and extreme misery.

Hoke Smith For President
Washington, Feb. 21.—At a dinner given in his honor last night by Georgia representatives, Hoke Smith, former secretary of the interior and governor of Georgia, was suggested by Congressman Bartlett in an address as a proper Democratic candidate for president in 1908.

A SUIT FOR $60,000

Jury Disagrees in Unique Case Against Elevated Road

Boston, Feb. 21.—The jury that heard the evidence in the suits brought by Agnes and Grant E. Kingman against the "L" as the result of injuries sustained by Mrs. Kingman in consequence of explosions failed to agree, and as a result the two suits, amounting to $60,000, will have to be tried again.

The manner in which Mrs. Kingman was injured has made the suit more novel and unique than the ordinary accident suit and has caused considerable interest among the attorneys of this city.

It appears that Mrs. Kingman boarded an "L" train at Park square enroute for Sullivan square. The train arrived at Sullivan square and a passenger who stepped out of the car dropped a brass curtain rod. The rod slipped down through the space between the car and the platform and came in contact with the deadly third rail. The rod also came in contact with the other iron on the "L" structure, and as a result a short circuit was made.

The short circuit caused flashes of flame and several explosions. Mrs.
Kingman was in the car and alleged that the explosions injured her back.
She brought suit for $50,000 and her husband brought another suit for $10,- 000 for the loss of his wife's services.

Long Journey After Prisoner Boston, Feb. 21.—Two local police inspectors returned last evening from Marseilles with Giuseppe Malavio, charged with the murder of Placido Russo, a fellow Italian, in this city nearly four years ago. After the murder Malavio disappeared, but was arrested not long ago in Marseilles, where he was held at the request of the Boston officials. Two local officers left here for France eight weeks ago and upon their return Malavio was locked up to await a hearing in the local court.

"Preliminary" Dog Muzzling Notice Boston, Feb. 21.—In explaining the recent dog muzzling order to the governor and executive council, Dr. Peters, chief of the cattle bureau, stated that the order was in the nature of a preliminary notice which should only be come operative if subsequently it was found that there was danger of an outbreak of rabies in any particular city or town. It also developed at the hearing that the threatened epidemic of rabies is well under control.

Suffragists' Hardest Blow
Boston, Feb. 21.—The lower branch of the legislature yesterday refused the plea for woman's suffrage by the largest majority ever recorded, the vote on accepting the adverse report of the committee on election laws on the bill striking out the word "male" being 103 to 14. The debate lasted throughout the afternoon session.

Price of Canned Lobster Raised Portland, Me., Feb. 21.—Portland lobster dealers, who practically control the output of canned lobster, have fixed the wholesale price of this article at $3.85 per dozen pound cans. Several years ago the price was $1.50 a dozen.
Since then there has been a steady advance annually, owing to the rapid disappearance of the crustacean.

Furniture Man's Heavy Liability
Boston, Feb. 21.—Schedules showing liabilities of $804,630 and assets of but $2780 were filed in the United States district court by Isaac C. Atkinson, formerly of the Atkinson House Furnishing company and the B. A. Atkinson company. His secured claims amount to $153,961. Accommodation paper claims totaled $624,817.

Wilson Weathered the Storm
Portland, Me., Feb. 21.—Schooner
Jacob S. Winslow, whose 16-foot boat was picked up off Thatcher's Island and towed into Boston, arrived here last evening. She was not damaged. She had been blown about 60 miles to sea.
The small boat was washed from the docks by a huge wave.

Trainmen Hurt in Collision Holtbrook, Mass., Feb. 21.—A local passenger train struck the rear end of a freight train at Mayflower Park last night. Two trainmen were slightly injured, one of them sustaining a fractured arm and the other a severe shaking up. Four of the freight cars caught fire.

State Prison For Thieving Treasurer
Salem, Mass., Feb. 21.—Former City Treasurer James E. Felker of New-buryport, who pleaded guilty to the embezzlement of $80,800 of the funds of the city, was sentenced yesterday afternoon to not less than four nor more than six years in state prison.

Josiah Quincy Heavily in Debt Boston, Feb. 21.—Josiah Quincy, formerly assistant secretary of state and a former mayor of Boston, owes $262,119,
according to his schedule of liabilities,
just filed. Quincy recently filed a petition in bankruptcy. The assets are placed at $40,500.

To Safeguard Bank's Securities
New Britain, Conn., Feb. 21.—The directors of the Savings Bank of New Britain have taken action changing the rules of the bank so that not less than two persons should have the handling of bonds in the future.

Esther Mitchell Goes to Asylum
Seattle, Wash., Feb. 21.—Esther Mitchell, who has been confined in jail,
charged with the murder of her brother, George Mitchell, was sent to the state insane asylum yesterday. George Mitchell killed Franz E. Creffield, a "Holy Roller" leader, charging him with wronging Esther. She later shot her brother.

WORMS

Unsuspected worms are the cause of numerous little things that go wrong with children. When a child is sick you rarely think that its sickness is caused by worms, yet worms, either directly or indirectly, are the cause of three quarters of all the ills of childhood. Children, and often-times adults feel out of sorts, are irritable, feel listless and unrefreshed in the morning, suffer with indigestion, have a variable appetite, foul tongue, offensive breath; hard and full belly, with occasional gripings and pains about the navel; eyes heavy, and dull; itching of the nose; short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth; slow fever, and often in children, convulsions—in the majority of cases the cause of all the trouble is worms though you may not suspect their presence.

a pure vegetable compound, has been the standard household remedy since 1871. It never fails to expel not only worms but all waste matter, leaving the blood rich and pure, the stomach sweet, the bowels regular and the whole system strong and healthy.

The mother who gives her children Dr. True's Elixir regularly is wise, because it not only increases the appetite, acts as a preventative of coughs, cold, fever and worms but gives rugged, robust health.

United States and Mexico Cannot Prevent Impending War

INVASION OF HONDURAS

President Bonilla Calls It a
"Small Affair," While Nicaragua Claims to Have Captured
Many Important Positions

City of Mexico, Feb. 21.—First Assistant Secretary of State Alvega has requested The Associated Press to make the following announcement:

"A telegram has been received by President Diaz from President Bonilla of Honduras saying that at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the 18th the forces of Nicaragua and Honduras met on the border and a fight ensued. He characterized the encounter as a small affair. The place where the battle occurred, the number of killed or wounded and other details were not given.
The president of Honduras declared that the Nicaraguans were defeated and compelled to retreat."

It is believed in Mexico City that the telegram from President Bonilla to President Diaz is tantamount to the non-acceptance of the good offices of Mexico and the United States and that war between Honduras and Nicaragua is now certain.

By Way of Nicaragua
Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 21.—The Nicaraguan army has defeated the forces of Honduras at several points, capturing important positions.

President Bonilla of Honduras has issued a proclamation in which recent events are distorted and appealing for recognition of the boundary question, which Nicaragua has not taken into consideration since the King of Spain rendered his award in the matter.

From the outset Nicaragua has only demanded ample satisfaction for the violation of her territory, for the attack made on property and the burning of buildings in Nicaraguan territory by regular troops of Honduras and for the killing of Nicaraguan soldiers who composed the small frontier guard which was attacked by Honduran troops.

Reported Victory For Hondurans
San Salvador, Feb. 21.—Dispatches received here say that the Nicaraguan army invaded Honduran territory and that after two hours' fighting the invading forces were completely defeated, leaving 37 men killed and many wounded on the field. Proclamations establishing a provisional government in Honduras were captured by the Honduran troops.

Swindled Out of $6300
New York, Feb. 21.—Morton Woodman of Fall River, Mass., complained to the police that he had been swindled out of $6300 by the wire tapping game and brought about a raid on a house in East Twenty-sixth street, where five men were arrested. Woodman says he came here last Thursday.
He fell in with strangers who induced him to make some small bets that resulted profitably. On their suggestion he invested his money and promptly lost it in the place raided.

Women Killed by Gas
New York, Feb. 21.—Two women who engaged a double room at a furnished-room house in West Twenty-second street two days ago were found dead in bed late last night. They had been asphyxiated by gas which escaped from a heater. The coroner will try to determine whether death was accidental. The women had given their names as Mrs. Annie Young and Gertrude Yooman, and each was about 25 years of age.

Virginia Has No Race Troubles
Richmond, Feb. 21.—The governor of Virginia has declined an invitation to appoint delegates to a proposed southern conference on the negro question, saying that the white and black races in Virginia are dwelling together in peace and harmony, that there have been no clashes and that therefore no good could ensue from a conference like the one projected, so far at least as Virginia is concerned.

No Further Light on Disaster
New York, Feb. 21.—Nothing more definite than the obvious conclusion that a displaced rail permitted the derailment of the New York Central train in the Bronx Saturday night, in which accident 22 persons were either killed or fatally injured, has been brought out at the two inquiries here. How the rail became displaced is not known.

Sixty Thousand Get Wage Increase Connellsville, Pa., Feb. 21.—Notices have been posted by four coke companies announcing that they will pay the same wages as received by the employees of the H. C. Frick Coke company. It is said all the coke companies in the Connellsville region will accept the new wage schedule. Upwards of 60,000 men will be affected by the increase.

Mutual Life Administration Wins
New York, Feb. 21.—The administration ticket of the Mutual Life Insurance company was elected by a majority approximately of 130,000 in the recent policyholders' election, according to a statement made by the election inspectors to the proxy committees.

—Mildred I. McNeal.

Mr. and Mrs. James Henry Stetson left Hampton terrace, Augusta, Georgia, on Friday for Summerville. They report sunny skies and mild weather since leaving home, and are having a most delightful time playing golf and enjoying the social life of the hotel.

Mrs. D. E. Wadsworth of Presidents hill returned yesterday from a few weeks' trip to Cuba and Chicago.

A Valentine party was held last Saturday evening at the home of Miss Grace Seelye on Belmont street. There were twenty-four young people present.
After a pleasantly spent evening the company was served with refreshments in the dining room which was beautifully decorated with hearts and cut flowers.

Although the Quincy Tennis club dance at Music hall is yet two weeks off, there are many subscribers and a large and pretty party is anticipated.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Faxon and children, Mary and Henry, of Quincy and Mrs. Ellsworth of Savin Hill, left Tuesday for New York, from which port they sailed on Wednesday for Holland.
They will make a six-weeks' tour of the continent returning about the first of May by way of Naples.

Miss Gertrude King, Simmons '06 of Clay street has returned from Philadelphia.

A very successful dancing party was given at Wollaston hall on Friday evening by Messrs. Clark Boynton and John Merrill. Newman's orchestra, which is made up of Tufts students, furnished the music. About fifty couples were on the floor. The matrons were Mrs.
Fred Merrill and Miss Clara E. G.
Thayer.

Mrs. William A. Rogers, who has been quite seriously ill at her winter home at the Nottingham, Boston, is slowly improving.

Mrs. Alexander Beach of New York who has been the guest of her niece, Mrs. Charles B. Robertson of Standish avenue for two weeks, left on Thursday for St. John, N. B., where she is to visit relatives for a month.

Wollaston young people are interested in the Boston Federation dance to be held in Wheelock hall, Dorchester, March 22.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Randall moved this week into the C. F. Hardwick house on Spear street. Miss Edith Randall who has made her home on Wilbur street for a year or two, is to have a suite of rooms with them.

Miss O'Loughlin of Fall River was a guest on Washington's Birthday and the week end with Mrs. Maurice P.
Spillane of Elm street.

John E. Morgan of Standish avenue attended the banquet of the Boot and Shoe club at Hotel Brunswick, Boston, Thursday evening. It had been announced that Prof. A. H. Kirkland was to be a guest, but serious illness prevented. The club were fortunate, however, in securing the presence of Hon.
Charles O. Bailey, who is associated with Prof. Kirkland in his work, and he spoke upon the subject, "State work against the gypsy and brown tail moth."

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Watson of Quincy avenue entertained Mrs. T. H. Tyndal of Boston at dinner on Tuesday.

A very pretty Washington birthday luncheon was given by Miss Emma Spaulding, of 21 Chestnut street, in honor of her friend Miss Mary Louise Sanborn of Providence, R. I., the decorations were Lawson pinks and asparagus fern. The guests were Mrs.
W. E. Carr of Amesbury, Mass., the Misses Sadie and Carrie Parker, Misses Lora and Annie Hunt, Miss Addie Park, Miss Margaret Stewart and Mrs.
Booth.

Miss Celina Beliveau of Centre street, who successfully passed to musical tests for entrance to the Handel and Haydn Society not long ago, sang at their midwinter concert in Symphony hall, Boston, last Sunday evening. Miss Beliveau is a pupil of Mr. J. D. Buckingham and will be pleasantly remembered as the soloist at Woodward Institute while attending school there.

Mr. and Mrs. Ebed L. Ripley of Hingham, returned on Wednesday from California.

Mr. John LaFarge is having an exhibition of his paintings and water colors at the Doll & Richards gallery, Park street, Boston. Some exquisite pictures are in the collection.

The Washington whist club enjoyed their third annual banquet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Morrison of Braintree on Feb. 22nd. At six o'clock the club sat down to a fine spread of soups, turkey, ices, etc., after which whist was in its regular course. Each member declared Mr. and Mrs. Morrison excellent entertainers.

Miss Edith Randall of Spear street has been spending a few days this week in Millbury.

The Philathea class of Bethany church is to give a Poverty social in the chapel, Thursday evening, February 28th, from 7.30 to 10 o'clock.
Everyone young and old, is invited to join in the merry making and come clad in the costume of poverty.

The Matrons whist club met Monday evening with Mrs. A. A. Smith of Braintree. The souvenirs were secured by Mrs. W. F. Woodsam, Miss Alice Witherell and Mrs. F. W. Brett.

The last of a series of afternoon teas given at the American Unitarian association building, Beacon street, Boston, will be on Monday afternoon
the 25th from four until five, with Mrs.
Edward H. Atherton and Mrs. Henry
T. Seerist as the pourers.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Fisher of Upland road are at home to their friends on Monday afternoon and evening, the occasion being the tenth anniversary of their marriage.

Mrs. Charles Perkins entertained the Brow Elden club of South Braintree, Tuesday evening. A very successful business meeting was held, Mrs. Littlefield, acting president, presiding. Miss Simonds, secretary, and Miss Bates, treasurer, showed splendid reports in the club's social and financial standing.
Miss Mae Thayer assisted the hostess in serving her guests. The last hour was a social session, which the young ladies very much enjoyed. Those present were Mesdames Hale, Littlefield, Perkins, Misses Simonds, Bates, Stearns, Thayer, Bird, Hobart, Jonson, Griffin.

Mrs. Albert W. Fay of Newport avenue has the sympathy of many friends in the loss of her mother, Mrs. Mann, who passed away at her home in South
Framingham this week.

Mrs. Edith Noyes Porter at her at-home day at her studio 149 A Tremont street, Boston, on Friday, March first, is to give a musical program from five to six, when the music will be the work of American composers.

A delightful time was had last evening at the home of Miss Josephine Washington O'Brien of Braintree, the occasion being her eighteenth birthday. The high esteem in which she is held was shown by the number of costly and beautiful presents which were received from the many friends present. Games were enjoyed. The lighting of eighteen candles was enjoyed by all. The guests left at a late hour wishing her many more happy birthdays. Among the gifts was a watch and chain from her mother.

Miss Katharine Davis Hardwick of Spear street, of the Senior class of Boston University, has been chosen as class prophet for Class Day.

EXPRESS DERAILED

Large Loss of Life on the Pennsylvania Railroad

The westbound Pennsylvania
special eighteen-hour train between New York and Chicago was wrecked this morning at Mineral Point, eight miles east of Johnstown, Penn. Early reports say that the observation car and two sleepers rolled down the embankment into the river.

Early reports of the disaster say that there may be twenty dead and that fifty-four were injured. A relief train with thirty-seven injured arrived at Johnstown at 4 o'clock.

It was declared that the train was simply flying over the rails in a despite effort to save the railroad company the bonds required if the train was late.

The cause of the accident is not known. It is stated, however, that the brake rode or wheel of the engine broke.

New Men's Club At Wollaston

Thursday evening there was organized a men's club at the Wollaston M. E. church to be known as "The Methodist Club." The following officers were elected:

President,—A. B. Cassidy.
Vice President,—Samuel Kay.
Secretary and Treasurer,—A. N. Murray.

Executive Committee,—R. B. Smith,
S. N. Belcher, F. A. Sutermeister, A.
N. Bennett and A. M. Merrill.

The club starts out with 28 charter members and the object is to bring into closer fellowship the members and attendants of the Methodist church.

Silver Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Greene of Bot-olph street made their twenty-fifth anniversary a memorable occasion Thursday evening by issuing cards for a silver wedding. Invitations numbering a hundred or more were sent to friends all over the country. Mrs. Greene was born in Hartford, Conn., and Mr.
Greene is a Boston man. They have seven children, six of whom were at home on Thursday.

The many guests were welcomed informally by Mr. and Mrs. Greene and made them enjoy themselves by an excellent pianist, a pleasing singer and violin selections by Mr. Oliver Greene, the youngest son. The house was prettily adorned with pinks and green decorations.

Refreshments were served, sandwiches, coffee, cake and ices. The gifts received were many and beautiful, fitting reminders of good friends and lasting affection. It is a happy climax of twenty-five well lived years and Mr. and Mrs. Greene had a host of congratulations to carry with them through years to come.

Twenty First Annual Concert and Dance

The twenty-first annual concert and dance of Granite Lodge, No. 193, Order Sons of St. George, was held Thursday evening at Music hall and was the occasion for a large gathering of Englishmen and their descendants. These annual occasions have come to be looked forward to every year with thoughts of a pleasant evening and that of this year proved to be no exception to the rule.

From 8 to 10 o'clock there was a very pleasing concert. That the artists who appeared on the program struck a popular chord was evinced by the spontaneous applause that greeted each number. The program opened with a selection by Wilson's orchestra. This was followed by a song, "The Bugler" by G. Davey.

John Bohan the black face comedian
then appeared as "Lucky Jim" and immediately brought down the house.
Miss Alice Hyde, the ever popular reader, was greeted with prolonged applause. She gave a selection entitled "Tragedy Nipped in the Bud," and responded to an encore. "The songs my Mother used to Sing" by John Quigley also struck a popular chord.

Part one closed with a comical sketch entitled "Mr. Joffin's Latch Key," the characters being impersonated by John M. Troup, Mrs. Elizabeth Russell, Miss Helen Troup and Alex. W. Russell.

Part two opened with a song "The Diver," by Mr. Davey, and was followed by Miss Hyde, who gave an impersonation entitled "The Class."
Mr. Quigley followed with a song entitled "Good Bye," and the concert closed with a few minutes with the "Komical Kuss" by Mr. Bohan.

A few minutes after 10.30 the dance was inaugurated by a grand march, in which nearly one hundred couples participated. It was nearly daylight when the merry makers reluctantly took their departure for home, having passed one of the pleasantest evenings in the history of the order.
Wilson's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing and at midnight refreshments were served in the banquet hall.

SYNOPSIS.

Chapter 1—Bradley Nickerson, an orphan, twelve years of age, arrives at Orham, Mass., to live with his cousins, Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy Allen, old maids. In the Orham stage he meets Captain Ezra Titcomb, master of a coasting schooner, home for a brief vacation. II—Captain Titcomb visits the Allen old maids, to each of whom he presents a fan, one the exact counterpart of the other. III—Bradley becomes acquainted with Augusta ("Gusty") Baker, a girl of about his age, who lives next door. She owns several dogs. Bradley is sent to the village school and gets a whipping for fighting with Sam Hammond, a fellow pupil. IV—Captain Titcomb on his periodical visits to Orham is very kind to Bradley. Bradley delivers an "address" at the "last day" exercises at the Orham school. Prissy informs Tempy that evening that their resources are practically exhausted. V—Bradley overhears the conversation and consults Captain Titcomb, who agrees to take him on his ship as a sort of cabin boy.

VI—Bradley's first trip as a sailor. He goes to New York, and the captain takes him to the theatre. Bradley visits Orham at the end of three months and learns that through the instrumentality of Captain Titcomb Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy are receiving regular contributions from the Sampson fund for the children of shipmasters. The "old maids" have no knowledge of Titcomb's connection with the matter. VII—Bradley is now twenty years old and is second mate of Titcomb's vessel, the Thomas Doane. Titcomb is injured on the trip and is laid up in his cabin, when Bradley, in an effort to prevent the first mate from running the schooner on a shoal, overpowers that officer and looks him up. When Titcomb is well enough Bradley learns that the schooner was to have been wrecked with Titcomb's consent, by the owner's orders. Bradley is horrified, and Titcomb, agreeing with him that "honesty is the best policy," they both leave.

VIII—Bradley and Titcomb return to Orham. They decide to go into the wrecking business. Bradley is very attentive to Gusty Baker. IX—The partners have some small success at anchor dragging with their tiny schooner, the Lizzie. Gusty teaches Bradley to dance, and they attend a ball, at which she snubs Sam Hammond, now a diver in New York city, in order to give Bradley an "extra" wait.

X—The firm of Titcomb & Nickerson secures a contract to work the wrecked lumber laden schooner Ruth Ginn off the shoals. Bradley's love affair with Gusty Baker progresses nicely, despite his little jealousies of Sam Hammond. XI—The Ruth Ginn is worked off the shoals. Gusty promises to marry Bradley.

They stripped her, cutting away her tangled ropes and sails and taking them aboard the Lizzie. Everything movable, except of course the lumber, they transferred this or threw overboard. It was a hard job and took them all day. Bradley was a tired man when he reached home that night, but he had to answer countless questions put to him by the interested old maids. He saw Gus for a moment or two and reported progress. Then he went to bed.

Next morning was clear and calm, and they were delighted to find that the wrecked schooner had gained a little and that the cable was slackener than they left it. They tightened it again with the windlass and then set to work throwing overboard the lumber on the stump of the foremast and with the donkey engine swung great bundles of the planks overboard, while Alvin and Barney, standing on the floating timber, with the water swishing around the knees of their fishermen's boots, made it into rafts to be towed up to Orham.

That night they hired Ira Sparrow's fishing boat, the You and I, to tow the lumber rafts. She was a stout little craft with a naphtha engine, and, although not nearly so efficient as a tug, did the work after a fashion and was far and away cheaper. By hiring her they added Ira to their force.

For eight days they labored steadily; except on Sunday, when they merely sailed down to take up the slack on the cable. The lumber on the deck had begun to get out that in the hold. The Ruth Ginn was moving slowly through the sand, and every day showed more and more gain. The partners were in high spirits.

When the Lizzie, with the workers aboard, reached Ruth Ginn the next morning, Ira Sparrow, in the You and I, was there already, and the "chug, chug," of his naphtha engine was heard as he came rushing to meet them.

"Brad! Cap'n Ez!" he hailed, as soon as they were in shouting distance. "She's shifted like time in the night! I swan, I believe we can get her off this tide!"

This was such unexpected good news, for they had figured on another week at least, that the partners could scarcely believe it.

"Are you sure?" shouted Bradley, leaning over the Lizzie's bow.

"Pretty nigh sure. Look for your self."

They shot up to the wreck, to find the cable, that had been left tight and rigid, hanging loose. An inexperienced eye could see that the lumber schooner had changed her position. Her bow was now almost in a line with the edge of the shoal and, even in the slack water of the last of the ebb, she was rocking appreciably in the cradle her hull had made in the sand beneath it.

"Great scissors to grind!" shouted Captain Titcomb. "She'll do it as sure as I'm a foot high! Tumble aboard there, boys—lively!"

They clambered up the side and fell to work like sharks around a dead whale. Bradley got up steam in the donkey engine. As soon as possible they started the windlass and hauled the cable taut.

"She feels it, boy; she feels it!" cried the captain. "Give it to her, every pound she'll stand. Now, then," he added, "while we're waitin' for the tide to turn we might 's well rust out a little more of the cargo. No use to lay back and let Providence do it all. The Lord helps them that helps themselves, as the dinky said when he found the hen house door unlocked. Hatches off, men. Dive into it there!"

They rigged the blocks and tackle and began swinging bundles of mahogany strips from the hold over the side. The tide turned, and the water on the shoal grew deeper. The Ruth Ginn rocked in her sand cradle. Every little while they have taut on the cable in order to take up every inch of slack.

It was exhilarating, exciting work, this fight with old ocean, and Bradley and the captain gloried in the sheer joy of it. They were winning and winning not only a goodly sum of money, but the first big prize that would demonstrate their ability to carry through larger and more important contracts. The forenoon passed.

"Cap'n Ez!" suddenly bellowed Ira from the You and I. "She's movin'! Come up on your cable!"

The captain jumped to the windlass and Bradley to his engine. The cable tightened and slowly, inch by inch, wound back over the windlass barrel. From beneath the Ruth Ginn came a sliding, grating sound, the most welcome sound in the world to the wreckers. Bearse, picking up a heavy coil of rope from the deck, tossed it to Ira. "That's the stuff, Alvin!" roared the captain approvingly. "Make it fast in the bows. Now, Ira, put your power on to that line!"

The You and I leaped out into deep water and, with her naphtha engine coughing furiously, pulled doggedly at the new tow line. The grating under the keel of the lumber schooner grew louder; she quivered from stem to stern; the cable crept inboard faster and faster.

Then there came a shake, a roll that caused Peleg Myrie to lose his footing and tumble into the scuppers, and, with a triumphant yell, the Ruth Ginn slid off the shoal. And from her deck and from that of the You and I went up a yell that scared the gulls fishing away over on the Razorback.

They drew her into the channel, well out of danger, and anchored her firmly, bow and stern.

"There!" said the captain triumphantly. "She'll stay there till we can get a tug from Vineyard Haven. We'll

"Gus, do you really care?"

go ashore and telephone from the life saving station for one this minute. No more work today, boys."

Bradley went that night to see Gus. "Gus," he said, seizing her hand and holding it, "haven't you got anything to say to me?"

She did not look at him. "What shall I say?" she asked. "What do you want me to say?"

"Why, I thought you'd be glad that I've got the schooner off. I thought you'd say—"

"I am glad, very glad. And very proud. But I knew you would succeed. Hadn't we better go?"

But he would not let her go.

"I hoped you'd say more than that," he said disappointedly. "I was dreadfully blue the other night when Sam was here. I thought that, after all, perhaps I was making a fool of myself."

In giving up the city and trying to win out down here. It looked so small beside the great jobs Sam talked about. But when you spoke to me on the steps and told me you believed in me it all changed, and I swore to myself that I would win because you wanted me to. Gus, do you really care? Are you really glad?"

Then she turned to him, and he saw that her eyes were wet.

"What do you want me to say?" she whispered. "That I am more glad than I've ever been in my life before, and so proud of you, so proud because you were brave enough to make your fight and win it in the face of the whole village? And so ashamed of myself because I didn't encourage you as I ought when you first told me? I can say all that, Brad, and truly mean it."

"But Gus—oh, it's no use! That isn't enough. I haven't got any money, and I've only begun in my work, and I may fail, after all. But, Gus, will you wait for me? Do you care enough for me to wait and hope with me and marry me some day when I really win? Do you?"

He held her hand in both of his and waited, breathless, for the answer. But she did not give it; instead she looked at the window and through it at the waving beach grass and the blue sea beyond. And Bradley, gazing at her face, saw the tears overflow her eyelids and roll down her cheeks.

He turned white, and a great dread came over him. "Gus, don't you—can't you care for me?" he begged.

And then she turned and, leaning her head upon his shoulder, cried heartily and without restraint. "Why did you ask me? Why did you?" she sobbed.

"Because I had to. Gus, don't you love me?"

"Oh, Brad, I don't know. I think I do, but I'm not certain. I'm very, very proud of you, and I believe in you, but, oh, dear, I'm afraid of myself. I'm afraid of my temper; afraid I may change; afraid I don't really love you as much as I ought to."

"There isn't any one else, is there?" She smiled tearfully. "No, Brad, there isn't any one else."

"Then won't you try to say yes? Perhaps you'll learn to care for me. Won't you say yes and try, dear?"

"Do you want me to say it, now that you understand just how I feel?"

"Yes."

"Do you want to take me just as I am—liking you better than anybody else in the world, but not—perhaps not really loving you as it seems to me a girl ought to love the man who is going to marry her?"

"Yes."

"I'm a queer girl, Brad. Grandma says I'm like her best china teacups—I must be handled carefully or there'll be a smash. I guess that's so. I don't trust myself. I change my mind five times a day. Do you want me to say yes in spite of all this?"

"I do."

"Then I will say it, and I will try to be what you would like to have me."

He bent his head and kissed her.

MOCK THAW TRIALS.

Princeton "Freshies" Forced to Fill Principal Roles.

SOPHOMORES GRACE BENCH.

"Evelyn Nesbitt" Told to "Act Real Feminine"—"Jerome" Is Forced to Object Frequently—First Year Witness Must Sob Realistically.

It takes the undergraduate mind to find the humor in everything, but if there is any one set of men more particularly and heartily sick of the Thaw trial it is this year's freshman class at Princeton university, says a special dispatch from Princeton, N. J., to the New York Press. They have it with them morning, noon and night, not merely in the newspapers and as subject of common talk, but as a novel form of personal torment. "Thaw trials" are the great local amusement, so far at least as the sophomores are concerned. It is the freshmen who have to provide the fun.

District Attorney Jerome and Delphin M. Delmas would call on the court for protection if they could see themselves as represented at Princeton, and Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw and other star witnesses might or might not be pleased to see themselves as Princeton sees them. The intervals between recitation hours are the times most generally chosen for the holding of the "trials," and as the freshmen are growing chary of appearing in these hours of danger the sophomores have to impress whom they can to fill the principal roles. The trial on a recent morning was one of the most successful that have yet been held.

A lanky six foot freshman happened to stroll across the campus, and before he knew where he was he had been captured and informed he was "Evelyn Nesbitt." Skirmishing parties were sent out for others of his class, and presently a full array of counsel and witnesses had been roped in, and a sophomore, as usual, installed himself as judge. "Evelyn Nesbitt" was the first witness called, but the freshman's personification was lacking in realism, and his examination was interrupted while he received a lecture on deportment. He was ordered to "act feminine," to appear nervous and affected, but when at length he worked himself up to the point of sobbing and wiping away imaginary tears his torment was increased, for another freshman was driven to the task of consoling the witness. The newcomer was as short and fat as "Evelyn Nesbitt" was tall and lean, and the ministering angel had his work cut out to "act real affectionate," while his companion in misery all the time was wailing under his breath to wring his neck if he did not stop stroking his hair and patting his cheeks. The scene grew almost painful in its intensity, but a welcome relief came when a fresh faced freshman innocently strolled to the group and before he could get away became "District Attorney Jerome."

The instructions given to the district attorney by the judge were brief and to the point. He must not lose his temper, and he must object to the testimony of the witness between every syllable. But "Evelyn Nesbitt" did not get far in his testimony. The first question, "You were a chorus girl once?" suggested to the learned judge forthwith that every chorus girl could dance, and the lanky freshman was made to perform the dance of the "Floradora" sextet to the accompaniment of his own cheerful humming of "Now Tell Me, Pretty Maiden." The district attorney tried to object, but was overruled by the court, and the play came to an end only when upper classmen came along and broke up the group.

Blocks of Beer.

A Danish engineer has invented a way of making beer into blocks, which, being dissolved, become drinkable beer.

Admiral Anthracite.

[The government of the United States should at once possess itself of the entire anthracite field of Pennsylvania and retain it for purposes of national defense.—Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans in North American Review.]

Say, Fighting Bob, no doubt you know The sea and how to fight. But when it comes to coal supply You don't know anthracite.

There's eighteen thousand million tons. Or more—or less—maybe. Stored safely in the Keystone State For all posterity.

Which is enough to coat the ships Of all the world and more For several hundred centuries. And not exhaust the store.

Of course a smokeless coal is what We need when war is on. But soft coal's plenty good enough Till peace times are gone.

And as you say we only need With other nations on the sea, What are you asking for?

Say, Bob, just figure on the coal In Pennsylvania's mines As war material for use Along your fighting lines.

We'd have to go to war right now. No matter whom we fit. And fight and fight ten thousand years To use the half of it.

Pray, Robert, pause; do not persist In what you're knocking at. We'd better burn it all up now That have a scrap like that.

Young Men's Christian Association

OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and contributions toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an dormitories, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 4 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer any inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the endowment fund. This now amounts to over $20,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

Mortgagee's Sale.

BY virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by John Peterson and A. Albert Johnson to J. Q. Adams et al., as they were supervisors of the Adams Temple & School Fund of Quincy, dated June 1, 1887, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, book 306, page 27, for breach of the conditions contained in said mortgage deed and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described, on MONDAY, March 11th, 1907, at four o'clock in the afternoon, all certain tenements of lease made by the Selectmen of Quincy in concert with the Supervisors above named, dated May 1, 1887, whereby said Supervisors did lease to said Peterson and Johnson, for the term of twenty years, lot No. 41 on a plan of land belonging to said Fund, situated in Quincy, Massachusetts, which plan is recorded with Norfolk Plans, and bounded thereon: Southerly on a roadway leading to "Parker Street," then measuring fifty-five (55) feet; Westerly on lot No. 42; Northerly on other lands belonging to said Fund; and Easterly on lot No. 40, all as shown on said plan; together with all buildings, improvements, work, erections, or other property whatever of said Peterson and Johnson which may now be, or hereafter become, part of or attached to said leased realty, or which they may by the terms of said lease be entitled to remove or be compensated for at the expiration of said term, together with, and we hereby expressly assign to said Supervisors all our rights, privileges and appurtenances under said lease, together with the possession of the lease itself.

Subject to all unpaid taxes, assessments, and rent reserved under the terms of said lease.

leave for Asbury Park, New Jersey, was presented by the pupils with four five dollar gold pieces, hidden in a large bunch of red carnations. Chester Brown made a short but fitting speech and Mr. Thompson responded appropriately.

Beautiful Day.

Washington's Birthday although cold, was a beautiful day. The mercury fell rapidly Thursday night and it was below zero at daylight. It continued clear and cold all day and at no time during the day did the mercury go very high, the glass at noon registering but 18 above. Along toward night the mercury began to fall and it was down to zero again during the evening and remained there all night.

Whiskey Seized

The store of Clifford Towle at 2 Winter street was raided Thursday afternoon by Officer Larkin and a small quantity of whiskey was seized. Towle was arrested on the charge of maintaining a liquor nuisance. Towle has been arrested before for the same offence. The last time the case was continued when he was arraigned in court but when it came up on continuance Towle did not appear, having skipped. Some weeks later he gave himself up and was fined.

Y P R U Convention.

The midyear convention of the Boston Federation of Young People's Religious unions will be held at First church, Sunday afternoon and evening.
There will be a devotional service and business meeting in the afternoon at five o'clock, with an address of welcome
by the pastor of the church, and reports from the various unions. Supper will be served in the dining room about six o'clock to all guests; and at that time there will be an opportunity for social intercourse, and for seeing the church.
The evening session will be opened with a devotional service at half past seven.
There will be a solo by Mr. William P.
Thompson of Whitney road, and an address by the Rev. Frederick R. Griffin of All Souls' church, Braintree.

As this is the first convention of unions to be held in Quincy, it is especially desired to have a large attendance, not only of Union members and their friends, but of the parishioners in general. The evening session will be of most general interest, but all are equally welcome to the afternoon meeting, and to the supper.

Quincy Groom
Braintree Bride

Miss Gertrude Hayden of South
Braintree and Mr. William Griffiths of South Quincy were united in marriage at the home of the groom on Wednesday evening, Feb. 20. Miss Hattie Griffiths, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid and Mr. Ellis Holbrook of South Braintree as best man. Mr. Glover of Quincy presided at the piano. The bride was becomely dressed in white silk and carried a beautiful bouquet of white pinks and maiden-hair fern which was presented to her as the bridal party entered the parlor by the groom's little brother, Master Walcott Griffiths. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr.
Hardy of Quincy. After a reception was held a supper was served.

Tenth Straight
For the Quineys

Friday afternoon the Y. M. C. A. Intermediate gave Thayer academy a crushing defeat, the score being 36 to 24. For Quincy McKenzie and Goulie played a star game, while Alden of Thayer played well. This makes ten straight games for Quincy. Next Saturday they meet Haverhill on the local gym floor.

On the Warpath

Peter Antonio, spaniard employed as fireman on the steamer May which was tied up at Bradley's works at Weymouth got a day off Thursday, and after filling up with American run undertook to start a little Spanish war at Quincy Point by trying to demolish the store of Charles Hall. The neighbors became thoroughly frightened and it was not until Officer Hinchon put in an appearance that Peter put up the flag of truce. The steamer May sailed that afternoon without its fireman who was sobering off at the police station.

MILTON.

The people of the Mission of Our Saviour and of St. Michaels churches tendered a farewell reception to Rev.
Theodore I. Reese and Mrs. Reese,
Tuesday evening at the Town Hall.
The hall was very prettily decorated for the occasion and the affair was very largely attended. The ushers from East Milton were Harry F.
Brierley, Walter Hammons, Robert
Sweeney, George Arnold, George
Ellis and George Eaton.

Music during the reception was furnished by an orchestra. Light refreshments were served. Rev. Mr.
Reese was presented with a golden oak desk and chair by the people of the Mission church.

Rev. Mr. Reese will preach his farewell sermon next Sunday. He leaves March 5 for Columbia, Ohio, where he has accepted a call.

Two lively contests are promised at the annual Town meeting. These are over the offices of tax collector and auditor. At the caucus last week, J. Albert Simpson and Josiah Babcock were candidates for the nomination. Mr. Simpson won out, the vote being Simpson 155 and Babcock 102. Mr. Babcock was not satisfied and besides taking out nomination papers he is making a house to house canvass for votes.

The contest for Auditor is between, Austin W. Greene, the present incumbent, and Thomas Bannier. Mr.
Greene won the nomination at the caucus, but Mr. Bannier has taken out nomination papers.

A supper and entertainment will be held at the East Milton Congregational church Feb. 28.

The jury list for 1907 has been posted.
Edward Hodges is seriously ill at his home on Adams street.

There are 59 articles in the warrant for the annual March meeting.

Lenten services will be held every Friday evening at the Mission church.
The speakers at these services will be as follows: Feb. 22, Douglass H. Atwill; March 1, R. Townsend Henshaw;
March 5, Rev. George Hodges, D. D.; March 15, Phillips E. Osgood; March 22, Malbone H. Birchhead.

Lodge Anniversary.

The third anniversary of Wollaston lodge, No. 174, of the A. B. S., was held on Tuesday evening at Brasse hall.
The business meeting was held at 7.30, one candidate being initiated into the order and one application received.

At 8.30 friends of the members were received. The entertainment committee Mrs. Nina J. Miller, Mrs. Carrie Emerson and Mrs. Cora Merrill provided a pleasing entertainment, consisting of piano solos by Miss Emily Bjorkman, vocal solos by Mrs. V. S. Saunders and Mr. A. S. Kendall, readings by Mr. C.
M. Houghton, selections on the piano and violin by the Merrill brothers, and graphophone selections. Owing to the inability of the president of the Supreme lodge to be present, Dr. E. K. Johnson, the medical examiner of the lodge,
kindly consented to give a short address and in his usual bright and witty manner explained the meaning of the order.
Ice cream and cake were served, after which dancing was enjoyed until 11.30.
The event proved very enjoyable to all present.

SHAH WITHOUT A HAREM.

Persia's Ruler Has Only One Wife
Who Is His Comrade.

Mohammed Ali-Mirza, the new shah of Persia, has no harem and lives on the footing of a comrade with his one wife, who has a Parisian dressmaker and two assistants attached to her household.

The new shah kept at Tauris twelve Frenchmen, serving as blacksmith, veterinarian, chemist, gardener, tailor,
confectioner, artificer of fireworks, piano tuner, architect, civil engineer, chauffeur and a maitre d'hotel.

His new majesty is a man of few words. Otherwise, according to London Truth, he could earn a name for speaking French fluently. There is no apparent reason why he should not gladly co-operate in the constitutional reforms which have been latterly called for in Persia.

As things stand he has no more power than the early Capets, beyond that of naming his sons governors of provinces under the tutelage, if they be mere boys, of subgovernors. The governors squeeze the governed in the shah's name, but pocket most of the money they squeeze out of them.

If the late shah had a good time personally through his ten years of reign
it was on borrowed money. "After me the deluge," might properly have been his motto. None of his sons inherited his easy going mansuetude.

They all resemble the grandfather in disposition and character, and the three elders have as governors of provinces shown themselves as cruel. The third, Abou'l Fatz, is as much the desperado as any of the Kurds he governs and drives into revolt by his fiscal oppression.

OLD SETTLERS' PARK.

Iowa Town to Have One in Memory of Pioneers.

Iowa is to have an old settlers' park in memory of the pioneers of the early thirties, says an Ottumwa (Ia.) special dispatch to the Chicago Inter Ocean.

The central figure of this park, covering as it will more than 100 acres, will be the log house which Rhodham Bonfield, father of W. B. Bonfield, Sr., of Ottumwa built when he and his family first settled in Jefferson county.
This now famous cabin, admittedly the oldest existing building in the state of Iowa, is to be used as a museum for relics of the days of the early settlers.

In the acres surrounding it trees,
shrubbery and grasses native to Iowa are to be grown. The city council of Fairfield, where the park will be believed, has approved the granting of 100 acres for park purposes.

The Bonfield cabin was built in 1838 and at once became the center of pioneer life in this section. Situated on the old state road, between Burlington and Ottumwa, it was the rallying point for the social, political and religious life of the first settlers. In it the first postoffice in Jefferson county was established. Here the first governors and territorial delegates, on their way through the new country, found shelter and entertainment.

In this building the city of Fairfield was named by Mrs. Rhodham Bon-field, who suggested the name to the surveyors as they were engaged in staking out the town.

LONG WALK ON WATER.

Oldrieve Went From Cincinnati to New Orleans Within Forty Days.

Captain Charles W. Oldrieve recently accomplished the feat of walking on the water from Cincinnati to New Orleans, a distance of 1,600 miles, in forty days, lacking forty-five minutes,
thereby winning a wager of $5,000, says a New Orleans special dispatch to the New York Times.

Oldrieve met with an accident just before reaching the goal, at the head of Canal street, that nearly cost him his life. His big wooden shoes suddenly slid outward, and the water walker turned turtle. His wife, who accompanied him all the way in a rowboat, rescued the captain.

Oldrieve left Cincinnati on Jan. 1 at noon on a wager that he would walk to New Orleans in forty days. At the falls above Louisville he was delayed for twenty-four hours, and that time, it was agreed, should be allowed for.
Oldrieve was in motion only during daylight, lying over every night at the various landings. He was equipped with shoes made of cedar four feet five inches long, five inches broad and several inches deep. In a gasoline boat preceding the water walker were Captain J. W. Weatherington of Dallas, Tex., who backed Oldrieve, and Arthur Jones, who represented Edward Williams of Boston, who laid the wager.

A Socialist's Programme.

Battersen's Socialist candidate for the London county council issued his address recently, says a special cablegram from London to the New York Times. He advocates municipal omnibuses, bakeries, dairies, milk and coal depots, markets for fish, meat and vegetables, pawnshops, restaurants and saloons, public ownership of hospitals and dispensaries, a county council bank, a municipal theater, a municipal opera house, work for the unemployed at trades union wages and a forty-eight hour week for all employees.
That is all he can think of at present.

Live by Their Noses.

A new occupation has been developed in London and already is being successfully worked, says Popular Mechanics. The requirement is a sensitive sense of smell, and a little practice makes the detector quite proficient.
He inspects the gas pipes and fixtures of a building and charges 18 cents for each leak he discovers. Some of the men earn $15 a week.

Bank Officials Pass Resolutions

The directors of the National Granite Bank have adopted the following resolutions on the death of Edwin W. Marsh.

Whereas, Edwin W. Marsh, for twenty years a member of the Board of Trustees, for eighteen years Vice President and a member of the Board of Investment, and for the past three years President of the Quincy Savings Bank, has been taken from this life, it is hereby

Resolved, That our late President, a man of singular probity of character, of most exemplary love of duty, of plain and earnest speech, of keen and untiring interest in the welfare of this institution, was entitled to and received from us, his associates in the Board of Trustees, most sincere respect.

While we recognize that he has lived far beyond the allotted time of man's tenure of life, and it was natural that his life should close, yet we cannot forbear deploring the loss that has come upon us.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family and published in the local papers, and that the Bank be closed on the afternoon of the funeral service.

The following resolutions offered by R. F. Claffin were adopted by the Trustees of the Quincy Savings Bank on Feb. 18:

Whereas,—in the providence of God, our late associate and fellow member, Edwin W. Marsh, has passed away, he it

Resolved,—That his strong personality and intellectual acumen, always in evidence at our meetings, at which for many years he was a very constant attendant, will be greatly missed.

And he having lived to an advanced age, we must bow to the natural law, and now simply give expression to the thought, that his earthly mission has been fulfilled, and that he has nobly and honorably closed a long career of great usefulness to the community in which he lived. And be it further

Resolved,—That a copy of these resolutions, suitably engrossed, be sent to the family, and also published in the local papers. And that as an evidence of the respect and affection felt for our late fellow member, this Board attend his funeral in a body and that the Bank be closed in the afternoon of the funeral service.

Winter Is Still With Us

The drop of 27 degrees in the noon temperature from Thursday noon to Friday noon was a forcible reminder that winter is still with us. Thursday was a beautiful day with a noon temperature of 43 degrees. Late in the afternoon and early evening the temperature began to drop rapidly.

With the drop in temperature came a rising of the wind so that by midnight on Thursday it was zero. It continued cold all day Friday, the temperature at noon registering 16 degrees. Although the sun was warm, the air was damp and bitter cold and it was disagreeable to be out.

Last night the temperature had dropped to zero long before midnight, and it continued to go down gradually all night. Early this morning it had reached 10 below in some places, while in others it was 6 and 7 below.

It warmed up a little toward noon but had only reached 18 above zero.

Peary Lecture Of Great Interest

It was a privilege to be one of the large audience gathered to welcome Commander Peary and listen to his wonderful experiences in the Arctic regions, exulting with him in his achievement of reaching the nearest point to the North Pole.

Commander Peary was greeted with continuous clapping as he entered Tremont Temple with the President of the Boston Scientific association who welcomed the members of the Appalachian club, which he claimed was a sister organization. He introduced the intrepid explorer to an audience composed of the largest number of scientific men and women that had ever assembled in Tremont Temple.

A perfect storm of applause met the daring traveler as he rose to lecture. His opening remarks riveted the attention of all present as he contrasted the warm hall brilliant with electric lights and the cultivated audience in the midst of New England's comfortable homes and the same date the year previous, when in winter quarters amid impenetrable fields of ice and snow he was longing for six months' night of darkness to end. The thermometer at 70 degrees below zero, striving to keep the Esquimaux and dogs in as good condition as possible in order to be ready to start on their sledging expedition as soon as the six months' day was well advanced.

With the help of the stereopticon maps, charts, and pictures made clear to his hearers, his exact course and imparted a realizing sense of the dangers and vicissitudes encountered by these hardy explorers. Many times during his lecture, enthusiastic clapping signified the interest of all, especially as the white reindeer were pictured on the screen, and the speaker described his first finding these hitherto unknown animals. Also when the places were shown where he had cairns of stones built and beneath them placed his records, with a portion of the flag. Thus the stars and stripes are preserved on those northern shores and mark the discoverer's achievements.

Photographs of his efficient Esquimaux hunters and sledge-drivers with their faithful dogs were presented. Also types of the Esquimaux women. The enduring ship, the Roosevelt, crushed in the drifting exhibited. One scene a view of the ship during the long night, was taken by moon-light. The plate was exposed three hours. This picture elicited applause.

At 87 deg. 6 min., the extreme northern point ever reached by any Arctic navigator, the emaciated countenances of his men, the worn-out dogs and the small amount of provisions compelled a retreat.

The record was beaten but instead of being elated, Commander Peary stated that it was with a sense of defeated ambition, a sad disappointment of his most intense desires, to yield to the inevitable and start on the homeward route.

His adventures on the return journey were graphically depicted. The distress occasioned, when open water was sighted was great, for the sledging party were prevented from continuing their southward route until after a detour of miles to the west. A crust of new thin ice enabled the party to venture across on snowshoes encountering a remnant of a half-starved company of his men, who bewildered, were journeying away from the ship. His party resuscitated the forlorn travellers. Facing starvation with his enlarged number and ever lessening store of provisions they resumed their perilous way.

The ship Roosevelt safely brought the party back to civilization although rudder and stern-post had been torn away by the crushing ice.

Commander Peary gave all the credit to the Peary Arctic club of New York, whose money had made the expedition possible.

Explorer Peary said God willing he would make another dash for the North Pole. It would cost only $100,000 dollars. He declared he would choose a more north-westerly course and depend on the prevailing winds and drifting ice to carry his party right over the North Pole. He asserted that every American wished to have the prestige that would accrue from having an American discoverer reach the North Pole.

After a reception Commander Peary left for New York.

BRAINTREE.

Messrs. J. E. Hayden and W. H. Payne of Camp 32 attended the 25th silver anniversary banquet of the S. of V. at the Quincy House, Boston, Tuesday evening.

James H. Kilbrith attended the annual banquet given by the Regal Shoe company to their superintendents, foremen and assistants, at Hotel Essex, Boston, Tuesday evening.

The union of the Episcopal church and the Congregational church choirs in the "Crucifixion" tomorrow ought to make harmony in the denominations.

It is authoritatively stated that J. F. Sheppard & Sons have their ice houses entirely filled and employees have been busy the past week covering the supply with hay to keep it from melting in the warmer seasons.

The many friends of Mr. T. A. Watson of East Braintree will desire to hear his lecture on his "Trip to Alaska" at the Union church, Friday evening, March 1.

Monday evening, Miss Jennie Glover, who is employed in the office at the Williams & Kneeland shoe factory was surprised by about thirty of her friends at her home on Washington street. The occasion was her twentieth birthday and she was presented with a silk umbrella in honor of the event.

Conductor Henry G. Burnham now lives in the house formerly occupied by Mr. L. P. Hadley, on Holbrook avenue. Wednesday morning he had a flag out the attic window to show his appreciation of a fine home.

Past Commander and Chaplain, Edward O. Pierson, of Post 87, has filled every position of honor and trust within the gift of the post, and has served twice on the staff of the Department of Massachusetts and is now honored with a position by the commander in chief of the G. A. R. with rank of Colonel. He attended the banquet tendered by the National staff association at Copley square hotel on Monday evening and also the state convention held at Faneuil hall this week.

Herbert H. Palmer has completed his course for the degree of A. B. at Amherst college and has accepted a position as instructor in Latin and English in the male high school at Louisville, Kentucky, where he is already at work.

Among the tourists on board the steamship "Republic" which left Boston, Saturday, Feb. 2, and collided with a vessel in the harbor at Naples, the sixteenth, were Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Mills, and Mrs. H. W. Davenport. None of the passengers or crew were seriously injured.

Mr. F. H. Palmer leaves today for Chicago to attend the three days' meeting next week of the Department of Superintendence, of the National Educational association of which he is an active member.

Very pretty souvenirs of welcome were given by Monaquiot lodge K. of P. to the Rockland at there meeting Monday evening when the latter did some excellent degree work.

Mrs. J. F. Sheppard of Quincy avenue was called to New Jersey to attend the funeral of Miss Mary Fifthian, aunt of Mr. Sheppard. Miss Fifthian had visited her relatives in East Braintree and made many friends here.

On Thursday-afternoon Mrs. Carrie F. Loring of the school committee visited the Jonas Perkins school and gave a most interesting address to the pupils of the seventh and eighth grades on "Washington," our first president. "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen." At the close of her remarks she alluded to a recent visit to Brockton, where as an officer in the Woman's Relief Corps she participated in an impressive ceremony, the presentation of a silk flag with gold fringe to the Brockton High school by the Woman's Relief Corps.

A series of four evening bridge parties for men members of the Cochoctub club will be held February 25th, March 4th, 11th, and 18th. Committee: F. H. Waters, H. P. Readmon and F. G. Wilson.

The appropriation committee met in the selectmen's room Monday evening, and organized with Hartley L. White as chairman, and David G. Doane, as secretary. The next meeting will be on Monday evening Feb. 25.

The sophomore class of the Braintree high school enjoyed a sleighing party Thursday evening, about fourteen in the party. Each one in fine spirits and the sleighing O. K. a jolly good time was enjoyed.

Tax payers should not fail to attend town meeting Monday evening, March eleventh. If they do not attend they certainly can't complain of excessive appropriations.

The athletes of the Thayer academy are practicing daily in the White gymnasium for their annual exhibition to be given in March at the town hall. As this is the only indoor meet held in this section all are planning to attend.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Louis Cheatam makes her living by raising and training native song birds near the popular winter resort of Aiken, S. C.

Mme. Jussierand, wife of the French ambassador, has one of the finest collections of fans in the world, to which she is continually adding.

Eleanor, duchess of Northumberland, who is now eighty-six, belongs to the old world type of aristocrat and was a great social power in England in the middle of Queen Victoria's reign.

Mrs. Hannah Cole of South Sanford, Me., claims the distinction of weaving some of the first sheeting manufactured in New England and also of performing her own marriage ceremony according to the Quaker rites.

Miss Frances Zerby of Pottsville, Pa., has been admitted to practice law in all the courts of Pennsylvania, including the supreme court. In the preliminary examination she was six points ahead of the next highest applicant.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger is an ardent advocate of fine lace, and she recently wrote to a girl that if she had $1,000 to spend abroad she would invest $750 of it in lace and be a well-gowned woman for the remainder of her life.

Mrs. Judd Stewart of 7 Broadway, New York, wants to get up an organization among students and collectors of Lincolnia, with a possible object of bringing together everything that has ever been printed about Lincoln and having the collection housed in some central location.

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

A motor boat is to be utilized for mission service in the North sea by the Missions to Seamen society. It will be named the Frances Roget and will be stationed at Harwich.

The Japanese of southern California have decided to raise $25,000 and build a Buddhist temple in Los Angeles. It is estimated that nearly one-tenth of all the Buddhists of the United States, who number approximately 50,000, reside in southern California.

The English Episcopal clergy are discarding the old soft felt hat they have worn so long and are adopting a stiff one made of smooth black felt, shaped like the straw top hat that is called in England a "boater." The new hat is said to be "smart and yet sober."

Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the Christian Endeavor society and the world's greatest gospel traveler, will spend the better part of this year in South America. While he has been twice around the world and has labored in Africa, Siberia and most of the other remote parts of the earth, this will be his first trip to South America.

LAW POINTS.

The constitutionality of a statute providing for the imprisonment of one acquitted of the charge of murder on the ground of insanity is upheld in ex parte Brown (Wash.), 1 L. R. A. (N. S.), 540.

That a witness had never heard the matter discussed is held, in Sinclair versus State (Miss.), 2 L. R. A. (N. S.), 553, not to render him incompetent to testify to the general reputation of accused for peace or violence in the community.

The right of a defendant to consent to the trial at the same time and before the same jury of different indictments charging him with separate offenses of burglary and grand larceny is sustained in Lucas versus State (Ala.), 3 L. R. A. (N. S.), 412.

INDUSTRIAL ITEMS.

Co-operative farming is gaining rapidly in Germany, Italy and other European countries.

The New Zealand government is compelled to supply work at $2 a day to all who apply.

There were 25,811,681 spindles in the 1,732 establishments engaged in spinning cotton in the United States last year, of which only the insignificant number of 561,585 spindles, or a little more than half a million, were idle.

Piano and organ makers in convention at Chicago took up the proposed plan of establishing a union piano factory. It was referred to the general executive board, which will draw plans and submit the matter to the referendum vote of the 10,000 members.

PLANTS AND FLOWERS.

Three ounces of soda to a gallon of water makes an excellent bath to induce growth in plants.

Fifty degrees is the lowest temperature at which most indoor plants can be successfully grown.

The reason begonias always make suitable plants for the window is because they can adapt themselves to almost any conditions.

To revive flowers sent by post plunge the stems into hot water and let them remain until the water is cold. Then cut the ends of the stems afresh and put the flowers into fresh cold water.

ODD ADS.

The following advertisement recently appeared in a western medical journal: Wanted—A bicycle, for which will be given a jar containing nine specimens of the appendix vermiciformis.

A firm of movers—"careful" no doubt—in London publishes the following rather scandalous advertisement: Why pay rent when you can be moved cheaply, quickly and quietly by — & Co.? Estimates free.

A TRYING ORDEAL

Young Mrs Thaw Was on the Verge of Collapse

RESPIRE IS APPRECIATED

Visits Husband In Tombs and Says She Is "Feeling Pretty Well"—May Spend Many More Days in the Witness Chair

New York, Feb. 23.—The principals in the Thaw trial spent Friday in rest, everyone apparently relishing the respite from the somewhat harrowing scenes which marked this week's proceedings. By the time the hearing resumed next Monday morning it is expected that Mrs. Evelyn N. Thaw will have entirely recovered her composure and will be prepared again to take her place in the witness chair.

On Thursday it was said the young woman was on the verge of illness and that a cup of broth had been her only sustenance for two days. She was so weakened as the result of her day's experience that she retired immediately upon reaching her apartments and did not arise until late yesterday. The only reason which took her from her bed even then was the call she had promised to make upon her husband in the Tombs prison. Ordinarily visitors are not allowed in the big gray building on holidays, but an exception was made with regard to Harry Thaw's wife and counsel.

It was well after noon when Mrs. Thaw arrived at the prison. She was accompanied by Daniel O'Reilly, one of her husband's counsel, and was shown at once into the consultation room. There had been reports in some of the early editions of the papers yesterday to the effect that Thaw himself was in bad physical condition, but when he appeared to greet his wife he declared that he was feeling exceptionally well and enjoying his usual vigorous health. As Thaw rushed into the conference room he clasped his wife in his arms, saying: "My dear, brave little wife." The two talked together for a long while and then O'Reilly was called into conference.

Mrs. Thaw was pale and wan, but when approached by newspaper men smiled and tried to appear cheerful. In reply to questions she said she was "feeling pretty well."

District Attorney Jerome has gone to Lakeville, Conn., to spend the holiday recess with his family. Nearly all of Thaw's counsel remained at their homes.

The district attorney will keep Mrs. Thaw on the stand at least a day and a half more and may even stretch his searching cross-examination through twice that length of time. It will depend upon how Mrs. Thaw feels at the end of this period as to whether or not Thaw's counsel will go ahead with their rediret examination of her.

Mr. Delmas has been making copious notes during Jerome's questioning of the witness and he will likely endeavor to place a different light upon some of the incidents which have been disclosed. With the cross-examination only half completed and with the rediret and re-cross-examination still in view, there seems no way to approximate the number of days in the witness chair Mrs. Thaw has before her. If she is much fatigued at the end of Jerome's first cross-examination she may be released for a time, subject to recall. In view of the fact, however, that the defendant's counsel forced the district attorney to proceed with the cross-examination against his will, he will very likely insist in return that they shall also conclude with the witness before she is excused from the stand.

Mrs. Thaw, on direct examination, identified 42 letters as being in the handwriting of Stanford White. The letters were not written to her, but to another girl. Delmas evidently is holding these letters for introduction during the rediret examination and evidently hopes to have them admitted as offsetting something Jerome was expected to bring out on cross-examination. No intimation has been given as to what the letters contain or to whom they were written. They may constitute a new element of surprise which is yet to be injected into a case which has already been so prolific of astounding incidents.

Legislation That Hurts

St. Johns, Feb. 23.—The fishing industry of the French colony of St. Pierre and Miquelon has declined 45 percent in the past 20 years and the population of St. Pierre has declined 15 percent, according to statistics laid before the Newfoundland legislature. The falling off in the fish trade is attributed to a rigid enforcement of the Newfoundland bait act.

Four Went Through Thin Ice

Buffalo, Feb. 23.—Four people were drowned in Senecaquada creek, at an entrance to Delaware park, last evening. The dead are Mrs. William H. Drummer, 28 years old; Anthony Belter, 13; Richard Belter, 12; and Ruth Drummer, 14 years old. Mrs. Drummer, with several children, was walking on the ice when it gave way.

Liquor Licenses at Old Prices

Indianapolis, Feb. 23.—The lower house of the Indiana legislature indefinitely postponed consideration of the high license bill by a vote of 51 to 47. The bill sought to raise saloon licenses in Indiana to $1000.

GOTHAM'S NEW MYSTERY

Feet and Legs of Human Body
In Box In a Snowbank

New York, Feb. 23.—The feet and portions of the legs of a man or woman were found in a box in a snowbank in the back yard of a tenement house on upper Third avenue. The legs had been chopped off apparently with an axe. From the appearance of the feet and legs it is believed that an attempt had been made to burn them. Police Sergeant McGuire, to whom the find was reported, said:

"I am convinced the limbs were cut from the body of a man—probably an Italian. I suspect the man may have been murdered and his body cut up in one of the tenements in the neighborhood."

There are no marks either upon the box or the paper in which the feet were wrapped that would lead to an identification. Detectives sifted the snow where the box was found and discovered a photograph of a young woman, on the back of which was written the name "Faber." Mary Vasquez, the janitress of the building behind which the bones were found, did not recognize the photograph or the name, but said that for several days letters addressed "Faber" had come to the house, which she had refused to receive because there was no one of that name in the building.

Kaulbars Backs Black Hundred

Odessa, Feb. 23.—The anti-Semitic excesses which have been conducted by the Union of True Russians, with the tolerance of the authorities, are gradually diminishing. Premier Stolypin having instructed Governor General Kaulbars to prevent further disorders. In accordance with these instructions Kaulbars summoned a special council and it was decided to "advise the members of the union to restore order." Kaulbars, however, insisted that the Black Hundred should not be disarmed because "they are the only true patriots in Russia."

Catch of Long Island Whalem

Anaugsett, L. I., Feb. 23.—Three whales following a school of fish working along the Atlantic coast were sighted off the south shore of Long Island and two of them yielded their lives to the old-time whalers who live here or at Wainwright. A bull landed here is 71 feet long. The one taken at Wainwright is a calf nearly 50 feet long. The third whale did not escape until harpoons had been made fast. She is expected to float up off shore within a day or two, for she appeared mortally wounded.

Millionaire's Wife Loved Another

Chicago, Feb. 23.—While raving in her cell at the police station Mrs. Michael McDonald, wife of a millionaire, who shot and killed Webster S. Guerin, an artist, told the police enough to lead them to the conclusion that it was jealousy and not blackmail that led her to take the life of her alleged clandestine lover. Made desperate by a false report that Guerin was betrothed to a West Side society girl, the police say that she took Guerin's life in revenge.

Ten Men Fled From Jail

Dover, Del., Feb. 23.—Ten convicts, including some alleged murderers, escaped from jail here last night. Shortly before the time for calling in the men from their evening exercise Philip Shepherd, who was awaiting trial for alleged felonious assault, struck the turnkey, knocking him insensible. He then secured the keys and released the other prisoners. Three of the fugitives have been captured and search for the other men is being continued.

From United States to Russia

New York, Feb. 23.—Rev. Dr. Tikhon, archbishop of the Greek (or Holy Orthodox Catholic) church of North America and the Aleutian islands, has been transferred from his present see in New York to one of the oldest and richest arch-dioceses of Russian-Jaroslavl, about half way between Moscow and St. Petersburg. He will leave the United States next month.

Stabbed by a Tree Limb

Elmira, N. Y., Feb. 23.—While coasting on the grounds of Congressman Fassett here, James Buckley attempted to pass under an apple tree, the limbs of which hung close to the ground. One of the limbs pierced the lad's neck, passing clear through, and coming out on the opposite side under the collarbone. He lived but a few minutes.

Walked Into Pond While Asleep

Egg Harbor, N. J., Feb. 23.—Guy C. Pierce, 32 years old, a wealthy farmer, was found dead in a pond on his farm. He was dressed only in his nightclothes. He retired at the same time as did his family at night and it is believed he got up, left the house and walked into the pond while asleep.

Old Soldier Started Riot

Waco, Tex., Feb. 23.—William Welch, an ex-Confederate soldier, 62 years of age, claiming Atlanta as his home, is in custody of the sheriff here. Welch admits that he is the man who fired the first shot in the riot between whites and negroes a few months ago in Atlanta.

Had Been Sick For Three Years

Elizabeth, N. J., Feb. 23.—Former Congressman John T. Dunne died here of kidney trouble. He had been ill in a hospital for three years. He was 63 years old and was one of the best known politicians in the state.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, Feb. 24.
Sun rises—6:29; sets—5:27.
Moon sets—4:19 a. m.

Fair weather is likely to continue in New England. It will be warmer.

Education.

By THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

ALTHOUGH we talk a good deal about what the widespread education of this country means, I question if many of us deeply consider its meaning. From the lowest grade of the public school to the highest form of university training EDUCATION IN THIS COUNTRY IS AT THE DISPOSAL OF EVERY MAN, EVERY WOMAN, WHO CHOOSES TO WORK FOR AND OBTAIN IT. The state has done very much. Private benefaction has done much, very much. And each one of us who has obtained an education has obtained something for which he or she has not personally paid.

Each one of us, then, who has an education, school or college, has obtained something from the community at large for which he or she has not paid, and no self respecting man or woman is content to rest permanently under such an obligation. WHERE THE STATE HAS BESTOWED EDUCATION THE MAN WHO ACCEPTS IT MUST BE CONTENT TO ACCEPT IT MERELY AS A CHARITY UNLESS HE RETURNS IT TO THE STATE IN FULL IN THE SHAPE OF GOOD CITIZENSHIP. I do not ask of you good citizenship as a favor to the state. I demand it of you as a right and hold you recreant to your duty if you fail to give it.

From all our citizens we have a right to expect good citizenship, but most of all from those who have received most, most of all from those who have had the training of body, of mind, of soul, which comes from association in and with a great university. To the man of means much has been given, too, and much will be expected from him and ought to be, but not as much as from you, because your possession is more valuable than his. If you envy him, I think poorly of you.

ENVY IS MERELY THE MEANEST FORM OF ADMIRATION, AND A MAN WHO ENVIES ANOTHER ADMITS THEREBY HIS OWN INFERIORITY.

We have a right to expect from the college bred man, the college bred woman, a proper sense of proportion, a proper sense of perspective, which will enable him or her to see things in their right relation one to another, and when thus seen, while wealth will have a proper place, a just place, as an instrument for achieving happiness and power, for conferring happiness and power, it will not stand as high as much else in our national life. The names that come up before us, the names to which we turn, the names of the men of our own people which stand as shining honor marks in our annals, the names of those men typifying qualities which rightly we should hold in reverence, ARE THE NAMES OF THE STATESMEN, OF THE SOLDIERS, OF THE POETS, and after them, not abreast of them, the names of the architects of our material prosperity also.

You, men and women, who have had the advantages of a college training are not to be excused if you fail to do, not as well as, but more than, the average man outside who has not had your advantages. * * * Your education, your training, will not confer on you one privilege in the way of excusing you from effort or from work. All it can do, and what it should do, is to make you a little better fitted for such effort, for such work.

It is incumbent upon you to show that the training has had that effect. It ought to enable you to do a little better for yourselves, and if you have in you souls capable of a thrill of generous emotion, souls capable of understanding what you owe to your training, to your alma mater, to the past and the present that have given you all that you have—if you have such souls it ought to make you doubly bent upon disinterested work for the state and the nation.

EDUCATION MAY NOT MAKE A MAN A GOOD CITIZEN, BUT MOST CERTAINLY IGNORANCE TENDS TO PREVENT HIS BEING A GOOD CITIZEN.

Washington was far too much of a patriot, had far too much love for his fellow citizens, to try to teach them that they could govern themselves unless they could develop a sound and enlightened public opinion. NO NATION CAN PERMANENTLY RETAIN FREE GOVERNMENT UNLESS IT CAN RETAIN A HIGH AVERAGE OF CITIZENSHIP, and there can be no such high average of citizenship without a high average of education, using the word in its broadest and truest sense to include the things of the soul as well as the things of the mind.

SCHOOL EDUCATION CAN NEVER SUPPLANT OR TAKE THE PLACE OF SELF EDUCATION—STILL LESS CAN IT IN ANY WAY TAKE THE PLACE OF THOSE RUGGED AND MANLY QUALITIES WHICH WE GROUP UNDER THE NAME OF CHARACTER—BUT IT CAN BE OF ENORMOUS USE IN SUPPLEMENTING BOTH.

It is a source of just pride to every American that our people have so consistently acted in accordance with Washington's principles of promoting institutions for the diffusion of knowledge. There is nothing dearer to our hearts than our public school system, by which free primary education is provided for every one within our borders.

The men who founded this nation had to deal with theories of government and the fundamental principles of free institutions. We are now concerned with a different set of questions, for the republic has been firmly established, its principles fully tested and approved. TO MERELY POLITICAL ISSUES HAVE SUCCEEDED THOSE OF GRAVE SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC IMPORTANCE. THE SOLUTION OF WHICH DEMANDS THE BEST EFFORTS OF THE BEST MEN. We have a right to expect that a wise and leading part in the effort to attain this solution will be taken by those who have been exceptionally blessed in the matter of obtaining an education. That college graduate is but a poor creature who does not feel when he has left college that he has received something for which he owes a return.

WHAT HE THUS OWES HE CAN, AS A RULE, ONLY PAY BY THE WAY HE BEARS HIMSELF THROUGHOUT LIFE.

The educated man is entitled to no special privilege save the inestimable privilege of trying to show that his education enables him to take the lead in striving to guide his fellows aright in the difficult task which is set to us of the twentieth century. The problems before us today are very complex and are widely different from those which the men of Washington's generation had to face, but we can overcome them surely if we approach them in the spirit which Washington and Washington's great supporters brought to bear upon the problems of their day—the spirit of sanity and of courage, the spirit which combines hard common sense with the loftiest idealism.

Did You EVER THINK of That?

IT WILL HELP QUINCY!

IT WILL HELP YOU!

Don't You Like This Town?

You live here. Your business interests are here. Your home is here.

You are reading a Mail Order Catalogue. That indicates that you are not spending your money in this town. You are spending it with strangers in a big city. That city has no use for this town except to get your money.

This town has use for your money. If spent here, your money will help to build up the town. It will help to build up your own business.

In the long run more of your money will come back to you if you spend it at home than if you send it to Chicago or some other large city. You spend a dollar with Smith, up the street. Smith spends it with Brown, around the corner. Brown is just as likely to spend it with you as with anybody else. Did you ever think of that?

All of us have to spend money. There is an art in spending it where it will do the most good. If spent so that it will circulate around this town and community, it will help this town and community. You belong to this town and community. Therefore it will help you. Isn't that good logic?

Suppose you think it over next time you pick up the Mail Order Catalogue.

THREE LEFT ON WRECK

Survivors Were Buffeted About
For Many Hours on Atterpart of Vessel, Though In Sight of Land All the Time

Hook of Holland, Feb. 23.—Largely as a result of the courage and determination of Prince Henry of the Netherlands, the prince consort, that which appeared to be an impossible task has been achieved and the heroic and unflinching Dutch lifelboat men have succeeded in rescuing alive 11 more of the survivors of the ill-fated steamer Berlin, but one having previously been rescued.

The gallant lifeboat men were rewarded after more than 30 hours of hard and dangerous work. Buffeted and driven back time after time, the sturdy Dutchmen refused to relax their attempts to rescue the handful of shipwrecked people and finally, at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the receding tide and some improvement in the weather having made the conditions easier, their long fight was crowned with success.

Although several of the persons rescued were in the last stages of exhaustion, they now are on the road to recovery and some of them have been able to tell the story of their awful experiences. Two women and a child are still on board the wreck, but it is feared that they are dying. Nothing daunted, however, the brave Dutchmen are preparing to make further desperate efforts to rescue these unfortunate people.

It now appears certain that after the catastrophe there were many more than 15 persons remaining on the wreck and that most of them were washed off by the waves. One woman was carried away just before the rescue was effected. The survivors huddled together for warmth and the members of the crew who were still alive shared their food with the others. There was not enough to go around, however, and for 24 hours not a morsel of food passed the lips of these unfortunate people.

The survivors praise highly the graciousness of Prince Henry, who personally assisted the women. The prince wrapped his fur overcoat about one woman. Captain Jansen of the lifeboat and the other rescuers warmly praised the courage of Prince Henry, who went out in the smaller boat and worked hard pulling at the cars and in helping to hoist the survivors aboard.

This was not accomplished without difficulty owing to the heavy surf, but the rescuers managed to get a line aboard the wreck and make the other end fast to the lifeboats. The survivors then climbed down and were carried one by one through the surging waters, breast high, along the pier and placed in a small boat, whence they were transferred to the pilot boat Heilvoetsluis.

Captain Jansen says he was compelled to leave the two women and the child on board the wreck because they did not dare to make the descent of the rope owing to their completely exhausted condition. In fact, they appeared to be dying. Another determined attempt to reach the wreck will, however, be made at low tide. The boatmen intend to try to board the wreck, wrap up the two women and the child in waterproof sacks and lower them into the boat.

Buffeted by the furious waves, which raged mountain high, since the great steamer went to pieces Thursday morning off the Hook of Holland, chilled through and through by the biting gale, the survivors tossed about on the broken afterpart of the vessel upon which they found themselves at the time of the disaster.

The torture of their position was aggravated by the fact that they were in sight of land all the time, and could see the brave but futile efforts of the lifesaving crews to rescue them.

The wind has decreased in violence, but the cold is intense and the fury of the sea is terrible.

It has been discovered that the wreck is resting on the remains of the British steamer Leeds, which was lost on this same spot in 1882.

As fast as the dead bodies wash ashore they are taken to a mortuary chapel, where Catholic priests perform the last sad rites.

Opera Singers Among the Dead
Berlin, Feb. 23.—The wreck of the steamer Berlin has awakened widespread sympathy throughout Germany, as all sections of the country are represented in the list of dead. Members of the operatic circles of Berlin, Dresden and Mannheim are particularly grieved over the losses of the members of the German Opera company that had been playing at Covent Garden. The tragic death of Fraulein Schoone of the Mannheim opera, which puts an end to a brief but promising stage career, causes especial regret.

Suicide Makes Bride a Widow
Newark, N. J., Feb. 23.—George R. Losey, state agent of the Fidelity and Casualty company of New York, committed suicide at his home here by taking poison. No cause for his act is known. Losey was 48 years old and was married less than three months ago.

ROOSEVELT IS WRONG

Archbishop's Opinion of Compromise on Japanese Question
Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 23.—Archbishop Riordan of the Roman Catholic church, who has been in Pasadena for a few days past, is quoted in an interview here on the subject of compromise at Washington on the Japanese question as follows:

"It appears to me, that President Roosevelt has made a serious mistake in his treatment of the question of San Francisco's provision for the Japanese in the public schools. I do not believe that we should be called upon to provide schools for these people. They do not come here intending to become citizens. Their ideals are different. Their morals are different. Let them provide schools for themselves. They say that we must admit Japanese children up to 16 years of age in our schools. I think that our people will not do it.

"There are 50,000 Japanese in California, I am told. They are still coming and are likely to continue to come. Shall the state not have the right to deal with these people? The prerogatives of the individual state have been slipping away from it gradually, but I think that this one we should still guard jealously. President Roosevelt is wrong."

Death List of Twenty-Three

New York, Feb. 23.—Miss Mabel Smith, aged 22, who was injured in the New York Central wreck at Bedford Park last Saturday night, died last night. The number of fatalities following the accident is now 23. Miss Smith was riding in the third car of the wrecked train and had a seat near a window. A splinter of wood was driven through her right eye and into her brain. She extricated herself from the debris and ran to a stable, where she induced a man to drive her to Fordham hospital. Reaching the hospital she was able to say only "Please, tell my mother that I am not dead, though I am terribly hurt," when she lapsed into unconsciousness that continued until she died.

Will Investigate Poison Theory

New York, Feb. 23.—Counsel for Mrs. Lottie Wallau have begun an independent investigation into the alleged poisoning of her mother, Mrs. Ida Binge. They hold that the action of the coroner's jury declares Mrs. Wallau blameless, but that the opinion of four of the jurors that Mrs. Binge was poisoned by a person or persons unknown gives warrant for suspicion that some one not of the family administered poison to the dying woman.

Collins to Have New Trial

Frederickton, N. B., Feb. 23.—Thomas P. Collins, under sentence of death for the murder of Mary A. McAuley at New Ireland, has had his petition for a new trial granted by the supreme court of New Brunswick. The judges were unanimous in the belief that the trial judge erred in his charge to the jury to the detriment of the defendant's interests. Had the supreme court denied Collins' petition he would have been executed on April 25.

To Work With Cleveland

New York, Feb. 23.—Robert L. Cox of Buffalo, former assemblyman and member of the Armstrong investigating committee, has been elected to the position of secretary and attorney of the recently organized Association of Life Insurance Presidents, of which Grover Cleveland is chairman and counsel. He will establish headquarters in New York. His salary will be $12,000 a year.

Charged With Robbing Bank

Baltimore, Feb. 23.—John W. H. Geiger, who recently resigned as cashier of the Canton National bank, was last night arrested on a charge of appropriating funds belonging to the bank. The exact amount named in the warrant was $4023.52, but it is understood that this will later be increased considerably.

Woman's Daring Trip in Balloon

London, Feb. 23.—Mrs. Harbord started on a balloon trip across the channel from Chelsea Thursday night at 10:50 o'clock. She was accompanied by C. F. Pollock of the Aero club. The balloon descended at 9:30 yesterday morning at Stavelot, Belgium, in the midst of a violent snowstorm.

Lawmakers in Error

St. Paul, Feb. 23.—Enactment of lawmakers on civil liberty by the passage of too many laws and the enactment of hasty legislation against corporations was condemned by Archbishop Ireland in a Washington's birthday speech before the Sons of the American Revolution.

NEWS IN BRIEF

At the annual convention of the Connecticut State Letter Carriers' association a resolution was adopted declaring against the Hitchcock postal bill, which passed the national house of representatives, on the ground that it provides for but a little over a 5 percent increase in wages.

Frank Lewis, 27 years old, a section-hand, was working on the tracks under a bridge at Boston when a train hit and instantly killed him.

Sir Percy Sanderson, who has been the British consul general in New York for 11 years, has forwarded his resignation to the foreign office, having reached the age limit of 65 years.

Fifteen persons were injured at Sargent, Minn., in a rear-end collision between a passenger train and a stock train.

Israel W. Lyon, the tooth powder manufacturer, died suddenly at Englewood, N. J., from pneumonia. He was 81 years old and was born in Needham, Mass.

PRIZE CONTEST

"SCRAP BOOK" PAGE

The American Press Association offers the following cash prizes for anecdotes—odd, humorous, pathetic or heroic; not exceeding 300 words, and preferably of not more than 200 words—for use in our "SCRAP BOOK" page:

For the best anecdote, One Hundred Dollars

For the second best, Fifty Dollars

For the third best, Twenty-five Dollars

For the fourth best, Ten Dollars

The anecdotes may be original or from reprint. If reprints, the source or author should be given if possible.

More than one prize will be given to one contestant if his offerings merit such reward.

In the awards, no preference will be given to original over reprint, to new over old, to long over short anecdotes. Pathetic and heroic stories are as likely to take prizes as humorous anecdotes. The interest in the story will be the only test of merit.

The contestant who sends the greatest number of good anecdotes, not neglecting stories of, or current in, his own locality, will perhaps stand the best chance in the awards. Poor and pointless anecdotes should not be sent to us; they are only a vexation.

The American Press Association reserves the right to use anecdotes for which no prize is given—reprint anecdotes without compensation; original anecdotes to be paid for by us at the rate of One Dollar each.

Rejected anecdotes will be returned only to those who enclose stamped and addressed envelopes for the purpose.

The contest will close on Thursday, March 28, 1907. No anecdotes received after that date will be considered. The awards will be printed in the American Press of April 6, 1907. The cash will be sent to the successful contestants as soon as the awards are determined.

The Scrap Book

At Napoleon's Tomb.

An American was being shown the tomb of Napoleon. As the eloquent guide referred to the various points of interest in connection with the tomb the American paid the greatest attention to all that was said.

"This immense sarcophagus," declared the guide, "weighs forty tons. Inside of that, sir, is a steel receptacle weighing twelve tons, and inside of that is a leaden casket, hermetically sealed, weighing over two tons. Inside of that rests a mahogany coffin containing the remains of the great man."

For a moment the American was silent, as if in deep meditation. Then he said:

"It seems to me that you've got him all right. If he ever gets out, cable me at my expense."—Success.

OVER AND OVER AGAIN.

Say over again and yet once over again. That thou dost love me. Though the word repeated.

Should seem a "cuckoo song" as thou dost treat it.

Remember, never to the hill or plain, Valley and wood, without her cuckoo strain.

Comes the fresh spring in all her green completed.

Beloved, I amid the darkness greeted By a doubtful spirit voice, in that doubt's pain

Cry, "Speak once more—thou lovest!" Who can fear

Too many stars, though each in heaven shall roll,

Too many flowers, though each shall crown the year?

Say thou dost love me, love me, love me—till the silver iterance, only minding, dear,

To love me also in silence with thy soul! —Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

Honesty as Good as Sobriety.

Gear of Iowa was a candidate for congress. The prohibition sentiment was running high in his district, especially among the Quakers, who held a meeting to which they invited Mr. Gear. He accepted.

"We learn," said the chairman to Mr. Gear, "that thee does not belong to any temperance society and that thee does take a drink when it pleases thee."

"That is true," replied Mr. Gear without hesitation.

"Thee is very frank," said the Quaker. "I do not like thy habits, but I do like thy honesty. Perhaps we shall be able to vote for thee."

And Gear got the Quaker vote.

All He Asked.

Stephen A. Douglas was very demonstrative in his professions of friendship. One day he sat down on Beverly Tucker's knee and, throwing his arm around the Virginian's shoulder, said, "Rev. old boy, I love you."

"Douglas," said Tucker, "will you always love me?"

"Yes, Beverly, I surely will."

"But," persisted Tucker, "will you love me when you get to be president?"

"Indeed I will. What do you want me to do for you?"

"Well," said Tucker, "all I want you to do then is to pick out some public place and put your arm around my neck just as you are doing now and call me Rev."

Seneca on the Ways of God.

Why does God afflict the best of men with ill health or sorrow or other troubles? Because in the army the most hazardous services are assigned to the bravest soldiers. A general sends his choicest troops to attack the enemy in a midnight ambuscade, to reconnoiter his line of march or to drive the hostile garrisons from their strong places. No one of these men says as he begins his march, "The general has dealt hardly with me," but "He has judged well of me." Let those who are bidden to suffer what makes the weak and cowardly weep say likewise, "God has thought us worthy subjects on whom to try how much suffering human nature can endure."

Well Up in Geography.

"Where was Christ born?" asked the teacher of Willie. Willie pondered awhile and finally announced:

"Manch Chunk!"

"Manch Chunk!" exclaimed the teacher. "You ought to know better than that. Why, little George knows where Christ was born. Where was Christ born, George?"

And the shrill treble of the four-year-old answered:

"Bethlehem!"

"That's right," said the teacher.

"Well," said Willie, pointing, "I knew it was somewhere on the Lehigh Valley railway!"

Health Is Holiness.

Health is the holiness of the body. Girls should be as much ashamed of illness brought on by their own folly as of being whipped by the teacher for disobedience.—Mrs. Cheney.

Absence of Mind.

Dr. Jenkins of Stanford university is head professor of the department of zoology. He is often profoundly absorbed in the problems of his profession.

He was reading one evening after dinner when his wife approached and, touching him on the shoulder, remarked softly, "Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Branner are coming over this evening, so just go upstairs and put on your other coat."

The professor complied without a murmur. An hour later, when the visitors had been in the house some time, the hostess excused herself for a moment and slipped upstairs to see what detained Dr. Jenkins. She found him in bed, calmly sleeping.

"Oh, to be sure, the Branners!" he said when she awakened him. "I'll be right down. I must have forgotten what I came for when I removed my coat, for I kept right on undressing and went to bed."

Dunbar's Resignation.

Paul Laurence Dunbar, while he was dying of consumption, contributed to Lippincott's this sermon of resignation:

Because I had loved so deeply,
Because I had loved so long,
God in his great compassion
Gave me the gift of song.

Because I had loved so vainly
And sung with such faltering breath,
The Master in infinite mercy
Offers the boon of death.

An Astonished Indian.

In one of the engagements of General Sheridan with the Indians his men, taken unaware by the redskins, had no time to remove their mountain howitzer from the mule's back, so they blazed away, sending mule and gun tumbling together down hill upon the Indians, who fled in panic. One of them, captured a few days afterward, was asked why he ran away. He replied: "Me big Injun; me not afraid of little guns or big guns; but when white man shoots jassack at Injun me light out damn quick."

Montaigne on Self Assertion.

Not to speak roundly of a man's self implies some want of courage. I dare to speak of myself and only of myself. When I write of anything else I miss my way and wander from the subject. I, who am monarch of the matter whereof I treat and who am accountable to none, do not, nevertheless, always believe in myself. I often hazard sallies of my own will, wherein I very much suspect myself, and certain verbal quibbles at which I shake my ears, but I let them go at a venture. I see that others get reputation by such things; 'tis not for me alone to judge. I present myself standing and lying, before and behind, my right side and my left, and in all my natural postures.

To Get a Better Crack at Him.

A Sunday school teacher recently asked his pet scholar why they took Stephen outside the walls of the city to stone him to death. The little fellow was silent for a moment as though absorbed with the problem, when, brightening up suddenly, he replied, "So they could get a better crack at him."

Schopenhauer on Journalism.

Exaggeration of every kind is as essential to journalism as it is to the dramatic art, for the object of journalism is to make events go as far as possible. Thus it is that all journalists are, in the very nature of their calling, alarmists, and this is their way of giving interest to what they write. Herein they are like little dogs. If anything stirs, they immediately set up a shrill bark.

Preparing for the Worst.

A French gentleman anxious to find a wife for a nephew went to a matrimonial agent, who handed him a list of lady clients. Running through this he came to his wife's name, colored as desirous of obtaining a husband between the ages of twenty-eight and thirty-five—a blond preferred. Forgetting his nephew, he hurried home to announce his discovery to his wife. The lady was not at all disturbed. "Oh, yes," she said, "that is my name. I put it down when you were so ill in the spring and the doctors said we must prepare for the worst."

Indians on Education.

In 1741, at the treaty of the government of Virginia with the Six Nations at Lancaster, Pa., the Indians were invited to send six youths to Williamsburg colleges to be educated free. It is a rule of Indian courtesy not to answer important questions on the day they are asked. After deliberating, they declined the invitation. They said that they had sent several young men to the colleges of the northern provinces and when they returned they were poor runners, ignorant of how to get a living in the woods, could not bear cold or hunger, could not build a cabin, take a deer or kill an enemy and spoke their own language badly. They were not fit for hunters, warriors or councilors. They were totally good for nothing. "If the gentlemen of Virginia will send us a dozen of their sons, we will take great care of their education, instruct them in all we know and make men of them."

How Bismarck Got Well.

"Do you not find it a great relief," asked Bismarck of Count Boust at Gastein in 1871, "to smash things when you are in a passion? One day I was over there"—pointing to the windows of the emperor's apartments opposite—"and I got into a violent rage. On leaving I shut the door violently, and the key remained in my hand. I went to Lehnardt's room and threw the key into the basin, which broke into a hundred pieces. 'What is the matter?' he exclaimed. 'Are you ill?' 'I was ill,' I replied, 'but I am now quite well, thank you.'"

The Hero of the Adige.

"I will give a hundred French louis to any one who will venture to deliver these unfortunate people," said Count Spolverini when the swollen Adige swept away the bridge of Verona with the exception of the center arch. On this section stood a house whose inmates cried for help from the windows as they saw the foundations slowly giving way. A young peasant seized a boat and pushed into the flood. He gained the pier, took the whole family into the little boat and carried them safely to land. "Here is your money, my brave young fellow," said the count. "No," said the youth, "I do not sell my life. Give the money to this poor family who have need of it."

SONS OF PRESIDENT

Quincy the Birthplace
Of the Most Distinguished One

President John Quincy Adams, born in Quincy, was the most distinguished son of a President because he became President himself.

Strictly speaking, says the Globe,
only twenty-one Presidents' sons, concerning whom there are available records, have grown to manhood.

Six Presidents—Washington, Madison, Jackson, Polk, Buchanan (a bachelor) and McKinley—left no children.

Two—Jefferson and Monroe—left daughters only. President Johnson had two sons, but both died before he was President, and so did not count.

The sons of thirteen Presidents—John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Van Buren, William Henry Harrison, Tyler, Taylor, Fillmore, Lincoln, Grant,
Hayes, Garfield, Arthur and Benjamin
Harrison—have lived to man's estate.
The sons of Cleveland and Roosevelt are still boys.

Of the twenty-one Presidents' sons who have reached manhood nine have been large in the public eye on their own account, and all but one of two have been solid, substantial citizens.

The prominent nine are John Quincy Adams born in Quincy, President, diplomatist and representative.

Charles Francis Adams, publicist and statesman.

Robert Tyler, register of the Confederate treasury.

Richard Taylor, who served with distinguished gallantry on the Confederate side of the Civil War.

John Van Buren, prominent in State politics and just entering national politics when he died.

Robert Todd Lincoln, cabinet minister, diplomatist and president of a world famous corporation.

Frederick Dent Grant, diplomatist
and general in the army.

Henry A. Garfield, lawyer, banker and professor of politics in a great university.

James R. Garfield, State senator and United States civil service commissioner of corporations in the Department of Commerce and Labor, now in the cabinet.

Besides the nine who have climbed so high, there is John Scott Harrison, who had the unique distinction of being the son of one President and the father of another. He was a man of force and of great influence in his own State, though he was not a prominent figure in a national sense. Counting him in, and he surely "made good," as the saying is,
ten, or only one less than half the Presidents' sons who have reached manhood are entitled to be named on the roll of honor.

Practically all of the Presidents' sons who have grown to man's estate have been good citizens; their lives have been clean, wholesome and a credit alike to their parentage and their country, while ten of the twenty have won universal distinction. It would be hard to find any other class of prominent Americans whose sons have done
as well as those of the Presidents.

School Attendance.

The attendance at the public schools for the month of January fell below 90 per cent. The High school, however, had over 93 and the John Hancock was a good second. The daily average attendance was 5080, as follows:

New Pastor of Calvary Baptist

Rev. D. W. Stoddard, who has accepted the call of the Calvary Baptist church in this city, has been for the past four years pastor of the Pierce Street Baptist church at Greenfield. He is an eloquent preacher and strong in pastoral work. A portion of the time while at Greenfield, Mr. Stoddard was not in robust health, but he has now recovered.

Before going to Greenfield he was for eight years pastor of the Mariners' Harbor Baptist church in New York city.
His theological training was obtained at Yale university. Mr. Stoddard is married and has two sons, one of whom resides in New York.

Not So Cold.

The temperature at Bethany church on Sunday morning was rather low, but it took Rev. Dr. Hardy, the pastor, to warm up the people. He reminded them that 80 years ago none of the churches were heated, and also quoted from Judge Sewall's diary telling of a christening in March when it was necessary to break the ice in the baptismal font before an infant of three days could be baptized. Dr. Hardy then put on his overcoat and took a seat with the congregation and allowed his assistant to preach.

QUINCY PLANS

Big Battleship Planned by Fore River Co.
Mistress of Sea

Done into steel, a battleship recently designed at the yards of the Fore River Ship Building Company of Quincy would be the superior of anything afloat says the Herald. She would be the mistress of the Dreadnought, personnel, marksmanship and general skill aboard being equal. She would outfight the pride of the Japanese navy, the Satsuma. She would be as much the superior of either of those vessels as either one is superior to anything in the United States navy.

This Fore River battleship, details of which are now published and illustrated accurately for the first time, could hurl a twelve-inch shot farther than any other vessel afloat, the Dreadnought not excepted. She would have a larger displacement than the Dreadnought by about 4000 tons; she would be longer by 30 feet, broader by six feet and a half, just as fast, more steady, of smaller draft and of unquestioned greater general efficiency.

What would happen if the Dread-nought and the Fore River, each manned, officered and maneuvered with all the efficiency of the two nations,

were to meet in battle?

Take the force of the broadsides, for example. The Dreadnought can utilize eight of her twelve-inch guns abreast at once. The Fore River could reply with twelve. The best ship of the United States, the Michigan, could answer with eight.

Take the efficiency of the guns that could be brought to bear astern. The Dreadnought could employ six. The Fore River could spout fire from ten, the Michigan four. Ahead, the Dread-nought can work six, the Michigan
four and the Fore River eight.

That is, the Fore River would have 33 per cent. more strength ahead than the Dreadnought, 50 per cent. more abreast and 66 per cent. more astern. It makes the satisfying general superiority of just 50 per cent.

The highest twelve-inch guns of the Dreadnought are 35 feet above the water line. The highest of the Fore River would be 42 feet, and there would be four pairs of guns 34 feet above the water line.

It was thought astounding that the problems of gravity could be so handled by the British constructors that guns could be placed safely as high as 35 feet. The Fore River would set a new record in that line. The superior elevation of her highest guns, which are those just forward of amidships, would give her an immense advantage in range.

The three vessels, the Dreadnought,
the Vermont (which is the best today)
and the new Fore River battleship compare as follows:

	D.	Vt.	F.R.
Displacement	18,000	20,000	22,000
Length	520	510	540
Breadth in feet	82	85	88
Armament (12 inch)	10	10	14
Trials speed	21	21	21

Foreman Dyer Again on Deck

Calvin T. Dyer, foreman of the Street department has been confined to his home on Upland road for the past weeks by an attack of the grip. Mr.
Dyer who has been street foreman for a number of years has been a most faithful employee, and has been missed.

He was on deck again this morning.

Stormy and cold weather have no terrors for him. No matter how tough a storm or how severe the cold his face still smiling could be seen about the streets early and late directing the men under him.

The present winter has been an unusual hard one for the Street department, especially the month of February, and it was while in the performance of his duty that he contracted the cold which turned into the grip. Mr. Dyer is a veteran of the Civil war.

Arrested Twice.

John Lally, alias Kelley, was arrested
Saturday afternoon by Officer Murray for drunkenness and locked up. When he had sobered off he was released. Inside of two hours after his release he was arrested by Officer Crooker for the same offence. This time he was kept in the station until this morning, when he was brought into court.

BREEZY POINT

Fine Presentation
Of Three-Act
Comedy by Young Ladies

Breezy Point, a comedy in three acts, was given a fine presentation on Saturday night at Colonial hall by the pupils of Mrs. Isabelle Davis. The hall was crowded with friends of the participants. The artistic touch of Mrs. Davis was shown in the admirable selection of each for her part.
Every one seemed to be just suited to the part for which she was cast, hence the play was smoothly and naturally acted.

The parts were taken as follows:

Aunt Debby Dexter, Mistress of Breezy Point, Mrs. W. F. Hodgkinson
Elmer Pearl, of unknown parentage,
Ruth Packard
Ashrael Grant, a workhouse wail,
Blanche Morrison
Mrs. Hardscratch, with business propensities, Catharine Saville
The Hardscratch twins, (Marjorie Welch
Elizabeth G. Pattee
"Who never tell nothing" / Elizabeth G. Pattee Melittie Doolittle, manufacturer of catarrh, Jessie C. Pratt
snuff and bitters, Ella Packard
Bernice Vernon, Grace C. Parker
Laura Leigh, Bee Morrison
Edith Norton, Ruth W. Parker Clarice Fenleigh, (Aunt Debby's summer boarders fresh from boarding school.)
Fantine, Miss Vernon's French maid,
Minnie R. Hardwick
Old Clem, the gypsy, Gertrude Shaw

From the mature part of Aunt Debby Dexter, down to the Hardscratch twins, every part was admirable. Miss Minnie Hardwick as the French maid was capital. Her part was difficult but she was in every way equal to the demands. Blanche Morrison as the work-house wail was particularly good. The twins Marjorie Welch and Elizabeth Pattee though the youngest in the cast made a decided hit, and acted well. Katharine Saville, as Mrs. Hardscratch, was fine and it was regretted that the play did not call for her more frequent appearance. Jessie Pratt as Miss Melittie Doolittle was good in makeup and acting.

Mrs. Hodgkinson was a lovable, comfortable Aunt Debby and carried the part easily and naturally. Ruth Packard as her adopted child and Ella Packard, Grace Parker, Bee Morrison and Ruth Parker as her summer boarders carried their parts well and rounded out the play.

A hard and not particularly attractive part was that of Clem, the gypsy, but Gertrude Shaw made the most of the part and did some good acting.

Applause was frequent and always timely, the particularly good bits being appreciated.

Mrs. Davis and her pupils are to be congratulated, as the play was a great success in every way.

Such wholesome training as Mrs.
Davis gives these young ladies in eloquence, physical culture and self poise, must be of inestimable value in their future life.

Lenten Eatables!

With many people, Meat is a secondary consideration during the 40 days of Lent.

To those, we suggest that our splendid supply of Food Fish be given their attention.

Although the demand is greater,
our prices are as low, and in many cases lower than ever. A few items:

Artic Red Salmon, 2 cans 25c
Boneless Cod, 9c lb
Salt Mackerel, 5c each
Norway Sardines, 2 cans 25c

Fortify the system in the morning with a cup of our 30-cent Quality

WANTED.
AN APPROPRIATION
in 1907 for a
NEW CODDINGTON

GOOD AFTERNOON.

There was no soft soap in the address of President Roosevelt at Harvard Saturday, and he did not mince matters, but told college men in strong language what was expected of them. We quote a few paragraphs which will be endorsed by the public at large:

"Each man here should feel that he has no excuse, as a citizen in a democratic republic like ours, if he fails to do his part in the government. It is not only his right so to do, but his duty; his duty both to the nation and to himself. Each should feel that if he fails in this, he is not only failing in his duty, but is showing himself in a contemptible light.

"A man may neglect his political duties because he is too lazy, too selfish, too shortsighted, or too timid; but whatever the reason may be, it is certainly an unworthy reason, and it shows either a weakness or worse than a weakness in the man's character.

"Above all, you college men, remember, that if your education, the pleasant lives you lead, make you too fastidious, too sensitive to take part in the rough hurlyburly of the actual work of the world, if you become overcultivated, so over-refined that you can not do the hard work of practical politics, then you had better never have been educated at all."

The granite for the $10,000 memorial

MRS THAW'S STORY

Husband's Counsel Anxious to Hurry It Through

DEFENDANT IS UNEASY

Appears to Be Some Basis For His Fears That Prosecution
May Force Him to Undergo a Mental Examination

New York, Feb. 25.—Clifford W.
Hartridge, personal counsel to Harry K. Thaw, visited the prisoner at the Tomb yesterday and for an hour the two discussed various matters, among them, it was said, the possibility that the prosecution might seek to interrupt the cross-examination of the defendant's wife when the trial is resumed.

It had been reported that District Attorney Jerome would shift his attack on the defense and insist that the direct examination of Mrs. Deemar and Bingaman, the alienists for the defense, be made before the state continued its cross-examination of Mrs. Thaw. This movement would be construed as in the direction of an application for a lunacy commission to examine Thaw.

This report is said to have reached the prisoner and caused him considerable uneasiness. Hartridge, however, was able to assure him that Mrs.
Thaw's examination would be completed before the defense called other witnesses. Stipulation to this effect had been made, the lawyer said.

Attorney Gleason, associated with the defense, also spent 20 minutes with Thaw yesterday. In spite of these talks with his counsel, the prisoner was reported as having spent a restless, unhappy day. It is well known that he does not want to undergo a mental examination.

That Thaw's fears have some basis in fact was evidenced in a statement credited to a court officer. According to this man, Mrs. William Thaw, mother of Harry, approached the district attorney through friends, and expressed her willingness for the appointment of a commission in lunacy. The mother's position, it was said, was the result of having read the harrowing story told on the witness stand by her daughter-in-law and the merciless cross-examination by Jerome, combined with the natural shrinking she had from taking the witness stand herself.

It is understood that Jerome wishes to avoid at this time such drastic action as asking for a lunacy commission. He has declared in court, however, that if he could be convinced that the slayer of Stanford White is now insane he would drop the prosecution.

Thaw received the newspapers and read them pretty thoroughly yesterday.
Later he attended service in the chapel.

Actor Suddenly Becomes Demented

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 25.—James K.
Corbett, an actor in the Kennedy Stock company, became suddenly insane on the stage of a local theatre and, flourishing a revolver, shouted for some one in the audience to come forward and shoot him. The audience at first thought the actor's excitement was part of the play and the other members of the company led him from the stage
before the audience realized the situation. The play was then resumed and Corbett was taken to a hospital.

Want Favorite "Sport" Resumed

Havana, Feb. 25.—A procession composed of 500 horsemen, many carriages and bands of music, paraded the streets, after which a halt was made in front of the palace. Governor Magoon reviewed the gathering and afterwards received a committee which presented a petition requesting the abrogation of the military order of General Wood prohibiting cock fights.
Magoon promised to give the matter his careful consideration, after which the gathering dispersed.

European Colonies For Texas

Galveston, Feb. 25.—Five thousand families of European immigrants are to be brought to the northern part of the state as the nucleus of a gigantic colonization project. Two million acres of land has been secured upon which to establish the colonists. The tract is being prepared and a line of railway to the principal points of the property is now under construction. A deep-water port on the Gulf of Mexico is also being established.

Was Many Years in Legislature

Central Falls, R. I., Feb. 25.—Edward L. Freeman, state railroad commissioner and public printer, died of pneumonia at his home in this city, aged 72. For 27 years he was a member of the state legislature, serving two terms as speaker of the house of representatives. In 1902 he was the Republican leader of the senate. He was prominent in Masonic circles.

CANNOT BE RAISED

Hull of the Larchmont Is In Her Final Resting Place

New London, Conn., Feb. 25.—It is now thought that the steamer Larchmont may never be found. The T. A.
Scott company, with representatives of the Joy line, made soundings to ascertain the depth of water in the vicinity
where the steamer is supposed to be.
The Scott company put to a test every theory advanced by members of the crew of the schooner Knowlton, the crew of the Larchmont and of fishermen who thought they had located the wreck. Soundings were made until a complete circle within a radius of one mile had been covered.

There is, it is stated, no possibility of the Larchmont being raised, even if she is found, on account of the great depth of water making it impossible for a diver to work. Soundings made by the Scott company showed in some cases a depth of 25 fathoms and in only one instance did they find as little as 20 fathoms. The wrecking company has given up all hope of recovering anything from the steamer.

Boston Has $100,000 Fire

Boston, Feb. 24.—More than $100,- 000 worth of property was destroyed and four firemen were injured in a fire that practically wiped out the wholesale hardware firm of the Baldwin & Robbins company, incorporated. Fireman Hurley was blown from a ladder by a hot air explosion and had both arms broken and a gash in the forehead.
The other firemen were not so seriously hurt. President Decatur of the company could form no opinion as to the cause of the fire, as the building was heated by steam from an outside plant.

Alleged Illegal Receipt of Money

Brattleboro, Vt., Feb. 25.—To recover money alleged to have been received illegally from the state treasury, George T. Howard, former state railroad commissioner, is made the defendant in a civil suit brought by the state of Vermont. The damages named in the suit is $1000. Howard is charged with receiving illegally $6 a day for 63
days for services which he did not render and items of expenses for telephone service, team hire and hotel charges are also specified as illegally charged.

Woman Killed in Trolley Accident

Amherst, Mass., Feb. 25.—Miss Helen A. Linehan, aged 35, a teacher in the Cambridge public schools, was instantly killed by the derailing of a trolley car upon which she was returning from Holyoke. The car, upon which she returned had but one other passenger and while going down a slight incline it left the track, toppled down an embankment and landed on its side. The other passenger, the conductor and the motorman were unhurt.

New Battleship's Fine Performance

Newport, R. I., Feb. 25.—With her whole forward superstructure covered with ice, the new battleship Georgia arrived here from Boston on her way to join the Atlantic fleet at Hampton Roads. Although after rounding Nantucket Shoals lightship she drove at a 12-knot clip to the teeth of the storm, her commander reported that her engines worked perfectly and the big ship moved along steadily and comfortably with little or no motion.

Homes Destroyed by Fire

Derby, Conn., Feb. 25.—Two neighboring houses burned here early Sunday. From one the occupants escaped in their nightclothes. The temperature was seven degrees below zero.
The loss is about $20,000. While the family of Louis Stern at Plainfield slept, their house Saturday night took fire. A parking dog aroused them in time to escape. The loss is $1500.

Insurance Companies' Profits

Boston, Feb. 25.—The 214 insurance companies doing a fire and marine business in the state of Massachusetts received joint receipts, in the form of preludes, during the year 1906 of $19,- 556,205, according to a preliminary report issued by Insurance Commissioner Cutting. The losses incurred by these companies as incorporated in the report were $7,372,684.

Higher Wages on Boston and Maine

Boston, Feb. 25.—It is announced by the officials of the Boston and Maine railroad that an agreement has been reached whereby the wages of all passenger, freight and yard conductors and brakemen will soon be raised. The increase will affect more than 2800 employees and will, it is said, entail an additional expenditure of $125,000 by the company.

Depositors Selling Bank Books

New Britain, Conn., Feb. 25.—No information regarding W. F. Walker, the absconding treasurer of the Savings Bank of New Britain, has been received from Chief of Police Rawlings, who went to New York last Friday night.
Many of the Polish depositors are selling their bank books for about half the amount represented by the books.

Double Runner Struck Team

Somerville, Mass., Feb. 25.—A double-runner coasting down a hill in this city collided with a team and one of the six persons on the sled, Hilda M.
Whelpley, aged 11, was instantly killed.
Her skull was fractured by the hoofs of one of the horses. All the other persons on the sled were bruised, but escaped severe injury.

Had Been Dead Three Weeks

Portland, Me., Feb. 25.—The body of Mrs. Sylvia Stanwood, aged 75, was found in bed at her home by neighbors who had become suspicious because of her non-appearance. She had been dead about three weeks and death was due to natural causes. She lived alone.

Silk Flag In Paper Bag Thrown

VISIT TO GROTON SCHOOL

Delivers a "Short Sermon to Boys" and Talks of Athletics
--He Contends That Football
Should Not Be Abolished

Boston, Feb. 25.—The two days of freedom from official cares enjoyed by President Roosevelt, who arrived here Saturday in the capacity of a private citizen coming to visit, with members of his family, was concluded last night when the presidential party departed for Washington in a special car attached to the Federal express.

As the train moved slowly from the South terminal a crowd of people who had assembled gave a series of cheers for the president, who acknowledged the demonstration by waving his arms and bowing. Mr. Roosevelt was plainly in a most cheerful attitude—the same attitude of delight in the relaxation, strenuous though it proved, that has been with him since his arrival in Massachusetts.

Yesterday Mr. Roosevelt devoted to a trip to Groton, where his son, Kermit, is a pupil at the Groton preparatory school. He spent the time informally with his boy and also with Mrs. Rosevelt and Miss Ethel Roosevelt, who had proceeded to Groton Saturday from Boston, and also his daughter, the wife of Congressman Longworth, who went to Groton with the president yesterday.

Just as the special train to Groton was passing slowly out there was an incident which plainly aroused the fears of the secret service men who stood at either side of the president, and at the same time alarmed many of the people who chanced to see it.

A middle-aged man ran quickly down the platform behind the president's car and when he had reached within a few feet of it deliberately threw what looked like a paper parcel at the president's feet. One of the detectives tried to ward off the article before it struck the car, but it landed safely, though harmlessly. The missile proved to be a small silk flag enclosed in a paper bag, the gift of an admirer.

The first thing the president did after alighting from the train at Groton was to shake hands with the engineer and fireman, and then he responded to the cheers of the little group of people who had assembled in his honor at the station. The sleighing is excellent in the country and the president and his daughter had a splendid and invigorating ride of three miles to Professor Gardner's home, which is adjacent to the school buildings, all being situated remotely from the Groton road.

As soon as the family dinner was eaten at Gardner's home the president and the others passed to one of the school buildings, where Mr. Roosevelt was introduced to an audience made up of about 150 students and parents and friends of the pupils. The president gave what he was pleased to call a "short sermon to the boys."

Mr. Roosevelt said that when he finished his college course his friends advised him not to enter the governing class, as it consisted mostly of an undesirable type of persons, but he told them that he had fully made up his mind to take part in the work of government. He resolved, also, he said, to enter the cavalry service, so that in case of trouble he could do his own fighting and not depend on others to do it for him.

The president talked a little on the subject of football and told the boys to take advantage of their education rightly and always play football fairly. He expressed the opinion vigorously that intercollegiate football should by no means be abolished.

The succeeding function of the visit was a reception for all the boys of the school at Gardner's home, where chocolate was served and where all had an opportunity personally to meet the president.

On the return trip to Boston the cars were switched off just outside the North terminal to the tracks of the Boston and Albany railroad, over which the train passed into the South terminal station, where the president's car was coupled to the regular Washington express.

The principal event of the president's visit was his address in the Harvard Union Saturday afternoon. The address was concerned largely with the question of athletics, upon which subject he took a decided stand in favor of the continuance of athletics, more especially of intercollegiate football.
The president contended that the game ought not to be abolished and could be suitably reformed. The president also spoke of the necessity of college men engaging in the practical work of political life and severely criticised all those who stood aloof and did not participate in the practical work. Passing to national questions, he spoke of the work in the Philippine islands, and in connection with the subject of federal control as distinguished from state rights, spoke in behalf of federal control of syndicated wealth where states by themselves are unable to solve the questions which have arisen.

Mrs. Florentine Rizzie Brettie, of New York, formerly of this city, has the sympathy of her many friends, acquaintances and associates in her loss by death of her little infant son.

Plans are being made by William R. Lofgren for a three-story brick store and apartment house 90 by 50 feet to be erected on Cottage avenue for Henry L. Kincaide. The cost of the building is estimated at $35,000.

A very pleasant meeting of the Dorcas society of the Universalist church was held at the home of Miss Mamie Blake recently. After the business of the society was discussed, Miss Mabel Ross in behalf of the society presented Mrs. George Spooner, the past president, with a silk umbrella. It was voted to hold a salad supper at the church vestry, February 28.

Another enjoyable whist party will be held in Colonial hall on Friday evening.

J. E. Lennon of Marlboro was in town last week renewing old acquaintances.

Several Wollaston young people are planning to give a large sleighing party this evening.

Convention of The Y. P. R. U.

The midyear convention of the Young People's Religious unions of the Boston Federation was held in Quincy on Sunday afternoon and evening at First church. Over two hundred were in attendance. In the absence of the president, Vice President George Brown of Wollaston presided.

The afternoon session was held at five o'clock in the chapel, and was a business session. The devotional service was followed by a short address of welcome by Rev. E. C. Butler, and the reports of the various unions. From six until half past seven a buffet lunch of sandwiches, cake, hot cocoa, etc., was served, after which the visitors inspected the church and its various memorial tablets.

The evening service was held in the church at half past seven, with the church quartet present to assist in the singing.

A devotional service was held followed by an address by Rev. Frederick R. Griffin of All Souls church, Braintree, which was helpful and interesting.

The meeting closed before nine, the young people feeling that it had been an inspiration and helpful session.

There was an unusually large attendance of the visiting unions. The effect of the spirited singing of the large body of young people was most impressive. At similar conventions in other places, the older church members are present in large numbers, and it is very much to be regretted that our own parishioners were not sufficiently interested to attend one or both of these meetings.

Sudden Death of Miss Crane

Miss Eliza Crane, one of Quincy's long residents, passed away this morning at 28 Cottage street, after a brief illness, due to a shock. Miss Crane was born in Quincy and was daughter of late Ebenezer Crane. She has always called Quincy her home although for several years for a part of each year she has made her home with her brother, Monroe Crane, in New York.

Miss Crane in her earlier days was a constant attendant at the Universalist church, and was an earnest worker for its welfare. Her funeral will be held Wednesday from 28 Cottage street.

McDONALD SURPRISED

Plead Guilty But Appealed When Judge Imposed Fine of $100

The continued case of James E. McDonald of West Quincy for violation of the liquor law came up in the district court this morning. When the case was called McDonald said that he desired to enter a plea of nolo contendere. This the court refused to allow him to do. McDonald then retracted his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty.

On the question of sentence the court stated that he had made up his mind that hereafter in cases of this kind he would impose a fine of $100. McDonald pleaded to have the minimum fine imposed, but the court would not hear to it and imposed a fine of $100. McDonald then appealed.

Bush Hammers Recovered.

WOLLASTONS WIN

Defeat the Squantum
Yacht Club
Four to Three

A friendly tournament at billiards, pool, bowling and whist was held Monday evening between members of the Squantum and Wollaston Yacht clubs at the winter quarters of the Squantum Yacht club at Wollaston. While furnishing sport for a large number of members of both clubs it served to establish a bond of friendship between the two clubs whose clubhouses are situated side by side at Wollaston beach.

Commodore Sawyer was on hand to cheer the Squantum boys to victory.

COMMODORE SAWYER.

while Commodore Chase did like duty for the Wollaston boys. Wollaston won the tournament scoring four points to Squantums three.

The two commodores started the tournament by rolling two frames of candle pins for a box of cigars.

Commodore Sawyer took off his coat and extended an invitation to Commodore Chase to do the same. The latter cast his eye down the alleys, then at his opponent and remarked that he guessed he would not have to take off his coat to win that box of cigars.

Commodore Chase scored 9 in the first frame and 5 in the second, a total of 14, while Commodore Sawyer secured but 4 in the first frame and 6 in the second, a total of 10.

The game of billiards was between Slade of Squantum and Taylor of Wollaston. Slade won by a score of 150 to 69.

There were two games of pool. One went to Squantum and the other to Wollaston. Stebbins of Wollaston beat Monroe of Squantum 100 to 93, and Brown of Squantum beat Caldwell of Wollaston 100 to 89.

The whist game resulted in a victory for Squantum by six points. The Squantum team were: Broughton, Thompson, Gill and Johnson, and the Wollaston team: Seymon, Coombs, Winslow and Jefferson. The greatest interest was taken in the bowling. In this Wollaston won all three strings with a total of 1281 to 1192.

Wollaston won the first string by

For Wollaston, Nash and Gill were high men on single strings with 97, and Gill on three-string totals with 271. Vice Commodore Dawes was low man on single strings with 70, and on three-string totals with 239.

For Squantum, Starret was high man on single strings with 88, and on three string totals with 250. Emery was low man on single strings with 66, and Ellison on three-string totals with 232.

The summary of the bowling game was as follows:

WOLLASTON.
Woodman,	81	89	87
Thomas,	87	80	83
Dawes,	80	70	89
Nash,	86	81	97

Freeman	74	84	83
Ellison	79	77	76
Bryant	78	71	84
Total,	405	379	408

Points counted as follows: Bowling, 3; pool, 2; billiards, 1; whist, 1. The summary of the evening:

Wollaston.		Squantum.
Bowling,	3	0	0
Pool,	1	1	1
Billiards,	0	1	1
Whist,	0	1	1
Total,	4	3	3

At the conclusion of the games the Squantum boys, headed by Commodore Sawyer, gave three cheers for their victorious guests.

The Snowfall Double the Normal

Since the beginning of the present winter the snowfall in Boston has been considerably in excess of normal says the Transcript. With the four inches or so which fell Sunday afternoon and last night added to the total for the last three months, there has been about fifty-five inches, whereas the normal fall for December, January and February, is 32.6 inches. With three more days to hear from in February, then all of March the prospects are for a snowfall for the winter about double the normal amount. The annual normal fall in this city—that is, the months of November, December, January, February, March, April, is only 45.4 inches, showing how heavy the precipitation has been this winter.

No Immediate Change At Adams Academy

Editors of the Ledger:—
Will you kindly state that I have the assurances of Messrs. Adams and Rice of the board of Supervisors of the Adams Temple and School Fund that there is no intention of closing Adams Academy before the completion of the present school year. The exercises will go on regular till the usual time of closing in June, whatever happens later.

Elmo a Mystery.

One of the largest audiences of the season gathered at the roller skating rink last night to witness the wonderful feats of the famous Elmo, and enjoy the moving pictures. Elmo was certainly clever with his many tricks and kept his audience bewildered most of the time. One of his feats was being bound to a chair, hands and feet by a stranger and immediately getting out of his chair by a simple motion, all ropes untied. The pictures were some of the best ever shown in the rink.

The Water Bill On Calendar

The House of Representatives had upon its calendar yesterday afternoon the bill to authorize Quincy to go outside of its debt limit for the purpose of extending its water supply without debate. As the bill was reported unanimously by the committee and has passed its first stage without challenge, it is probable that it will make its way through both branches without difficulty.

The bill, in full, is as follows:

Section 1. The city of Quincy, for the purpose of extending the water mains, fixtures, works and services of said city, may from time to time issue bonds, notes or scrip, to be denominated on the face thereof, Quincy Public Water Supply Loan, Act, of 1907, to an amount not exceeding $20,000, outside the limit of indebtedness fixed by the law for that city and in addition to amounts heretofore authorized by law to be issued by the city for the same purposes. Such bonds, notes or scrip shall be issued upon the terms and conditions and with the force and effect specified in chapter 401 of the acts of the year 1891 excepting, however, that said bonds, notes or scrip shall not bear a rate of interest in excess of four per centum per annum.

Section 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

It would be an improvement on the bill if it was amended to strike out the words:—"fixtures, works and service" after the word "main" in the third line of section 1. To borrow money on thirty year loans to be expended for house connections and current expenses is not profitable to the taxpayers. They should not be compelled to pay interest on expenditures for current expenses. The annual appropriation for maintenance should cover all such expenditures.

Lucky Springfield.

The Wesson memorial hospital, the $500,000 gift of the late Daniel E. Wesson, the millionaire revolver manufacturer, was dedicated at Springfield on Tuesday.

In connection with the hospital there is being erected a maternity hospital, the cost of which, about $200,000, was contributed by Mr. Wesson. In addition Mr. Wesson provided liberally in his will for the maintenance of the hospitals, so that the aggregate amount of Mr. Wesson's gift will not fall far short of $1,000,000.

—Rev. Adelbert Everett, a Baptist minister of Savoy, was arrested there on Monday by Deputy Sheriff O'Brien charged with lewd, wanton and lascivious conduct of speech and behavior. The complaint was sworn out by Dr. William Tascoe of the town. After the arrest Mr. Everett was taken to Adams, but was not locked up as Joshua Sherman and Gerdon Walker, two of his parishioners, went bonds for him to the amount of $500.

—Thirty students of the Swampscott high school, in charge of Principal H. C. Childs, are in Washington on a mid-winter educational trip. They called on Congressman Gardner Monday, and also visited the Senate and House galleries and other places of public interest. Thursday they will be presented to the President by Mr. Gardner.

Tenth Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Warren Fisher celebrated their tenth marriage anniversary on Monday afternoon and evening at their home at 112 Upland road. Their cosy home was very prettily decorated with potted plants, ferns, carnations and azaleas, and during the evening especially, the rooms were thronged with their friends from Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Boston, Needham, Worcester, Taunton and Fall River.

Many railroad people were present including the chiefs of three divisions. Mr. Fisher being a member of Brotherhood 312 of Railroad engineers and Mrs. Fisher a member of the auxiliary.

During the evening there was a musical program which included a violin and piano duet by William French of Worcester and Mrs. Albert Fisher of South Braintree, vocal selections by William Thresher of Dorchester and Miss Wilmer Richardson of Worcester. There were also an original poem by Mrs. E. A. Fisher of South Braintree, written for the occasion, and graphophone selections.

A wedding supper was served during the evening. Miss Alice Belcher and Miss Wilmer Richardson officiating as waitresses. Miss Lena Macomber of Taunton served punch.

Many of the guests brought remembrances, which however were not confined to articles of tin, for the gifts included silver, china and cutlery, besides tin ware.

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher were married at South Braintree, Feb. 25, 1897, by Rev. Mr. Walters of the Methodist church. Mrs. Fisher was Miss Alice Richardson of Quincy.

Mr. Rice and Party At Porto Rico

A cable from San Juan to the Globe reports the steamer Prinz Joachim arrived on Monday. The members of the Commercial clubs of Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati and St. Louis, by whom the steamer is chartered, will be given receptions by the Spanish, American and native residents of the capital.

Some of the travelers visited points of interest in the vicinity Monday and a large delegation of the visitors will cross the island in automobiles to Ponce, where they will be joined by their steamer with the remainder of the party on board.

Harry L. Rice of Quincy is with the party.

—Hubbard Fisher of East Concord, Vt., recently found a tree which contained 36 quarts of honey. He was lumbering and drove his axe into a big tree, which proved to be hollow and unfit for his purpose, but noticing some bees, warmed by the bright February sun, and startled by the blows of his axe, buzzing near a hole in the tree above his head, he felled the tree, and was well paid for his trouble.

A reduction of telephone rates rather than a reduction of the Boston toll would permit more people to enjoy the benefits of the telephone. If the residence rate was reduced from $30 to $24 or $25 many more houses would be connected.

It will be surprising if there are not inquiries by the City Council as to the exceptions to the minimum rate for water. At what prices does the shipyard get its water supply? How many others get water below the actual cost to the city?

There does not seem to be any occasion for the passage of the resolution relative to the free use of the Council chamber at City Hall. A resolution would not be binding either upon this Council or future Councils and would soon be forgotten. The City Council may well meet requests as they arise, and the more they turn down the better as the city should not be a competitor of private halls.

DEATH OF DR. BURR

Uncertainty as to Whether It Was Accident or Suicide

TRACING HIS MOVEMENTS

Left Watch in a Waiting Room on Day of Death and Paid Insurance Premiums Day or Two Before—An Inquest Probable

Westboro, Mass., Feb. 26.—It is the opinion of Medical Examiner Knight that Rev. Everett D. Burr, D. D., of Newton, whose body was found beside the railroad track here Sunday, met his death by a fall from a Boston-bound train. The medical examiner will file his report with Judge Fowler of the First district court and will suggest the holding of an inquest to determine whether Burr's death was due to accident or suicide.

Deputy Sheriff Magner made a careful examination of the scene of the accident and expressed an opinion that after Burr fell from the rear car of the train, about 6 o'clock Saturday night, another train caught up the body and carried it along for about 400 feet. It was during this time that the body was mangled and subsequently thrown off to one side, probably by striking some obstruction. The deputy sheriff found a piece of bone about three inches long, apparently a portion of the skull of the man, about 150 feet beyond where the body was picked up Sunday. That the body was not discovered Saturday night is thought to have been due to the fact that the accident took place after dark.

Two members of the First Baptist church of Newton came to this town and after making some inquiries superintended the removal of the body to Boston. After the funeral on Wednesday at Newton the body will be cremated and burial of the ashes will take place beneath an elm tree in Burr's country home at Peterboro, N. H.

Dr. Burr's movements on Saturday have been traced to some extent. After leaving his home in Newton Centre about noon he stopped at a waiting room of the street railway company, not far away, and left his watch with a woman attendant and an hour later was seen in the South station in Boston. It was also ascertained that Burr paid his insurance premium a day or two before his death. While no one saw him on his way to Worcester, it is believed that he took the train leaving Boston at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and which made no stops between that city and Worcester.

Whether it was his intention to go to New York is not known, but it is believed that he left the train in Worcester, as that train did not go to New York. The train from which it is believed he fell was the noon express from New York, due in Worcester at 4:30 Saturday afternoon, but which arrived late. This train was composed almost entirely of vestibuled cars, but the rear platform of the last car was open, except for a low gate. The train did not stop at this place and was traveling at a rapid rate when it went through to Boston, about 6 o'clock Saturday night.

Whether Burr fell or threw himself from the rear platform of the train is a matter of conjecture. Deputy Sheriff Magner found a trail of blood in the centre of the track in a perfectly straight line for 400 feet and it was his belief that the engine of the following train caught up the body and carried it along for that distance, mangle it in the rush.

It has been also ascertained that Burr had been suffering from an attack of the grip and was somewhat depressed over some of his professional affairs.

Ship Subsidy Vote Scheduled
Washington, Feb. 26.—Ship subsidy secured a marked impetus yesterday in the house, which just before adjournment adopted a rule that will probably result before the final adjournment in positive legislation. The rule was reported in the shape of a resolution providing that the compromise bill shall be considered with debate limited to five hours and that the final vote shall be taken not later than next Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

INTERVENTION LIKELY

Prolonged War in Central America Will Not Be Permitted

Washington, Feb. 26.—Unless Nicaragua and Honduras speedily agree to arbitrate their differences in response to the suggestion of the United States and Mexico, it is not improbable that intervention will be resorted to in order to bring to an end the present state of hostilities.

Within the last day or two a second note was sent to the presidents of Nicaragua and Honduras in effect advising them that the United States will not permit this threat. No response have been received and, while in official circles the hope is expressed that further bloodshed may be averted, there is an underlying belief that it will be necessary for either the United States or Mexico to step in and force arbitration. The assistance which it is alleged Salvador is giving to Honduras has only served to strengthen the determination to stop the whole proceeding, but it has been concluded to allow the belligerents a little more time to make up their minds to accept the good offices which have been tendered.

Only Skirmishes Thus Far
San Salvador, Feb. 26.—Although Nicaraguan troops occupy Honduras territory, no important engagement yet has taken place. There have been only skirmishes. The belligerent armies, however, are taking up positions and an important and decisive engagement is expected at any moment.

By Way of Nicaragua
Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 26.—San Marcos de Colon, a well fortified Honduran town, which was defended by Solomon Ordonez, the Honduran minister of war, at the head of a strong army, was captured by Nicaraguan forces at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Disbeliever in Unwritten Law
Philadelphia, Feb. 26.—Judge Martin, in the criminal court here, during the trial of a negro on the charge of attempting to kill another negro, refused to permit evidence offered by the defendant's counsel to go to the jury which tended to prove that the prisoner's action was prompted because he claimed that the other negro had stolen the affections of his wife. Judge Martin said that there is no unwritten law and that there is a proper remedy in the courts for any wrong that a man may suffer in his home. The defendant was convicted.

England's New Army Scheme
London, Feb. 26.—The latest scheme for the reorganization of the British army was unfolded by War Secretary Haldane in the house of commons. It contemplates dividing all the forces into two categories, a field force and a territorial or home force. The former, with a total of 160,000 officers and men, is to be kept ready for immediate mobilization on the outbreak of war. The territorial force, totalling 300,000 men, shall, it is proposed, be a complete army in itself and as nearly as possible of the same pattern as the regular troops.

Against Pollution of River
New York, Feb. 26.—One of the first practical results of the war at present being waged against the pollution of the Hudson river by sewage was seen in the introduction and reading at Albany today of a bill to repeal the act of 1905 permitting the construction of the Bronx river sewer. A sewage expert will demonstrate the necessity of constructing a special plant to dispose of the waste of Westchester county.

Summer Resort Burned
Hickory, N. C., Feb. 26.—Hickory inn, a noted summer resort, was destroyed by fire. About 20 guests were forced to jump from second and third-story windows. Several were badly injured by jumping, one man probably having his back broken. Not a piece of baggage or furniture was saved. Thirty-sands of dollars' worth of samples were lost. The loss will exceed $50,000.

Worried Over Death of Relatives
New York, Feb. 26.—Emil Vliechinsky, aged 35, an Italian sculptor employed on figure and scroll work in the construction of the new police headquarters building, shot himself through the head last night. Death followed quickly. The sculptor had, it is said, become despondent over the death of relatives in Italy and for whom he was making a home here.

Contest Settled in One Round
London, Feb. 26.—In the boxing match for the heavyweight championship of England and a purse of $6750 "Gunner" Jim Moir, the present holder of the title, had the advantage of 14 pounds in weight and nearly three inches in height. He proved an easy victor, knocking out "Tiger" Smith, late of the Tenth Hussars, in the first round.

High Official's Power Curtailed
Guthrie, Okla., Feb. 26.—The constitutional convention has taken away from the lieutenant governor the power to appoint the members of the state senate and prescribed instead that the committees be elected. During the discussion DeForest Haring and President Murray nearly came to blows.

Gave Authorities the Slip
El Paso, Tex., Feb. 26.—Antonio Villard, the alleged Mexican revolutionist, escaped just after he had been turned over to the immigration authorities and while being taken toward the Mexican line for deportation.

No Cyclone in Philippines
Manila, Feb. 26.—The reports recently in circulation that the southern islands of the Philippine archipelago had been visited by a severe cyclone are without foundation.

Almost down to zero again this morning.

The Committee on Licenses of the City Council meet tonight.

A large gang of inside men are at work in the new telephone building setting up the new switch boards.

The Wollaston Congregational club will observe ladies' night this evening at the church vestry.

There is about two feet of frost in the ground on the main streets, and but for the snow and ice it would be much deeper.

The duplicate whist tournament of the Granite City club has been postponed until next Tuesday evening. Several of the cracks of the Wollaston whist club are expected to participate.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Company delivered the third coast freighter, Ossabaw, to the Brunswick Steamship Company at New York, Monday, February 25. Two more of these vessels are yet to be delivered.

The Citizens' Association extend a general invitation to the public to listen to the address of Mr. C. B. Fillebrown tomorrow evening at Colonial hall. He is president of the Massachusetts Single Tax League and will speak on "The Single Tax."

Some facts regarding tea and its uses are given in an article in the Scientific American. Some of the uses of the spent tea leaves by the economical Chinese are given. In the first place, they may be dried and pressed into bricks to be used as fuel. One use of this fuel is in curing pork, and pork thus cured is highly esteemed. The ashes of the fuel are used as fertilizers. At other times the spent leaves are stewed, or allowed to stand a long time in water, to extract the tanning, which is used in making leather and for producing a nutbrown dye. Sometimes the old leaves are used for fodder, or they may be mixed with new leaves to form what is known as "tie-tea."

Rheumatism Cannot Be Cured Unless Uric-O is Used

The Store of E. J. Murphy is the Home of Uric-O in Quincy.

The rheumatism person is sceptical regarding the claims of almost any remedy advertised as a cure for rheumatism and one can scarcely blame him for being so. All the plaster and liniments combined never really cured a case of rheumatism. They only give it one quarter, but it is sure to break out somewhere else. The only sure way to cure rheumatism, is to drive it from the system. Uric-O is in the blood, one is never entirely free from the trouble. This is where the value of Uric-O as a permanent cure for Rheumatism comes in. It gets out the Rheumatic poison in the blood, muscles and joints. It is mild and harmless and drives it out of the system. That is why Uric-O is such an admirable and effective cure for Rheumatism.

The chief reason that Uric-O is such a wonderful cure for rheumatism is that it is designed and prepared to cure Rheumatism and Rheumatism only. It does not contain any alcohol or other so-called tonics to make one "feel good" for the time being, but is composed of antitoxins for the rheumatic acid poison in the system. That is the secret of its wonderful success. Rheumatism simply cannot exist in a person's system if Uric-O is used.

Uric-O is sold by E. J. Murphy, "The Home of Uric-O" in Quincy, at 50c and $1.00 the bottle, but if you still feel sick about it, it is easy as you can test it free of charge, by cutting out this advertisement and sending same together with your name and address, to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., and they will send you a sample bottle free. To persons who write and say they have never used Uric-O, want to test it thoroughly, and will cheerfully give Uric-O a trial, this decision, they frequently send a quart for free.

Government Charges Regarding Gigantic Transactions Denied by Railroad Magnate—Possible Loss of $11,000,000 on One Investment Since Last July

New York, Feb. 26.—E. H. Harriman, master of the Union Pacific system, spent yesterday in a recital of portions of the intimate history of the financial operations of himself and his associates before the interstate commerce commission, which, in behalf of the United States government, is investigating consolidations and combinations of carriers, railroads between carriers and community of interest therein, their rates, facilities and practices.

Special counsel for the government made particular attack upon the reorganization and financing of the Chicago and Alton railroad by the Harriman syndicate, and their action, with a challenge by counsel for the railroads of the right of the interstate commerce commission to inquire into the private transactions of an individual, constituted the two important events of the day's proceedings.

By direction of counsel, Harriman declined to tell what proportion of the preferred stock of the Alton, sold to the Union Pacific, belonged to him individually, and the way was paved for taking the question into the federal courts. The point raised involves a material limitation upon the inquisitorial power of the commission and is of serious importance to the whole question of interstate corporation investigation.

There was an effort to show by Harriman's testimony and the records of the company that there had been an enormous inflation of the stock securities and liabilities of the Alton; that the Harriman syndicate had taken unfair profits by declaring a dividend of 30 percent from the proceeds of the first sale of bonds amounting to $40,000,000; that the syndicate had sold itself the bonds at an unreasonably low figure only to resell them at enormous profit; that the Harriman syndicate had in the Alton capitalized the losses of former stockholders in the road and the money which had been spent by the old management for betterments over a period of 10 years and already charged to operating expenses; that the books of the company had been doctored, and that for an increase of the stock and liabilities from roughly $40,000,000 to about $100,000,000 there was nothing to show except an expenditure of $22,000,000 in improvements on the property.

Mr. Harriman's testimony was a denial of all these charges and he made an extended explanation and defense of the entire transactions which, he contended, were fully justified by the conditions and circumstances of the time and which he asserted had been conducted entirely in the open.

Harriman's examination lasted for five hours and it went to the end in good spirit unmarked by acrimony. The witness throughout the entire day declined to be led into an attempt to explain the details of the Alton operations and constantly referred his questioners to the records of the Alton company.

The testimony of Harriman began with the issuance of $100,000,000 of convertible bonds by the Union Pacific for the purpose, primarily, of paying for the Southern Pacific in 1901, and then led through the purchase in connection with the Oregon Short Line and the Northern Pacific stock.

Harriman identified a statement showing that since the first day of last July the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line have purchased stocks at a cost of $131,000,000 and the government sought to show that, figured by prices in the market today, there had been a loss of $11,000,000 on the investment. Harriman said that this was possibly true.

Great Shrinkage in Stocks

New York, Feb. 26.—The stock markets and other financial interests of the country were badly shaken up, following the investigation started by the interstate commerce commission into the operations of E. H. Harriman. As a result of the slump in the stock markets the average of 25 leading stocks dropped to within about 2 points of the average reached during the great slump following the California earthquake last year. The shrinkage yesterday will probably amount to $130,000,000.

The Putney Shoe Receivers

Norfolk, Feb. 26.—Federal Judge Waddill has declined to remove C. W. Javers and G. H. Schmelz, named in the state court receivers under the $90,000 failure of the Putney Shoe Manufacturing company of Newport News, but continued them as bankruptcy receivers, with A. C. Peachy as third receiver to represent the petitioning bankruptcy creditors.

Urged to Adopt Block System

Amherst, Feb. 26.—In a letter sent out by the state railroad commission, a recommendation is made to all managers of steam railroads in the state that they adopt immediately a block system that will prevent more than one train being in a block at the same time.

Quincy lodge of Elks is arranging for a grand smoke talk to be held at an early date.

Friday will be a busy day at the City Treasurers office, as it is the first of March.

The cold weather still remains as it was but three above zero at 7 o'clock this morning.

The National bank examiner was in town Monday visiting the banks. Everything was found to be O. K.

The Committee on Finance of the City Council have another session to consider the budget on Thursday evening.

The success of the tournament between the Squantum and Wollaston Yacht clubs probably means another in the near future.

This will be the last season of the Wollaston whist club. Next season they will probably play at the Granite City club rooms.

It looks now as though March might come in like a lion. This means that it will go out like a lamb. But that's a long ways ahead.

Mrs. A. B. Packard contributed flowers to the convention of Y. P. R. U., at first church on Sunday and they brightened the desk at the services and also the supper table.

Rev. Luther Freeman, D. D., of Chattanooga, Tenn., a pastor of the Wollaston M. E. church in 1880, 1890 and 1891, has been called to St. Marks church at Brookline.

J. W. McAnaney secured a verdict of $3000 for Edward A. Sheehan in his suit against the Blue Hill street railway for personal injuries tried this week in the Norfolk civil court.

The extreme cold weather this month has practically put a stop to all work in the granite district. There have been a few days in which the men were able to work but the greater part of the month has been one of enforced idleness.

The resignation of W. H. H. Peirce, the assistant secretary of the Y. M. C. A. is to be regretted as he was the most popular officer on the executive staff. Some other changes would cause little regret.

The program for the pop concert by the First Church Social club promises a grand entertainment for Friday evening at Faxon hall. It will be given by Poole's Concert orchestra. Dancing will follow.

The Quincy representatives to the boys' conference at Lowell were: Charles Hull, James Hill, Everett Rhodes, Ernest Mahaffey, Albion Bonney, Roy Sidelinger, Herbert Barker, Fred Gross, Harold Tuck, E. Lee Brooks, and the boys' work director, Charles F. Reed.

The funeral of Miss Harriet Jones was held Monday afternoon at Hall's undertaking rooms, Dr. Hardy officiating.

Cecil and Alden Blanchard of Presidents hill, returned this week to Amherst college which will be re-opened March 1.

Mr. Edgar Willey of Walker street, Mr. Roger Wilde and Mr. Frank Jenkins of Billings street were at Marshfield from Friday until Monday, at Mr. Willey's summer home.

The third degree staff of Mt. Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F., paid a visit to Neponset lodge Monday evening and worked the third degree on six candidates, after which a collation was served.

Mr. Melville B. Jones and Miss Minnie L. Laylor were married Monday evening by Dr. E. N. Hardy at the parsonage. Mr. Berton Taylor served as best man, Miss May Ballam as bridesmaid. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will make their home at 157 E. Howard street.

A very merry party was entertained delightfully on Washington Birthday at the residence of Mrs. George H. Colby 21 Webster street Boston. Games were played, singing and dancing enjoyed, and during the evening refreshments of ices and assorted cakes were served. The rooms were tastefully decorated with American flags some of which had seen service. Among the guests were the following from Quincy, Misses Emma and Annie Peterson, Miss Flora Crocker, Misses Inez and Ada Nutting, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Connell, Mrs. Anna Eastman, Miss Annie Carlson, Mr. George Van Iderstine, Mr. Emil P. Vendret, Mr. Harry Lark, Mr. William Jones. One of the Quincy young ladies was awarded a prize.

Snow Drifts At Houghs Neck

The high wind and light snow are making lots of trouble for the street railway on its Houghs Neck line near what is known as "the Willows." At this point the snow is blown upon the tracks about as fast as it is plowed out, and it is impossible to keep them clear. This morning it was necessary to transfer passengers in a pung from this point to the end of the line.

Chapter 1—Bradley Nickerson, an orphan, twelve years of age, arrives at Orham, Mass., to live with his cousins, Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy Allen, old maids. In the Orham stage he meets Captain Ezra Titcomb, master of a coasting schooner, home for a brief vacation. It—Captain Titcomb visits the Allen old maids, to each of whom he presents a fan, one the exact counterpart of the other. It—Bradley becomes acquainted with Augusta ("Gusty") Baker a girl of about his age, who lives next door. She owns several dogs. Bradley is sent to the school and wins prizes for fighting with Sam Hammond, a fellow pupil. IV—Captain Titcomb on his periodical visits to Orham is very kind to Bradley. Bradley delivers an "address" at the "last day" exercises at the Orham school. Prissy interjects that evening that their resources are practically exhausted. V—Bradley overhears the conversation and consults Captain Titcomb, who agrees to take him on his ship as a sort of cabin boy. VI—Bradley's first trip as a sailor. He goes to New York, and the captain takes him to the theatre. Bradley visits Orham at the end of three months and learns that through the instrumentality of Captain Titcomb Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy are receiving regular contributions from the Sampson fund for the children of shipmasters. The "old maids" have no knowledge of Titcomb's connection with the matter. VII—Bradley is now twenty years old and is second mate of Titcomb's vessel, the Thomas Doane. Titcomb is injured on the trip and is laid up in his cabin. When Bradley, in an effort to prevent the first mate from running the schooner on a shoal, overpowers that officer and locks him up. When Titcomb is well enough Bradley learns that the schooner was to have been wrecked with Titcomb's consent, by the owner's orders. Bradley is horrified, and Titcomb, agreeing with him that "honesty is the best policy," they both leave. VIII—Bradley and Titcomb return to Orham. They decide to go into the wrecking business. Bradley is very attentive to Gusty Baker. IX—The partners have some small success at anchor dragging with their tiny schooner, the Lizzie. Gusty teaches Bradley to dance, and they spend the night at which Bradley and Hammond, now a diver in New York City, in order to give Bradley an "extra" waltz. X—The firm of Titcomb & Nickerson secures a contract to work the wrecked lumber laden schooner Ruth Ginn off the shoals. Bradley's love affair with Gusty Baker progresses nicely, despite his little jealousies of Sam Hammond. XI—The Ruth Ginn is worked off the shoals. Gusty promises to marry Bradley. Continued from yesterday.

Miss Tempy was heard to remark, feelingly, that it looked "so like him." She declared afterward that she didn't say it.

The captain made light of the accident and selected another seat, carefully testing it beforehand. He at once began to talk about the weather and Miss Prissy's illness. But the older sister interrupted him as soon as the opportunity offered.

"What made you come to the back door?" she asked.

There wasn't an instant's hesitancy in the captain's reply:

"Oh," he said lightly, "it's raining a little, and I thought I wouldn't muss up them floors of yours. I know them floors of old," he added, and laughed heartily. He continued to talk about the floors and seemed to think his feat of solving them a great joke. Miss Tempy, who was a trifle more rational by this time, laughed with him, but Miss Prissy seemed still curious.

"You used to come to the dinin' room door, even when it snowed," she said.

"Yes, but I had on my sea boots this time, and they're so big I tote half the road along with me. Reminds me," he added hastily, just in time to cut off another question, "of what the old cut—my dad, I mean—said about a colored cook he had aboard his ship once. Dad said that darky's feet was the largest live things without fangs that he ever saw out of water."

Bradley thought he had never seen his partner so willing, even anxious, to monopolize the entire conversation as he was that evening. He cracked jokes and spun yarns without stopping to rest. Clara came in, after a little, and seated herself quietly on the sofa. She, too, seemed a trifle nervous, but the sisters did not notice it. They were hypnotized by their caller's lively tongue and laughed like girls. Miss Prissy grew more like herself every minute.

"Don't go, cap'n," she pleaded, as the visitor pulled out his watch and rose from the chair. "I declare, you're better'n the doctor!"

"Much obliged, Prissy, but 'twas too much of a good thing that busted the elder jug. Two opposition doctors in one house would be like the two Irishmen fightin' for the pig—'twas an 'legant row' while it lasted, but it killed the pig. No, I must be gittin' on. I left my umbrella out in the kitchen. Clara, bring the lamp, will you, please?"

Clara rose and started for the kitchen, but Miss Tempy intercepted her.

"I'll get your umbrella, cap'n," she said.

"No, no, you set still! Clara knows just where 'tis; she put it away."

"Well, I guess I can find it. You needn't come, Clara. Yes, here 'tis. Good night, Cap'n Titcomb. I—I hope, now you've found the way, you'll call again some evenin'." Bradley "I'll be glad to see you, and so will Prissy and—and I. Good night."

The captain walked briskly down to the gate. Then, as the door closed behind him, he paused, wiped his forehead with his coat sleeve and drew a long breath.

There was jubilation in the old maids' room that night.

On Tuesday of the following week this telegram came:

Boston, Mass.
Bradley Nickerson, Orham, Mass.
Come my office immediately.
ALPHEUS COOK.

"Humph!" granted Captain Titcomb. "Short and crisp, like the old woman's pie crust, ain't it? Well, Brad, I guess you'd better go."

Bradley agreed with him and hurried home to pack his grip. He took care to tell Guss. She rejoiced with him over the triumph they both felt sure was coming.

"You're succeeding, Brad," she said. "Everybody is talking about it. I'm prouder of you than ever."

"But when will you be willing to have me tell people that we're engaged? Mayn't I do that now, Gus?"

She paused, and his hopes rose, but then she shook her head. "It wouldn't be fair to you," she said. "Sometimes I feel that I almost—well, like you enough to be content to stay in Orham all my life and work for you and with you. I'm trying hard to feel that way. But at other times it seems as if I must get away to where the people talk of something besides their neighbors' affairs; where there are great things being done and where the world moves. You think I'm inconsistent, don't you?"

"No, it is dull down here, and most of the folks are rather narrow, I'm afraid. Gus, you know what my business means to me. Well, if it will please you and you will come with me, I'll give it all up, even now, and go back to the city and try it there."

She smiled gently. "You're a dear, good boy," she said, "but do you suppose I should ever be happy again if I let you do that?"

The railway journey to Boston had only one incident worth notice. At Buzzard's Bay the Boston train meets that bound down the cape. There was some delay at the station, and Bradley stepped out on the platform. He was walking up and down smoking when somebody shouted: "Hello, Brad Nickerson! What are you doing here?"

Brad turned and saw Sam Hammond.

"Well!" he exclaimed, shaking hands with his old seat mate. "Where are you bound—Orham?"

"Yup. How is the old graveyard anyway?"

"Pretty quiet just now. Most of the summer folks have gone home. You on another vacation?"

Sam laughed. "Kind of vacation a fellow hands out to himself," he answered. "The wrecking company and I had a row. They tried to put ten men's work on me, and I wouldn't stand for it. So I told 'em to go to the devil. I put 'em in a hole, all right, but not by the going to walk on my neck if I knew it. I'm going home to loaf for awhile. I need a rest anyway. Then I'll go back to New York and hook on with another crowd. There's plenty of 'em want me, but they can wait. How's all the girls? Gus Baker pretty well?"

They talked for a few minutes longer. Sam asked how the anchor dragging trust was getting on. Then the two trains started. Bradley leaned back in his seat in the smoker and meditated. Somehow a conversation with Sam always made him "blame." He wished the fellow was not going to Orham.

Next morning, bright and early, he walked into the "coal king's" office. An important young man with a pen behind his ear disdained to notice him.

"Who'd you wish to see?" he asked after a dignified interval.

"Mr. Cook—the older one," answered Bradley.

"He's busy now; likely to be busy all the morning. What do you want to see him for? Won't I do?"

"Don't know, I'm sure," replied the wrecker gravely. "I'll speak to Mr. Cook about it. You see, he was the one that sent for me, so—"

"He sent for you? Oh, excuse me. I wish you'd said so sooner. Sit down, please. What name, sir?"

"Nickerson, sir."

The young man, much less important, hurried into another room and returned at once.

"Mr. Cook 'll see you, sir," he said, opening the gate. "Step right into his private office, Mr. Nickerson."

The great Mr. Cook was seated behind his big carved desk. The whole outfit looked rather formidable. He stared at Bradley over his glasses.

"Sit down," he commanded. "Got my wire, I suppose?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, what's your lowest price for the anchor and chain of the Liberty, which I understand you have bought, delivered on the Orham wharf? Lowest, mind. No trimmings?"

"Five hundred dollars."

"All right, you may take it up. I'll give you four hundred cash for the job. Go ahead, and work quick. Good day, Nickerson; glad to have met you."

He swung around to the desk and picked up some papers. But Bradley did not go.

"Excuse me, Mr. Cook," he said. "Our figure was five hundred, not four."

"Humph! Well, five's robbery. Four's what I'll pay."

"All right, sir. Sorry we can't trade. Good morning."

"Hold on there!" shouted the owner of the Liberty. "Do you mean you won't raise the anchor?"

"Not for less than five hundred."

"Split the difference. Make it four-fifty?"

"No, sir."

"Oh, well, hang it, go ahead! Five hundred, then—only don't bother me any more."

But Bradley still hesitated. "There is just one thing more, Mr. Cook," he said. "That chain has sailed in every day since it has been on that bottom."

We may not be able to get up the whole of it. We warned your toughest skipper who was down there to look matters over. We'll do our best, though."

"Oh, you'll get it. I'd be willing to bet that you'd get up the everlasting foundations if you made up your mind to. Say, Nickerson—"

"Mr. Cook put his hands in his pockets and looked quizzically at Bradley. "If you get sick of anchor dragging any time, come and see me. Have a cigar to smoke as you go along. Good day."

Bradley was happy. He felt that when Cook & Son should have future wrecking contracts to give out Titcomb & Nickerson might be considered as bidders to be reckoned with.

LADIES NIGHT

The Wollaston Congregational Club Entertain With Automobile Show

Automobiling in February, with snow on the ground and the mercury playing around the zero mark, may be a little out of season, but the Vanderbilt cup race on Long Island, and the Gordon Bennett race of 1906 in France, were so vividly shown by the vitograph at the Wollaston Congregational church on Tuesday evening that many became enthusiastic over the sport. In the races speed of 60 to 70 miles was made, and the way the cars took the corners and the straight away course, one after the other, was very real. Then there were several exceedingly amusing moving pictures, in several of which the automobile figured prominently, including the "Inexperienced Chauffeur," who could not stop, but somehow collided with everything on the street; the "Tenant's Revenge," "Pay Day," and "Auto Race for a Wife. These created considerable mirth.

This was one of the attractions of ladies' night of the Wollaston Congregational club. It was the intention of Chester I. Campbell, manager of the Boston Automobile show, to have given a lecture on "Automobiles," but a severe cold prevented. He explained, however, a few points relative to the two races as they were thrown upon the screen.

President Hull of the club then invited all to the vestry where a buffet lunch was served. Apple boughs in blossom were extensively used in decorating so it was a very pretty scene which greeted the guests. A large rug had been laid in the middle of the floor with a well laden table in the centre artistically decorated. The refreshments included ice cream which could not be excelled, rich cake in variety, both home made and fancy, and bountifully served; also good coffee. Buffet lunches tend to more sociability and the feature was enjoyed. The committee for ladies' night were J. F. Crowell, Charles A. Campbell and C. P. Hutchins.

Arrested for English Officers

Deputy United States Marshal Bancroft came to Quincy on Tuesday, and in company with Lieut. McKay visited the Fore River shipyard. They arrested George Matthews as a fugitive from justice. It is alleged that Matthews was the treasurer of a Workmen's association in England, and that he made away with one hundred pounds of the association funds. The officers found Matthews at work in the boiler room of the steamer Ocmulgee. He admitted that he was the man wanted but denied that he had stolen the money. He said that he had invested the money for the association. The investment turned out to be a poor one and the money was lost. He was taken back to Boston to await extradition.

House Party.

One of the prettiest house-parties of the season was held at the home of Miss Edith MacVitie of Whitwell street Tuesday evening. The house was prettily decorated for the occasion. Guests began to arrive before eight o'clock and before nine o'clock the rooms were filled with a merry gathering of young people. Friends came from all parts of Quincy and surrounding towns. During the evening the party was entertained by selections on a graphophone, piano solos by James Dunn, vocal solos by Miss Ethel Morris, Elizabeth Boutlier, Richard Henry and Edward Larkin, also impersonations by Clarence White of Weymouth. All popular games were played and at eleven o'clock all adjourned to the dining room, where a dainty lunch was served. The happy party dispersed in the early hours of the morning.

Death of a Former Teacher

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Blake, wife of Dr. John G. Blake, of Boston, and daughter of the late Patrick McGrath of Quincy, died at the family home, 212 Beacon street, late Tuesday afternoon after an illness of less than a month. Mrs. Blake was one of Boston's sweetest poets says the Herald, and combined a pleasing literary style with a gracious personality.

She was born in September, 1840, at Dungarvan, county Waterford, Ireland, and came to Quincy with her parents at the age of 6. She early developed a penchant for composition, and while at the Quincy High school, at Mr. Emerson's private school and later at the convent of the Sacred Heart at Manhattanville, N. Y., her abilities in this direction were remarked. She taught for a time in the public schools of Quincy.

Mrs. Blake's first literary work was verse for the Saturday Evening Gazette. Her first prose work was also done for the Gazette and consisted of a series of articles called "Peeps at the World Through a Pair of Spectacles." These sketches attracted much attention.

In the year 1865 the author was married to Dr. John G. Blake of 212 Beacon street. Home cares, incident upon the raising of a family of five sons and a daughter, permitted Mrs. Blake leisure for but an occasional article, but she continued her studies. Her acquaintance with French and Spanish was wide and by reason of her familiarity with the latter tongue, she was regarded as a valuable member of the Castilian Club.

During Christmas time she was accustomed to make scrap books for her children. These books, which contained pictures set off by original verse, were seen by John Boyle O'Reilly, who had then sent to Wide Awake which published a large number of them.

Her best known poems are "Women of the Revolution," "How Ireland Answered," "The First Steps," "The Little Sailor Kiss," "Our Record," and a "A Dead Summer."

She was a member of the Press Club, the Peace society and president of a club of ladies reading of Catholic authors.

Her initials, "M. E. B.," were familiar years ago in connection with short talks in the Journal.

Her children, all of whom survive, are John B., Frederick, Arthur, Marie E., Robert F. and Gerald.

Funeral services will be held on Thursday at 10 A. M. at the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

Trial Balance Of City of Quincy

The report of City Auditor Fairbanks to the City Council last week contained the following trial balance of the assets and liabilities of the city, and comparisons of net debt:

ASSETS.
Tax of 1895 to 1900.....	$4,814 94
Tax of 1901.....	2,310 04
Tax of 1902.....	923 82
Tax of 1903.....	2,446 92
Tax of 1904.....	2,554 10
Tax of 1905.....	31,465 91
Tax of 1906.....	178,517 03
Street Sprinkling 1900-'05.....	623 04
Street Sprinkling 1906.....	1,498 04
Water rates.....	2,688 85
Water construction.....	1,093 32
Sewer assessments.....	39,894 93
Sewer House connections.....	3,030 89
Sidewalk Assessments.....	539 43
Cash on hand.....	94,479 53
Bonds not sold.....	21,900 00
Net debt.....	1,763,362 09
Total.....	2,151,246 88
LIABILITIES.
Municipal debt.....	$540,450 00
Sewer debt.....	684,500 00
Sewer debt.....	526,400 00
Park debt.....	34,000 00
Temporary loans.....	217,000 00
Bal. 1905 appropriations.....	32,695 63
Bal. 1906 appropriations.....	116,291 25
Total.....	$2,151,246 88
INCREASE OF DEBT.
Net debt Jan. 1, 1904.....	$1,578,289 77
Net debt Jan. 1, 1905.....	1,598,179 10
Net debt Jan. 1, 1906.....	1,686,167 60
Net debt Jan. 1, 1907.....	1,763,362 09

The rapid increase of the debt the past two years is very striking in the above comparison. In 1905 we paid maturing debt to the amount of $123,742 but nevertheless there was a net increase of $86,988.50 in the debt. In 1906 we paid maturing debt to the amount of $136,970.00, but the debt increased $78,194.49. Where are we drifting?

But the city's liabilities are much larger, being now $2,151,246.88. Wonder if the City Auditor found it difficult to find assets sufficient in amount to prove that the city has a balance on the right side? At best there is a surplus of $21,987.91, the difference between the bonded indebtedness of $4,785,350.00 and the net debt of $1,763,362.09.

Some of the assets are very questionable; for example the $4,814.94 in unpaid taxes previous to 1901, and $20,000.00 or more of the other unpaid taxes. On Jan. 1 the City Auditor considered $223,032.86 in unpaid taxes as good assets.

On Dec. 31, 1906, the outstanding temporary loans borrowed in anticipation of the taxes of 1906, amounted to $217,000.00, but the City Auditor considers $178,517.03 of the uncollected taxes of that year as good assets, and only $31,465.91 of the uncollected taxes of 1905 as good. The cash in the city treasury at the close of the year 1906 was $94,479.53.

Point Car Held Up By Little White Dog

A lady with a little white dog boarded the East Weymouth car at the Quincy station this morning at 10.50, and all went well until the corner of Washington and Temple streets were reached, when the conductor discovered the dog, and ordered the lady to leave the car. This she refused to do and the conductor could not of course carry her out bodily, neither would he allow the car to go on. The conductor again consulted Starter Eagan who told the conductor to get the woman's name, if possible, and names of witnesses, and to go ahead. The car then started on its way.

Supt. Gammons happened to arrive in City Square a few minutes later and it was reported to him. The car had then gone.

QUARRY ACCIDENT

Two Workmen Thrown Into Wigwam Quarry At West Quincy

There was quite a serious accident Tuesday afternoon at the Wigwam quarry at West Quincy. Two men were injured. Napoleon B. Reed of Quarry street extension, and David Connors of 97 Copeland street.

The two men stood upon a block of granite which had been loosened somewhat from the quarry. One of the men placed a bar behind it to see how loose it was, when it toppled over and fell into the quarry, carrying the men with it. They fell about twenty feet, and it was at first supposed they had been killed.

When taken from the quarry it was found that Reed was the most seriously injured. He had sustained a fracture of the left arm, and was cut and bruised about the head and body. He was also bleeding at the mouth.

The police ambulance was called and he was removed to the City Hospital. He was unconscious and passed a very restless night, and this morning his condition was considered serious, as it was thought that he had suffered internal injuries.

Mr. Connors' injuries were not of a serious nature. He was bruised somewhat, but no bones were broken and he was able to walk to his home.

Drift of Opinion.

Every year the Speaker of the House feels called upon to urge the members of the General Court to get down to business. Last Monday Speaker Cole told the members that it was high time for them to begin serious work, that nearly two months of the session has been frittered away with talk and action is what is now required. They took the rebuke kindly, and we shall see what good it does. That there will be need of more advice from the chair past experience proves. As the end of the session approaches, the members demonstrate that business can be done. Why not put a little more energy into the weeks at the beginning of the session?—Lynn Item.

Evelyn Thaw Is Excused by the District Attorney

TESTIMONY IS UNSHAKEN

Mother Got More Than $3000
From White's Funds While Witness Was at School—Hummel
Fails to Aid Prosecution

New York, Feb. 27.—Mrs. Evelyn N. Thaw's long ordeal upon the witness stand at the trial of her husband for the alleged murder of Stanford White came to an end yesterday. Mr. Jerome finished his cross-examination, which had lasted through nearly five days, at the morning session. The re-direct and re-cross-examinations in the afternoon were of the briefest character and just prior to adjournment it was announced that the defendant's wife finally had been excused.

The completion of Mrs. Thaw's examination followed the unsuccessful effort of the prosecution to draw from Abraham Hummel certain facts relating to the affidavit which Mrs. Thaw is said to have made in Hummel's law office. In this affidavit it is declared there was an allegation that Thaw had beaten the girl while abroad in 1903, when she told him there was no truth in the story about her relations with Stanford White.

Mr. Delmas, for the defense, blocked practically every question put to Hummel. The witness got no further than saying he knew Mrs. Thaw, that she came to his office on Oct. 27, 1903, and that he dictated to a stenographer while she was there. Justice Fitzgerald held that under the rules of evidence covering Mrs. Thaw's testimony the introduction of collateral facts was not permissible. The district attorney is not allowed to controvert her testimony in any way, but may test her credibility.

Mr. Jerome said in open court that he realized that even if he could show Stanford White was in Europe the night Mrs. Thaw declares she was assaulted by him, he would not be allowed to introduce such testimony. It is reported that Jerome has much testimony to offer in rebuttal, but as it is nearly all of a collateral character he will not be allowed to place it before the jury.

Mrs. Thaw was given the opportunity to clear up the odds and ends of her story. Jerome introduced in evidence her school girl diary and read certain extracts from it. They caused many smiles in the courtroom, reflecting as they did the young woman's views of life during that period. Mrs. Thaw denied again that she had ever used a penny of the letter of credit Stanford White gave to her under seal before she went to Europe with Thaw and her mother. She denied that she had ever been mentioned in any way in connection with the James A. Garland divorce case.

She said Stanford White paid all her brother's school expenses and identified receipts and checks signed by her mother showing that the latter drew more than $3000 from Stanford White's funds during the year from May, 1902, to May, 1903. Evelyn was at school during most of this time.

To Settle Catholic Church Bill
Washington, Feb. 27.—Secretary Taft has authorized Governor Magoon to discharge the obligation of Cuba in the matter of the purchase of certain property in Havana belonging to the Roman Catholic church, which has been occupied continuously since 1901 for governmental purposes under lease. It was mutually agreed between Magoon and the church authorities that $1,332,143 would be a fair price and this Taft has authorized Magoon to pay.

New Treaty Satisfies Dominicans
Washington, Feb. 27.—Secretary Root has been informed that the Dominican government accedes to the amendment to the Dominican treaty by the United States senate striking out the requirement that the American receiver of customs must be appointed subject to the approval of the senate. The treaty remains to be approved by the Dominican congress, but this is believed to be a mere formality.

Carter Stirs Up Hawaiians
Honolulu, Feb. 27.—Nothing that has happened for a long time in Hawaii has created the same widespread interest as Governor Carter's announcement in an interview that he had been willing that his daughter should marry a Japanese. It is the subject of discussion everywhere. The newspapers are bombarded with communications condemning it.

Looking Into Mrs. Binge's Death
New York, Feb. 27.—The grand jury today opened an inquiry into the death of Mrs. Ida Binge, the wealthy widow in connection with whose death a daughter, Mrs. Leopold Wallau, is held under bonds of $50,000. Twenty witnesses, including the chemists who made a post-mortem examination of the stomach, have been summoned.

Would Not Limit Armaments
Rome, Feb. 27.—It would appear from the present status of the negotiations concerning the matters to be discussed at the next Hague peace conference that Austria will support the attitude of Germany against taking up the question of the limitation of armaments and the recognition of the Drago doctrine.

SHAW ON POLITICS

Is Bound to Heed Presidential

Sentiment If It Continues

New York, Feb. 27.—Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury, was elected president of the Carnegie Trust company of this city, the election to take effect March 5.

Secretary Shaw, when asked what effect his acceptance of this position would have upon his political future, said:

"General Grant expressed the correct attitude of an ideal American citizen when he said he had never sought a place of honor or preference and had never declined one. The honors that have come to me have been unsought. When the alternative of seeking the nomination for governor of my state or running away from the sentiment was presented, I simply took the affirmative of the issue. Whatever Shaw presidential sentiment now exists has sprung up spontaneously, and unless it continues to grow in the same way, my name will never be mentioned in a national convention. Meantime, I will not decline appropriate tasks nor refuse to do my share of the world's work."

Philippines Will Remain Ours
Boston, Feb. 27.—In an address on the present condition in the Philippines here last night, Arthur F. Odlin, a local attorney, who was a member of the judiciary in the Philippines for four years, held that it was too late now to discuss the question whether it was an error to take the island. "We are there as a fact," he said, "and we presumably will remain there indefinitely." The speaker stated that he was no admirer of the Japanese and regarded them as the most dangerous people in the Orient.

Rough-House in Legislature
Raleigh, Feb. 27.—The floor of the house of representatives was the scene of a vigorous encounter between Congressman-elect Hackett and Representative Bryant. Hackett struck Bryant and the latter drew a long-bladed pocket knife and made for Hackett, but was intercepted and disarmed. He then attempted to strike Hackett with the ink stand and later with a chair, but the blows fell short. Bryant later apologized for his offensive words that brought on the fracas.

Perkins Vindicated by Divided Court
Albany, Feb. 27.—By a divided court, voting four to three, the court of appeals sustained the judgments of the court below to the effect that George W. Perkins, as a vice president of the New York Life Insurance company, was not guilty of larceny in the use of money of the company for contributions to the Republican campaign fund in 1904, and that whatever the moral and ethical aspects of Perkins' action, it was not criminal under any existing statute.

Oil Companies' Defense
St. Louis, Feb. 27.—Arguments by the defense have begun in the state's ouster suit against the Standard, Republic and Waters-Pierce Oil companies. The defense contends that the evidence fails to show that there was any agreement to fix the prices of oil, and that the division of trade territory is not in violation of any statute.

Railroad Improvements, Checked
Chicago, Feb. 27.—Owing to anti-railway legislation, the difficulty of raising money and the increased cost of labor and material, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad has temporarily abandoned improvements and extensions, for which the management expected to spend between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000.

Senate Passes Currency Bill
Washington, Feb. 27.—The senate passed the sundry civil appropriation bill, carrying $174,000,000. It also passed the Aldrich currency bill, authorizing the issuance of $10 gold certificates to the end that the $10 greenbacks may be broken up into $1, $2 and $5 bills, for which there is a great demand.

Battleship a Fever Craft
Washington, Feb. 27.—The secretary of the navy received a dispatch from Rear Admiral Evans, commanding the Atlantic fleet, stating that the battleship Connecticut would sail immediately from Guantanamo for the north with a typhoid epidemic aboard, there being 35 cases now under treatment.

Killed by Robbers
New York, Feb. 27.—Chester Peyton, aged 31, driver and collector for a laundry firm in Greenpoint, L. I., was murdered and robbed on the outskirts of that place last night. He was shot twice in the head and a bullet also passed through one hand. His pockets were rifled and $100 taken.

An All-Night Reception
Ponce, P. R., Feb. 27.—The members of the Commercial clubs of Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati and St. Louis, who arrived here on their way to Panama on the steamer Prinz Joachim, were given an enthusiastic reception in the theatre, the festivities lasting until 3 o'clock in the morning.

Fatal Result of Small Fire
New York, Feb. 27.—Seven firemen were overcome by smoke during a fire that slightly damaged a provision store on Eighth avenue last night and one of them, Albert Dann, subsequently died. Henry Baker is in a serious condition.

Young Men's Christian Association

OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title—Incorporated 1894.)
The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as a dormitory, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CROWMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, FRANK G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $50,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve up all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

DIGGING OF CANAL

Is Transferred to the Engineer
Branch of the Army

CONTRACT PLANS STOP

Chief Engineer Stevens, Who Has Been Stung by Criticisms, Hands In Resignation to Accept Position at Higher Salary

Washington, Feb. 27.—By an order addressed to the isthmian canal commission, President Roosevelt, as far as lay in his power under existing law, has transferred to the engineer branch of the army the responsibility for the further construction of the Panama canal. He also, in the same order, which took the form of a letter addressed to Chairman Shonts of the commission, himself about to retire from all connection with the enterprise, formally recorded the abandonment, for the present at least, of the project of having the canal work done by contract on the percentage system. Another feature of the order was the announcement of the resignation of John F. Stevens as engineer-in-chief of the canal construction.

The intention of the president is that there shall be an entire reorganization of the commission, with three army officers of the engineer corps its leading members, who are to have charge of the engineering features of the canal work. The chairman and engineer-in-chief of the commission will be Major Goethals, and his associates will be Major Gaillard and Major Sibert, to rank in the order named.

The reorganization is to become effective immediately upon the confirmation and retirement of the old commission. Senator Blackburn, who resigns from the senate March 4, will be made a member of the reorganized commission. The nominations of the present commission now pending before the senate include Messrs. Shonts, Stevens, Hains, Endicott, Herrod, Georgas and Smith. Their confirmation is desired in order to remove all doubt as to the legality of certain acts they have performed in connection with the making of contracts.

The retirement of Shonts and Stevens will leave but two vacancies, so that there will be two more retirements necessary to make way for the three army officers and Blackburn. As he told his commissioners, the president is determined that the work on the canal shall proceed continuously and thoroughly, and the temporary "dislocations" which may come as a result of the resignations of higher officials will not be allowed to interfere with progress.

The president is unaware of the specific reasons which have been influential in prompting Stevens' resignation. It surprised him very much, for as late as the middle of December, when he was here, Stevens made no mention of his wish to retire.

It has been known, however, that Stevens has been stung very much by criticisms aimed at him in connection with canal work and he has been disposed to complain somewhat about them. Some of this criticism came out during hearings before committees of the congress. The salary question also is understood to have had an important bearing on his retirement. It is understood that Stevens is leaving the government service to accept a position in connection with a great engineering enterprise in this country at a salary at more than double that he is now receiving from the government.

For several weeks it has been rumored here that Stevens was dissatisfied with the plan of letting the canal work out by contract, but, as explained by a member of the cabinet, Stevens really proposed to the president the adoption of this method of constructing the canal. One of the reasons alleged by the president for abandoning the project was that its author was about to withdraw.

The probability is that the administration may determine to give out the work to be done at the isthmus under contract under the general direction of the army engineers. After Goethals and his army associates have been at the isthmus sufficient time to become fully acquainted with the situation, they will submit a report to the president. If they feel that the work can be better done by contract than under the system now in vogue, the question will again be considered by the president and, as he says in his letter, the services of the same high class contractors whose bids are now rejected or others of similar standing may then be invoked in the interest of economy and speed.

The explanation of the president's reasons for making the sweeping changes and in refusing all bids so far offered for building the canal are set out in a letter addressed to Chairman Shonts and dated Feb. 22.

The president, for the past six weeks, with Secretaries Taft and Root and the officials of the canal commission, had been canvassing the bids received Jan. 12 last for the construction of the canal.

"A RAILROAD GOD"

the Imagination

WOULD TAKE ALL ROADS

Only Thing That Prevents Him

Is the Law--Amazing Facts Brought Out Before Interstate Commerce Commission

New York, Feb. 27.—Edward H. Harriman, as a sort of railroad god, with one hand grasping the railroad interests of the Pacific coast and the other stretching out to dominate the lines of the Atlantic seaboard, was the picture presented to the imagination late yesterday afternoon as Commissioner Lane of the interstate commerce commission questioned the great railroad magnate as to where his ambition for acquisition and consolidation of railroads would finally land him.

As the courtroom darkened in the evening Lane claimed general attention and, leaning across the bench, began an impressive sketch of the enormous acquisitions of the Union Pacific under Harriman.

He began with the issuance of the $100,000,000 in bonds and traced its purchases out to Portland on the coast, on to the Orient by steamship lines, back to San Francisco, to Ogden, to New Orleans, to New York by steamships, into the Northern Pacific, and out again, into the Alton, the Illinois Central, the Santa Fe, the Baltimore and Ohio and the New York Central.

His face paled and his voice grew more impressive as he continued the wonderful recital. He was facing Harriman and, pausing for a moment, said:

"Where is this thing going to stop?"

The master operator smiled and then somewhat nervously said:

"I don't—I think it has stopped. I don't think we have any more. I would go on if I thought we could realize something more than we have got from these securities. I would go on and buy some more things."

Harriman boldly asserted that nothing would stop him but the law, and that he would go on acquiring one railroad after another if the commission would let him.

Here were some of the features of the hearing: An assertion that Stuyvesant Fish was deposed from the presidency of the Illinois Central because of misconduct of the funds of the company.

A continued refusal by Harriman to answer questions relating to individual stock transactions.

Explanations of the transfer of 300,000 shares of Southern Pacific stock to William G. Rockefeller during the attempt of James R. Keene to secure control of the road, and of the delayed announcement of the dividends in Union and Southern Pacific.

Attempts by the government to show that the Union Pacific charges unfair rates, stifles competition in the vast territory traversed by its lines and that its dividend of 10 percent and its expenditure of $240,000,000 on betterments came from an unfair toll on its patrons.

An academic discussion of railroad regulation by high authorities on either side; that ran from a plea for legalized combinations of railroads under government supervision to a suggestion that the government control railway stock issues.

A charge and an admission that the misconduct of the railroads created the popular anger that moves determinedly for their regulation.

A charge that no other country in the world is so hostile to large transportation interests.

An assertion that the purchase of Southern Pacific by the Union Pacific had given the southwest 10 years' advantage in development, that the failure of the Union Pacific to secure the Northern Pacific left the northwest 10 years behind where it would have been if control had been obtained.

The day ended with the remarkable scene where the government and the man stood confronted. It gave a vivid and intimate realization of the problems of swollen wealth and railway regulation, and the participants, their utterances and the circumstances gave it importance.

Relied on Department Heads

New York, Feb. 27.—President Newman of the New York Central railroad, testifying before the state railroad commission regarding the wreck at Brewster, Feb. 16, in which 23 lives were lost, said that neither the president nor directors of the company know officially the details of the road's operation beyond what is shown by reports of department heads. He said builders of electric locomotives endeavored to secure a speed of 75 to 80 miles an hour.

May Be Double Murder

New York, Feb. 27.—Enraged by jealousy, the police say, Philipino Danesillo, 25 years old, shot his wife and his brother, Pasquale, in an East Side store. Mrs. Danesillo, who is 17 years old, was shot three times and Pasquale was shot twice. Both are likely to die. The husband escaped.

"SIMPLY A PRESENT"

Sheriff Got Funds From His

Deputies at Election Times
Boston, Feb. 27.—Although denying the charges of assessments for political purposes in connection with the election of sheriff of Suffolk county, a number of deputy sheriffs admitted to the legislative committee on election laws that they had made gratuitous contributions at election times. In the last contribution to the sheriff the deputies paid a total of $1690 to a benevolent association and the treasurer of that association handed the sum to the sheriff as a gift, with the idea that it would help him defray his election expenses.

The hearing was the outcome of charges made by Senator Linehan, who, in speaking in favor of a bill for a direct vote for nomination of a sheriff in Suffolk county, instead of by party conventions, stated that it was the custom to levy assessments on all the deputies at the time of elections.

Sheriff Seavey appeared before the committee, backed by a large delegation of his deputies, all of whom are appointed by him, to deny the charges. The sheriff stated that he had never solicited contributions from his deputies, but admitted that he had received gifts from them at election times. He contended that the contribution was simply a present and that it was a coincidence that it happened to be made at election times. The deputies, however, said that the contributions had always been made at those times.

Thirty-Five Left on Larchmont

Providence, Feb. 27.—That there were at least a crowd of 35 panic-stricken people on the deck of the steamship Larchmont when she sank, that the lifeboats had been put off and that Captain McVey was nowhere to be seen were the main points of the stories told by four more survivors of the Joy liner to the Providence board of United States steamboat inspectors yesterday. All the survivors interviewed were propped up in their cots at the Rhode Island hospital, where they are recovering from their terrible experience.

Hudson Held In $5000

Boston, Feb. 27.—The case against Dr. Arthur S. Hudson, charged with having performed a criminal operation upon Mrs. May E. Felderman of Malden, was called in the municipal police court and continued until March 12. Hudson was held in bonds of $5000. The defendant was informed that the charge against him was beyond the jurisdiction of the court, and that he was entitled to a hearing to determine whether there was probable cause for holding him for the grand jury.

Children's Terrible Experience

Dalton, N. H., Feb. 27.—Four children of Alvin H. Pike, their ages ranging from 15 to 3 years, who had been left alone by their parents, were driven from their home by fire and suffered intensely from cold and deep snow while trying to reach the nearest house, a mile and a quarter away. A 6-year-old girl lost stockings and shoes in the drifts and had both legs frozen to the knees. The other three were almost insensible when they were discovered, but revived later.

Held in Lottery Case

Boston, Feb. 27.—Benjamin McElroy of Somerville waived examination before Commissioner Hayes on the charge of violating the federal laws regarding lotteries by his alleged connection with the Honduras lottery and was held for the grand jury on his own recognizance in the sum of $1000. The grand jury already has before it the case of George Cole, held on the same charge as McElroy.

Thinks Walker Will Be Caught

New Britain, Conn., Feb. 27.—Chief of Police Rawlings returned last night from New York, where he had been since last Friday in connection with the search for William F. Walker, the absconding treasurer of the Savings Bank of New Britain. He said he had no information to give out, but expressed the belief that Walker would be captured ultimately.

Woman and Daughters in Hospital

Malden, Mass., Feb. 27.—A double runner, containing nine persons, coasting down Tremont street, collided with a tree last night and three of the coasters were badly injured. Mrs. Elizabeth Farrow sustained internal injuries and fractures of both wrists, while her two daughters were also seriously hurt. They were taken to a hospital.

Willing to Become Bankrupt

Pawtucket, R. I., Feb. 27.—From notices received by the creditors of the F. E. Warburton Thread company, which went into the hands of a receiver a short time ago, it is learned that the company is insolvent and willing to go into bankruptcy. The concern was started in 1898 and has a capital of $100,000.

Alleged Fugitive From Justice

Boston, Feb. 27.—At the request of the British consul here, George Matthews was arrested on a charge of being a fugitive from justice from Cardiff, Wales, where, it is claimed, he misappropriated funds of the Eastport Rate-Payers' Fraternal association of that place. He will contest extradition.

Machinists to Demand More Pay

Providence, Feb. 27.—The machinists of this city, at a mass meeting last night, voted to demand a nine-hour day and an increase of 10 percent in pay, to take effect on June 30 of the present year. A schedule of 10 hours a day is now in force among the machinists and the pay ranges from $2 to $8.25 a day.

SEVENTEEN PERISHED

Terrible Results at a Fire In a School at Montreal

Montreal, Feb. 27.—Principal Maxwell and 16 children perished in a fire which broke out in a brick two-story school in the east end of the city and attended by about 200 children.

The fire started from the furnace and was first noticed by some men working across the street. The teachers were notified and the work of getting the children out of the building began. Contrary to custom the kindergarten department was located on the second floor, and it was here that the loss of life occurred. The children were started out, but on reaching the landing found the lower hall full of smoke. Into this they refused to descend, though the way at this time was quite safe. Huddled together on the stairway at first they retreated to the rooms from which they had come. When the firemen arrived an extension ladder was placed in position and a large number of children were rescued in this way.

It is claimed at the office of the building commissioner that official notice was served on the school commissioners in November that not only this school, but 50 others in the city, must be provided with fire escapes at once. None had been built at the burned school. Another point to be explained is why the kindergarten, or baby class, had been taken to an upper story.

Bridge Trust Driven From Ohio

Bellefontaine, O., Feb. 27.—Attorney General Ellis has dismissed the quo warranto proceedings against the American Bridge company, which was indicted on the charge of being a part of the so-called bridge trust, investigation failing to reveal any connection between the American Bridge company and the pools alleged to have been entered into by other companies operating in this state. Ellis began ouster proceedings against 13 bridge companies, 12 of which have surrendered their charters or withdrawn from the state.

Internal Machine For Grand Duke

St. Petersburg, Feb. 27.—Another plot upon the life of Grand Duke Nicholas Nicolaievich, president of the council of national defense and second cousin of Emperor Nicholas, has been foiled. This plot was discovered shortly before the time scheduled for the arrival here of an imperial train bringing the grand duke from Tsarskoye-Selo. A box on the track was found to contain an internal machine of enormous power. The mechanism was designed to cause an explosion from the vibration of the train as it passed.

Says Stockholders Were Robbed

Hartford, Feb. 27.—Representative Gunn of Milford made a sharp attack in the legislature on the insurance companies of the state, saying in effect he could prove in one instance that the stockholders in the company had been robbed. This attack was made during a debate on the resolution to give the Travelers' Insurance company the right to increase its capital stock. The resolution was placed at the foot of the calendar to be called up later.

Nicaraguans Capture Hondurans

Managua, Feb. 27.—In the fighting that resulted in the capture by Nicaraguans forces of the Honduran town, San Marcos de Colon, General Megia-vidal and 100 officers and soldiers were captured. The Nicaraguans also gained possession of one piece of artillery and a large quantity of ammunition. Many men were killed and wounded in the fighting.

"Camp Meeting John" Dead

Portland, Ore., Feb. 27.—Rev. John P. Naugle, known to Methodists as "Camp Meeting John," who preached a series of sermons at Washington during the administration of President Grant which were attended every night by the president, members of congress and many others, died at his home here. He was born in Baltimore in 1837.

Train Disaster In Nova Scotia

Truro, N. S., Feb. 27.—Three employees of the Intercolonial railroad were killed and seven persons were injured, one probably fatally, by a head-on collision between an express bound for Boston and an express running from Montreal to Halifax at Brookfield. The wreck is said to have been due to a misunderstanding of orders.

Oil Shortage Threatened

Nantucket, Mass., Feb. 27.—The ice embargo of Nantucket island is more complete than at any time this season, and the annual discomforts from such conditions have begun through a threatened shortage in kerosene oil. No boat has reached the mainland for several days, but there is plenty of food.

Fatal Explosion In Mine

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 27.—In an explosion of gas in the Auchincloss colliery at Nantucket, William Evans was instantly killed and seven other workmen were severely wounded. Two of the injured are not expected to recover.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Penobscot river is practically closed to navigation, the ice extending entirely across the river at Fort Point, as well as being jammed solidly at Bucksport. River and bay steamboats are tied up.

The board of directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad company have authorized an adjustment in the wages of station agents and station forces on its lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie.

The entire crew of the British schooner Lucile were rescued from their vessel in mid-ocean by steamer Roma. The Lucile had encountered a terrific storm and was in a sinking condition.

SINGLE TAX

President of
The League
Explains Principles
To Quincy Men

The lecture on single tax by C. B. Fillebrown at Colonial hall, under the auspices of the Citizens' Association, was not as largely attended as anticipated for less than half a hundred were present. The lecture was well advertised but evidently Quincy people do not enthuse over the question.

In the absence of President Kincaide, Paul R. Blackmur presided and introduced the speaker.

Mr. Fillebrown spoke for about one hour and held the closest attention of those present. The lecture however was far too deep for ordinary citizens to grasp the full import in one evening.

He presented many facts and figures to illustrate his points, but it is doubtful if many grasped their full meaning, for it would require hours of study to thoroughly understand and appreciate them.

In opening Mr. Fillebrown said that it was his intention to give three basic principles of single tax. He presented many facts and gave illustrations. These briefly stated were:—

First—Ground rent is a social product. Second—A tax on ground rent cannot be shifted on the tenant to make his rent higher.

Third—The selling value of land is the untaxed value.

The speaker took up each of these principles separately and elucidated upon each at length. He followed his notes closely and endeavored to give his address understandingly. Ground rent he declared was what the land was worth annually for use. Of this part went for the support of the government and the privileges enjoyed, and the balance into the pockets of the owners.

A tax on ground rent cannot be shifted for a tax to increase rent. If it could, the selling value of land could not be reduced as it now is. What ground rent is worth is determined by the demand for the ground.

The selling rate of land is the untaxed value, therefore much land is untaxed. Under the present system of taxation the selling value of land is an untaxed value. Those who buy land, buy only the equity after the taxes are paid.

At the conclusion of his address several gentlemen present asked questions of the speaker which were answered.

A vote of thanks was then extended to Mr. Fillebrown.

Birthday Party.

On Tuesday night the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hayes, was the scene of much rejoicing. The fact that "Will" had an anniversary of his birth could not be allowed to pass unnoticed by his many friends, so consequently a surprise party was arranged in his honor. The plans were beautifully carried out, the surprise was complete.

In the course of the evening Representative Sandberg presented Mr. Hayes with a morris chair, and in a well chosen speech conveyed the wishes of the guests assembled. Mr. Hayes responded.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Deaver, Representative and Mrs. Sandberg, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest, Mr. and Mrs. F. Artis, Mr. and Mrs. Berman, Mr. and Mrs. Minor, Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Cogetts, Mr. and Mrs. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Prout, Mrs. and Mrs. C. Kuester, Mrs. Abrams, Mrs. Winick, Mrs. Flowers, Miss Langeane, Miss Durham the Misses Carlson, Miss Collins, Mr. Gillis, Mr. O. Sandberg, Mr. J. Olson, Mr. J. C. Nelson, Mr. E. A. Myers.

The evening was spent very happily with music, singing, etc. Each guest received a souvenir.

—The constitutional convention at Guthrie, Okla., yesterday, took away from the Lieutenant-Governor the power to appoint the committees of the State Senate. During the discussion two delegates nearly came to blows.

—We examine in our dark-room with modern instruments. If we find disease we send you to a reliable oculist. Williams, 1473 Hancock street.

Church of England 300 Years in America

Christ church was filled Wednesday evening with a large audience to listen to a lecture by Rev. George Hodges, dean of the Episcopal Theological school, on "Three hundred years of church life in America." Dr. Hodges is the author of a recent book of this title and is therefore perfectly conversant with the subject. He brought with him forty stereopticon views, which increased the interest of the lecture.

The lecture was particularly applicable in as much as the first religious movement in this country was established by the church of England in 1607, at Jamestown, Va.

The lecture was divided into three divisions. He first spoke of the coming of the colonists in 1607, emphasizing the fact, that thirteen years before the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock, there had been in Jamestown a settlement with regular services of the Church of England. In graphic words he described the adventurous life of John Smith and explained how his relation to the Jamestown colony was like that of Miles Standish to Plymouth.

In the second division he described the forces of the Indian life and the final massacre of nearly all the colonists.

In the third division he told of the arrival of Lord Delaware and the gradual construction of the settlement. It was in this settlement of men from the Church of England and in their little wooden church that was first applied the principles of democratic government.

In conclusion the Dean described the great movement that is now taking place among the men of the Episcopal church, the end of which is to gather a large thank offering to be presented at the coming tri-annual convention of the Episcopal church to be held in Richmond, Va., near the old site of the first settlement. This offering is given in gratitude for our Anglo-Saxon civilization, our representative Government and our type of American Christianity.

The Proper Way To Exchange Books

There is always a right and a wrong way to do everything, and the right way is really the easiest way. A person coming to the Thomas Crane Public Library to exchange a book should leave his card with the book at the return side of the delivery desk, so that the book may be discharged by the date upon the card.

He should then write the name that is on the card (no other name) with the address on the slip provided for the purpose, according to the directions there given. This he should do whether he writes out his numbers for selection, or chooses his book from the open cases, or gets his book from an attendant or from some neighbor or friend returning the same.

All should comply with this simple requirement, as it will facilitate matters at the delivery desk and avoid confusion. According to the present charging system which has the personal card, this is simply a good business method on both sides, keeping the account square, giving the borrower evidence to show that he has returned his book on the one hand, and the library the right to require the return of the book on the other, in case such evidence be lacking.

There is absolutely no "red tape," in this or any other department of the library, as the rules are as simple and few as possible, and any question will be most courteously welcomed if one does not understand.

Exhibit Loaned By Adams Family.

Quincy figures in the historical collection from Massachusetts which is to be shown at the Jamestown Ter-Centennial Exhibition, Norfolk, Va., next spring, now on view in the textile gallery of the Museum of Fine Arts. It is a loan collection, comprising silver-ware, portraits, miniatures, fans, embroideries, costumes, lace, books, autographs, manuscripts, etc., illustrating the life of the colonial and revolutionary period of our history in a very interesting manner, says the Transcript.

As the standard of the exhibit is not so much artistic as historical value much of the collection can scarcely be said to fall into the category of the arts; yet on the other hand it is quite as true that many of the objects are intrinsically beautiful, and would be worth looking at for their own sakes, without regard to the associations belonging to them. The collection of old silver is especially interesting. It includes many of the pieces that are shown in the exhibition of colonial silver held here last year.

The collection has been brought together under the management of a committee composed of Mrs. Winthrop Sargent, Mrs. W. W. Vaughan, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Mr. Joseph Grafton Minot, Mr. William C. Endicott and Mr. Francis H. Bigelow.

Of special interest are the pieces formerly belonging to the Adams family of Quincy—President John Adams and his wife, Abigail, which are loaned by Charles Francis Adams, 2d. There are also several pieces made by Paul Revere.

The exhibit of autographs is notable from a historical point of view; it includes those of all the Massachusetts colonial governors. The old books, too, will be found of much interest; they are for the most part theological volumes, sermons, accounts of the witchcraft trials in Salem, etc. The descendant of the cavaliers will be vastly amused by some of the title-pages of the Puritan publications setting forth the horrors of the sinner's future punishment in uncertain terms.

As a means of bringing to view the life of the eighteenth century in New England, the group of costumes, those of men as well as of women, must be regarded as especially valuable illustrations of fashions known to most of us only through pictures and prints. There are many old portraits of the worthies of the colonial times, most of them rather bad paintings; and many old prints, maps, charts, etc. The collection makes, on the whole, a fairly complete tableau of Massachusetts life prior to the revolution, at least so far as it can be reconstructed in this fragmentary way.

Norfolk County Probate Court

Administrations were granted on Wednesday at Norfolk county probate court on the estate of Charles Greenfield of Quincy; Evelyn S. Eldridge of Milton; William L. Fisher of Weylesley; George A. Bailey of East Dedham; and Anne E. Bowman of Brookline.

Wills allowed—of Mary E. Tracy of Weymouth, Anaretta T. Leighton of Brookline, Martin Cook of Brookline.

An inventory was allowed on the estate of Franklin Jacobs of Quincy, for $596.98.
Guardians appointed—Richard D. Chase of Quincy of Louise Mitchell of Chicago, a minor, bond $6000; and Charles S. Peers of Martha and Alfred Greenfield of Quincy, minors, bond $2500.

Several accounts were allowed.

—An address in which he vigorously denounced public school teachers who encourage their pupils to learn to dance, and related an instance which had come to his notice in which a teacher had "enticed" the little daughter of a Methodist woman to dancing school, was delivered by Bishop Mallalieu at the morning session of the all-day convention in behalf of foreign born citizens and city missionary work, which was held in the Bromfield Street M. E. Church, Boston.

—Thomas Bailey Aldrich, the poet, is seriously ill at the Homeopathic Hospital, in Boston, following an operation. The dangerous point in the illness is believed to have passed, however, and the physicians look for the patient's recovery. Mr. Aldrich is 70 years of age.

The Transportation Of Liquors

Editors of Daily Ledger:

Quincy is a no-license city. This is, the starting point and the controlling fact in any discussion of this matter. Every year for twenty years the people of Quincy have declared emphatically that they do not want and will not have liquor saloons in their midst.

But in voting out the saloons they do not attempt to interfere with the acknowledged right of the individual to keep liquor in his own house for his own use, nor with his consequent right to have liquor carried to his own house for his own use. The former of these rights necessarily includes the latter, just as the ownership of a piece of land includes a right of way to get to it.

And so, recognizing the fact that one right includes the other, the law provides that every no-license city or town "shall" issue "one or more" licenses for the transportation of liquor within its limits. The evident spirit of the law is to limit the number of licenses to the actual needs of the citizens; if one license will serve such purpose, then only one should be granted; if otherwise, two, and so on. The provision of the law was made in the interest of the citizens and not of the expressman:—To secure the citizen in a certain recognized right, and not to make extra business for the expressman; and especially not to set up superfluous expressmen in the business of bringing liquor into a no-license city.

In this connection a particularly puerile and demagogic argument is sometimes used; that one man has as good a right to a license as another; that there should be no monopoly by large concerns; that this or that poor man needs a license to help him earn a living and support his family, etc.

The obvious answer to this is that the city government does not engage to provide business openings for needy citizens, and especially to set them up in a business which is under the ban of strong public opinion. The people of Quincy declare emphatically that they will not allow that sort of needy citizens to support their families by engaging in the liquor business. To issue unlimited licenses would simply change no-license to all-license, and substitute saloons-on-wheels for saloons-on-the-corners. The man who borrows an old wreck of a wagon, chalks "Express Lic. 20-3" on it, and proceeds to do a house-to-house liquor business, has NOT the same right to a license as the established express company which is financially and otherwise responsible, and which carries liquor as an incident of its business and not as the principal part of it.

The liquor traffic is not the only one which it has been found advisable to keep under wholesome restraint. The collection of garbage and the emptying of cess-pools are similarly controlled. Upon the perfectly sound premise that a big swill-wagon or night-wagon smells no worse than a small one, our city fathers wisely reason that it is better to license a few big wagons than many small ones, and also that such necessary but unfragrant activities be restricted to as few persons as possible and those who have facilities for carrying them on in a manner as little offensive as possible.

The whole matter sums itself up thus:—Quincy is a no-license city, and its policy regarding the liquor traffic must be restrictive and repressive. Which means that, while the citizen cannot be deprived of the right to have liquor carried to his own house for his own use, the carrying of liquor should be restricted to the bare legal and reasonable requirements of the case: in fact to a few established express companies who have a business reputation to maintain, who are financially responsible if they break the law, and who will carry liquor only as an incident of their general express business, and in a manner not to offend the strong no-license sentiment of the city.

No-License.
—Supt. Kirkland, in charge of the month extermination work, who is very ill with typhoid fever, was reported yesterday as being more comfortable. While the turning point has not been reached, his temperature was considerably lower and his friends are encouraged.
